Little, But Oh My!
How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 18, 1910.

Topic.—Resist the devil. How?—Jas. iv, 1-10; I Pet. v, 8, 9. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

There are many references in the word of God to the devil. The word "devil" means "slanderer," and in this particular we see his name illustrated in the book of Job, where he slanders Job before God. The name "Satan," so frequently applied to him, means "adversary." In the temptation of Eve this is the word that is used, simply "adversary." But Satan is particularly the adversary of the human soul. Having lost his own spiritual position in relation to God, he is everlastingly engaged in leading the souls of men and women astray, that they may be as he is. This is also a characteristic of those whom Satan has won to sin and evil. We would imagine that those who have fallen into sin and have experienced its consequences would strive to warn others and to keep them from falling. But, alas, in most cases they delight to draw them down to their own level. It is a monstrous trait of an evil one, yet it is true. The spirit of the devil in this respect seems to possess them. How necessary, therefore, to "resist the devil," not even for our own sakes, but to escape such a doom as delighting in ruining the eternal souls of others!

The origin of the devil is not greatly dwelt upon in the Scriptures. It is, however, distinctly taught that he is a real spiritual being, once an angel from heaven who was cast out of heaven for some sin, probably the sin of ambition, as Milton declares in "Paradise Lost." The Bible does teach that the devil is a spiritual being, possessing a power far above man and possessing great skill and tact in attacking the weak places in man's spiritual character. "Your adversary, the devil, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." If he were a physical foe we might not fear him so much, but being a powerful, unseen enemy, knowing just when and how to attack us, we do indeed need to be constantly on our guard against him and his associates, the evil spirits of sinful men.

How are we to resist the devil? We should, that is sure, for James says, "Resist the devil and he will flee from you." Evil in any form is usually cowardly. Satan and sinful men seek easy victims, but are afraid of strong, vigilant souls. We should therefore resist him. (1) By submitting our souls to God. Then, with the armor of God around us, God will fight our battles, and God is more powerful than the devil. (2) By prayer. In temptation go to God in prayer. Draw night unto God, and the nearer you go to Him the farther you will go from the devil. (3) Be on your guard at all times. "Be sober, be vigilant," resisting the devil in the faith. (4) Fill your life with good thoughts and good deeds and the devil will have no chance to successfully tempt you. "Cease to do evil by learning to do well." "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord and He will draw thee up." (5) Use the Scripture as a sword of offense and defense. It is double edged and can do great harm. Thus Christ beat off Satan in the great temptation. Satan used the Scripture, falsely intrepreted, as he and his associates so often attempt today in the warfare against Christ. But Christ understood the Bible too well for him. In each instance Christ used also the sword of the Spirit, the Bible, only He thrust it a little deeper into the adversary, and after the third clash of arms the devil fled from Him, and angels administered to Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. iii, 1-12; Job i, 6-22; Ps. ii; Prov. i, 10-19; Matt. vi, 13; Mark. xiv, 38; Luke iv, 13; Matt. iv, 1-11; Eph. vi, 10-19; I John iii, 8, 9; v, 18-22; Phil, iv, 4-8; Rom. xvi, 20; Jude 9.

A Tribute From Manchuria.

Rev. A. V. Bryan, writing from Port Arthur, Manchuria, about the value of Christian Endeavor, said:

"When I think of the great help Christian Endeavor has been to the church at large I wonder that any one, especially the pastors, can criticise it. It seems to me that the organization was begun at just the right time. When I was a boy there was no place in the church for those who were not born in that church. They were set aside by the older element and told to wait. Your organization gave a chance to those who otherwise would have been lost to the church. And I recognize the great change that has come over the church when I see the younger generation coming out to the foreign field and see the Christian nurture and culture they have, which place them far ahead of what I was at the same time of life. In Japan there are military academies that are taking young boys and training them for future military service. It must be so as long as this country is a military power. You are preparing the future church army, and any pastor who is interested, as he should be, in the spread of the church ought to help you in any way he can. If criticisms are made of your organization, there are many who find fault with the churches, but the only thing to do is to recognize that neither is perfect, but always striving for better things."

A Gift From Carnegie.

Andrew Carnegie has given to Wells college $40,000 for the establishment of the Frances Cleveland library in honor of Mrs. Cleveland, who is a Wells graduate. The president of this college, it will be remembered, is Dr. George M. Ward, who was the second general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

To them, thus engrossed in confidential chat, there suddenly entered the two doctors, "Black Bill," the inspector, had given notice that he must needs have speech with the culprit, if that bandaged, blistered and unprincipled young man were in condition to see him. "Black Bill" and his host had been having a night of it. Button was in high fettle over the amazingly truthful and unlooked for articles in the Mail and as eager to know and reward their author as he had been to apprehend and punish the earlier detractor. Button had begun to "wabble," as Bill expressed it, in his spleen against Lanier until so suddenly "braced" by the truculent stand of Captain Snaffle, whose half drunken words the previous night were by this time known all over the post.

The matter was now in the hands of Colonel Riggs, however, and it was his to determine what further action to take. Snaffle had named as his witness Sergeant Fitzroy, Private Kelly (who, though drunk on duty, had not been so drunk, said Snaffle and Fitzroy, that he could not recognize an officer when he saw him), and the third witness, to the amaze of Barker and the derision of Ennis when told of it, was no less a person than poor Tom Rafferty, Lanier's own "striker" and hitherto devoted henchman. And to the consternation of Stannard, Sumter and others Captain Snaffle had been able to back his words. Riggs sent for the two available, Fitzroy and Kelly, and the two had declared they could not be mistaken; that they had heard Miss Arnold's scream, followed instantly by the crash of glass. Fitzroy admitted that he was at the moment at Captain Snaffle's back door; said he ran round to the Sumters' gate, that he distinctly saw the figure of a man in a soldier's overcoat and fur cap leaping and sliding down the roof and that a moment later he grappled with it in the dark woodshed, dropping his hold only when angrily ordered to do so, the voice adding instantly, "I'm Lieutenant Lanier." Fitzroy declared that a moment later Rafferty rushed to the spot, recognized the lieutenant and by him was sternly ordered to leave.

And these statements presently did Colonel Riggs lay before Lieutenant Lanier in the presence of Drs. Larrabee and Schuchardt as well as Lieutenant Ennis. "I've known you three years, young sir," said he, "and I've believed in you from the first. I have reminded Sergeant Fitzroy of his previous allegations against Trooper Rawdon as to the scuffle and assault, and, so far from showing confusion, Fitzroy promptly said, 'Certainly; that took place barely half a minute later and within ten yards of the spot.' He says his whole idea first was to drive Rawdon from the scene and prevent his finding his officer in so humiliating a plight. He says he sought in every way to shield the lieutenant, but when all these other facts came out about the cap, the clothing, the lieutenant's absence from his quarters, his lacerated hand, etc., there was no help for it. He finally yielded to the pressure of Captain Snaffle's questions and told the truth. Kelly miserably admitted his knowledge of it, and when Rafferty came to his senses he, too, was to be catechised.

"Now, Mr. Lanier, there's the situation. Do you care to say anything to me, or would you prefer to take counsel?"

And Bob Lanier, leaning on his elbow, looked quietly up in the colonel's bearded face and answered:

"Colonel Riggs, I reckon both those men think they're telling the truth, and I may have to prove they're not."

"Do you mean you were there?" queried old Riggs in genuine concern.

"There, sir? Of course I was there—quick as I could get there, but not quick enough, by any manner of means."

Riggs looked grave indeed.

"You say you may have to prove it was not you. Don't you know you'll have to if these witnesses are further sustained?"

"Fully, sir, and when my need is known there will be witnesses for the defense. The doctors tell me Rafferty may not come round in less than a week. When the time arrives I'll be ready."

That was the condition of affairs when the eighth and final day of Lanier's close arrest arrived. "The idea of Bob Lanier spending Christmas in hospital!" said Mrs. Stannard. A sunshiny room on the ground floor of the major's big house was duly prepared, and thither just before sunset on Christmas eve our young soldier was piloted by Schuchardt and Ennis, making the trip afoot across the rear-ward space, yet being remanded to a huge easy chair and partial bandages immediately on his arrival.

"Black Bill, with his incomplete report, had gone back to Omaha to further mystify the adjutant general and to eat his Christmas dinner. At 3 p. m. the day before Christmas came a telegram from — Arnold, Esq., of Standish Bay, Mass., announcing that he would leave forthwith for the west, bringing his sister with him. The Sumters told Mrs. Stannard, and she told Bob Lanier.

It has been said that this young gentleman was an outspoken fellow, with a hit or miss way of saying things when once his mind was made up, and by this time it would seem he had made up his mind.

"Mrs. Stannard, if you think a girl could stand the sight of such a Guy Fawkes as this I would give much to speak ten minutes to Miss Miriam Arnold."

"You're not a Guy Fawkes," said Mrs. Stannard, with fluttering heart. "You've lost something of your mustache and eyebrows, but very little of your good looks, only"—

"Only what?"

"Why, it's going to be much harder to see her now than it was before—before she"— And Mrs. Stannard faltered.

"Before she saw me playing St. Somebody or other at the back window and screamed? Nobody knows I heard it except you, and you won't tell. Moreover, it isn't about that that I have to speak."

Mrs. Stannard's bonny face showed instant disappointment.

"There's there's another matter," said Bob, with trouble in his tones.

"I so hoped!" — faltered that arch matchmaker.

"So did I, Mrs. Stannard," said downright Bob, "but not with charges hanging over my head. First I've got to meet the enemy."

And yet he wished to see and speak with Miriam, who not once had set foot out of doors since the night of the fire, whose sweet face flamed at every recurring thought of that incident, whose self betrayal covered her with shame and confusion indescribable, who would give years of her young life if she could only escape from Fort Cushing and hide herself a thousand miles away. But not until that stern puritanical father should arrive was leaving to be thought of. A week agone and the tidings of his coming would have filled her with dread. Now she heard them with relief. Father coming, and Aunt Agnes—Aunt Agnes, who never before had been west of the Hudson; Aunt Agnes, whose forbears had warred against witchcraft and woodcraft, against village crones and forest children, against helpless old women and stealthy young savages, all without mercy when delivered into their hands!

Was it in partial reparation for the rapine, the swindling and stealing dealt out by her pilgrim forefathers to the Indian of the east that Aunt Agnes had become the vehement champion of the Indian of the west? President of a famous peace society was she and secretary of the Standish branch of the Friends of the Red Man—a race whom the original and redoubtable Miles had spitted and skewered and shot without stint or discrimination. And now was Aunt Agnes hastening westward with her brother to reclaim their one ewe lamb from the wolf pack of the wilds and incidentally to see for herself something of the haunts and habits of the red brother, in whose behalf these last six months her voice had been uplifted time and again.

Sumter came in, cheery and laughing, for the late family breakfast. Guard mounting was long over, but he had been detained by the colonel.

"It is almost comical," said he, "to see Button's delight in those letters in the New York papers. He's as curious now to know the author of those as he was furious at the supposed author of the others."

"What others?" faltered Miriam Arnold.

"Some bitter attacks on him that appeared in the Boston and Philadelphia papers about that night surprise of Lone Wolf's village—the one he accused Mr. Lanier of having started."

"Accused Mr. Lanier!" And Miriam Arnold, with consternation in her voice, was half rising from the table.

"I had thought it best to say nothing to you about it, Miriam, dear," said Mrs. Sumter gently.

"But, Mrs. Sumter—captain!" interrupted Miriam, wild eyed. "Do you mean Colonel Button accused Mr. Lanier of those letters?"

"That was the backbone of his grievance against Lanier," said Sumter. "Why?"

"And he didn't deny it—didn't tell what he knew?"

"Denied it, yes, but refused to tell what he knew—said it came in such a way he could not tell. Why, Miriam, what do you know?"

For a moment it looked as though she were on the verge of a hysterical breakdown. Kate sprang to her side and threw an arm around her, but with gallant effort she regained self control.

"I know just who wrote those wicked stories, and I told Mr. Lanier, and I know—and I'm ashamed I ever had to know—who first told them."

CHAPTER VIII.

STANNARD had been summoned to Omaha, much to Button's curiosity and disquiet. Mrs. Stannard was none the less radiant. A romance was unfolding right under her roof. Her patient was sitting up in a sunshiny parlor. At just about 4 p. m., when most people were gone, Mrs. Sumter came quietly, cheerily, convoying her two girls, and presently Bob Lanier was smiling into the eyes of Miriam Arnold.

Not since the night of the fire had he set eyes on her. Miriam looked as though she had been seriously ill. Kate Sumter had given him only hurried and almost embarrassed words of greeting. Mrs. Sumter, however, had extended both her hands in an impulse of loyal liking and friendship, and it is doubtful if Bob even saw the daughter's face. His eyes had flitted almost instantly to Miriam Arnold's. A few minutes of swift, purposeless chat ensued, Mrs. Stannard and Mrs. Sumter doing most of it. Then somehow three women seemed to drift away and become engrossed in matters of their own over by the Navajo covered lounge, and then Miriam lifted up her eyes and looked one moment into the young soldier's face.

"It's the first chance I've had to thank you for the dance we didn't finish," said he, noting with a thrill the tremor of the little hand that fluttered for that moment in his grasp.

"Do you think it a thing to be thankful for? I don't."

"I wouldn't have lost it for a month's pay."

"How very much more than that you may lose!" said she. "Do you think I could have danced with you if I had dreamed what what you were doing?"

"You were dancing like a dream," said he. "Do you mean I was dancing like a nightmare?"

"You were doing what was sure to involve you in grave trouble, and it wasn't kind to me, Mr. Lanier."

"I'm all contrition for the anxiety it caused you, Miss Miriam, and for absolutely nothing else. I wish you to know that I did nothing unusual. Colonel Button was angry with me for a very different matter."

One moment she was silent. Then, with lips that quivered in spite of her effort—a quiver that he saw and that set his heart to bounding madly—with lowered voice she hurried on: "And that, too, involves me or mine. And you"—then uplifting her swimming eyes—"you would not tell."

And then the barrier of his pride was swept away.

"Miriam!" he cried, his hands eagerly seeking and seizing hers, only faintly resisting. "There was no need to tell." He was lifting her hands to his heart, and as he drew them he was drawing her. She had to come, her long, curling lashes sweeping the soft cheeks, now once more blushing like the dawn. "Oh, Mr. Lanier!" he heard her murmur as though pleading and warning. Then his dark eyes, glowing and rejoiceful, fastened on hers, and quick and fervent came the next words: "There is only one thing that need be told that must be told, because I've just been brimming over with it all these weeks" (ah, how the bonny head was drooping now, but drooping toward him), "and now I can keep it back no longer. Miriam, Miriam, I love you—I love you! Have you nothing to tell me?"

One instant of thrilling suspense, then with a sob welling up from her burdened heart the barrier of her pride and reserve went as his had gone a moment ago. "Oh, you know—you know it! Who hasn't known it since that awful night?" she cried and then found herself folded, weeping uncontrollably, almost deliriously, in his arms, his lips raining kisses on the warm, wet cheeks. A moment he held her closely wrapped to his heart, then gradually, yet with irresistible power, turned upward the tear stained, blushing, exquisite face so that he could feast his eyes upon her beauty. Then with joy unutterable his lips sank upon the soft, quivering mouth in the first love kiss she had ever known, and their troubles vanished into heaven at the touch.

To Hold Her Veil Tight.

The girl has conceived the idea of running narrow beading around the bottom and threading it with baby ribbon, which she pins at back. Both beading and ribbon are, of course, of the color of the veil, and fasten under the chin, so as to be inconspicuous. She finds this a solution of the veil problem, with a low-necked blouse, as her veil never looks either untidy or bulky.

Floor Polish.

A cheap floor polish may be made by saving all the ends of candles, putting them in a jar and melting them on a stove. Mix the wax with enough turpentine to make a soft paste and you have an excellent polish for linoleum, etc. Many people prefer this polish to beeswax and turpentine.

BASEBALL.

The Staten Island variety of Elks will be here this afternoon to try their luck with the local ball tossers. The team from the Stapleton lodge will cross bats with 885.

Either Warry McLaughlin or Lew Wiltse will be on the firing line for the Plainfield antlered ones and Torpey will do the catching.

The visiting team is a strong aggregation and the local boys have got to hustle to get away with the game.

Are you going to Somerville Saturday afternoon? Better go and help the Doerflinger boys along with your voice.

Hans Wagner is making rapid gains on Snodgrass in the race for the batting honors of the National League.

If the Detroit Tigers win today and the New York and Boston Americans lose, the champions will take second place in the league race. And with a crippled team at that.

Kid Mueller, formerly of the Newark Eastern League team and one of the best pitchers in that organization, is making good on the Toronto nine, to which he was traded for McAllister.

The famous Merkle, first baseman on the New York Giants, is nursing a split heel. He hopes, however, to have the injured member in shape for a grand exhibition, which will be celebrated under the name of Merkle Day at the Polo grounds September 23. Johnny Evers will be there on that day.

FOOTBALL.

The Yale football squad is now at the grounds of the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn. The prospective candidates for this year's team will remain there until college opens the latter part of this month. Edward H. Coy, the famous fullback of the Yale varsity last year and also the captain of the eleven, will act as the head coach of the team this year. He is now with the squad, explaining the new rules to the candidates and getting the men seasoned up.

Harvard is starting its season this year with prospects of losing two of the best players of last year's team. McKay, the giant tackle and Minot, the burly and speedy fullback, are below in their studies, having conditions from last year. It is hoped by the Harvard students that the two stars will be able to work off these incumbrances and several of the college men are working in their behalf.

Prospects of a fast team at Rutgers this year are bright. In addition to many of last year's players, the squad will be strengthened by several of the famous Fordham stars, who are coming to Rutgers this year. Captain Smith says that the team will be a fast one and will also have plenty of weight. The famous Jimmie Alverson, from Newark, will be back at the college on the Raritan this year and his punting will be a firm foundation for a good team.

Hugo Zeller, a graduate of Pingry School, and who played in many games against the Plainfield High and North Plainfield High School teams, is one of the most promising candidates for tackle on the Cornell varsity team this year. Last season, he played on the freshman team at that university and covered himself with glory. Coach Reed expects that he will make the varsity this year with comparative ease.

STAPLETON LINES UP AGAINST PLAINFIELD.

Staten Island Elks to the number of sixty are here today to cross bats with 885, the local lodge. The visitors arrived shortly after noon and were met by a committee of the locals who had prepared luncheon for them.

The day's work is never over for the seeker after honors, and Manager Bechtel says his work will not be finished until he has taken away from Plainfield the coveted baseball. Joseph Kieren will oppose Warry McLaughlin on the mound, but Warry don't worry.

The lineup from the "Kill Von Kull" district includes the following artists: Kiernan, Kehoe, Bechtel, McDonald, Mulligan brothers, Tiernan, Halloran and Griffiths, all of whom have made some baseball history.

MacNaughton has repented of a rash resolve and will cover the first sack. Assisting Warr McLaughlin Torpey will act as receiver near the grand stand. The rest of the team is as follows: Captain Hoyt on second; Van Arsdale at short; Craig or Cadmus at third; Lew Wiltse in left field; "Reliable" Smith in center and Monahan in right garden.

Tennis Tournament.

The entries of the women's tennis doubles tournament at the Plainfield Country Club will close tomorrow evening, with Miss Elizabeth Goddard at 205 East Ninth street, at 8 o'clock. The tournament begins on Saturday morning, September 17.

WOMEN CANNOT PARADE.

G. A. R. Bars Them From Marching at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, Sept. 15.—Women of the organization affiliated with the G. A. R. will be barred from the big encampment parade next week.

The announcement is made by F. M. Sterrett, executive director, that the line will be composed exclusively of Civil War veterans, with the exception of a gun detail from the Sons of Veterans for escort duty and to fire salutes.

Officers of the women's organizations, such as the Army Nurses, Women's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans and others, it is understood, expected that they would be permitted to ride in automobiles and carriages in the parade.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Phillips, of Chicago, but formerly of this city, are entertaining Miss Elizabeth Phillips, of Madison avenue, this city.

James Mauger, of West Seventh street, and Kenneth Phillips, of Madison avenue, who for the past three months have been enjoying the simple life in the Maine woods, returned home yesterday, bronzed and healthy from their long vacation.

Mrs. John Roundey, of Truell Court, is visiting in Washington this week as guests of General and Mrs. Bixby. General Bixby is the chief of the engineers corps and Mrs. Bixby is a sister of Admiral Rogers, and granddaughter of the late Governor of Delaware. Mrs. Bixby spent a week at the Court last winter, and will be remembered by many acquaintances in Plainfield.

Mrs. Stella Shaw, of Brooklyn, a former well known local resident, is visiting in town today for the first time in fourteen years. She was formerly Miss Stella Roselle, daughter of the late John Roselle, and is well known by that name to many residents of the city and borough. Mrs. Shaw expressed herself as being greatly surprised at Plainfield's growth since her removal to Brooklyn.

PRIMARY CASES HEARD.

Bayonne Men Under Bail to Appear in Court.

Bayonne, Sept. 15.—The men arrested here Tuesday on charges of frauds at the primary were held under bail for a hearing next Wednesday.

The most conspicuous arrests were those of Samuel Horwitz, former assistant city surveyor and a brother-in-law to former Recorder Hyman Lazarus, who was a Davis worker, and that of John Shallow.

John Shallow was a Davis candidate for the county committee. He is charged with stuffing a ballot box. It is said that while former Recorder Lazarus was arguing with the board and drawing the attention of the challengers to himself Shallow attempted to put a ballot in the box, he having voted earlier in the day.

Yesterday, as a result of the warning issued by Judge Robert Carey, Prosecutor Pierre P. Garven had Charles Horford, of his office in Bayonne, to investigate the cases.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night in regular session.

RUNYON NAMED FOR CONGRESS

DEMOCRATS NAME WILSON

Princeton's President Unanimously Nominated as Gubernational Candidate.

NOMINEE MAKES A SPEECH.

Thunderous Applause When Dr. Wilson Appears Before the Convention—Victory for James Smith, Jr.

Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, was nominated for governor of New Jersey at the Democratic State convention at Trenton yesterday afternoon. The nomination was made on the first ballot by a vote of 749½, 41½ more than required. It followed a spirited contest waged in the convention hall throughout the afternoon, and in which Frank S. Katzenbach, of Trenton, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee of three years ago, led the opposition field.

The naming of Doctor Wilson followed closely the program mapped out by State party leaders a week ago, when he was first boomed for the governorship, and was accomplished through the influence of former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., the recognized Democratic leader in New Jersey. Mr. Smith patched up a truce with his former enemy, Robert Davis, leader of the Hudson county Democracy, and not only threw the whole weight of his political power for the college president, but swung the entire Essex delegation of 240 votes for him, which, with two-thirds of the Hudson vote, virtually assured Wilson's nomination on the first ballot.

Unfettered, Says Wilson.

While his nomination was being fought out in the convention, Doctor Wilson was enjoying a game of golf on the Princeton links. He was immediately apprised of his choice, and was rushed to Trenton in an automobile. The convention broke into a wild uproar as he stepped upon the platform. Intermingled in the roar of thunderous applause could be distinguished the snappy college yell of a group of Princeton students, who had forced their way upon the platform and joined with the delegates in the demonstration.

In his speech of acceptance, Doctor Wilson declared that he did not seek office, but expressed his gratification in being named to lead the New Jersey Democrats to what he declared to be almost certain victory. He insisted that he had made no pre-convention promises, and that he accepted the nomination with no pledge to any other than the party. In outlining his policy, he stated that he would make his fight for election on the three issues now most conspicuous in the State—economical administration, equalization of taxation and the control of corporations.

"You know that this nomination came to me without solicitation," declared Dr. Wilson after being introduced to the convention. "It has come to me through no pledge or promises, and if I am elected governor of this State, as I expect to be, I shall be absolutely free to serve the people. I believe that the platform which you have adopted is sound, explicit and satisfactory.

Must Keep Pledges.

"It is couched in such terms that no one can mistake its meaning, and I am certain that it will win the confidence of the people. This confidence is to be maintained, however, only by living up to the party promises. The people have heard a great many promises made, to be later disowned. You, therefore, make promises at a critical time, and the people will expect you to keep them.

"Hostility does not solve public questions. If you regard vested interests with enmity merely because they are vested interests, you make a mistake. It is perfectly clear that we ought to have a public service commission, with power equal to that exercised at present in State politics by the public service corporations.

"You know that New Jersey creates a great many corporations, and yet I have not heard that she is in the business of controlling corporations. In this State, therefore, I covet the honor of showing the other States of the union how corporations should be controlled. I mean that New Jersey can scrutinize the corporations that it creates.

"What strikes me as most interesting in our position is that we must —Neuman Bros.' special offering for tomorrow will be 200 baskets of fancy white peaches, all fine fruit and the pick of the orchards.

The Platform

We, the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, in convention assembled, commend in highest terms the able administration of our President, William Howard Taft. During the past eighteen months he has labored zealously and with an eye single to the fulfillment of the party pledges contained in the National Platform of 1908, and his record of achievement constitutes a splendid chapter in the history of beneficial federal legislation.

We pledge him our hearty and united support in his further efforts as Chief Executive of the nation.

Since its first assumption of power fifty years ago, the Republican party has been the party of progress and achievement, and during its almost uninterrupted enjoyment of the people's confidence, it has proven worthy indeed of the trust reposed in it.

We believe that it possesses the same wisdom, courage and capacity to face new problems and conditions that it had to grapple with the old, and is fully alive to the demands of the hour and can with safety be trusted in the future.

Under the wise guidance of President Taft, many emasures have been adopted, many laws have been passed, which must commend themselves to a thoughtful citizenship.

Those worthy of special mention are: The withdrawal from private entry, in order to preserve for the public benefit, valuable coal and other mineral deposits, timber lands and water power sites, of over 74,000,000 acres of the public domain.

The admission of Arizona and New Mexico to Statehood.

The just and fair treatment of our dependencies.

The strengthening of our position and prestige among foreign nations through the vigorous and wise treatment of important international problems.

TARIFF REVISION.

We believe that while the present tariff is a step in the direction so much desired, viz.; Toward downward revision, further and more scientific revision is both possible and advisable. We cordially endorse and approve the proposal of our President that such further revision shall be based upon the findings of the recently appointed Tariff Board; that the duties upon imports shall approximate as nearly as possible the difference in cost of production between this country and foreign nations; that the present duties shall be reduced wherever the rates are discovered to be higher than is necessary to afford labor a high wage and capital a fair return; that such revision shall be taken up and disposed of one schedule at a time in order to minimize the disturbance of business conditions which accompanies tariff changes, and that such revision shall occur as speedily as thorough investigation of conditions will allow.

CONSERVATION.

We endorse unqualifiedly the principle of conservation of our national resources and heartily approve the action of the present Congress and of President Taft in furthering legislation which looks to this end. The application of the homestead laws to millions of acres of the public domain whereby the landless settler can gain a limited patent to the surface while the government reserves to itself for future disposition the title to the underlying mineral deposits, is a measure we cordially endorse.

We demand the impartial enforcement of existing laws, and the enactment of such new laws as may be necessary to protect adequately our national resources against the encroachments of any individual or corporate interests aiming to take from the whole people that which is theirs by right.

LABOR LEGISLATION.

We approve the action of Congress in the creating of a commission to investigate the question of employer's liability laws, and workmen's compensation acts and to make recommendations to the President and to Congress. All federal legislation designed to dignify honest labor, and to improve the fortunes of our worthy fellow citizen, the law abiding working man, merits and has our hearty approval.

We favor and urge such economy in public expenditures as will prevent undue waste, secure efficiency of the public service, promote the

Amid a scene of wild enthusiasm, with delegates standing on their feet applauding and shouting as if mad with joy, Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, was nominated this afternoon at the Fifth District Republican convention as the party's candidate for Representative.

The Plainfield theatre, where the convention was assembled, never contained a more demonstrative crowd than that which witnessed the formal selection of the brilliant and popular judge as the party's standard bearer in the congressional campaign.

The vociferous applause lasted for several minutes and when the band struck up "Hail to the Chief" the noise was deafening When the candidate appeared on the stage there was pandemonium again, Chairman John H. Capstick rapping in vain to quiet the delegates so that the judge could be heard.

Apparently deeply moved by the honor conferred upon him, Judge Runyon delivered an eloquent speech in accepting the nomination. Time and again he was interrupted by applause, and when he had finished there was a great demonstration again.

Owing to the delay in the holding of the various caucuses of county delegates, it was nearly 1 o'clock this afternoon when Alexander Gilbert, as chairman of the Congressional committee, called the convention to order at The Plainfield theatre.

Mr. Gilbert Speaks.

In addressing the convention, Mr. Gilbert made a short speech in which he reviewed the achievements of the Republican party for the past fifty years, and in concluding his remarks made a strong plea for harmony.

Mr. Gilbert said:

"It is my duty as chairman of the Congressional convention to open this convention. Practically, there my duty terminates. I am not expected to make a speech, but only to give efficient service in the duty of my office.

"It is also my pleasure as well as my duty as one of the old-time residents of Plainfield to welcome you all to our beautiful city. We Plainfield people have an honest pride in welcoming strangers to our gates. We think we have one of the most beautiful cities in our State. We think we stand in the foremost among them in generous treatment of our guests and I am only sorry that we have not the time. We have the disposition to have fifty automobiles out front to take you gentlemen all over our city and you would then appreciate why we are so proud of our city and partake of our generous hospitality.

ALEXANDER GILBERT.
Chairman of Congressional Committee Who Called Convention to Order.

We have made provision for the inner man so you will, in a small measure, partake of our hospitality.

Plainfield's Position.

"There is one other thing that redounds to our credit in Plainfield and that is its rank among the Republican cities of this State, and yet there is a large independent element in the party. Only the other day at the primary around 3,000 Republicans voted. Larger by far than the vote for Governor or even at the Presidential election. That may be taken as evidence of the fact that our people approve of the primary laws of the State. We think the results prove the fact that the people think for themselves, and the election shows the merit of the law.

"It was said that a candidate received the nomination for an office at a clambake recently and another man came out for the office. The vote was heavy and a general expression of opinion was obtained in regard to the candidates. One man may be able to do this, but any group of men can bring out a candidate for the people as a whole to consider.

"I am not expected to say much nor am I expected to touch upon National issues. I think in a convention a man should make careful preparation to discuss such questions.

The Republican Party.

"I think, however, that I can say the Republican party is not afraid to grapple with the new problems which confront us. We have a record of fifty years, and when one considers the last fifty years of progress, development, the conserving of the public welfare, the position which this nation occupies in the world of nations, all these things have happened through the Republican party and its forward, progressive policies. The ever-changing conditions which this great republic faces have to be met, and we believe the present administration is doing every thing to warrant the support of all Republicans. Every Republican can afford to be proud and can afford to hold his head high when discoursing upon present day conditions.

"So, I say that amidst the confusing criticism the light stands out that the present administration has fulfilled, as far as able, the party pledges, and that we should approve the administration of President Taft, believing that he can be trusted to carry out to a successful conclusion the policies which the people want, the party pledges in the Republican platform upon which he was elected.

"A gentleman said to me as I came in here that this looks like a harmonious gathering. I think it is a harmonious gathering. I think, with the splendid record of the party to grasp hold of those principles which benefit the people, we shall do that which shall be for the common good.

"Gentlemen, my duty is to nominate a temporary chairman for this convention, and I nominate for that position Mr. John H. Capstick.

Mr. Capstick Chairman.

John H. Capstick, of Madison, Morris county, was presented as the temporary chairman of the convention. Secretaries of the convention as nominated respective delegations were Stanley Jones, of Union; Harry R. Watson, of Morris, and George P. Curtis, of Warren. The vice-presidents were also seated on the platform. The chairmen of the respective delegations announced to the presiding office their selections for membership on the various convention committees, as had been decided upon at the caucuses.

Union County Chairman F. H. Smith moved that the convention the ntake a recess for one hour for dinner. The motion was carried, and the convention adjourned at 1:30.

The Union County delegation dined at the Hotel Waldorf, while the Morris county delegation had its dinner at the Hotel Kensington. Warren county delegates dined at Timbo's restaurant.

Politicians Present.

Among the prominent Union county politicians present at the convention were Former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, brother of United States Senator John Kean; Surrogate George T. Parrot, County Registrar F. H. Smith, Sheriff Robert Kirkland, Collector Nathan R. Leavitt and many of the freeholders. Donald McLean, private secretary to Senator John Kean, was also on hand. State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees and John D. Capstick were conspicuous.

Friends of Mr. Fowler were conspicuous by their absence. John I. Blair Reilly, of Warren county, did not put in an appearance; neither did Charles N. Coding, former county chairman. City Clerk James T. MacMurray was not present at the morning session.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who has given much of his time to planning the convention, served as master of ceremonies. In recognition of his political prominence in the Fifth District as well as by reason of the fact that he is Mayor of the city, was invited to take a seat on the platform. Harry Van Gilder was made permanent secretary after the election of John D. Capstick as chairman.

When the convention re-convened this afternoon at 3 o'clock, the credentials committee reported that there were no contests. The temporary organization was made permanent and the rules of the General Assembly were adopted for the convention.

Morris county gave way to Union when Chairman Capstick called for nominations. Robert H. McCready,

FRANK H. SMITH.
Chairman of Union County Committee Who Was Largely Responsible for Judge Runyon's Nomination.

of the Second Ward, Judge Runyon's home ward, placed the name of the popular Plainfielder before the convention.

The platform was read by the secretary. It will be found in another column.

Mr. McCready said:

"When soldiers are trained for a battle they engage in mimic wars. At these times all the elements of real conflict are in evidence. The men fight with every ounce of power they contain. When the mimic war is over the vistors and vanquished meet together and talk over in a friendly way the causes of victory or defeat. When the umpires render their decision once more the opposing forces are joined together in a compact mass.

"As a result of the sham battle the leaders for the real war are chosen. Our mimic war is over. The leaders have been chosen for the coming fight and well chosen. The leader in this Congressional district is a man who has performed those duties which have been placed upon his shoulders more than well. Following the usual custom of picking out men, who accomplished the task set before them, we could have made no better choice this year.

JUDGE WILLIAM N. RUNYON.

Judge William N. Runyon is considered today the most popular man in Plainfield, if not in Union county. Since obtaining his majority he has devoted a large share of his time in the interests of all that is best for social, religious and civic betterment, and he has a strong personal following. He is the eldest son of former Judge Nelson Runyon and is now in his fortieth year.

Born in Plainfield, the judge was graduated from the High School of this city in 1888, and was the president of his class. That fall, he entered Yale University and was a classmate of Lee McClung, now Treasurer of the United States, and of Henry S. Graves, now chief Forester of the United States. During his college course, he was elected a member of the Scroll and Keys, one of the most coveted honors that could come to an undergraduate, and was also chosen a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon, one of the most prominent college fraternities in the country. For two successive years he was a soloist of the Yale Glee Club and at the commencement of his class he was a member of the senior promenade committee. After receiving the degree of bachelor of arts in 1892 from Yale, he matriculated at the New York Law School. He was chosen vice president of his class and was graduated two years later with the degree of bachelor of laws, being president of his class at the time. While pursuing his legal education he was chosen a member of the editorial board of the New York Law School Journal. The same year he was admitted to the bar in New York. After practicing in that city for a time he associated himself with his father in the practice of law in Plainfield, having been admitted as an attorney in 1898. Three years later he was made a counselor.

During the first McKinley campaign, in 1896, Judge Runyon organized the Young Men's Republican Club in Plainfield and was elected as its president. For the following two years he served as a member of the Common Council in this city, and in 1899 was chosen by an overwhelming vote as City Judge, which position he has continuously held for four consecutive terms, polling the largest vote of any candidate of his party on the same ticket, and in two instances being elected without the minority party's opposition.

Judge Runyon is prominent in fraternal organizations. He organized and was the first exalted ruler of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E. He is a past chancellor of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, and is past worshipful master of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M.

SOMERSET TAX BOARD FIXES COUNTY RATE AT 58 CENTS.

The Somerset County Tax Board, at its meeting on Thursday, fixed the county tax rate at 58 cents, which is two points higher than last year when the rate was 56 cents. This is owing to the increased amount asked for by the Board of Freeholders $17,000, for the coming year. The State school tax rate was fixed at 26.1 cents, which is less than last year, when it was 27 cents.

The ratables of the county will be somewhat increased over last year, when they totaled something over twenty-eight million dollars. The various local rates, however, are not yet agreed upon, as the completed reports of the various assessors are not yet in hand. The clerk of the board, T. G. Winser, is busily engaged in tabulating the returns.

Peach Festival at Grace Church.

Under the auspices of the official board of Grace M. E. church a peach festival will be held this evening in the church. There will be a number of features, including refreshments, grab bags, etc. The committee having the affair in charge comprise Raymond Miller, W. J. Conroy and J. Russell Harden.

Freeholders Choose Architect.

Charles Oakley, of the firm of Oakley and Son, has been engaged by the Union county Board of Chosen Freeholders as the architect for the proposed tuberculosis hospital for Union county. The site of the new building has not been determined as yet, but it will be chosen in the near future.

for a white wing with his broom and shovel was hard at work cleaning up the main street. The fact that Dunellen has a white gang of its own is a true one and Peter Snyderwin is the distinguished man in the white garments. The dirty condition of North avenue on Tuesday did not appeal to Mayor Sanford's asthetic sense and so he immediately started his brain in action to figure a solution for the existing evil. The mayor went to each merchant on North avenue and proposed that he would have the street kept clean in front of his store for the sum of five cents a day. About twenty of the shopkeepers agreed to the proposition at the start and so Peter Snyderwin was given a broom, shovel and a white suit for his work. He is to receive the money that each merchant gives.

On account of the decreasing interest in baseball in the borough at the end of the season, the management of the local nine has decided to cancel the game with the Raritan Juniors, which was scheduled for tomorrow afternoon on the Madison avenue grounds. The Raritan team is not a big enough drawing card to insure the hiring of Montross and Seery and so the game has been called off. At present the team is in a prosperous financial condition through the untiring efforts of Manager Adams and Treasurer Bogardus. The nine has gone through the season free of debt and with a neat surplus, which was divided among the players.

The tax rate for the borough this year has come in to Assessor Peters from the county board. Dunellen citizens will be taxed this year on a rate of $1.96. This rate is 18 points below last year's figures, the decrease being due to additional property and not fewer municipal improvements.

Russell Runyon, of Washington avenue, resumed his studies in the Plainfield High Schol today after the summer vacation. Mr. Runyon was late in going back to the school on account of his father being in Atlantic City, thus necessitating his care of the business.

The trial of Michael Gallagher against Lena Hoerster, of North Plainfield, and John Helfon, of Bound Brook, for selling liquor in the borough without a license, has been called for this morning in the county court at New Brunswick.

The funeral services of Robert Garwood, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Garwood, of New Market, were held yesterday morning at the residence of his parents. Interment was made in the South Plainfield cemetery.

Louis L. Block, of North avenue, spent yesterday in New York city on business.

Alfred Day has returned from a visit with relatives in Philadelphia.

Mrs. T. R. Hoffman, of New Market, has been ill during the week.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Several of the party workers, together with J. E. Ruth and W. R. Buckley, delegates, are attending the Republican Congressional convention being held in Plainfield today. All are enthusiastic Runyon boomers.

It is reported that John McIntyre, who purchased the Cook property on Park avenue some time ago, intends to erect a store with flats overhead, on the property in the near future.

As far as Scotch Plains is concerned, the baseball season is at an end. Manager Alberts has decided not to book any more games for the locals.

The members of Fanwood B. & E. Co. are arranging to hold a dance in Becker's auditorium, Garwood, on Friday night, Oct. 7.

Fred Clark, of Bartle avenue, is spending a week with relatives and friends in Newark and Brooklyn.

MAURETANIA AGAIN BREAKS TRANSATLANTIC RECORD.

The Cunarder Mauretania has again reduced the time between Daunt's Rock and Fire Island, this time crossing between the two points in four days, ten hours and forty-one minutes, ten minutes ahead of her old record. The Mauretania had held the record up to yesterday, but owing to a change in commanders of the big vessel the new man, it is alleged, attempted to make a record for himself. Captain Dow, it is said, tried to outdo Captain Pritchard, who is the recognized leader of the sea captains crossing the Atlantic and he is lying dangerously ill at a hospital in London.

The big English ship brought over 2,500 passengers, many of whom had to accept third cabin accommodations because the first and second cabins were filled. 1,122 third class passengers were on the liner.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and it is expected there will be initiation.

A. B. Cantor, owner of the business property on West Front street, formerly known as the Coriell property, is having a new front built to take the place of the old-style one.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

The primary election of Tuesday called out the largest primary vote ever polled in the town. This was caused by the interparty contests. The total vote cast in the four wards was: Republican 663, Democrat 149. In both parties there was a contest over the nominee for town clerk, which was the only contest of the Democrats, but the Republicans had a contest over the nominations for councilmen in three wards. The Republicans made no nominations for assessor and collector of taxes. The Republican local ticket will be Edward D. Floyd, for Mayor; Joseph Perry and Charles A. Smith, for freeholders; for councilmen, Hoppock, First Ward; Snyder and Mosher, Second Ward; Brush, Third Ward; Brown, Fourth Ward. Of the Assembly candidates, Thompson, Schwartz and Hoagland lead. There was no contest over any of the committeemen. The Democratic ticket will be J. Allston Dennis, for Mayor; Charles Clark, for town clerk; A. H. Clark, for collector of taxes; John M. C. Marsh, for assessor; J. Raymond Lambert and John G. Ten Eyck, for freeholders; for councilmen, Darsh, First Ward; Hohenstein and Burtis, Second Ward; Oswald, Third Ward; De Camp, Fourth Ward. The Assembly candidates received the full vote. The results in the First Ward were only known approximately as the Election Board had not finished their work at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, and adjourned until 2 o'clock in the afternoon to tally up. In every contest on the Republican side the Progressives defeated the machine candidate, and the successful candidates were those indorsed by the anti-saloon element.

The Westfield Baptists are considering the erection of a new church. The present building is far too small to meet the requirements of the congregation. A meeting of the congregation has been called by the trustees for September 27 to consider the situation. If they decide to build this will make three new churches for the town.

Work on the State Aid road, between Cranford and Summit, is progressing very rapidly. It is expected that the road will be finished before the cold weather sets in.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

When the borough commuters were on their weary journey to the railway station yesterday morning, they really thought that they were in New York and not in Dunellen,

BUSSE FAMILY MUST BEHAVE, SAYS JUDGE

The troubles of the families of John Scriven and George Busse, of South Second street had the attention of Judge William N. Runyon in the city court this morning for an hour or more. Francis J. Blatz represented Mr. and Mrs. Busse, while Mr. Scriven told his own story. The Busse family will have to be careful for the future or either or both of the parents will have to spend sixty days in the county jail.

According to Judge Runyon the Busse couple have been disturbers in their neighborhood for some time and it was this that caused the judge to impose the possible sentence of sixty days.

Mr. Scriven, the complainant, declared that on last Friday he was annoyed by the children of the defendant and that it was not the first offense. The youngsters rolled a discarded wire spool across his lawn and when asked to desist answered impertinently. Mr. Scriven alleges that he told the children to take the spool away or he would throw it in the brook. It appears that the boy and girl told their mother that Mr. Scriven had threatened to throw them into the brook and this brought the mother to Mr. Scriven's house in a hurry. The language which was used in the ensuing dialogue between Mr. Scriven and Mrs. Busse as alleged by the complanant, would not look nice in print. Judge Runyon's decision left no doubts in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. Busse as to what would happen to them if they again offended or broke any of the city ordinances.

proper growth and development of the country and maintain its dignity and position among the nations of the earth.

We declare emphatically any federal legislation designed to further individual or corporate interests to the detriment of the people at large.

The adoption of such changes in the rules of the House of Representatives as shall best secure for every member thereof full and fair opportunity to represent his constituency as his judgment may dictate, has our entire approval.

We favor an early reform of our currency laws. Under no circumstances should this measure be delayed beyond the term of the present administration. The country is entitled to, and should have the best banking system that can be created. There can be no reasonable excuse offered for failure to act promptly in this matter.

We heartily favor the passage of such other laws as shall fulfill in their entirety the pledges made in the national platform of 1908.

With a record of honest endeavor, of great accomplishments, of pledges redeemed, we ask of the voters of this District their continued confidence and support, to the end that President Taft and the Republican pary may carry to completion the work in which they are engaged for the prosperity of our State and Nation.

Military Drama Pleases Audience.

"The Lost Trail," a stirring western military drama in four acts, was presented at the Plainfield theatre, last night by the stock company. The production is an excellent one and interprets a charming story in which the various members of the company take their parts well. The play will be given today and tomorrow, and on Monday "Brown of Harvard," will be presented for three days. This will require a cast of about twenty people.

Epworth League Rally.

A rally of the Plainfield group, Elizabeth District, Epworth League, which includes the local charters, was held in the First M. E. church, Somerville, last night at 8.15 o'clock. The address of the evening was given by Rev. Fred Clare Baldwin, of Calvary M. E. church, East Orange. The local chtpters were largely represented at the rally, which marked the opening of the fall and winer work.

not only show ourselves sincere, but practical. The time when you could play politics and fool the American people has gone by. Now it is a case of put up or shut up. Now, as I have said before, conditions are such on the inside that the fellow on the outside always has the advantage. It is therefore evident that one should not covet office. It is easy to tell people how to run things, but in this case I accept the office inasmuch as the other fellow doesn't know how to do it and we ought to try."

Leading those candidates was Mayor Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and State Senator George S. Silzer. Complimentary votes were also cast for Sheriff William Harrigan and William Hinchpeff, of Essex.

Wilson's victory was complete after the polling of the Union county vote, but counting the Warren delegation, following which his nomination was made unanimous, the official ballot stood: Wilson, 749½; Katzenbach, 373; Silzer, 210; Wittpenn, 76½; Harrigan, 6; Hinchpeff, 1.

Colonel Livingstone Price, an old Democratic warhouse, was chairman of the resolution committee and presented the platform. Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of Somerset, presented a minority report, in which he insisted upon injecting a local option plank into the platform. He was repeatedly drowned out by derisive shouts, which seemed to come from the Hudson and Essex delegations, and was finally overruled by the chairman on a technicality.

Clarence J. Cole, an Atlantic City lawyer, who for a time was boomed for governor by the shore Democrats, placed Mr. Wilson in nomination, and was seconded by Smith, of Essex. Josiah Ewan, of Burlington county, named Mr. Katzenbach, and ex-Judge John W. Westcott, of Camden, seconded the nomination. Much of the afternoon was consumed in nominating speeches and affirmations.

Trouble started with the polling of the ballots. As the result of the elimination of the unit rule, Chairman Hardin was compelled to recognize the protests against the Atlantic county vote, and a revision threw seven votes from Wilson to Katzenbach. This incipient rebellion brought hope to the Mercer delegation. Later, when the Essex roll was called, a contest was made by supporters of Sheriff Harrigan, who claimed thirty votes for him had not been counted by Chairman Smith. A recount, however, left Harrigan only one vote and increased the Wilson poll to 234 for the county.

Many of the old State leaders who led the Democrats in their fights more than twelve years ago when the party held sway in the State, joined in the demonstration which followed the counting of the ballot and led the cheers when Wilson was led onto the platform to be introduced by Chairman Hardin. James E. Martine, who led the Democrats at the popular primaries for United States Senatorial indorsements last Tuesday, occupied a seat near the chairman and was one of the first to congratulate the successful candidate. He was jubilant over the prospects in the State for a Democratic victory, but refused to discuss the possible outcome of his own candidacy, should a Democratic legislature be elected.

Mr. Hampton Surprised.

A surprise birthday party was given to James D. Hampton, at his house on West Front street, last night. There was no doubt of the surprising nature of the fun, for Mr. Hampton was actually surprised. Twenty guests assembled while Mr. Hampton was unaware of their presence, when he had made up his mind to retire, and the enjoyment continued until an early hour this morning. Refreshments were served.

Held the Annual Picnic.

The Plainfield Graded Primary Union held its annual picnic on Wednesday at the home of one of its members, Mrs. George Banks, at Mount Pleasant. The Sunday-school teachers made the trip part the way by trolley on the Arlington avenue line, as far as the Plainfield Country Club, and then walked the rest of the way. The day proved a pleasant one for all.

MURDER TRIAL WITNESS BANISHED THIS MORNING

Perhaps their incarceration was too long or their thirst too strong, but anyway Elizabeth Vardon, the alleged lover of Luigi Cerefice, the Italian, who was sentenced on Wednesday to twelve years in the State prison, and Mrs. Catharine Cahill, the wife of the murdered man, were ordered out of Plainfield this morning by City Judge William N. Runyon and given six hours in which to make their getaway.

The two women were arrested last night by Patrolman Meyers for being under the influence of liquor and creating a disturbance on Cottage place along toward midnight. The two women claimed that their condition resulted from the enforced abstention of four months in the county jail at New Brunswick due to their connection with the murder of Patrick Cahill, which occurred on May 10. They claimed that they had obtained their liquor in New Brunswick yesterday, but had no explanation to offer for their presence in this city.

MISS BLYDENBURGH NOW MRS. CHAS. L. BYRNE

One of the good old fashioned weddings which in the Colonial days gladdened the hearts of the onlookers and made the merry feet trip to the music, occurred last night at the old Sebring homestead in Greenbrook, when Miss Florence Blydenburgh, formerly a resident of West Seventh street, but now of Brooklyn, became the bride of Charles Lee Byrne, of New York, an employe of the D. L. & W. Railroad. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. L. Culp, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Bound Brook. The bridesmaid was Miss Bessie Perry, of Bound Brook, and the best man Ernest Herbert Layton, of New York city. Miss Natalie Packer, of Bound Brook, was the flwer girl.

The ceremony was performed in the parlors of the old mansion at Greenbrook and was conducted under bowers of green cut from the old cedar and spruce trees from the farm. Charles Sebring, candidate for Sheriff in Somerset county, gave the bride away, and Miss Edna Long played the Lohengrin wedding march as the young couple entered the parlor.

After the ceremony the guests, numbering nearly a hundred, were entertained at a wedding supper, while the congratulations of their friends were showered upon them. After a month's tour of the western cities, Mr. and Mrs. Byrne will reside in New York.

Miss Bertha Willis, of Duer street, has returned from a ten days' visit in Manasquan and will go to Martha's Vineyard soon for a month's trip.

FATHER SUES DAUGHTER.

She Makes Parent Leave House With New Bride.

Atlantic City, Sept. 15.—John Murphy, a middle-aged Philadelphian, has entered suit in the Circuit Court against Mrs. Mary McGinnis, his daughter, to regain possession of a hotel on Arkansas avenue, following legal proceedings whereby he was ordered to vacate the house with his new bride or be ejected.

Counsel for Murphy, in the bill of complaint, asserts that trouble between the Philadelphian and his daughter began when the former introduced his bride of a few days to Mrs. McGinnis, who had no suspicion that he contemplated a second matrimonial alliance.

After a painful scene, in which a constable armed with a writ of ejectment figured, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left the hotel in high indignation to consult a lawyer.

Mrs. McGinnis claims her father gave her the hotel and will fight his effort to establish title.

WILL WORK FOR STEIN.

Moore, Defeated, Congratulates Successful Candidate.

Elizabeth, Sept. 15.—Charles H. Moore, advocate of the "square deal" platform, councilman from the Fourth Ward and defeated candidate for the Mayoralty nomination, has retired gracefully in favor of Alfred A. Stein, the successful Democratic candidate.

In a letter to Mr. Stein, the Fourth Ward aldermen offers "heartiest congratulations" and trusts that his success on election day will be as great as that of Tuesday.

Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins, of the Sixth Ward, also offers his congratulations to the Democratic nominee.

GETS RING LOST 23 YEARS.

An engagement ring, which was lost twenty-three years ago by Mrs. Richard M. Pearce, of Montclair, has been returned to her. The peculiar part of the recovery of the ring is that it was found nine years ago, and since then has been worn daily by a woman who visited Mrs. Pearce frequently.

Mrs. Harry Schott purchased a house the Pearces left about ten years ago. Mrs. Schott's daughter found the ring in the yard. She gave it to her mother, who tried to find the owner. Mrs. Schott on Monday night told Mrs. Pearce about finding the ring. It was identified and surrendered willingly.

SHRINERS TO MOVE FROM DESERTS TO THE SEASHORE.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the pilgrimage to Atlantic City tomorrow of about 100 members of Salaam Temple, Mystic Shrine, of Newark. Included in the party will be the thirty-five gorgeously uniformed members of the Aram Patrol. Besides the Shriners about 100 women, members of their families, will make the trip. One hundred rooms have been engaged for the Newarkers in the Hotel Chalfonte and special provision has been made for the comfort and pleasure of the ladies.

In a special train the party will leave Newark about noon from the Market street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The return will be on Sunday evening. The occasion will be the sixth annual ceremonial session of Crescent Temple, of Trenton, on the steel pier.

COOK GONE NORTH AGAIN.

Copenhagen, Sept. 15.—Advices just received here from Greenland state that definite news has been received of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who is on board John R. Bradley's yacht Beauty, which is now on her way to Etah, on the northwest coast of Greenland.

The Greenland steamship Hans Egede brought the report about Cook to this place. The captain of this vessel says he met Mr. Bradley at Godhaven. Bradley would not affirm or deny that he had Dr. Cook on board the Beauty. The captain says, however, that he is convinced that Cook was on the yacht.

The captain of the Hans Egede also says that two catechists who are now staying among the Eskimos who accompanied Dr. Cook toward the pole report that the Eskimos maintain that the Brooklyn explorer did reach the pole.

MEN'S SUITS

This is to announce our readiness for men seeking new fall suits. There seems nothing lacking in the stock we have gathered in the hope of making this clothing store more popular than ever.

We are showing Men's and Young Men's Suits at $12 that are made of absolutely all wool cassimeres, cheviots and worsteds, lined with serge or mohair, in conservative styles for men of affairs and snappier styles for the younger chaps; tailored in a manner satisfying to all, saving you at least $3 on a suit.

There are other suits at $15, cut from the finest smooth or rough fabrics, with linings that will wear as long as the outer cloths, models decidedly in keeping with the desires of the young man going to college, the business man, or any painstaking dresser; sizes for men of all proportions—32 to 46; surely the best value in town at $15.

Some of last season's $18 to $20 Suits have been reduced to $9.75.

Particular attention is directed to the Blue Serge and Worsted Suits for Men and Young Men that we sell at $18, meaning a saving to you of fully $7.50, for the suits are worth $25.

BAMBERGER'S
"THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE"
MARKET, HALSEY & BANK STS.

"Sterling" Values 925-1,000 Fine

The wife of a Newark manufacturing jeweler was recently lured to New York by the announcement of a certain big sale—just what the sale was we shall not say, for that would be equivalent to TELLING THE NAME OF THE STORE. As we said before, the jeweler's wife journeyed all the way over to New York and hurried to the store where the big (?) sale was supposed to be in progress.

Like many other much mooted sales, this one turned out to be NOTHING AT ALL, and the Newark matron returned home much perturbed. She was a victim of the "SUGAR COATED VALUES" which we spoke of once upon a time in our "Between Ourselves" column.

In speaking of her experience afterward, the disappointed Newark shopper declared:

"There should be a law compelling a store to advertise the truth. It should be a penitentiary offense for a concern to misrepresent the way this New York store did. Why, in my husband's business, if a silver article is not 925-1000 fine he dare not stamp it 'sterling.' If he attempted to do so he would have to pay a big fine and maybe go to prison."

This woman was right, a merchant has no more right to advertise a fictitious value that a jeweler has to stamp a piece of spurious metal with the "STERLING" mark. There should be a stringent law governing department store publicity AND WE WOULD WELCOME SUCH A LAW RIGHT HERE IN NEW JERSEY.

Our values are "STERLING"—they are 925-1000 fine. The jeweler's wife was forced to admit as much before she left our store.

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

Mrs. Stannard, you were a jewel and a general. Now, how about the major?

"For conference with the judge advocate of the department," read the order that summoned him, and from that conference forth went our doughty dragoon in search of conquest. "It is understood," said the officials, "that you know the circumstances under which Lieutenant Lanier became responsible for the money borrowed at Laramie by or for that young Mr. Lowndes, also that you know him." There were other matters, but that came up first. Stannard knew and was quite willing to set forth with a plain clothes member of the Omaha force on a mission for and from headquarters. He found it all known to the police. Lowndes had run through the purse of his eastern kindred two years before. Lowndes had been transported to a cattle ranch near Fort Cushing in hopes of permanent benefit, but speedily neglected the range for the more congenial society of the fort. He was well born and bred. He went on the campaign for excitement and took to gambling among the scouts and packers and sergeants, for the officers had soon cold shouldered him. But he was a college man, a secret society man, as had been Lieutenant Lanier before entering the Point. Since the campaign Lowndes had been going from bad to worse, had gambled away the money sent him by his relatives, and they were now sorely anxious about him. Moreover, he was needed as a material witness for the defense in the case of Lieutenant Lanier.

And even as the story was being told there came bounding down the broad stairway from above a slender, well built youth. It was the erect, jaunty carriage that caught the major's eye. In build, bearing and gait the approaching stranger was Bob Lanier all over.

"Rawdon!" he cried.

A wave of color, it is true, swept instantly to the young fellow's temples. Quickly he whirled about; courteously he raised his cap.

"I beg the major's pardon," said he. "I did not expect him here and had never seen him in civilian dress."

And now the detective, too, was on his feet and curiously noting the pair.

"You're on furlough, I understand, but I heard—my wife said—you were in Chicago."

"Mrs. Stannard was right, sir. My wife and her father are there now, visiting my sister. Dr. Mayhew told me of the charges against Lieutenant Lanier, and that is what brings me back at once."

"Going back at once?" began the major, mollified, yet mystified. "I presume you know more of these matters than any one else."

"Lowndes?" queried Stannard.

"Lowndes," answered Rawdon.

"Then you're just the man we want."

That afternoon as the Union Pacific express stood ready at the Union station for the start there boarded one of the sleepers a burly, thickset, bluff mannered man in a huge fur overcoat, closely followed by two younger companions. One of these latter, erect and graceful in bearing, alert and quick in every movement, with clear cut and handsome features, was dressed with care and taste, evidently a man accustomed to metropolitan scenes and society. The other, a youth of probably his own age, though looking older, was sallow, shabby, with a dejected, down at the heel expression to his entire personality that told infallibly of failure and humiliation.

"Better pull off that overcoat and make yourself comfortable, Lowndes," said the younger man. "You've a long journey ahead."

Whereat a tall, spare, elderly gentleman in an adjoining section slowly lowered his newspaper and turned half round, while a tall, spare, elderly, sharp featured woman beside him in prim traveling garb sprang from her seat and, brushing the burly man aside, precipitated herself upon the shrinking object in the corner.

"Mortimer Watson Lowndes!" cried she. "Where on earth have you been?"

Mortimer Watson wept dismally.

Two days later the colonel's office at Fort Cushing was the scene of a somewhat remarkable trial. The tribunal consisted, in point of fact, of a single man, acting as judge, jury and attorney—to wit, "Black Bill" Riggs, inspector general of the department of the Platte.

Colonel Button was of course at his usual desk. Colonel Riggs, his jealously regarded rival, was seated at a little table. Lieutenant Lanier, somewhat pale, but entirely placid, occupied a chair to the left of that table, with Captain Sumter, as his troop commander and counsel, by his side. Captain Snaffle was in support of the post commander to cross question if he saw nt. Rafferty, the adjutant, was present, as a matter of course. Sergeant Fitzroy, with trouble in his eyes and wrath in his heart, was flirting uneasily about.

"If you are ready, Colonel Button," began Riggs with elaborate courtesy, "I am, and let me briefly say that I have seen Trooper Rafferty at the hospital, also certain other men named by Captain Snaffle, but in order that all parties may be given opportunity to hear and to examine and at the request of Lieutenant Lanier, who desires the fullest investigation and publicity, I have invited you and the captain to hear what I consider the really valuable evidence. Will you call in Trooper Rawdon?"

Snaffle's face was a sight when the door opened and there entered a very self possessed young man.

"What's he mean by coming here in 'cits?'" said Snaffle.

"Yes, Colonel Riggs; if this man's a soldier why isn't he in uniform?"

With perfect respect, at a nod from Riggs, the newcomer replied, "My uniforms and other belongings of mine were taken from my trunk in town during my absence."

"You could have borrowed one," said Snaffle truculently.

"I told him he need not," retorted Riggs. "Mr. Rawdon, you were a duly enlisted trooper, I believe. Take that chair."

"And am still, sir."

"But your discharge is ordered."

"It was applied for and recommended, and General Whipple told me in Chicago a few days ago it was settled, but that would have made no difference, sir. I should have been proud to wear the uniform until officially discharged."

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

STAPLETON ELKS LOSE

Plainfield's Batters too Strong For the Visitors From Over the Kill Von Kull.

LOCALS MAKE NINETEEN HITS.

Bombardment Started in First Inning and Lasted Throughout the Game—Score 16 to 3.

It took but one inning yesterday afternon to demonstrate to the Elks from Stapleton, S. I., that they were not in the same class with the Plainfield men. In the first inning it was shown that Warry McLaughlin had the vistiors at his mercy and thereafter he held them safe.

Every man on the local nine had his batting clothes on and the way they swatted the offerings of Mr. Kieren, recent graduate from Manhattan college, was a caution. Nineteen hits for a total of thirty-seven bases shows how it all happened.

In the first inning every man on the team came to bat and the only one to miss connections with the pellet was Torpey, and he really should have been credited with a hit, but it was a question as to whether an error should have been charged against third baseman Mulligan. Kieren, the State Island mound artist, seemed to feel chilly, especially when Warry McLoughlin lifted one of his benders over beyond the right-fielder's head for two bags. Singles by Cadmus, Smith and Monahan in succession brought the tallies of the locals up to seven.

Jack Nicol surprised the talent by lacing one past Hallorah for a base bringing in Smith and Monahan. Then the agony was over. In the third McNaughton, Hoyt, Monahan and Nichol scored on some swift work with the willow, a prominent feature of which was VanArsdale's double to center. VanArsdale, besides covering his position at short in masterly fashion, batted like a veteran, having a two-bagger and two singles to his credit.

Several changes were made in the batteries after it was seen that Plainfield had the game won. The "Bear Cat" battery being given a chance in the sixth just to prove that they were in good form. The bear cats were MacNaughton and Cadmus. The summary below will give a good idea of the game. Many women were present to witness the sport and one who passed near the scorer's stand when leaving the scene declared she had never enjoyed herself more at a ball game.

Plainfield will play the crack Brooklyn Elks' team next Wednesday afternoon.

Even though the visitors were defeated they returned to their homes in Staten Island with a conception of how the Plainfielder can entertain. They were entertained at luncheon at noon and after the game enjoyed the good things provided by the locals.

RUNYON NOMINATED

"It has been said that 'a prophet is not without honor save in his own country,' but the vote in Plainfield has clearly demonstrated that the people know the man and appreciate his worth. Never before at a primary election has such a large vote been cast, and never before in my political experience have I seen such a consistent and overwhelming vote of confidence in a man whose every act and quality is known to those who cast their votes.

"We have a difficult campaign before us. We have misunderstandings to clear up and misgivings to overcome. For this purpose we have selected a man who has inspired confidence during all the time he has been before his constituents. His friends are many, his enemies few. He is a man if given a task to do has always been on the job. Gentlemen, it is my pleasure to present to you the name of a man who, when sent to Congress, will be on the job —William N. Runyon.

John I Howe, of Roselle, Union county, placed the name of Charles N Fowler before the convention after Judge Runyon's nomination had been seconded by Joseph McLean, of Morris.

The nominations were closed and the balloting began. Morris gave Runyon 56¾ and Fowler 13¼.

Union cast 80 for Runyon and 28 for Fowler. Warren gave Runyon 4 19-20, and Fowler 27 1-100. The total was 140 94-100 for Runyon and 69 6-100 for Fowler.

Morris then made it unanimous for Runyon, but Union declined. The nomination was not made unanimous.

Frank H. Smith made a motion that a committee of three be appointed to escort the candidate to the platform. Chairman Capstick appointed W. R. Coddington, of Union; Joseph McLean, of Morris, and Wm. Reaser, of Warren, for the purpose. The band played "Hail to the Chief" as the candidate walked to the centre of the stage amid vociferous applause. Judge Runyon said:

"Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen and Fellow Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District: I beg to assure you that I am deeply and sincerely grateful for the honor which has come to me this day, and I realize the grave responsibilities which go therewith. To have been chosen as one who is to represent thousands and thousands of citizens of this State brings home to me with great force the fact that you have great confidence in me. I would be a traitor to my country, to my party and to the people unless I be worthy of that confidence. This task well befits the strength of the best of men and I deeply appreciate it.

By instinct, by precept, by firm belief, I am a Republican. From my earliest days I have had the great truths taught to me and the accomplishments of the Republican party are second nature to me, and since I have become older I realize more and more the great progress which this party has been instrumental in developing the resources of this country and more and more from the conviction that the present administration is worthy of the support of every Republican, and I desire to be known as a Taft Republican.

"These are factors that militate to make me sincere and honest. I urge them in all sincereity to inspire confidence in me. I shall go forth to Washington with the determination to be fair to every one of you." (At this point the judge was greeted by a hearty round of cheers and it was several moments before he could continue.) "That which has just passed has been a great contest. To those who espoused the cause, I offer my thanks. To those of the other persuasion I congratulate them for an able contest splendidly made —that was a difference of opinion that the Republicans had a right to hold.

"Now gentlemen, we must let by gones be by gones. We must go forth with a firmer purpose to uphold President Taft. So far as the District is concerned, I clearly realize the lustre that Mr. Fowler has brought to the district. And gentlemen, rest assured that if I go as your representative, I will exert all of my abilities to be a a fair and good power in behalf of the country. There is a hard battle before us. We believe in majority rule. And the result should be satisfactory to each and every one of us. I beseech you for a united front, for loyalty. Not for myself do I make this, but to the loyal upholders of our leader, President Taft, and to present a united front to our enemies."

James F. Buckle, of Union; Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris, and Wm. Bruner, of Warren, were appointed on vacancies, and on motion of Robert H. McCready, a resolution was unanimously adopted expressing the confidence of the convention and appreciation of the services of Charles N. Fowler.

The Richards' Quartet from Dover then sang several popular songs, appropriate to the nomination of Judge Runyon. After a vote of thanks to Chairman Capstick, the convention adjourned at 4:15.

Delegates to the Congressional convention held in this city today beheld an unusual spectacle, for they saw the Union county delegation come marching toward the provisional headquarters in the Frost building, the last of the delegates to arrive. Warren showed up strong at a little after 8 o'clock and Morris, with Uncle Dan Voorhees at its head, arrived at 11 o'clock, most of the delegates coming in automobiles. The biggest showing was that of the Union county delegation, which, headed by a brass band, came in special trolley cars.

Union's Caucus.

At the caucuses Robert H. McCready was elected chairman in Union, with Victor Myralag, of Elizabeth, as vice-president and Stanley Jones, of Rahway, secretary. The following were elected for convention committees: Credentials, R. C. Plume, of Cranford; rules, C. M. Smith, of Elizabeth; permanent organization, C. M. Morrell, of Rahway; congressional committee, Alexander Gilbert, of this city, and John I. Howe, of Roselle. The total vote of the Union cunty delegation cast in caucus was Runyon, 80, Fowler 28.

Morris Caucus.

Morris county was right on deck with an almost solid vote for the local judge. Uncle Dan had the delegation well in hand and when the announcements of the vote in caucus was given he had these men on the list: Chairman, Albert Richards; vice-president of the convention, Carnot B. Meeker; secretary, Harry R. Watson; permanent organization, Frank McEwen; rules, Abraham Ryerson; credentials, J. J. A. Owens; resolutions, Joseph F. McLean.

Warren Caucus.

Warren county which gave to Mr Fowler such a strong support that it seemed that their enthusiasm would carry the convention, but failed, turned in for Judge Runyon only 3 7-10 votes, while Mr. Fowler received a total of 28¼. W. H. Pierson was elected chairman of the Warren delegation, while Harry Riddle got the vice-presidency. The secretary was George P. Curtis. Members of the committees were named as follows: Permanent organization, W. J. Axford; rules, F. G. Andrews; credentials, John Laughlin; resolutions, W. R. Lair.

Music enlivened the proceedings in the county rooms in the Frost building while the deliberations were in progress and every time that Judge Runyon showed himself previous to the opening session of the convention he was given cheers which must have given him encouragement.

LOCAL TEAM PLAYS SOMERVILLE TOMORROW

The Plainfield team goes to Somerville tomorrow afternoon with the strongest line-up that it has presented this season. The players are shifted a bit in their positions but the whole arrangement tends toward more effective work and that is what will be needed tomorrow. The Somerville bunch will line up with a strong combination, and Howard Craig will hold down their third sack. He is a local man, being well known in this community among the fans.

Warry McLaughlin and Ward will both be on hand to do the pitching for the Plainfield team. It will not be known until the curtain rises which of the twirlers will occupy the slab. Clinton and Torpey will be the opposing battery.

Carlstrom who played with the the season and also last year, will the season and also last year, will be on the second station for the local boys, while Brit Martin will go to the initial sack. The Plainfield team will leave on the 1:45 train tomorrow afternoon and it is expected that a large delegation of local fans will make the trip.

—Neuman Bros. will offer for tomorrow's trade a fine assortment of Bartlett pears for table use or canning.

SEEK HIGHER EDUCATION

Where Plainfield's Young Men and Women Are Pursuing Their Studies.

AT NUMEROUS INSTITUTIONS.

Number This Year Breaks the Record—Some of High School's Graduates Taking Post-Graduate Course.

Plainfield will be well represented at the colleges this year as there will be students from this city in nearly all of the prominent institutions of the country. The exodus of local young women and men to the various colleges has already begun and within two weeks the entire college delegation will have left this city.

The number of college students from this city this year is greater in proportion than in any other year. There is a greater proportion of the graduates of the high schools, who are going to higher institutions of learning at the present time than ever before. The majority of the Plainfield college students are going to Eastern colleges and universities, although a few are noted on the rolls of the Western schools.

Among those who will seek higher education are William C. Douglas, and Miss Cornelia Lounsberry. The former is the captain of the football team this year at the Colorado School of Mines, where he enters his senior year. Miss Lounsberry has the singular distinction of being the only student at Swarthmore that has ever been taken on the faculty during the undergraduate years. She has been appointed as an assistant history professor, being a senior at the institution in addition to a teacher. When in the Plainfield High School, by which Miss Lounsberry was graduated, she always took a prominent part in the history courses, in which she excelled. Mr. Douglas is also a graduate of the city high school, where he was a noted athlete and student and was one of the best football players that ever wore a P. H. S. uniform. The team, of which he is now captain, is the champion eleven of the tri-state college league.

The largest delegation of local people goes to the Montclair State Normal school with the Trenton State Normal School a close second in the number of Plainfield students. Among the men's colleges, Yale, Columbia and Rutgers have the largest enrollment of students from this city. Smith college is among the popular institutions with the Plainfield students, there being six students at that institution from this city.

Twelve of the young women, who were graduated by the city high school in June, are taking post graduate courses in the school this year. They are actively engaged in the school life and social affairs. Those in this higher work are: The Misses Mary Radford, Margaret V. Leggett, Elsie Bird, Frances Newell, Lila Duy, Edna Cole, Ruth Klein, Helen Smith, Marguerite Van Zandt, Celestine Waldron, Guida Hetfield and Edith Bush.

Among the Plainfield students at the various colleges and universities are: Trenton Normal, the Misses Henrietta Englehardt, Mabel Townley; Louise Layton, Edith Schenck, Henrietta Winn, Agnes Moffet, Rose Siegal; Montclair Normal, the Misses Ernestine Richter, Jennie Nelson, Ruth Day, Louise M. Andrews, Catherine Swain, Mildred Webster, Agnes Van Norden, Mary Burdick; Columbia, William T. Lambert, William Osgood, Russell Lawrence, Thomas Leggett, Washington A. F. CHOICE FOR SENATE IS STILL DOUBTFUL

The results of the primary on Tuesday as regards the preference for United States Senator are as much in doubt today as ever. The three candidates, Stokes, Murphy and Fowler, are so close that friends of each one are claiming a victory for their candidate.

In the compilation of the earlier returns the vote of Representative Fowler was largely ignored, the collectors of returns in most of the counties apparently thinking that he was not cutting much of a figure in the race. Later returns, however, put Representative Fowler well up in the running with both Stokes and Murphy, and there is a possibility that complete returns might show him to be the high man.

COUNTY RATABLES SHOW INCREASE OF 9,000,000

Having equalized the ratables turned in by the assessors of the county, the County Board for the Equalization of Taxes is now giving its attention to the fixing of the city and county rates. It is probable that the rates will be announced early next week.

The total valuation assessable, as shown by the assessors, plus the second rate railroad property, is $135,332,456, against $126,486,168 last year, or an increase of practically $9,000,000. The amount this year as equalized by the county board is $135,383,489.85, compared with $127,013,402 last year.

Through the honesty of Benjamin Johnson, a colored man, who is employed as a street cleaner in North Plainfield, Mrs. Walter G. Thomas, of Hammonton, is now in possession of her diamond engagement ring, which she lost last night. The street cleaner was at work with his broom in front of the borough fire headquarters this morning, when he saw something sparkle in the heap of dirt. He searched through the mass of rubbish and discovered that the sparkling substance was solitaire diamond in a heavy gold ring. After a careful examination of the ring, Johnson found that on the inside was engraved the initials, "W. G. T. to M. R. R." The finder handed it to Street Commissioner John Y. Barrett.

This morning a well dressed woman came into the borough police court, inquiring whether anyone had found a diamond ring, which she said that she had lost last night. She immediately identified the ring then in the chief's possession as hers. She said that she was Mrs. Walter G. Thomas and that her maiden name was Mary R. Reynolds. The owner gave her address as Hammonton, N. J., and said that she was visiting friends on Mountain avenue for a few days.

Mrs. Thomas said that the ring was worth $250. She thanked the chief and then gave the colored man fifty cents for his honesty.

Got the Wrong Man.

A man supposed to have been Joseph Hahn, who it was alleged had stolen bric a brac and small articles of furniture from Mrs. W. H. Aspinwall, of West Seventh street, last June, was arrested in New York yesterday by headquarters detectives. it was believed this morning that the man was Hahn, but upon further investigation it was found that the man was not Hahn and that the pawn tickets found upon the suspect did not cover the articles missing from the Aspinwall home.

Plan Evangelistic Services.

Plans have about been completed for the holding of three weeks of union evangelistic services in the local Methodist churches. The services will begin on October 23, and will probably be conducted by M. V. Williams, of Athens, Pa., a well known evangelist. Services will be held for one week in each Methodist church, First M. E., Monroe Avenue and Grace churches, and will be preceded by a week of preparation in each church.

Proctor's Big Show.

There are many dancing teams, but "The Six Military Dancers," booked for Proctor's theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, are said to be a big headliner act, being clever singers as well as dancers. They finish their act with an original acrobatic specialty that is one big hit.

NEW BANK OPENS DOORS

State Trust Company Has Plainfield Men in its Directorate.

VAULT MECHANICAL MARVEL.

Has Large Out-of-town Clientele—Business Increases 120 per cent. a Year—D. P. Skellenger New Bookkeeper.

The new financial institution which opened its doors yesterday at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, the State Trust Company, offers to the public thee benefits of one of the best managed banks in this section of the State. While it occupied a unique position as the Borough National Bank, the greater portion of its business was done with customers on this side of the brook. The officers of the concern are, president, William A. Clark; first vice-president, E. F. Feickert; second vice-president, Morris Van Arsdale; secretary-treasurer, Fred Coriell. The directorate is made up of the officers and Alexander Milne, Dr. A. H. Dundon, Judge William Newcorn, Dr. J. H. Cooley, Nelson A. Miller, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, A. W. Ransome, George S. Clay and George M. Holstein.

This morning many visitors inspected the huge vault which has caused so much comment. Some were astonished at the size of the massive door, but were further interested when they found that even this great weight, twelve tons, could be moved with the little finger. One of the expert men who are putting the finishing touches on the bank's furniture took a lead pencil, sharply pointed, and closed the door without breaking the pencil's point.

Of course the interior of the bank will not be finished until the mechanics who are making the necessary changes in the interior of the Marsh building are satisfied that their work is the best that can be done. It will take about ten days for this, but when the work is finished it is believed that the interior of the bank will equal in conveniences any similar institution in this city.

A feature that is said to be different from any other fiduciary concern in this city is that the stockholders are men who have been brought up here and all are self-made men. There is no outside controlling interest. The stock is distributed among some seventy-five stockholders and every one of them holding more than five shares is eligible to election to the board of directors.

A large proportion of the business of the new bank is from customers in this city, but there is a large out-of-town clientele, principally in Pennsylvania and New York States.

This morning Allen Strachan, the lock expert from the Yale Lock Works at Stamford, Conn., put the finishing touches to the inner mechanism of the massive steel door of the big vault. Daniel P. Skellinger, former teller of the First National Bank of Somerville, has been engaged as bookkeeper. The business of the bank has increased at the rate of ten per cent. per month during the past year.

BIRTHDAY PARTY GIVEN FOR LITTLE MISS JACK.

Laura Jack, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jack, of 107 Liberty street, gave a party this afternoon, it being the anniversary of her second birthday. The party was from 2 to 5 o'clock and the time was pleasantly passed in playing games, after which refreshments were served. The little hostess was the recipient of a number of beautiful gifts from her friends and relatives.

Miss Bugden to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bugden, of Randolph road, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Tilden Bugden, and Daniel Angus Scurry. The ceremony will be performed Tuesday night, September 27, at the home of the bride's parents, 68 Randolph road. Miss Bugden is a graduate of the State Normal School, Trenton, and last year was a teacher in the Rahway public schools.

MACHINE SHOP RUN SIMPLY ON PAPER

Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from a man in his employ, Elfred T. Barrett, proprietor of the 'Printers' and General Machine Shop," of Newark, is locked up at Newark police headquarters. He was arrested late Thursday on complaint of John Kovalsky, of Bayway, Elizabeth, who claims that Barrett obtained $60 from him. The prisoner was held for examination Monday.

According to the police, Barrett has fleeced about twenty other persons under similar circumstances. It is also said that the prisoner does not own a piece of machinery or furniture in his plant, and that he obtained it all on memorandum.

Kovalsky told the police that he gave Barrett the $60, with the understanding that it was to be invested in the business for six months at the end of which time he was to get it back with the interest. In a written agreement with Barret, Kovalsky was to be given a position with a salary of $18 per week. Kovalsky declared that he took the job, and after working two weeks quit. He was paid for one week.

Going to the First Precinct Police Court Kovalsky had a warrant issued for the arrest of Barrett. The warrant was placed in the hands of Detectives Meehan and Donovan. When they went to Barrett's place of business yesterday the officers were told he was not there, and no one knew where he lived.

On a piece of paper near the telephone Meehan noticed the number "314 Arlington," and taking that as a clue went in search of Barrett. He learned where the number was located, and going to the neighborhood found where Barrett lived. He waited for him, and shortly before 6 o'clock recognized Barrett by description when the latter was four blocks from his home. Meehan placed him under arrest.

When Barrett was taken into custody, Meehan said, he wanted to make a settlement with Kovalsky. The prisoner gave his age as forty-nine, his occupation as machinist and his address as 84 Brighton avenue, Kearny.

Kovalsky is not the only one who suffered as a result of Barrett's operations. The police know of two others who are minus a few hundred dollars and believe there are more. The two are John Roberts, of 67 Springfield avenue, and a man whom the authorities know only as "Mahoney." Roberts is out $400 he invested in the business and $93 in salary, and Mahoney is said to have dropped $500 he had in the business and his salary for several weeks.

It was Roberts who told the police about Mahoney. The latter, he said, was the book-keeper in the place and put $500 into the business. Roberts said Mahoney tried to get his money and couldn't, and after working for a time without getting any pay, quit. Another employe, whom he knew as "Fred," invested $140. This man, Roberts said, Barrett paid back after the man threatened to make trouble.

Roberts was the one who also told the police that Barrett had bills for every piece of machinery and furniture he had in the place. He said there was a bill from Rising & Thorne for $150. Most of the machinery, he declared, was obtained from a second-hand dealer in Chestnut street and the desk, chairs and safe in the office were all borrowed on a promise.

New Crop of Wild Berries.

William Harding, a trackwalker, between Goodwins and Ashbrook, along the line of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, found yesterday several plants of wild strawberries bearing their fruit. Some of the berries measured an inch in length. One of the bunches was shown to a reporter by David J. Carney, of North avenue. It bore one berry which was an inch in length and nearly half an inch in diameter and besides it was perfectly ripe. There has never been found before such a profusion of the wild fruit in that part of the State.

Will Hold All-Day Meeting.

The W. C. T. U. will hold an all-day meeting in its rooms on Thursday, September 22, when officers will be elected and reports presented. Miss F. J. Keron, of Elizabeth, county superintendent of jail and reformatory work, will make an address. The sessions will be held at 10:30 and 2:30. A cake sale will also be held in the rooms Friday October 7.

An Old Adage.

"In time of peace, prepare for war."
This adage you have heard before.
Yet are the words so full of meat
I hesitate not to repeat.
So, when the harvest days are here
And you are filled with autumn cheer
Take thought of winter's polar chill
And have Geo. O. Stevens your coal bins fill.

SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

Runyon's Able Address Wins Plaudits of 5th Dist. Convention.

PLEDGES HIMSELF TO TAFT.

If Elected, He Says He Will Represent the Whole People, and Not One Man or a Set of Men.

Considered by his friends as the finest speech he has ever delivered, the address of Judge William N. Runyon in accepting the nomination at the Fifth District Republican convention here yesterday afternoon came as the climax to that exciting contest. It provoked tumultous applause time and again and it was noticeable that the majority of those who had cast their votes for his opponent were as demonstrative as his warmest admirers.

Judge Runyon said:

"I beg to assure you that I am deeply sensible of the honor—the great honor—which has come into my life this afternoon. Full deeply too, do I realize the weight and gravity of the responsibility which goes therewith.

"That I have been chosen as your nominee for Congress by you who are the representatives of thousands and thousands of people brings home to me with all powerful force the fact that you have confidence in me; and too, that if I would be true to myself, to my party and to my country and to by Maker, I must be worthy of that confidence.

"It is a task which will befits the utmost endeavors of the best of men. By inheritance, by training and by conviction, I am a Republican. From my earliest days there was taught to me the doings and accomplisments of the Republican party and since I have become a man I have realized more and more what it has meant for the uplift and progress of this great country, and more and more has been forced upon me the conviction that the Republican party has at all times had a large hand in it.

"And now with changed conditions in front of us, we must, as we have always done, look to the Republican party for the solution of the many varied problems. I say here unqualifiedly that I stand before you as a Taft Republican. A Taft Republican because I believe in him, a Taft Republican because in his quiet, calm way, he has accomplished so much already; a Taft Republican because if you will give him the support which is his right in the election of a Republican House of Representatives, he will further accomplish those things which were promised in the Republican platform of 1908.

"Gentlemen, I am glad to go forth in the campaign standing on the platform which has been adopted here this afternoon. It is fair, it is honest, it is frank; it realizes what this country needs, what this country and its citizens most desire, and it pledges unqualifiedly measures looking to that end, but it does not befit me at this session to discuss the issues of the campaign.

"I feel that to many of you I am an utterly unknown quantity, and I therefore trust you will pardon the injection of the personal equation in things which I have to say. Let me say to you that I believe now and at all times in independence of thought and action. My duty I conceive to be a duty to the entire people and not a duty to one man or a set of men, and I believe that the people in their entirety are the only ones to whom I shall be responsible, and in the event of my election that shall be my stand.

"Many and many things militate to make me feel deeply the responsibility which rests upon me this afternoon. I am not a man of means or of wealth, but I do come from a long honorable, plain-living, highly respected ancestry, and it is my purpose—God helping me—to prove worthy of your respect. I could not be true to them and be otherwise. By dint of self-denial my parents gave me opportunities for an education the equal of that afforded any boy in this country. They toiled and saved that I might be educated and for the sake of my father—who has been an elder brother—and for the sake of that mother who has now gone, I cannot be false to you for at the same time I would be false to them. And if nothing else had come to me in the contest recently gone by than the vote of this dear little town of mine, I should have been content. It was here that I was born and it is here the citizens have known me both as boy and man, and as the results rolled in the other night and I realized that those whose livelihood is gained in the great city of New York, those who work here both as employers and clerks, and last, but

UNION CO. DELEGATION WILL SUPPORT LEWIS

The delegates to the Republican State convention, to be held in Trenton on Tuesday, will go uninstructed, according to Frank H. Smith, chairman of the Republican County Committee. "The delegation from Union county always goes uninstructed," continued Mr. Smith, "and this policy will not be changed this year."

It is understood, however, that most of the delegates will favor the candidacy of Vivian M. Lewis, State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance. Mr. Lewis is known to have many strong supporters throughout the county and in Elizabeth, and it is stated that these supporters will stand back of him to the end.

MR. AND MRS. C. I. NASH WEDDED 26 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Nash, of DeLacy avenue, entertained a few friends at their home, last night, in honor of the twenty-sixth anniversary of their marriage. The evening was spent playing "Five Hundred," three tables being used. Mrs. George B. Whitfield, of Brooklyn, Mrs. Nash's sister, assisted in receiving. After the play an elaborate supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Nash were the recipients of congratulations and many happy returns of the day were extended, to which they made an appropriate response. Mrs. Nash also received a number of gifts in recognition of the happy event.

MISS CRANDALL WEDDED TO CHARLES CUMBERSON

One of the notable social functions to occur at Leonardsville, N. Y., was that of the wedding of Charles Percival Cumberson, a native of Plainfield, to Miss Blanche Margaret Crandall, of Leonardsville, on September 15. The wedding was attended by more than 100 guests many of whom came from Plainfield and the ceremony was performed by Rev. R. J. Severance, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, of Leonardsville, of which the bride is a member.

Among the guests from this city were Mrs. Robert Lee, Miss Mary Cumberson, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Champlin, Miss Katharine Champlin, Theodore Champlin and Milton St. John.

A luncheon followed the ceremony and the young couple started on a wedding tour up the St. Lawrence to Quebec. Upon their return they will reside at Middleport, Niagara county, where the groom is employed on the work of the Barge canal. The wedding gifts were both numerous and useful. The bride is one of the best known members of Leonardsville society and was a member of the choir of the Leonardsville church of which she is a member, and is a daughter of Irving A. Crandall, of Leonardsville, the leading merchant and postmaster of the village.

Mrs. M. F. Elderton Entertains.

Mrs. Millard Fillmore Elderton, of Park avenue, entertained a few friends at a bridge whist party and afternon tea, yesterday from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Elderton was assisted in receiving by Mrs. W. A. Freeman. Several tables were in play. A feature of the affair was the singing of "A Tanta A Mor Pour Tant D'Amour," a selection from "La Favorite," by Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft. She was well received, as was Mrs. Freeman, who sang "The Song of the Soul," from "The Climax." Mrs. Elderton and Mrs. Freeman poured tea.

Surprised on Her Birthday.

A surprise party was tendered Miss Marjorie Hart, of Fairview avenue, at her home Wednesday night. It was her nineteenth birthday. The affair was arranged by her mother. Twenty-six of Miss Hart's friends were present, the evening being spent in playing hearts, singing and dancing. The men's prize was won by William Nischwitz and the women's prize by Miss Grace Woolston. Miss Hart was given a handsome silver picture frame by a number of her immediate friends.

"The World's Hope."

"The World's Hope," will be the topic of a lecture to be given at 333 Watchung avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by F. A. Fillman, of the Brooklyn Tabernacle. The public is invited.

MISS SAUNDERS ENGAGED

AT HOLY CROSS CHURCH

Mr. Perkins is a Grandson of Edward Evarts and is Advertising Manager of Scribner's Magazine.

William L. Saunders announces the engagement of his eldest daughter, Miss Louise Saunders, to Maxwell Emmons Perkins, of New York. The wedding will take place in January. The ceremony will be performed at the Church of the Holy Cross and a reception will follow at Mr. Saunders' mansion, 112 Rockview avenue. Only a few close personal friends of the couple will be present, it being the wish of both Miss Saunders and Mr. Perkins that the wedding be a quiet one.

Miss Saunders is a talented young woman and is extremely popular in society. She is a graduate of the Plainfield Seminary and has gained favorable attention as a playwright. Among the many meritorious plays and playlets of which she is the author probably the best known is "The Woodland Princess," for which the famous house of French have the American rights. Her ability as an actress has frequently been seen at amateur performances given by local society for various charities. Her father, William L. Saunders, who is president of the Ingersoll-Rand company of New York, is one of Plainfield's most prominent and public spirited men. He is a former mayor and a governor of the hospital.

Mr. Perkins is a son of the late Edward C. Perkins, of this city, many years ago a distinguished New York lawyer. His grandfather, the late United States Senator Edward Evarts, of New York, was Secretary of State under Persident Grant and Attorney-General under President Hayes. Mr. Perkins is a Harvard man. He is the advertising manager of Scribner's Magazine and belongs to several exclusive clubs in New York.

The couple will reside in this city.

PEACHES AND CREAM AT CHURCH FESTIVAL.

A peach and ice cream festival was held last night in the Grace M. E. church under the auspices of the official board. The affair was well attended and a considerable sum of money was realized. The room in which the festival was held was tastefully decorated, the various booths lending an attractive coloring to the scene.

Those in charge were: Peaches—Mrs. W. J. Conroy; ice cream—Charles Nichols; cake—Mrs. Charles Nelson; candy—Miss Lucetta Clark; lemonade and watermelon—David Smalley; fishing pond—Russell Harden.

Initiated Class of Twenty-five.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians held a special meeting at Knights of Columbus Hall, last night, when a class of twenty-five candidates from Pound Brook, Dunellen and Plainfield was initiated. The work was performed by the local team, division No. 4. State President Edward R. Hayes, of New Brunswick, was present and assisted in the work. After the initiation supper was served in the banquet hall and the rest of the evening was spent in song and dance.

Mrs. Benjamin J. Fowler.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Fowler, wife of Benjamin J. Fowler and daughter of David A. Ryno, of East Second street, died this morning at her home, 935 West Front street, following a long illness. She was born in this city and with the exception of a few years, always lived here. She is survived by her husband and father; also a sister, Mrs. Bennett, of Metuchen. The funeral will be held from the late home, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Wedding Invitations Out.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Conover, of Point Pleasant, for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mabel Mae Conover, to Harry Craft Goeller, formerly of this city. The ceremony will take place at Point Pleasant, Monday, night, Sepember 26 at 7 o'clock.

As to Lee's Statue.

The Union Veteran Legion, at its closing session in Atlantic City yesterday, while deploring the proposed action of placing a statue of Gen. Lee in Statuary Hall, Washington, acknowledged the legality of the action. It regretted that this was true.

HAPPY RESULTS.

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find a relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Doan's Kidney pills.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for a long time. I doctored a great deal but failed to find a cure until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to give hem a trial. Good results followed their use and my kidneys were soon restored to a normal condition. I believe my cure is a permanent one and I will always give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement when an opportunity occurs."

DUNELLEN WILL HAVE BLUE SUNDAYS NOW

Sunday will be a blue day in Dunellen for order have been issued by Mayor Sanford that every store must be closed and that no cigars or tobacco can be dispensed at the drug stores. Marshal James Benson has been notified to enforce the law to the limit. The trouble that will ensue is not expected to be very great for the mayor is determined that the State law and borough ordinances regarding the keeping of the Sabbath day shall be observed.

Orders have been given to Edward Pennock, a druggist, that he could only dispense medicines on Sunday, and to Frank Margentino, who runs a fruit, candy and tobacco store, and to Peter Ratti, a confectioner, that they will have to stop selling goods on Sunday.

HYDROPHOBIA A RARE DISEASE AMONG ANIMALS

The idea that hydrophobia has attacked every animal that shows a contrary disposition and the fear which accompanies the smallest ailment of a beast is declared by Dr. Bambaud, of the Pasteur Institute in New York, to be ridiculous. In an interview recently Dr. Bambaud declared that a sort of hysteria is no indication of rabies and that people should not rush to too quick conclusions. Dr. Andrew C. Aarmstrong, of the New York Veterinary Hospital, expressed the same views as were printed in the New York Herald by Dr. A. M. Stimson, of Washington, who has declared that rabies or hydrophobia is a rare disease and but few of the suspected animals are affected with it when killed.

"The foolish superstition that dogs become rabid in summer," said Dr. Bambaud, "is due wholly to the fact that thousands of dogs are killed during the hot weather, because they are suspected of being afflicted with rabies. As a matter of fact rabies knows no season and there are cases occurring in the winter as well as in summer."

Dr. Armstrong is equally emphatic in his statements regarding the disease. He recently said that everyone who has followed the matter has become convinced that hydrophobia is a rare disease and the slaughter of innocent dogs in the summer is a wanton operation. The person who is bitten by a dog in the summer instantly believes himself lost simply because saliva is dripping from the animal's mouth. He frightens himself into a needless nervous state and the imagination does the rest.

Several other veterinarians have decided that the disease from which many shrink in terror is nothing but a mind trouble brought on through fright. Among those holding to this belief are many dog fanciers and horse lovers. Otto E. Eggeling, of Hawthorne, N. Y., has said that he has found hydrophobia a very rare disease and in all his long experience he had noticed but one actual case. Other so called cases were simply due to imagination and fright.

It looks as though much needless worry has been caused by false impressions of the conducts of dogs and other animals and it would be advisable for the use of common sense in many instances where the symptoms deceive the credulous.

Forty-two Mile Walk.

Douglas Clarke Anderson completed Thursday a 42-mile walk from Green Pond, where he spent a week at his old home. Raymond P. Heath, a Cornell man and enthusiastic athlete, accompanied Mr. Anderson. The entire distance is about forty-two miles, and it was made at an average speed of 4½ miles an hour. The two pedestrians passed through a part of the country which left lasting impressions upon them, and they both declare it was an exhilerating experience.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mayor Sanford is still awaiting the legal advice of Borough Counsel Walter Helfield as to the question of the appointment of a new councilman to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of George Huff from the board of borough fathers. The fact that the retirement of Mr. Huff took place after the date of closing the filing of petitions for candidates makes the problem a difficult one for the mayor to solve. Several of the Dunellen voters are in favor of electing a new representative in the council by direct vote and then another faction is opposed to this method. It seems at the present time as though the mayor would be called upon to make an appointment, and Mr. Sanford is now seeking legal advice whether to name a man for Mr. Huff's full term or whether to fill the vacancy until the November election.

Washington Camp, No. 98, Patriotic Sons of America, held a meeting Thursday night in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall. One candidate was initiated and routine business was discussed. A subject of keen interest during the meeting was the discussion on the proposed fair, which is to be held the 29th and 30th of this month and the 1st of next month. Plans were formulated for the affair and a report of the committee on arrangements was accepted. Clarence T. Voorhees is the chairman of the committee.

Charles Wyhuskey and Walter G. Runyon have returned from the Firemen's Relief Association convention at Atlantic City. Both men reported that the meetings had been most interesting and they have a lot to tell the local association.

Emil Vogel, of Dewey Park, who has been seriously ill at Muhlenberg Hospital, is recovering his strength rapidly and will leave the institution within a few days.

Miss M. Elizabeth Herlich has been visiting in Millington.

The Misses Pearl and Julia Dodwell, of North avenue, are spending this week in Lebanon. They expect to return to the borough tomorrow.

Ralph Eckert, of Shokan, N. Y., is stopping for a few days at the Mountain View Cottage, where he is visiting his father and brothers.

Miss Gertrude Bowlby has returned to the borough after a two weeks' visit with friends at Hampton.

Abram G. Nelson and family have returned to New Market after a long vacation at Jutland.

Edward Reusch and family have moved from New Market to Newark.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

"We will vote for the man who will fix this road," reads a sign between Hurffville and Grenloch.

The Ocean City Board of Education is deadlocked over the selection of a medical inspector for the public schools.

Jennie R. Parish, of Lambertville, lost three fingers from her left hand in a printing press in the mill of the Universal Paper Bag Company.

Seven new citizens were admitted to the right of suffrage Thursday at the September session of the Atlantic County Naturalization Court.

Lydia, the twelve-year-old daughter of Thomas Wall, of Lambertville, was severely scalded on both legs, when she upset a kettle of boiling water.

Playing with a pet dog Thursday, Harry Feldman, twelve years old, of 431 Market street, Camden, was bitten through the chin and cheek. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

Falling down cellar steps at 320 Market street, Camden, where she was visiting with her mother, Alice Pierson, two years old, of Moorestown, escaped with a lacerated wound of the scalp.

Coming in contact with an electrified rail caused by a short circuit on the rear of a Camden trolley car Thursday night, Raymond Woods, eighteen years old, of Collingswood, sustained a badly burned right hand.

Twice prevented by deckhands from jumping into the river from a Reading ferryboat, Martha Lee, a negress, who says she lives at Tenth and Locust streets, Philadelphia, is under arrest at Camden.

Before a congregation that taxed the seating capacity of the auditorium, Rev. C. Heines was ordained as pastor of the Union Holland Reformed church, Auburn and Governor streets, Paterson, Thursday evening.

The Gloucester County Freeholders Thursday took steps to curb the speed of automobilists, who take great risks in passing over the county bridges, by appointing a committee to purchase appliances to be placed at the approaches to the bridges when opened.

There will be one less exhibit at the meeting of the National Grange, in Atlantic City. A pumpkin weighing 120 pounds and still growing, was stolen from the patch of B. Frank Allen, of Hurffville, who had intended sending it to the seaside to allow some of the Western delegates to see what Jersey can do.

Requested by Mrs. Ellen Hardcastle, of 1703 Miller street, Camden, to arrest Mary Riggs, colored, for the theft of two watches and some clothing, Police Captain Hyde found the accused at the Homeopathic Hospital. She admitted her identity when part of her wearing apparel was identified as some of the stolen goods. She had one of the watches in her possession and produced a pawn ticket for the other. Admitting that she had robbed Mrs. Hardcastle when the latter took her in and cared for her after finding her ill on the street, the Riggs woman was committed in default of bail for court.

CRACK SAFE IN UNITED STATES POSTOFFICE.

May's Landing, Sept. 16.—Professional robbers yesterday blew open the safe in the postoffice here with nitro-glycerine, making away with $1,600 in stamps, $200 in cash and several registered letters.

People living in the building, terror-stricken, dared not stir from their rooms until the men, three in number, had escaped.

County Detective William Baitzell and a federal detective are working on the case.

It is believeed the thieves escaped in an automobile. The lock of the outer door of the safe was pried open with a crowbar taken from a nearby railroad shop.

It took three charges of the explosive to open the inner portion of the safe, which was covered with blankets taken from a livery stable.

The booty was carried away in a mail bag. The interior of the office was badly damaged by the explosions, mailboxes being destroyed and glass smashed on the floor.

MAURETANIA HOLD UP DUE TO CLERK'S ERROR.

Eleven hundred and twenty steerage passengers of the steamer Mauretania, which docked Thursday night were discharged from the vessel Friday and all but 400, who were American citizens, were sent to Ellis Island. When Health Officer Doty boarded the boat Thursday night he found that the manifest showed 1,122 steerage passengers and the count revealed only 1,120. He would not permit any one to leave the steerage until the mystery was cleared up. Other counts were made and still there were but 1,120 persons found.

Friday it was found that the mistake was made when the manifest was prepared and Dr. Doty gave permission to the officials of the line to release the third-class passengers.

Somerville today!

Are you going?

It will most likely be Warry McLaughlin on the firing line for the Plainfield team this afternoon. The effective southpaw's lame knee is in shape again and he says that he will be ready for anything that comes. Ward will accompany the team and be on hand in case Warry's bad leg goes back on him.

The locals have been practicing hard this week to get in the finest sort of shape for that Somerville game. Manager Doerflinger says that his boys are all in great fettle and are hot after their opponent's scalps.

Dunellen has finished its season, the game with the Raritan Juniors for this afternoon being called off. The team has made an excellent record this year and has been a credit to the borough. The third and deciding game with Plainfield team will remain unplayed thus giving the Dunellen and local fandom a chance for some bitter arguments as to the respective merits of the two teams.

Well there wasn't much but Plainfield in that Elks' game at the Oval Thursday. The Stapleton boys couldn't touch Warry, while the 885 aggregation batted at will.

Manager Harry Marshall, of the local Elks, says that there will be no carnival at the Oval next Thursday when the Brooklyn team comes here to play off that postponed game. Those Brooklyn boys are some ball-tossers and the local lodge has got to hustle to get ahead of them.

Torpey made a hit as a pitcher Thursday and likewise Warry McLaughlin as a catcher. After the first inning it was seen that the services of the speedy southpaw were not needed on the slab and so the battery changed places.

It begins to look as though the world's series will not be played until after the 16th of October. The Cubs are scheduled to play a game on this date with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Jimmy Scheckard, of the Cubs, is reported to have said that Bender is the only pitcher on the Athletics that the Chicago team does not like to bat against.

And now it begins to look as though the Athletics will fail to stop them Cubs.

Rochester seems to be the sure pennant winner in the Eastern League. If the Newark team wants to catch the Hustlers they have got to go some and begin immediately.

Wagner continues to gain on Snodgrass in the race for the hitting honors of the National League. Thursday the big Dutchman made four safeties out of nine times at the bat, while the Giant star only scored one clean clout out of six trips to the plate.

Major league ball players are drawing up a Magna Charta to present to the powers of organized baseball. It is stated that this "bill of rights" will be heard by the commission at its next meeting within a few weeks. The claims of the players may be classed under these five different clauses:

1. A clause in contracts declaring them "free agents" after playing in one city for a limited term of years.
2. In case of dispute between player and club owner over the size of the player's salary a board of arbitration to pass upon the case.
3. Representation on the National Commission.
4. Six months players' contracts to terminate at the end of the league season or compensation for twelve months of service if club owners insist on that time for their contracts.
5. Freedom to play ball or engage in athletic sports with teams other than those in organized baseball after the American and National league seasons are over.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM HAS A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

After a successful season the Y. M. C. A. baseball team has ceased its diamond battles, with a percentage of .684 for the games played. Thirteen games were won by the association boys and six were lost, with one tied contest. Platt Adams, the famous javelin thrower, and all around athlete, led the team in batting with the average of .346. Jack Peacock did the most consistant hitting for the season, finishing up with a .302 record for eleven games. Carlton Smith laced the ball at a .300 clip.

Fredrickson, the clever southpaw, had a perfect record in the field although his batting was only .200. Hand accepted 190 chances during the season, keeping his fielding up to a .960 gait for eighteen games. Fritts is also among the players that come in for a word of honorable mention.

The averages follow:

	G.	AB.	H	Bat.	Fld.
Adams, P.	7	26	9	.346	.977
Peacock	11	43	13	.302	.777

PLAINFIELD BOWLERS LOST MATCH TO ELKS.

In a match Thursday at Campbell's alleys the Elks' bowling team won all three games from the Plainfield five.

The teams lined up exactly as they did in Baltimore last spring in the National Tourney, and considering the fact that it was the first game of the season for most of them, the scores last night were creditable.

Stout was high man for the night, with an average of 208.1 for the three games and a high score of 236. Kiely touched 226 in the windup and Matthews with 209 was the only one on the losing side to reach the 200 mark.

The two teams will meet again some night next week.

The score:

Elks.
Blatz	176	169	209
Kiely	192	179	226
Laing	186	172	144
Stout	236	197	192
Campbell	188	169	183
	978	886	954

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

When the Fifth District Republican convention yesterday afternoon nominated Judge William N. Runyon, a Morris county delegate, who had cast his vote for Charles N. Fowler, accepted the verdict in a spirit that should be emulated by every true Republican in the district. Jumping to his feet, he shouted: "We are beaten, but we are Republicans!" He did not claim this as original on his part. He declared he had the authority of no less a personage than Mr. Fowler for the ultimatum. All praise to Charles N. Fowler for such a manly declaration!

There was no semblance of a contest over the right of any delegate to cast his ballot and the result of the vote was simply a confirmation of the verdict expressed at the primary polls on Tuesday. Under such conditions, no real Republican has any excuse for not loyally supporting the nominee. Even the brute prizefighter, the lowest of human beings, has manhood enough in him to shake the hand of the man who whips him in the ring. He accepts the thrashing he gets without a murmur and bears no ill will against the man who proved to be his better. This is the universal rule in life. It applies as much to the political game as it does to any other form of rivalry.

There is no need for any alarm in the Republican camp over possible treachery at the general election. The handful of men who are disgruntled now are not to be feared. In their calmer moments they will reason it out for themselves that they have no ground for grievance; they will awake to the fact that it is their duty to do unto others as they would have the others do unto them. They will vote the Republican ticket—that is all there is about it.

WOODROW WILSON.

It must be admitted that the Democratic party has lifted itself out of the rut it has been in for many years by unanimously nominating Dr. Woodrow Wilson for the Gubernatorial office. From every standpoint he was by far the strongest and ablest candidate before the convention and the party was fortunate indeed in getting his consent to accept the nomination. It meant no small sacrifice on his part personally as well as on the part of the great seat of learning of which he is the distinguished head. There is no Bryanism or any other fanatical "ism" in his make-up; he is a Democrat of the old school—of the school of Tilden, Cleveland, Randall, Bayard, Olney and Bissell.

The Republican party will make a fatal mistake if it underestimates Dr. Wilson's strength. His career has been such as to command National, if not international, attention. A man of letters, a political economist of recognized ability, and a scholar in the fullest sense of the word, he will undoubtedly appeal to many independent voters. Therefore, it behooves the Republican party to present to the people a candidate of equal merit. That it will do this is the hope of every adherent of true Republican principles.

OUR DECORATING and PAINTING DEPARTMENT

We do all kinds of Decorating and Paper Hanging, Exterior and Interior Painting. This department is in charge of Mr. S. R. Polk, a decorator of large experience. We employ Paper Hangers and Painters who are skilled mechanics. We figure as reasonable as possible and the guarantee of this store goes with every job we do. You take no chances of having trouble with poor mechanics; we are doing work for the best people in the city. Why can't we do it for you? We have the best wall paper show room in the city and we cordially invite you to come in and inspect our new fall line. The papers are right in stock and you don't have to wait a week for them.

P. H. S. NOTES.

Owing to the absence of John Thompson, captain, and Leroy Woodhull, manager, of the Plainfield High School football team, new officers will have to be appointed. At assembly on Monday morning the school will elect an athletic board, who will in turn appoint a temporary captain and manager so that the practice may begin that day. They deem it advisable to start the football practice early this year on account of the large amount of new material to be tried out.

The Plainfield High School paper, The Oracle, came to life this morning, when its editor in chief, Nelson Ramsey, and business manager, Alfred Clark, each made a flowery speech in the auditorium. Mr. Clark was introduced first and urged the students to support the paper by subscribing for the year and by patronizing its advertisers. He then introduced Mr. Ramsey, who begged for literary contributions of all kinds, stating that the work of the editors was hard and would be much lightened by liberal contribution from the writers.

The Plainfield High School is up to date again. With Sept. 16 came the end of the straw hat. Five out-of-date young men came to school with straw hats this morning. Four of them had their hats demolished and had to go home bare-headed.

S. H. KARR.

Michael Shannon, of Schenectady, and formerly of this city, was in town yesterday visiting friends.

Miss Elsa M. Cook, of the borough, who has been spending the summer at Peak Island, Maine, will return home tomorrow.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

'Tis fifty-six long years ago,
Sweet lady of the gentle deeds,
Since you went sailing Eastward ho!
To minister to soldiers' needs.

The clouds were black; the days were dark;
Our lads were in a piteous plight;
But 'mid the gloom there shone one spark,
One clear, redeeming ray of light—

Yourself, who faced Crimean snows,
When all was chaos, muddle, mess,
And still on angel pinions rose

Our boys put up some gallant fights,
Their grit on stricken fields displayed;
They pressed to storm the Alma's heights,
They charged with Cardigan's brigade.

Stark heroes these! who long shall live
As glories of the thin red line.
Aye, heroes! Yet the palm they give
To one unwarlike heroine.

Though many warrior names there are
Which still with pride the Briton reads,
You shone the first Crimean star,
Sweet lady of the gentle deeds!
—London Truth.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Novelty Act at Proctor's.

The Hillyers in their living manikins, introducing their laughable miniature figures upon a garden wall with living heads, is one of the most novel acts yet witnessed at Proctor's theatre. The singing and dancing is unusually funny, and their love cat duet is a laughable feature. The stage setting is also a novelty.

COUPLE TRIES SUICIDE ROUTE TO END STRUGGLE

Ten minutes after a man had tried to end his life by inhaling illuminating gas yesterday afternoon, a report was received at police headquarters in Newark of an attempt at suicide by one of the nurses in Beth Israel Hospital. She took a dose of morphine.

The victims are Miss Ethel Fell, eighteen years old, of 190 Second street, Manhattan, and Morris Elkin, forty-two years old, of 89 Broome street, Newark. Both will probably recover.

Miss Fell was discovered semi-conscious in her room about 7 o'clock Wednesday night. A glass which had contained morphine was on a table. The doctors of the institution worked over her for more than an hour, and when they revived her and asked her why she drank the poison she is said to have replied:

"I want to die."

According to the authorities at the hospital the girl has been melancholy and they believe that her mind is affected. The officials were averse to having anything of the incident become public, and when a report was given to the police last night a request was made that it be kept quiet.

At the hospital it was said that Miss Fell was resting comfortably and was greatly improved. In answer to a question whether she would be retained on the training staff if she recovered, the superintendent said that the matter had not been decided.

Elkin, who lived with Louis Shapiro at the Broome street house, was discovered by the latter's twelve-year-old son when he returned from school at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The man lay on the floor in the kitchen with a rubber tube connected with a gas jet in his mouth. He was unconscious. The boy tried to take the tube from his mouth, but couldn't, and turning off the flow of gas ran downstairs and told Mrs. Lena Glansky, who called assistance.

Elkin's teeth were set on the rubber tube and it was difficult to get it from his mouth. Efforts were made to arouse the victim without success, and the Fourth Precinct police were asked to send an ambulance. Elkin was removed to the City Hospital.

On account of nervousness Elkin was forced to sell a shoe store he had in Trenton. About two months ago he was admitted to Beth Israel Hospital to be treated and was discharged about twelve days later.

THE REIGN OF THE PURPLE.

Everywhere one sees the queen of colors and the colors of queens. This is one of the shades that Paris forgot to mention in her forecast, but she has sent it to us just the same.

Here is a linen suit of deep wistaria, with big smoke pearl buttons. With it goes a rough straw hat of the same shade, trimmed with masses of purple and silver gray changeable ribbon.

Then there is the lilac-colored linen, so faint that it seems almost a pale gray, but with more silk lapels, collar, cuffs and buttons of a bit deeper shade. The dainty little hat that goes with this is one cluster of white and purple lilac over a white chip straw, faced underneath with lilac messaline.

Lingerie shirtwaists are showing little lavender scallops on the ever-present frill, and lavender embroidered pabots with a velvet bow, caught by stitched strips of linen, of the same witching shade.

Then there is the cool blouses of violet china silk, with frilled Dutch collar and turn-back cuffs, accordion pleated, of the same material as the blouse itself. Sometimes there will be an extra frill of white or cream-colored net, with violet dots in satin stitch and a piped edging of violet silk.

Leather handbags are seen in royal purple and the new moire silk bags in the duller shades of plum and clouded purple. They are lined in the same color, and all their dainty accessories come to match.

Even handkerchiefs have partaken of the general craze and are embroidered in tiny squares of violet, or with a spray of natural-looking violets in their own colors in one corner. The little images of Chantecler seen on the new handkerchiefs are frequently shown in some single shade quite impossible to a real rooster, and the different sort of purple lead here.

White kid gloves are being stitched in purple on the backs, in quite wide bands and in all sorts of new stitches, which give the appearance of fagoting or of cross-stitch. And long white silk gloves are embroidered at the tops in tiny violet designs in a wreath effect.

Altogether purple reigns. Long live her majesty!

Will Teach Violin Here.

Mrs. Theo White Lillard, of Elmira, N. Y., teacher of violin and violin soloist, has removed to this city and is now stopping at 462 West Front street. She will open a studio in the Babcock building, where she will teach on Wednesdays, beginning October 5. Mrs. Lillard, who is a niece of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller of Washington avenue, is a talented artist and makes a specialty of recitals and church work. She will play at Trinity M. E. church, Bayonne, tomorrow morning.

DANCING STARS.

The Twinklers Seem to Jump When Viewed Through a Telescope.

One of the most interesting things appearing in the telescope when that instrument is pointing heavenward is the appearance of jumping stars. Of course we can see stars twinkle without a telescope, but with a telescope they may be seen to jump and actually to dance. The cause is the same—mixing currents of light and heavy air causing refraction or bending of the rays of light coming from the star. We can see the same phenomenon by looking at a small object in a room through the air directly over a hot radiator. The object seems to jump and dance as if playing hide and seek with itself.

This jumping in the telescope or twinkling to the naked eye has also been explained by what is called interference. If two sources of light are placed close to each other, then on a screen placed properly we can catch an alternate band of white and dark lines. Of course if the eye be placed at a dark line it can see neither source of light. The production of these dark lines is accomplished by different light waves reaching the screen in opposite phases so as to blot out or cancel the effect due to each. In like manner it can be shown that if the star has polychromatic light it can and has actually been observed to change color from this effect alone.

The best time to observe this effect of star dancing is on a cold, crisp night. The telescope should be pointed to a twinkling star as near the horizon as can be found, as to see a star on the horizon we have to look through much more atmosphere than to see one in the zenith, and there is consequently more chance for varied currents.—St. Louis Republic.

THE STICK CAME BACK.

Coleridge Was In the Habit of Losing and Recovering It.

Of walking sticks there is no end. For interesting sticks, however, the one which Coleridge was in the habit of losing during his tramping days must take first place. The philosopher was never happy till he had got it back. He sent the crier round. Here is the cry, as noted by Mr. Lucas in one of his essays: "Missing, a curious walking stick. On one side it displays the head of an eagle, the eyes of which represent rising suns and the ears Turkish crescents. On the other side is the portrait of the owner in woodwork. Around the neck is a Queen Elizabeth's ruff in tin. All down it waves the line of beauty in very ugly carving."

And then came the appeal and warning note: "If any gentleman (or lady) has fallen in love with the above described stick and secretly carried off the same he (or she) is hereby earnestly admonished to conquer a passion the continuance of which must prove fatal to his (or her) honesty. And if the said stick has slipped into such a gentleman's (or lady's) hand through inadvertence he (or she) is requested to rectify the mistake with all convenient speed. God save the king!" The stick came back!—London Chronicle.

The Early Circus.

Leaving out of count the great circuses of Rome and Antioch and coming down to something of modern times, the first circus in England was on a footpath known as Halfpenny Hatch, in the Waterloo road, London. There, in 1770, Astley's first performance was given, with the aid of a drum, two fifes and one clown. A charge of sixpence was made for the front standing places. There was no building and not even a tent, but merely a ring of ropes and stakes. Primitive as were the arrangements, Astley soon attracted good audiences and was able to add to his program conjuring, tumbling, rope dancing and tumbling, with displays of fireworks. In course of time he was able to hire an inclosed ground and erect seats under a substantial roof. He called the place Astley's amphitheater riding house.

For the King.

In one of Sir Richard Francis Burton's notes to the Arabian Nights is an Arabian story of how the king went to the public baths, ordered his shaving slaves and dogs out of the room he was after by judges his head from all their bragging and listening to the tongue of the heart. The king cut off a lock of the culprit's hair, so he could recognize him next day. But what did the sly rascal do but sneak up and cut every other slave's hair. When all the slaves were mustered next day before the throne the king saw he was beaten by a master mind and said, "Don't dare do it again." The king ought to have tried the Chinese test by giving them dry rice grains to chew. In fright the saliva will not flow, and the culprit has to spit his rice out dry.—New York Press.

A Gentle Hint.

Little Bobby had been forbidden to ask for dessert. The other day they forgot to serve him, and as Bobby is very obedient he remained silent, although much affected.

"Josephine," said the father, "pass me a plate."

"Won't you have some?" cried little Bobby. "It is very clean."

An Exception.

Stanch old Samuel Johnson: There is no rule without an exception. Bryant: Oh, yes, there is! There is never an exception to the rule that a man must always be hungry while being starved.

Cupid can't climb over the top of your head if you are intelligently blessed with a vein of humor.—Life.

Little, But Oh My!
How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

FINE AUTO SHOW FOR THIS YEAR'S TRENTON FAIR

All Standard Makes of Motorcars to Be Shown In New Exhibition Hall.

Keeping up with the demands and desires of the public, the management of the Interstate Fair association will this year conduct an up to date and complete automobile show in the perfectly adapted space under the magnificent new grand stand.

There will be room here for the display of a hundred or more cars, and it is safe to say that nearly all of the standard makes will be seen. Already there has been a demand for space that indicates that it will all be taken long before all of the car makers and sellers are satisfied.

The auto show floor space is admirably arranged so that the public can see all parts of the cars. There will be three aisles, with car spaces on each side.

Trenton has never had an automobile show, and, in view of the fact that the automobile interest in the Jersey capital is said to be stronger than in any city of the same size in the country, the eyes of the automobile world in general will be turned that way, expecting to see something up to the general Trenton fair standard, which is just a little bit better than anything of a similar kind anywhere else in the country.

Among the exhibitors already regarded as certainties are the much talked of new Bergdoll car, Chalmers, Hudson, Stoddard Dayton, Mitchell, Hupmobile, Buick, Winton, Crawford, Maxwell, Locomobile, Overland, Reo, Regal, E M F, Studebaker, Flanders, Peerless, Warren Detroit, Oldsmobile, Black Crow, Speedwell, Premier, Krit, Pullman, Brush and others.

The showroom will be beautifully decorated, and there will be music by Winkler's Second Regiment band during the exhibition.

In addition to the display of cars, there will also be a complete line of accessories belonging to the trade.

CHILDREN'S COMPETITION A FEATURE OF 1910 FAIR.

Destined to become extremely popular is one of the new departments added to the almost numberless attractions of the Trenton fair for 1910—the department for the exclusive display of the work of children. The fair management has always tried to make the fair interesting and educational for the children, but this year an unusual effort has been made.

There will be one department in which the work of the public school children in manual training and domestic art will be exhibited. All exhibits in this section must be entered on a regular interstate fair entry blank, accompanied by a certificate filled out and signed by the teacher and principal of the school which the child attends and also by the county superintendent or the supervisor in manual training. These minute precautions are necessary to prevent unfair competition by other than school children.

The work will be classified into one branch done by high school children and another by the children of the grammar and primary school grades.

Horticultural and agricultural work by school children will also be encouraged at the 1910 Trenton fair, as prizes will be given for exhibits grown in school gardens. Entries in this class will be made in the same manner as will prevail in the manual training work.

There can be no doubt that this department will be high in favor as it gives the children one part of the fair they can claim as their own.

MOUNTED POLICE AT THE GREATEST FAIR IN THE EAST

Because of the necessity of keeping the field clear during the airship flights the management of the Trenton fair will inaugurate the system of using mounted police this season. It would be almost impossible to handle the vast crowds attracted to this fair with any except mounted police, therefore Secretary Margerum has secured a squad of twelve to patrol the field during the entire week.

The success of the aeroplane flights by the Wright brothers depends on having a clear field. The management desires the patrons to see some of the best flying of the year, as the appearance of the Wrights is the biggest feature of the fair.

The mounted police will also assist in preserving order in all parts of the ground and will be on the job continually.

"Grade" Dairy Cattle.

In New Jersey and throughout the eastern states there are a great many dairy cows not pure in breed but generally recognized as representative grades and crossbreeds. The Trenton fair has sought to please many of its exhibitors this year by introducing a department for this class of dairy cattle.

For this class a "grade" cow will be defined as an animal having for her sire a pure bred and registered bull of dairy breed [illegible] and for her dam a cow [illegible] for competition in this class.

In judging [illegible] type, [illegible] as great [illegible] form, [illegible] grade animal.

It is [illegible] you [illegible] you

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

THERE ENTERED A VERY SELF POSSESSED YOUNG MAN

Riggs wheeled in his chair. "Colonel Button, it has been fully explained to this man and to the next that what they tell us here is to be just what they would swear to before a court. You can decide for yourself on hearing it whether you wish them to swear to it or not. Now, Rawdon, tell us how you came to enlist."

"As the representative of three newspapers in Chicago and the east. They were anxious to have an Indian campaign and the life of an enlisted man described as it really was. I joined a squad of recruits for this regiment right after the news of the Crazy Horse battle on Powder river."

"Do you still hold that job?"

"No, sir." And there was a twitch of the muscles about the corners of the mouth suggestive of amusement.

"Why?"

"I failed to—give satisfaction. Only scraps of my letters were published."

"What did they want?"

"Criticism principally and confirmation of the stories of abuse and ill treatment of soldiers by their officers."

"Were your letters never published?"

Whereupon Riggs spun in his chair and rejoicefully surveyed Button, who sat like a man in a daze, staring open eyed at the witness.

"Then, as I understand it, you were favorably impressed with the life and conditions?"

"In spite of hardship and privation, yes, sir, and because I found complete refutation of the stories about the officers, both as regarded their dealing with the Indians and with their own men."

"Were there any persons with the command who knew you and your mission?"

"Two, sir, as it turned out. Trooper Cary, who enlisted at the same time I did, and a civilian, Mr. Lowndes, who recognized us at Fort Frayne. We were at college together. He and Cary became very intimate toward the last, and yet I think they kept my secret in spite of our falling out."

"Do you care to tell us why you fell out?"

"I prefer that Mr. Lowndes should do that. He and Cary had been chums in college days, and, though we were in the same society, I did not know them then as I do now."

"You had trouble with Sergeant Fitzroy at first. We have heard his version. What is yours?"

Rawdon's eyes never flinched.

"It was partly on account of the lady who is now my wife and partly on account of—money. Fitzroy is an out and out usurer and has a dozen sergeants in the regiment in his debt and under his thumb, Captain Snaffle's first sergeant among them."

"It's a lie!" said Snaffle.

"It's the truth," said Riggs, "and I have other proofs. You will curb your tongue and your temper, Captain Snaffle, if you please. Go on, Rawdon."

"I had reason to believe he was squeezing Dr. Mayhew. I had learned to love Mayhew's daughter. I made Dr. Mayhew take enough to free himself and won Fitzroy's hate on both accounts."

"You are accused of assaulting him the night of the 16th. What of that?"

"I did not even see him or speak to him. I had been in town in the afternoon arranging for our marriage. Dr. Mayhew would not hear of it until I had got my discharge, but we had decided to be married Saturday morning and to go east that afternoon, as important business called me. Mr. Lowndes was much money as correspond pressed him for faithfully to have it was not. I knew of his relatives in Massachusetts and urged him to telegraph, but he said he could get some of it at least at the fort. So I drove him and Cary out in a sleigh, left them at the store and, circling the fort, spent two hours with Miss Mayhew, then, getting uneasy, as they did not come, drove round back to the store just in time to see Lieutenant Foster's sleigh going like the wind to town and found Rafferty in frantic excitement. He said there was hell to pay. The lieutenant was in arrest. Lowndes and Cary had run away with some of his clothes. There'd been a shindy up the row, and just then a soldier friend came running. 'Skip for your life, Rawdon,' said he. 'There's been robbery at Captain Sumter's, and Sergeant Fitzroy swears it was you and that you've struck him and assaulted him. The colonel orders you arrested wherever found. The patrols are out now!' There was no time to explain. I lashed my team to town, caught Lowndes in cavalry overcoat and cap, the fool, and with not a cent to his name. I gave Cary a note to Miss Mayhew, which he never delivered, and took Lowndes with me on No. 6 at 11:40."

"Then you were not at Captain Sumter's that night?"

"Nowhere near it, sir."

"Now, another matter," continued Riggs—"that night at Laramie of which you told me. These gentlemen will be interested."

"There was nothing remarkable in that. I had heard of the same thing being done at West Point. I heard in the nick of time of the order to the officer of the day to inspect for Lieutenant Lanier. I imagined that something very serious would happen to him. I knew he'd gone to the post with Lowndes and why. So, with my apologies now to the lieutenant, I slipped round to his tent and into his blankets."

"Did the lieutenant know of it or of the reason?"

"Never, so far as I know. I doubt if he knows it now. Lowndes told me the lieutenant before he entered West Point was a member of our fraternity. That was enough."

"And so far as I am concerned," said Riggs, "that is enough. Have you gentlemen any questions to ask?"

"Not—now," answered Button slowly. "But I desire personally to see—the witness—later."

CHAPTER IX.

ONE more witness appeared before this court that day and with him the tall, elderly civilian who had arrived from the east. Mr. Arnold came in with a very puzzled look in his face.

"Thank you for coming, Mr. Arnold," said Riggs, with bluff civility. "Pray take this chair, sir. As I have explained to you, Mr. Lowndes, your nephew could not be compelled to testify before a military court and need not make public admission here of what he told us at Rawdon's demand during our journey hither. I hope this is fully understood."

Mr. Arnold cleared his throat, and he began:

"My unhappy nephew realizes with, I trust, genuine contrition that he has been the cause of grave trouble, not only to us, his kindred in the east, but—er—to you military gentlemen in the west. He has, prompted, as we must admit, by Mr.—Mr. Rawdon, made a clean breast of his lamentable conduct and has promised Mr. Rawdon to repeat every word of it—er—to Colonel Button, but as his"—

"Then we'll waste no time," said Riggs impatiently. "We'll have him in, and I can catch the afternoon train. Ah, come in, Mr. Lowndes. Sit down, sir."

It was but a dejected specimen of a college bred man that sank into the chair in front of Riggs.

"Mr. Lowndes," said Riggs abruptly, "there is no need of going over the entire story. I'll ask you to answer certain questions. Who was your earliest friend in this regiment?"

The dreary eyes turned once more toward Bob, and the nervous hands started the slouch hat in swifter revolution.

"Mr. Lanier, sir."

"How came that?"

"I knew he was of my college fraternity before I entered college, and I showed him my pin and certificate."

"That insured a welcome, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir. He—he made me at home in his quarters—and tent."

"Shared the best he had with you—home, food, drink, even clothes and money—I'm told."

"It is all true, sir."

"Yet you quarreled with him during the campaign."

"I lost money gambling, and he wouldn't lend me any more."

"Did you ever pay what he had lent you?"

"Not—yet, sir."

"Even after your quarrel did he not aid you?"

"Yes, at Laramie. I didn't seem to have any friend left by that time and had to go to him for help when they wired me to come home."

"In point of fact, he enabled you to get $100 at Laramie?"

"Yes; I gave my note and he gave his word."

"What did you do with the money?"

"Tried to win back some that I had lost at poker and lost most of what I had raised. I suppose I'd have lost all of it if Rawdon hadn't caught me playing and pulled me out."

"You owed him still more?"

"Nearly $200, sir."

"Did you try to earn any money?"

"Yes, sir, writing about the campaign. Rawdon lost his position because he didn't send what they wanted, so I thought I might. The editor didn't know me and asked for references, so I sent my stories to—to Mr Arnold and my aunt. She often wrote for the papers."

"Is that the way the Boston and other papers came to publish those scandals?"

"She made it worse than I described."

"Er—let me explain, gentlemen," interposed Mr. Arnold. "My sister is of a very sympathetic nature, and her heart has long been wrung by the injustice to the Indian. When this unhappy boy wrote those letters she had no reason to doubt their entire truth."

"I will ask you what was his final explanation of his need for money?"

"He begged me to send him $200, saying he would be disgraced if he could not pay Lieutenant Lanier, who had won it from him at cards."

"Mr. Lowndes," said Riggs, "did Lieutenant Lanier ever win a dollar from you?"

"Never, sir!"

Riggs let him rest a minute, then went on. "Now, then, in your own way tell us what happened that night of the 16th."

For a few seconds there was silence. Then, suddenly uplifting his head and looking at no one, Lowndes desperately plunged into his narrative. "I—I—was mad, I suppose, with debt and misery, and I began to drink. Rawdon told me he must have the money. My uncle had flatly refused to send me more. There was left me only one way, and that was through my Cousin Miriam. We'd almost been brought up together. But I knew if I could see her she would help me.

"Rawdon had changed into citizen's clothes in town, and I had pawned my overcoat, so he lent me his cavalry overcoat and a fur cap, drove me and Cary out to the fort and left us at the store. We were chilled from the ride and drank more. Rafferty told me Mr. Lanier was officer of the guard. We filled Rafferty up, for Cary had made up his mind he was going to Rawdon's wedding in 'cits' instead of soldier clothes, and he was bent on borrowing a suit of Lieutenant Lanier's. He swore he'd return them the next day, and Rafferty let him have them. Then he and I went up the rear fence and caught sight of No. 5—Trooper Kelly. Cary went ahead to 'fix things,' as he said. Kelly was suspicious. Cary to quiet him told him he was Lieutenant Lanier; that we were helping Rawdon get ready for his wedding.

"He made Kelly drink to Rawdon's happiness, and drink three or four times, and finally left him with a half full flask up the row toward Major Stannard's. Then we went to Captain Sumter's. Kelly told Cary the servants were in at Captain Snaffle's. The door was open. Cary watched below while I hunted for my cousin's room. I found it easily. I knew they had sent her money and orders to come home. Uncle had written me as much. I found her desk. I knew it well of old, and then, to my horror, I heard her voice, and in a second she was in the room. She gave one awful scream, though I tore off my cap and begged her to know me, but she fell in a faint. Others were coming. I broke out of the back window and slid and scrambled down the roof to the shed and so to the ground. I heard men come running, so I dived into the coal shed, where the sergeant grabbed me in the dark, and I had to make him let go and—said I was Lieutenant Lanier. Later I crawled through a hole in the fence and started for the store, scared out of my wits. Right at the next gate I crashed into two men. I picked myself and cap up and ran again, caught Cary at the store just jumping into a sleigh, and we lashed those horses every inch of the way, left them at a ranch gate and ran to the station. Rawdon presently came, and he took me to Omaha. He, too, had to get away or be thrown into the guard house."

"You have that overcoat with you yet, I believe—that cavalry coat."

"It's all I have had to wear, sir," was the answer as, rising, he took the garment from the arm of his chair and laid it upon the table, exposing a rent or gash, whereupon Captain Sumter took from an envelope a sliver of yellow cloth and fitted it into the gap. "This," said he, "I found on the hook of the storm sash, and this," laying beside it a rusty sheath knife, "was later found under the snow close under the dormer window." Then, turning the overcoat inside out, he displayed on the back lining in stencil the name "Rawdon."

"And now," said Riggs, "we will hear the accused."

"It isn't necessary," began Button.

"It is necessary, Colonel Button. Of course Mr. Lanier is not obliged to speak, but a few matters remain to be cleared up. There is yet the time honored problem of 'who struck Billy Pat—'"

His Business.

"Are you a vegetarian?" asked the long-haired man.

"No," replied the business-looking stranger seated next to him; "I do not handle vegetables at all; I'm a fruiterer."—Yonkers Statesman.

Queer.

The English speech is very queer,
As any boss will say,
The clerks with whom he can't put up
He "cans" without delay,

Health Certificate For Hair.

Any woman who changes doctors no doubt has her own reasons for making the change. The woman in this case was threatened with fever. Her first question was, "Shall I lose my hair?"

"Most likely," said the doctor.

"Doctor," said the man, "I wish you would write out a certificate that this hair is healthy. The lady wants to sell it. She says if she's bound to lose it anyhow in this spell of sickness she is in for she might as well get rid of it now while it will bring a good price. If she waits till it falls out nobody will buy it. Women with nice hair and not much money are smart enough nowadays to sell their hair as soon as they fall ill. Most dealers take it and no questions asked, but I'm too conscientious. I want a doctor's certificate every time in a case like this. I hope you'll be obliging."

The doctor was not obliging, and the next day a new doctor was called in.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Wood Pulp Paper.

Wood pulp paper is made from wood—poplar, spruce or pine usually—which has been reduced to a fine pulp either by grinding while wet or through chemical means. The pulp is kept diluted with water while fed on to the bed of the paper machine, this bed being a continuous band or wide belt of finely woven wire. It is supported by rollers set close together and in rapid motion, the latter to set the fibers of the paper. The sheet forms almost at once, as soon as the water drains through the wire cloth, though it is then moist and weak. Successive rollers and vacuum boxes press and dry out more moisture, big rollers heated by steam finally render it perfectly dry, and then it is run between finishing rollers, varying according to the exact kind of paper to be made.—London Standard.

The Norwegian Costume.

It is at church in Norway that the national costume is best seen. In the north the women wear short dark gowns, with fringed handkerchiefs tied becomingly over their curly fair hair, black ones for the matrons and white ones for maidens. In the south the old Norwegian dress is often worn. It consists of a short dark petticoat, with a stripe of bright colors, a full white blouse and a red bodice heavily embroidered, while on Sundays a quantity of silver pins and chains are added. The headdress varies according to the occasion and the wearer's social condition. The girls wear jaunty red caps, the married women a coif made of many folds of starched white linen, plaited over a wooden frame, and a bride wears a high metal crown curiously chased and set with jewels.

Pascal's Early Observation.

Blaise Pascal, who wrote a remarkable treatise on the laws of sound, was constantly observing the familiar occurrences about him even as a boy. When he was only ten years old he sat at the dinner table one day striking his plate with his knife and then listening to the sound.

"What are you doing with that plate, Blaise?" asked his sister.

"See," he replied. "When I strike the plate with my knife it rings. Hark!"

Again he called forth the sound.

"When I grasp it with my hand so," he continued, "the sound ceases. I wonder why it is."

To Avoid Telling Secrets.

A New York theatrical manager was advising a friend to be cautious in an undertaking he had in view.

"You can't take too many precautions," he asserted. "'An ounce of prevention,' as the copybook used to say, 'is better than seven pounds of allopathic, homeopathic or hydropathic cure.' One of the most contented men I ever knew was the most cautious. He was deaf and dumb, and he never went to bed without putting on boxing gloves."

"Boxing gloves? What for?"

"So that he wouldn't talk in his sleep."

Gold Filled.

What does "gold filled" mean? Probably most people who buy gold filled watches fancy that they are mysteriously impregnated with gold. The term is misleading. Gold filling consists in taking two sheets of gold, between which is placed a section of solder coated base metal. This metallic sandwich is heated and pressed, so that the three parts are welded together, with the gold outside.—Chicago News.

Her Hard Task.

"That's a beautiful girl you have in your store," said the man acquaintance. "I've seen her in the window several days as I passed."

"She isn't an employee," the milliner answered wearily. "She's a woman trying to decide on a new hat."—Buffalo Express.

A Duty.

We should tell ourselves once for all that it is the first duty of the soul to become as happy, complete, independent and great as lies in its power.—Maurice Maeterlinck.

Her Two Languages.

He—Did you ever hear that Jagson's wife speaks two languages? She—Yes. He—What are they? She—The one for company and the other for Jagson.

Every time a man loses his temper he loses his head, and when he loses his head he loses several chances.

Ilka Diehl.

Miss Ilka Diehl, the new leading woman, engaged by Proctor & Sanderson, for the stock productions at The Plainfield theatre, is a talented woman, having appeared in several successful stock productions. She has been a member of the company presenting "Alma Where do You Live?" During the past summer she appeared in "The Three Twins," and "Bright Eyes," taking a leading part in each.

Miss Diehl has a pleasing manner and the management feels confident that her work here will be satisfactory. As it is planned to present only the best plays, great care is being exercised in the selection of the company. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, "Brown of Harvard" will be presented and the offering the last three days of the week will probably be "Thelma."

not least, that splendid great body of artisans, the men who toil with their hands, had come to the polls in hundreds to express their confidence in me, I knew that I would not dare, even if the inclination were mine, to play them false in any respect. If the confidence expressed in me this afternoon shall be backed on election day and I shall be made your representative, I shall go forth to Washington with the sole determination of being fair and only fair to everyone.

"Gentlemen ,that which has just passed has been a great contest, made altogether possible by the laws of this State. To those who espoused my cause I wish to return my heartiest thanks. To those of the other persuasion I wish to extend my felicitations for the contest so openly made. But that is done and gone now. You have decided and now we must let by gones be by gones. We must unite; form ourselves into a legion, into a great army and go forth with one single purpose and uphold the hands of President Taft so far as our district is concerned.

"I realize what the position means in many ways in this district. I realize the lustre which the gentleman who has occupied the position for so many years has brought to the Fifth Congressional district What lustre it may continue to hold time alone will tell, but you may rest assured that there will be a Republican there who is doing to his uttermost that which he believes to him to be fair and right and in behalf of his constituents.

"We have a hard battle before us, but I take it that we believe in majority rule: I take it that the contest has been open and fair and that the result thereof should be satisfactory to each and everyone of you, no matter what your predilections heretofore have been. I beseech you for loyalty, not so much for my own sake because I do not ask it for myself except in an impersonal way, but I do ask you as loyal adherents and supporters of our great President: to uphold his hands and send him a Republican representative from this district.

"In the eight weeks which are ahead of us I purpose to visit all parts of this district, going to every town, village and hamlet and making myself personally acquainted with you, your friends and fellow-citizens, and to discuss the issues of this campaign. I ask you that, whatever feelings you have had heretofore, that I may be looked upon as the candidate of the whole Republican party. I have tried in the days and weeks gone past to make no distinction whatever. I have tried to weld the Republicans into one homogeneous, harmonious party, and that shall be the contiuation of my efforts.

"I ask you in all sincereity and I believe that if the proper spirit inspires us we shall without doubt go forth to a great victory and one that will cheer the heart of him who is the leader of us all—Taft, the great Taft of Ohio.

Rev. Robert MacKellar, rector of Trinity church, Red Bank, will preach at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, tomorrow night.

Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, of this city, will preach at the Temple Baptist church, tomorrow morning, at 10:45 o'clock, and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock. The Sunday-school will meet at 2:45.

N Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Nance O'Neill, who plays the leading feminine role in David Belasco's great play, "The Lily," at the Belasco, is the most widely travelled actress on the English speaking stage. Miss O'Neill has just returned to New York city after her sixth journey to Egypt and Algiers, whither she went in June after the close of her long and arduous season at the Belasco Theatre, where "The Lily" enjoyed one of the greatest runs in a decade. This gifted artiste may now boast of having crossed the Atlantic Ocean forty-two times, to which may be added a half-dozen trips across the Pacific, twice to Australia, and once to China and Japan. Besides all that, Miss O'Neil has made three trips to South America, where she appeared in most of the leading theatres.

The third week of the New York Hippodrome will begin on Monday with the new triple show in full, successful running order. "The International Cup," "The Ballet of Niagara," and "The Earthquake" form a trio of unusual drawing power even for the big playhouse, where crowded houses are the rule. "The Ballet of Niagara" with its wonderful scenic background and poetic accessories of costume and lighting, continues to be a potent factor in the success of the new show, while the circus with its 12 feature acts, including performing lions, bears and elephants and equestrian novelties, is far ahead of former seasons. Among the special scenic features may be mentioned the Yacht Race, in which two full sized racing vessels are seen in action. The Shipwreck, the Race between a Locomotive and Horses, the Earthquare and Tidal Wave and some special aquatic surprises at the finale of the big show—always an interesting climactic feature at the Hippodrome.

In connection with the highly successful and important revival of Sardou's "Diplomacy," which opened at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York city, last Tuesday evening, for a limited metropolitan engagement of only three weeks, comes the announcement that the Messrs. Shubert and Wm. A. Brady, who are jointly interested in the producing firm known as Wm. A. Brady, Ltd., have determined that the company presenting this revival shall form the nucleus of a permanent stock company of unrivalled excellence. The presentation of "Diplomacy" was received with remarkable enthusiasm and the general verdict is that this revival surpassed every previous performance of the famous Sardou drama. The members of the company are Effingham Pinto, of this city, Charles Richman, Florence Roberts, Theodore Roberts, Mrs. LeMoyne, Milton Sills, Chrystal Herne, Thurlow Bergen, Marion Ballow, Jewel Power, Frederick Esmelton, Leslie Bassett and C. E. Harris. In accordance with the plan outlined above, "Diplomacy" will go on a brief tour of the leading cities after the conclusion of the engage at Maxine Elliott's Theatre.

Dedication and Rally Exercises.

The Sunday school of Trinity Reformed church will hold rally-day exercises tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at which time the new Sunday school room will be dedicated. A special program has been arranged which will include a vocal solo, an address, the reading of a letter from the church missionary, Dr. Paul W. Harrison, a cornet solo, and other features. Superintendent F. E. Smith will be in charge.

FIGHTING FOR LICENSES

Applications For Hotels Arlington and Manhattan Laid Over by Court.

HEARING AT SOMERVILLE.

Mayor Smalley Urges That They Be Granted—Rev. J. O. McKelvey and S. S. Swackhamer Speak as Remonstrants.

The fall term of the Somerset County Courts opened at Somerville, today with Justice Charles W. Parker and Judge Clarence E. Case on the bench. There was a large gathering of county people, including many liquor dealers and their representatives. They were attracted by the fact that several license applications were to be disposed of and the probable action of the court aroused unusual interest.

Charles Jensen, of North Plainfield, applied for a license for the Arlington Hotel, and Alfred DeNise, of the Hotel Manhattan, also of the borough, renewed his application. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey was present and made a strong remonstrance against the granting of these applications. He declared that both places were well-known for general disorder and the fact that the hotels are located in the residential part of the borough, he believed that the applications should be denied. He recalled the raid made some time ago at the Arlington Hotel and of numerous instances of disorder at the Hotel Manhattan. S. S. Swackhamer also spoke on the matter, stating that there were a number of people in the borough who would like to be heard in protest against the granting of the applications.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who is a member of the Grand Jury, left the jury room to speak in favor of the granting of a license to Mr. Jensen. He said that the latter had tried to conduct the hotel as a temperance house for a year, but without success, that he was a reputable citizen, and bore a good reputation in the borough. He added, that Mr. Jensen owns the Hotel Arlington property and under the present circumstances is no source of revenue to the owner. Mr. Smalley favored the granting of this application.

The court said that both applications would be laid over until the latter part of the month, when witnesses would be given an opportunity to speak on the matter. Similar action was taken regarding the application of Alfred E. Binz for his hotel at Mt. Bethel. Justice Parker explained that he had received two remonstrances against the granting of the Binz application and he would lay that matter over until the latter part of the month.

Justice Parker, in charging the Grand Jury, called its attention to the murder case to be tried later; also to county excise matters, urging upon the members to do their duty in these matters.

L. P. Gaston, of Somerville, is the foreman of the Grand Jury and the North Plainfield members are Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Charles P. Sebring and Charles Woods. William H. Rogers and Guy Peck, of Warren township, are also members of the jury.

MISS ROANTREE BRIDE OF JOHN A. WEARREN.

Miss Emma Roantree, of Steiner place, and John A. Wearren, of Rock avenue, were married yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's church by Rev. Father Miller. Miss Madeline Geier, of Madison avenue, was maid of honor, and Fred Gotte, of Newark, was the best man. The bride was gowned in a blue traveling dress and the maid of honor wore a dress of pale blue silk. Miss Roantree was employed for some time as stenographer at John H. VanWinkle's law offices. Mr. Wearren was for some time in the United States navy.

After a honeymoon of two weeks to be spent in the neighborhood of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Wearren will reside in West Brighton, S. I., where Mr. Wearren holds a responsible position.

Confirmation at St. Mary's.

The Rt. Rev. John O'Conner, bishop of the Diocese of Newark, will administer the sacrament of confirmation in St. Mary's church, Monday, September 26, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. About 200 are to be confirmed. The instruction class is held Wednesday and Friday in the school hall by one of the priests.

Horse Strayed Away.

The horse which strayed away from the stables of Adam Blair on West Sixth street on Sunday night was found yesterday near the round house at Dunellen quietly grazing. He was still blanketed. It was thought at first that the animal had been stolen.

LECTURE COURSE FOR THE MERCHANTS' ASS'N

The Merchants' Association met last night and although there was but a small attendance some enthusiasm was shown for the proposed set of lectures to be given during the winter months under the auspices of the association. It is proposed to engage some special speakers thoroughly up to date on mercantile subjects and thus attempt to arouse greater interest in commercialism among the local business men.

The lectures will embrace every phase of commercial life and will undoubtedly cause an increased attendance at the meetings of the association. No names of the lecturers were given out last night, but it is understood that they will be of the best in the country.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED ON STRENUOUS MOTHER

Harmony has been restored in the Harmony street district wherein Mrs. Charlotte Miner is trying to bring up a family by means of a vigorous use of the rod. This was done this morning when Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence on Mrs. Miner on condition that quiet reigns in the future in her household.

Trouble was caused last night when Mrs. Miner whipped her eleven-year-old son. The lad's cries were so agonizing as to be heard for a block away, and led James Boyd, a neighbor, to lodge a complaint with the borough police. When Marshal Culver responded to the call the chastisement was still in operation.

On the entrance of the officer Mrs. Miner transferred her energy to him by means of verbal abuse. The upshot of the matter was that Fred Miner, a twenty-year-old boy, was arrested. He too had been adding to the general din at the Miner home. In court testimony was brought forward to show that the noise has been continuous; and has resulted in frequent complaints to the police by neighbors.

When sentence was suspended Mrs Miner said that in future when she had to chastise her children the operation would take place outside the borough limits.

NEW CONVENT BUILDING A HANDSOME STRUCTURE

When the new convent for St. Mary's church at the corner of West Sixth street and Liberty street is completed next spring, the local Catholic parish will have a group of buildings harmonizing in architecture, convenient to each other and especially fitted for more effective educational and religious work.

Work is being completed on the exterior of the new convent which faces Liberty street. The architect has displayed skill in the arrangement of the rooms. The porch will lead into a vestibule on the main floor. To the left of this will be the community room, and to the right the reception room. Back of the community room will be the refectory; the parlor will be in the rear of the reception room. Shut off from these by swinging doors will be the kitchen and pantries.

On the second floor there will be six bedrooms fronting on Liberty street, and in the rear along the Sixth street side will be a beautiful chapel. This will be fully equipped. In the rear to the left will be the sacristy.

The third floor will contain eight bedrooms, six of which front on Liberty street, and in the rear will be the sewing and other rooms for the convenience of the sisters.

The building is in red brick, with trimmings of white brick to harmonize with the church, the rectory and the parochial school. In this way a passerby will immediately discover the identity of the group of buildings. For the present, however, the old Washington school, which was purchased by the church for its commercial school, will not undergo proposed improvements to complete the architectural idea. This is made necessary by the fact that the school is now crowded to its capacity by three full classes. The regular school, too, is crowded to its capacity, and the total enrollment of the parochial schools is 527.

"How to Make Things Go."

The Rev. Madison C. Peters, of New York, will lecture on "How to Make Things Go" at the Y. M. H. A. Hall, Wednesday evening, October 5. This is the most popular of Dr. Peter's lectures, and those who heard him lecture two weeks ago are aware of his ability as a lecturer.

HOLY NAME TO ASSEMBLE

Great Demonstration of Catholic Society to be Held Here on October 9.

TO HOLD A BIG PARADE.

Open-air Meeting at St. Mary's Church to Be Addressed by Clergy and Laymen.

The representatives of the Holy Name societies of Union county who assembled Sunday afternoon in St. Mary's Hall, arranged for the annual demonstration to be held at Plainfield on Sunday, October 9. During the past three years the celebrations have been held in Elizabeth, but this year Plainfield will have the honor.

At the conclusion of the usual procession, services will be held out of doors in the park adjoining St. Mary's church on Liberty street. A platform will be erected there from which the addresses will be delivered. There will be speaking by a prominent Catholic layman and by the clergy, to be followed by benediction of the blessed sacrament, in which the voices of 500 school children of St. Mary's school will be heard. In the singing the children will be accompanied by Van Baar's Band, of New York.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the procession will form in the neighborhood of the North avenue station, and will be led by St. Mary's Society, of Elizabeth, accompanied by the society connected with the Church of the Immaculate Conceptionfi of Elizabeth. Following will come the societies connected with St. Joseph's, of Roselle; St. Michael's, of Cranford, and St. Patrick's and the Holy Rosary, of Elizabeth, the two latter societies escorting the society of St. Anthony's. Then will follow the Sacred Heart, Elizabeth, and the Holy Name Society from Raritan, which will be accompanied by a band. The Holy Name Society, of this city, escorting the societies of North Plainfield, Westfield and Dunellen, will bring up the rear.

ROUTINE TRANSACTIONS OF COMMON COUNCIL

Several petitions were presented at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, including one from Horace M. Stevens, of Prospect place, asking for an electric light, and one from F. B. Lawrence asking that a portion of Denmark road be accepted by the city as a public thoroughfare. Both were referred to the proper committees. The Public Service Corporation notified the Council that the four electric lights ordered have been installed on West Front street, between Giraud and Grant avenues.

Regarding the appeal of Elston M. French from an assessment on property located on Evergreen avenue, Mr. Mygatt, for the finance committee, offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing Tax Collector W. R. Townsend to give Mr. French a "quit-claim" deed, after approval by the corporation counsel and the payment of the assessment without costs and interest.

Mr. Mygatt offered a resolution, at the request of Mayor Fisk, and which was adopted, authorizing the exchange of the typewriter in Mr. Fisk's office for a new one and the payment of $75 in cash, $20 allowance being made on the old machine, which is worn out.

Mr. Gloak reported back the communication from Fanwood township, and it was agreed that the township should in the future take care of Cushing road, while the city will look after Woodland avenue, as proposed.

Attendants at October Wedding.

Miss Winifred Busby, daughter of Mrs. Leonard Busby, of Glen Cove, L. I., who will be married at their country seat, Germelyn, on Wednesday, October 5, to Morgan Wightman Daboll, has chosen Miss Margaret W. McCutchen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, for her chief attendant. Miss Helen Leeming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Leeming, and a niece of the bride-elect, will serve as flower girl. Frederick A. Daboll, a brother of the bridegroom, will be his best man, and the ushers will be Thomas L. Leeming, Robert McGusty, of Manhattan; Vernon C. Brown, of New Rochelle; Philetus H. Holt, of Summit; William H. Brinkhoff, of Mount Vernon, and J. Irving Crane, of Brooklyn.

—Fancy peaches, plums, pears and tomatoes are among the specialties to be offered at Neuman Bros. tomorrow at reasonable prices.

PROPOSED ORDINANCES

Several Measures Offered at Monthly Meeting of Common Council.

CITY TO PURCHASE LAND.

Tract Needed For Pumping Station to Cost $1,400—Ordinances to Open up Some Thoroughfares.

Several ordinances were offered by Mr. Cloak, chairman of the street committee, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, providing for the opening up and acceptance of certain thoroughfares. Maps were filed, and Thursday, October 20, was fixed as the date for public hearings on the different ordinances. Among these ordinances was one authorizing the purchase of a tract of land at Monroe and Sherman avenues, for $1,400, upon which it is proposed to erect a pumping station for the extension of the sanitary sewer system.

One ordinance called for the opening up and laying out of a portion of Denmark and Ravine roads to the southerly line of Netherwood Park. This was adopted on two readings and ordered engrossed and advertised. The second ordinance provided for the purchase of the land for the pumping station, and will be taken up for final adoption on October 20. The land proposed for the purpose is 20x150 feet and is known as the Dell property. It was explained that it would also be necessary to install a pumping station on Plainfield avenue near the city line, in the near future to take care of that section of the city.

Other ordinances called for the opening up and acceptance as public thoroughfares, Lyman place and Astor place to Hunter avenue. These were adopted on two readings and ordered engrossed and advertised. Public hearings will be granted on Thursday night, October 20, before adoption on third and final readings.

TRAVELED 20,000 MILES GOES TO CONNECTICUT

Edwin Langley, a former well known local resident, returned to the city today for a brief stay after two years of travel, during which he completed 20,000 miles. In his trip he touched nearly every State in the Union, and went from coast to coast. He leaves tonight for Ansonia, Conn., where he has taken a responsible position with the Farrell Machine Company.

In speaking of his long trip to a Daily Press reporter, Mr. Langley said he had been through the West many times before but never saw it in such a prosperous condition. This applies, he said, not only to the agricultural interests but the manufacturing as well. He agreed with other Plainfielders who have been on the Pacific coast that the "yellow peril" in that section is daily becoming more alarming and will eventually prove a very serious proposition.

Mr. Langley spent several weeks in Reno, Nev., and said that aside from its record as a divorce-granting town it holds the banner for public gambling. The gaming tables can be plainly seen from the streets, and orchestras seated on the porches and balconies seek to entice men inside. He also speaks interestingly of the Mormon temple in Salt Lake City, the big snow sheds of the Rocky Mountains and sights in San Francisco, Cheyenne, Wyo., Dallas, Tex., and many other large cities.

Mr. Langley was employed at the Potter Press works for many years and other local shops. While in town he is a guest at the home of Andrew Muir, of Essex street.

JEFFERSON SCHOOL READY FOR OPENING TOMORROW.

Preparations are now complete for the opening of the new Jefferson school tomorrow morning. The school will positively open tomorrow at 9 o'clock.

The contractors have been rushing the work so as to get the building in sufficient readiness for occupancy tomorrow.

The teachers have been notified to be in their places before nine o'clock. Two hundred children are expected to attend.

Race Meet Here Oct. 12.

The Plainfield Driving Association, at a meeting held last night, decided to hold a race meet here on Columbus Day, October 12, at the Plainfield Driving Park. There will be two trotting races, two running races and a novel event called "quick-hitch" race. Further details regarding the meet will be announced within a short time.

MRS. T. J. NICHOLL DEAD

Woman Prominent in Philanthropic and Educational Work Passes away.

VILLAGE LIBRARY TRUSTEE.

Wife and Four Daughters Survive—Funeral Services at Scotch Plains Tomorrow Afternoon.

Mrs. Avis Townsend Nicholl, wife of Thomas J. Nicholl, of Scotch Plains, died early this morning, after a lingering illness. She was born in Brooklyn in 1855, but had lived in Scotch Plains since 1870 and had always been prominently associated with all the philanthropic and educational work of the village.

As a trustee of the public library since its organization, and as a member of its house committee, and in other capacities, she was always an active worker in every movement for the betterment of the community in which she lived. Mrs. Nicholl's family were members of the Religious Society of Friends, but for many years she had been an attendant of All Souls' Unitarian church, of this city, and an active member of its Woman's Alliance.

Mrs. Nicholls was married in Scotch Plains in 1874 and she leaves besides a husband, four daughters and four grandchildren. The daughters are Mrs. R. L. VanDyke, of Westfield; Mrs. J. A. Rawson, Jr., of this city; Miss Florence Nicholl, assitant piano teacher at the Plainfield Seminary and Miss Louise Townsend Nicholl, a sophomore at Smith College.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Nicholl's late residence on Mountain avenue, Thursday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of All Souls' Unitarian church, assisted by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church.

CLAIM AGAINST CITY FOR DAMAGE TO TIRES

Frank W. Weed, of West Front street and Oxford place presented a bill to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, for $72.50 for automobile tires, which he claims were ruined by the slag, nails, etc. which was dumped on Oxford place against his wishes. He stated in his communication that he had complained of the matter to Street Commissioner Gavett and had submitted specimens of the material to him, and had also called the attention of three members of the street committee to the condition of the street, but to no purpose.

Mr. Weed further explained that Councilmen Charles C. Randolph and W. L. Gloak had investigated the condition of the street at his request, but the dumping of the slag was continued, and he now believes that he is entitled to reimbursement for the damage to the tires on his automobile. The communication was referred to the street committee and a report will be made at a later date.

DR. ANDERSON TO SPEAK AT CRANFORD SERVICES.

A series of special services will be held in the First M. E. church at Cranford each evening next week. There will be special music and addresses by ministers from out of town.

The speakers will be as follows: September 26, the Rev. C. M. Anderson of this city; September 27, the Rev. A. J. Turner, of Paterson; September 28, the Rev. S. I. Coultas, of Elizabeth; September 29, the Rev. D. F. Diefendorf of Roseville, and September 30, the Rev. H. P. Murdock, of South Orange.

Dr. Moore, of the Rahway Reformatory, will address the Men's Club in the chapel next Sunday afternoon.

Herbermann—Poling.

At a nuptial mass celebrated this morning in St. Mary's church Miss Alice A. Poling became the wife of Joseph A. Herbermann. Father Bogan was the celebrant. The groom is the son of Charles Herbermann, of Warrenville; and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Poling, of Elm place. The wedding was witnessed by Walter Poling, a brother of the bride, and Miss Margaret M. Dolan.

Seats on Sale Sept. 26.

Procter & Sanderson, announced today that the sale of seats for "The Arcadians," to be presented at The Plainfield theatre on Monday night, October 3, will open at the theatre on Monday morning, September 26. The regular prices for plays of this character will prevail. The original Broadway company will be seen here in "The Arcadians."

CITY TAX RATE, $1.65; THREE POINTS LOWER

The Union County Board of Taxation certified to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting last night that the tax rate for Plainfield the coming year would be $1.65 as against the present rate of $1.68. To do this the local Board of Assessors have raised the assessment on real and personal property in a number of instances throughout the city.

The total valuation on Plainfield property this year is $24,120,430, as against $23,430,340 for 1909, the increase amounting to $750,090. Upon the receipt of the certification from the county board, the matter was referred to the corporation counsel. The Common Council will receive a detailed statement of the county figures within a short time.

CLUB WANTS WILSON TO SPEAK HERE FIRST

The meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club held last night in the club rooms on North avenue was notable for the feeling of optimism which seemed to pervade the atmosphere. William E. Tuttle, Jr., Democratic aspirant for congressional honors in the Fifth district, was unable to address the members as had been anticipated; therefore the evening was spent in discussing local topics.

A vigorous campaign is being mapped out by the local Democrats, one of the features of which will be the opening of the Woorow Wilson campaign in this city.

It is claimed by the club members that they are indirectly responsible for Dr. Wilson's nomination and for that reason believe they should be honored by his opening campaign speech. Several new members were admitted to the club last night and a committee of three was appointed o arrange for the speaking and finances.

James E. Martine addressed the members briefly and declared his belief that Wodrow Wilson would carry the State by 40,000 majority, electing the balance of the Democratic ticket. Many of the members declared their belief in the prophecy and said they would work hard for its fulfilment.

WATCHUNG FIREMEN TO CELEBRATE ON THURSDAY

To celebrate their first fire, which occurred last night, the Watchung Chemical Engine Company will hold a Farmers' Dance at Texier's Mill, Thursday night. In order that their friends in this city may not be excluded from taking part in honoring the occasion, stages will run from Front and Somerset streets, and the proceeds of the affair will be devoted to build an engine house.

It was shortly after nightfall last night when the bell in Wilson chapel pealed forth its first fire alarm. The startled neighborhood stood by in awe when the new fire company filed out in five minutes' time and headed for a vacant field beyond Wilson chapel on Valley road.

When they arrived at the scene of the conflagration, the firemen, who are recruited from the elite of the neighborhood, soon had the blazing grass under entrol and after some strenuous work the fire was finally extinguished. Their captain, William Tilney, and L. H. Snowden, the foreman, led their jubilant cohorts back to the village, where iced tea was served to the firemen.

The damage done by the fire was negligible; but it might have led to the destruction of neighboring barns and haystacks had it not been checked in time. Just what caused the fire is not known. Spontaneous combustion is scouted; sparks from locomotives are out of the question, inasmuch as there are no locomotives within a radius of several miles, and the only alternative left—an incendiary origin—is skeptically entertained by some of the firemen. All suggestion that the fire was deliberately planned to give the new company an opportunity to display its ability is indignantly scoffed at.

Have you Guessed?

Census returns come in rather slowly, but the continued interest manifested in the growth of Plainfield and North Plainfield has not abated much. Letters containing estimates of the population of these practically twin municipalities continue to pour in and some one will surely win the prize offered by the Daily Press for the nearest guess. Have you sent in your guess yet? A five-dollar gold piece will be given the one making the closest guess to the city's population. A similar prize is also offered for the borough.

V. M. LEWIS NOMINATED

Chancery Clerk Chosen by Republican State Convention at Trenton This Afternoon as Gubernational Candidate.

New Jersey's Republicans this afternoon, through their delegates chosen at the recent primaries gathered at Trenton to nominate a candidate for the Gubernatorial chair and Vivian M. Lewis, of Paterson, is the man. The convention was called to order at Taylor's opera house at noon, but only temporary organization including the appointment of committees was in order. Reconvening at 2 o'clock this afternoon, a permanent organization was effected and the delegates got down to the real work of he convention when nominations for governor were in order.

The convention was called to order by Franklin Murphy, as chairman of the State committee. Lewis received more than 700 of the 973 votes on the first ballot.

Attorney General Edmund Wilson was chosen as temporary chairman and James Parker, of Paterson, clerk of the House, was named as secretary. His assistants were Donald McLean, of Union county; secretary to United States Senator John Kean; Alfred J. Hargan, of Essex; Howard Tyler, of Cumberland. Upton S. Jeffries, of Camden; Alexander C. Yard, of Trenton, and Aaron Melinker, of Hudson.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, was chosen chairman of the Union county caucus this morning. Assemblyman Carlton Pierce, of Cranford, was selected as the county's vice-president of the convention. Former Assemblyman Kirstein, of Rahway, was named for committee on credentials; A. S. Crane, of Elizameth, committee on rules, and Surrogate George T. Parrot, of Elizabeth, committee on organization. A straw vote being taken, this was the result: Lewis, 34½; Frelinghuysen, 17½; Martin, 2. The two for Martin were cast by Howard Williams and Arthur Lovell, Second ward delegates from this city.

The Somerset county caucus result follows: Vice-president, T. Ledyard Blair, Bernardsville; resolutions, Lemuel B. Woolston, of New Providence; rules, Charles T. Wheeler, of New Providence township; permanent organization, Lewis A. Thompson; credenitals, Edward E. Cooper.

The selection of Attorney General Wilson as permanent chairman was announced when the convention reconvened shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. At that time, the situation had not changed, excepting that it was then a foregone conclusion that Lewis would sweep the convention, his nomination by a flattering vote being assured on the first ballot.

Edmund B. Osborne, chairman of the Essex county Progressive League, placed the name of Former Assemblyman William P. Martin before the convention. State Senator Joseph J. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, was named by Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of the same county, and Mr. Lewis was named by Former Governor John W. Griggs, of Paterson. Pierre P. Garvin, of Hudson county, was named by Assistant Prosecutor J. W. McCarthy, of the same county.

The selection of Attorney General Wilson was made unanimously at a meeting of the State committee held at the Republican Club yesterday afternoon. There had been considerable talk of extending the honor to Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, of Bergen, but upon arriving in the city yesterday morning he declared that he was not a candidate for the place. Former Governor Franklin Murphy told the committee that he had written to Mr. Wakelee in connection with the chairmanship, but that he had done so simply as a personal matter.

The moulding of a platform was left to United States Senator Kean, Congressman Gardiner and Senator Wakelee. This committee held a long session last night at the Republican club.

After the committee had been in session a short time it was visited by a delegation of "New Idea" men, bringing with them a lot of suggestions as to platform planks. The visitors included George L. Record, of Hudson; ex-Assemblyman Blau-

VIOLATING MARRIAGE LAW.

Gloucester, Sept. 20.—The new marriage law, it is declared, is being unwittingly violated by ministers, justices and the city clerks in many districts, and the State Board of Health is busy sending out warning notices.

Under the statute it is necessary to obtain a license in the city where the bride lives, if the couple are residents, and if the bride is a non-resident, then in the district where the groom lives. If the couple are non-residents, then a license can be obtained anywhere, but the ceremony must be performed in the district where the license is issued, and it is illegal for a minister or justice to officiate otherwise.

A scheme was originated by some of the "cabbies" to meet marrying couples at the ferries in Camden, learn their names, and give them an address. Then they would go along and act as identifying witnesses, obtain a license for the pair, and drive them to a place to be wedded. The officials discovered this and put an end to it.

For State Fire Marshal.

Automobile fire apparatus and legislation for the creation of the office of State fire marshal, with summary powers for investigation of fires where incendiarism for the purpose of collecting insurance is suspected, was advocated by the New Jersey Association of Fire Chiefs in annual convention. Chief T. O. Doane, of this city, in urging the need of such an office, said it would prevent the exercise of political influence in stopping prosecutions by local authorities. These officers were elected: President, Chief Charles S. Allen, Trenton; vice-president, Chief William J. Black, Atlantic City; secretary, Chief C. S. Mount, Red Bank; treasurer, Chief T. O. Doane, Plainfield; trustees, Chief William Astley, Newark; Chief George W. Arnett, Lambertville.

England Likes Yankee Apples.

Washington, Sept. 20.—American apples tempt the English buyer, in proof of this statement, Albert W. Swain, American Consul at Southampton, reports that a shipment of apples from the Wenatchee section of the State of Washington commanded a higher price than any other American apple every offered in the open English market, much of the shipment being sold at from eight to twelve cents a pound, and eagerly taken at that price. The secret of success, he says, is for the American shipper to send good fruit, well packed and kept out of an auction, where a combination may control prices.

GOLF

Although Robert Gardner has lost the national championship he will aid in keeping Massachusetts in the centre of the golfing stage this week, but the scene will shift from the green fields and woodland of Brookline and its verdant boldly bunkered course to the links of the Essex County Club, within sight of the sea at Manchester. The tournament will be the fifteenth team and individual championship of he Inter-collegiate Golf Association. It is not yet as old as that, but the earlier ones were held semi-annually, and in fact there has been a gap of a year since the inaugural tournament in the fall of 1897.

There will be entries for the team title from Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Williams and Dartmouth, while Cornell and Columbia are eligible should they again take up an active membership. Albert Seckel, Princeton; Henry B. Heyburn, Pennsylvania, and F. A. Martin and Ray Gorton, of Dartmouth, were all at the national championship, but none of them knew exactly how their teams would be made up. B. P. Merriman and McKim Hollins, the respective captains, were better informed regarding the Yale and Harvard lineups.

Yale will play Robert E. Hunter, Robert Gardner, George Stanley, who has hitherto been a Williams golfer, Harry Legg and Karl Mosser. Harvard has lost, it is feared, P. M. Smith, who has had appendicitis, but team certainties are McKim Hollins, W. Sargent, F. T. Clark, H. C. Clark and three are on the anxious seat for the two remaining places—D. C. Nugent, F. C. Davidson and C. Amory. Albert Seckel will defend the individual title he won last year from Harry Legg, who is also to take part as well as the others named for the teams or who play on any of the teams. Only such players and the substitutes are eligible, except when there is no team entry from a college membership.

Yale is the holder and has won the team championship six times; Harvard five and Princeton three times. The individual champions in turn have been: L. P. Bayard, Princeton; James F. Curtis, Harvard, who last week renewed his acquaintance with old golfing friends at Brookline; John Reid, Jr., Yale; Percy Pyne, 2d., Princeton, a contender last week; H. Lindsley, Harvard; A. L. White, Harvard; F. O. Reinhart, Princeton; Robert Abbott, Yale; W. E. Clow, Yale, a Chicago youth who won with a cleek; Ellis Knowles, Yale; H. H. Wilder, Harvard, and the titleholder, Albert Seckel, Princeton.

SWIMMING CLASSES PLANNED AT Y. M. C. A.

A new feature in Y. M. C. A. work in this city will be introduced by Physical Director Whitaker this fall when two swimming classes will be formed. If a sufficient number of candidates register for the sport, it is planned to have a swimming team which will represent the local Y. M. C. A. in meets with neighboring associations which have pools.

Another feature will be the introduction of volley ball, which is done to interest business men especially. The game may be briefly described as a sort of hand tennis. This will be introduced soon after the association is opened for the fall and winter work.

The opening will take place for all departments Monday, October 3. By that time the locker rooms will have been put in good shape and the pool will be renovated and painted and the gymnasium will have undergone numerous minor repairs.

In the physical department prospectus which will be ready for distribution his week, a full schedule of the department activities will be printed. It is planned to have three classes for the intermediate boys who are principally high school pupils between the ages of 15 and 17 years.

Basketball will again be the major sport at the local association. There will be the usual first and second teams and the business men's five; and it is possible that a local league will be organized. The trophies won by the various basketball and baseball teams will be placed on exhibition in a trophy cabinet to be put in the reception room.

MINISTER'S PRAISE FOR FOWLER AND RUNYON

"The Three Epochs in Our Democracy," was the subject of a stirring sermon delivered by Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night, in which he took occasion to pay tribute to Congressman Charles N. Fowler, whom he characterized as a great statesman and a man of the highest intelligence and influence. He also referred to William N. Runyon, who defeated Mr. Fowler for the Congressional nomination, as a man of integrity and honesty and one who held the confidence of the people of his home town.

The first epoch referred to by the preacher was the conflict between the peasant and the prince, which terminated in the Civil War. The second epoch was that of personal rights against property rights, which terminated in the freeing of the slaves and the third epoch, which is of present times, he characterized as the struggle between the privileged class backed by law and the common people backed by justice, which he said would be won by the common people through the ballot box.

Referring to Mr. Fowler, as a great statesman, Mr. Maguire said that it seemed as though he would continue to hold office, but the people decided otherwise. The preacher said that this was a day of snap judgment, that some people are so pessimistic that they believe that the country is going to the dogs. He did not agree with such people. He said that it was a long way from the tallow dip to the electric light and the ox team to the automobile, but tha he church was never more loyal o the cause of Christ than it is today, that things countenanced many years ago, would not be permitted today, in other words the world is growing better and that very fast.

Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams Return.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard McWilliams and children, of Hillside avenue, returned Thursday on the White Star Liner Adriatic from an extended trip abroad. They witnessed the Passion Play at Oberamergau. Mr. McWilliams has assumed leadership of the W. N. Runyon Bible class at Hope chapel and on September 30, a supper is planned at which he will be the guest of honor.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., September 20, 1910

V. M. LEWIS NOMINATED

velt, of Passaic, and Mr. Osborne, ex-Sheriff Sommer and ex-Assemblyman Martin, of Essex.

Among the requests made by the visitors were that the selection of candidates for governor and congress, as well as for United States senator, be left to a vote of the people, in primaries; that the corrupt use of money at the polls be condemned; that the Massachusetts ballot be adopted, and that there be a free distribution of ballots by the State for all candidates at primaries and general elections.

After the conference Former Sheriff Sommer said it had been satisfactory, but it is more than likely that there will be a fight on some of these proposed planks in the convention today.

Another question that had not been decided last night was whether or not the platform should declare for rate-making power to the railroad commission.

In many ways the platform will have the earmarks of "progressiveness."

The administration of President Taft and that of Governor Fort will be endorsed in no uncertain tones.

Civil service will be endorsed, and considerable attention will be paid to the tariff question.

United States Senators Kean and Briggs were among the distinguished men who received the most attention.

Owing to his late arrival, David Baird, of Camden, prominent in the fight for the senatorship, had to be content with a cot in Landlord Kuser's private office, and other men wielding great power in politics were tucked away for the night in the hotel parlors and the rooms set aside for the display of the samples carried by traveling salesmen.

At the American House many of the visitors slept on cots in Manager Buck's office; in storerooms, and in five of the public bath-rooms that for the night had been turned into emergency bed chambers.

At the Hotel Sterling and the Hotel Windsor conditions were about the same, and at Barlow's, Manze's and the Tremont House no rooms were available after 6 o'clock.

Among the interested spectators at the convention today is Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, the Republican congressional candidate in the Fifth district. The judge was lionized by the State leaders and the politicians from the various counties.

Following his defeat as a candidate for United States Senate in the direct primaries, former Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman of the Republican State Committee, swallowed another bitter pill yesterday afternoon when he found himself face to face with the embarrassing situation of having invited Senator Wakelee, of Bergen, to act as temporary chairman of today's convention, and the members of the committe refused to abide by his decision.

Instead of accepting Mr. Wakelee as the temporary presiding officer of the convention, the state committee picked Attorney General Edmund Wilson, of Red Bank, for the honor, thus humiliating both Messrs. Murphy and Wakelee, while at the same time according distinction to Governor Fort's administration.

As already told, Senator Wakelee was anxious to preside over the convention, but encountered the opposition of the Progressives and Fort men. It developed at the meeting of the State committee that Chairman Murphy had taken it upon himself to send a letter to Mr. Wakelee asking him to serve as temporary chairman. When the Bergen county arrived in town yesterday afternoon he was quickly advised of the storm of protest that was being made against according him the distinction. He made a brief canvass of the situation and found that to present his claim for the chairmanship would involve himself and friends in a lively row with those opposed to him. As things were lining up, it was apparent that if the issue was forced Wilson would be chosen over Wakelee. Then Wakelee announced that he had decided to decline the honor which had been tentatively proffered to him by former Governor Murphy. As soon as the State committee got together Chairman Murphy announced Wakelee's decision, following which a committee consisting of Senator Kean, George Williams, Alfred Dalrymple and Congressman Gardner, were appointed to recommend a temporary chairman. The committee held a brief conference and as prearranged suggested Wilson. The choice of the attorney general was unanimous.

Former Governor Murphy keenly felt the humiliating position into which he got himself in the effort to force Senator Wakelee to the front.

LIFE OF LEWIS.

Born at Paterson, N. J., June 8, 1869. Is an attorney and counselor-at-law. Prior to his admission to the bar he was engaged as correspondent of several New York newspapers. He was appointed judge-advocate of the old Second Regiment, National Guard, in July, 1896, and served until the reorganization in 1899, when he was placed on the retired list with the rank of captain. Was elected to the Assembly in 1898, 1899 and 1900, and was leader of the Republican majority on the floor of the House during his last term. He was for many years one of the counsel of the State Board of Health. He was elected City Counsel of Paterson in 1904 for a full term of office, but resigned upon his appointment by Governor Murphy as Clerk in Chancery, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Edward C. Stokes, who was elected Governor. He was nominated for a full term of office in 1905, by Governor Stokes, and was confirmed by the Senate. He served in that office until April, 1909, when he was appointed to his present position for a term of three years. His salary is $6,000 per annum.

P. H. S. Association Elects.

The Boys' Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School today elected the following as members of the board of directors: Ernest Van Zandt, Russell Runyon, Edson Woodhull, Gardner Bristol, Sydney Karr, Alfred Manley, Fred Allen. The board met Mr. Hubbard, director of athelties, this afternoon, and officers will be chosen. A temporary football captain and manager will also be appointed. Football practice will begin tomorrow on the Union street field.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Homan, of Sandford avenue, have returned from a two weeks' trip to Canada, including Montreal and Quebec.

THE FORUM.

Duty of Democracy.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The recent Democratic convention held at Trenton declared in its platform in favor of a direct vote for United States Senator; and in favor of the extention of the open primary. The platform was adopted unanimously. Now with what decency or semblance of fairness can a Democratic majority in the Legislature ignore Mr. Martine, he having received the overwhelming vote of preference and endorsement. To ignore the vote so expressed would stultify the Democratic party and brand it as a party of insincereity. Such a course upon the part of any party would destroy its influence, and chances of success for years to come.

A. E. HOAGLAND.

Thank You!

Editor, The Daily Press:

At a meeting of the City Union of the King's Daughters Circles of Plainfield on September 8, I was directed to express to you the sincere thanks of the Union for your kindness and help with the subscription fund of The Daily Press. I may assure you that all the King's Daughters thoroughly appreciate the help you have given them.

Very sincerely yours,
LULU A. LAGGREN,
Corresponding Secretary.

District Court Cabinet.

Court Clerk Horace Adams has been relieved of a lot of anxiety regarding the keeping of court records and papers by the installation of a new filing cabinet of the most approved kind. There are three separate kinds of compartments in the cabinet, one containing fourteen document files, another with two storage drawers and a third sufficient to care for hundreds of legal documents. The cabinet is constructed of old oak and highly polished and is an improvement to the office.

Paroubek Bros. Suit.

The suit which has been brought against B. A. Paroubek, of this city, by his brother, A. J. Paroubek, of Jersey City, which has already had two hearings before Vice-Chancellor Garrison, will be resumed on Monday, October 3, in chancery court in Jersey City. George W. V. Moy, of this city, is counsel for B. A. Paroubek.

Veterans Want Low Rate.

There will be no more encampments of the Grand Army of the Republic in future unless the railroads quote a flat rate of one cent a mile to the veterans, according to the assertion of Edward Watson, commander of U. S. Grant Post 28 of Chicago. The veterans at the Atlantic City encampment are in sympathy with this view, and unless the railroads voluntarily grant the rate, Congress will be petitioned to act in the matter. Governor Fort will address the veterans tomorrow.

Laborer's Damage Suit.

Among the fifty-three suits to be tried in the district court on Thursday before Judge William Newcorn will be one brought by Philip Vinci, a laborer employed by Edmond Sexton, who was injured by the cave-in on Richmond street some time ago while digging a sewer trench. It is said that Sexton is protected by an accident policy covering the accident.

Rally at Warren Chapel.

The Sunday-school of Warren chapel will hold rally-day exercises Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, at which time the winter schedule of services will go into effect. Thereafter the school will meet at 2:45 in the afternoon, and the morning service will be held at 10:30 and the evening service at 8 o'clock. There will be special music on Sunday.

Veterans Hold Reunion.

Vice-president and General Manager W. C. Besler and Joseph E. Haynes, of this city, were among those who attended the annual outing of the Veteran Employes' Association of the New Jersey Central, held at Allentown, Pa., on Saturday. The membership is now limited to those who have been with the company thirty years.

Peach Festival at Trinity.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, a peach and ice cream festival will be held in the lecture room of the church, Thursday night. The proceeds will be for the carpet fund.

The meetings of the Women's Missionary Society of the Congregational church were resumed this afternoon at the church for the winter. A large number of women prominent in the work of the church were present.

WATER IN THE LAKE LOWEST IN 30 YEARS

The New Market lake is lower this week than it has been in the past thirty years at least. As a result boating is practically spoiled. The island in the middle of the larger and upper portion of the lake is far above water, and it is now possible to walk on dry land from the island to the shore adjoining the railroad tracks.

Because the lake bottom is exposed to the sun an unpleasant odor from decayed vegetable growth in the lake bottom, makes the atmosphere unpleasant; but according to health authorities, this is not necessarily unhealthy.

The drought of the past month is given as a reason for the unusual lowness of the lake. In contrast to this is the well-filled South Plainfield lake whose volume of water is normal. The reason for this is that the South Plainfield lake contains numerous fresh water springs while the New Market lake contains none. The flow of water over the South Plainfield lake dam, which feeds the New Market lake, is small.

Local lakes and Watchung lakes also show effects of the drought.

LITERARY

From the days of the Thackeray Letters Scribner's Magazine has been particularly fortunate in its literary finds. They now announce to begin in the October number a series of letters that passed between Washington Irving and John Howard Payne. This intimacy of the authors of "Rip Van Winkle" and "Home, Sweet Home" has been almost untouched in literary narratives. The letters are edited by a grandnephew of Payne's in whose family the correspondence has remained unknown for many years. A part of it, Payne's letters and journals, came into his possession in an unusual manner at an auction sale. The talent of Arlo Bates has descended to his son Oric Bates who contributes a short story of the hunting field to the October Scribner.

In the Strand for October Conan Doyle returns to one of his best known characters—Brigadier Gerard. In the present story the famous author relates in the Brigadier's own words how Etienne Gerard came to get married and the account is written with all Conan Doyle's customary fascination and humor. Besides "The Marriage of the Brigadier" there are ten other stories by such writers as E. Phillips Oppenheim, E. M. Jameson, Richard Marsh, A. T. Quiller-Couch ("Q"), L. Temple Thurston and other well known authors. The articles are as interesting and "unusual" as ever. Bernard Darwin writes on "Some Curious Wagers" which is illustrated with facsimiles from the Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

A highly interesting illustrated article appears in the October Wide World Magazine entitled "A Remarkable War," which is descriptive of the way in which the Indian Government is fighting the bubonic plague. For some time it has been believed that the plague was carried by the rats and as a consequence every effort is being made to get rid of he infected vermin. Some remarkable statistics are published regarding the number of rats destroyed annually. Other articles of interest include "Where Men Ride Birds and Pigs," a curious account of breaking unusual creatures to saddle; "Reminiscences of an African Pioneer;" "An American Gipsy Queen;" "The Evolution of a Bandit," and "My Adventures in Unknown Arabia."

LAY CORNERSTONE FOR NEW CHURCH

The laying of the cornerstone of the new $100,000 First M. E. church in Broad street, Westfield, Sunday afternoon marked a new era of progress for that denomination, which began its history in 1849.

More than 600 persons witnessed the event. The stone was laid by the Rev. Dr. W. A. Hayes, pastor of the church. He used an ebony-handle trowel, presented to him after the ceremonies. Placed in the box in the cornerstone were histories of the church and its societies, a list of contributors to the new church fund, officers and official board members' signatures, newspapers and coins of the year.

The program followed the ritual. The address was made by the Rev. Dr. Hayes, under whose leadership the work of raising funds for the building was undertaken. The Rev. Dr. Randolph, district superintendent, offered prayer; the Rev. Sydney Cross, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, read Psalm 132. Greetings were received from the Rev. W. I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian church; the Rev. Dr. Loomis pastor of Congregational church; the Rev. Mr. Greenkood, pastor of First Baptist church, and the Rev. C. M. Anderson, the Rev. W. H. Ruth, former pastors.

The new church will be one of the most handsome buildings in Union county. The exterior is of white granite with limestone trimmings. The roof will be of green mottled slate. The main auditorium will be 62x70 and will seat more than 600 with a gallery providing 250 additional seats. A great arch will enclose their choir loft, with smaller arches at either side. The building will contain a large Sunday school room, banquet hall, meeting rooms, choir rooms and kitchen.

It is proposed to dedicate the building next spring.

FORMER PRIEST WANTS HIS BRIDE BACK NOW.

The latest development in the case of the former priest, Father Alphonse Consolazio, who married Miss Johann, of Trenton, and then went back to Italy to repent, comes in the form of a letter to the bride and her father from the priest at Naples. It seems that he failed at the gate of the Vatican to repent of his action, and he now wants to return home to his bride. In his letter he offers a barrel of wine to Franz Johann, the father, and some statuary.

"Consolazio is a faker," said Mr. Johann yesterday. "If he comes back I will kick him out of town. I am able to buy all the wine I want, and my collection of statuary is sufficient for all purposes."

It is understood that Miss Johann has her appeal to the Chancery Court about ready. She will ask for annulment of the marriage, and she says her husband promised not to oppose it when he decided to go to the Vatican and confess his sin against the church and be immured in a monastery. Rumor has it that Miss Johann intends to marry her first love when she gets her freedom.

P. H. S. NOTES.

Lindsey Best, principal of the Plainfield High School, announced the opening of the courses in metal work, bench work, wood-turning, gymnasium, sewing, drawing and cooking this morning. The sewing will be taught in connection with the cooking by Miss Parker. Dr. Maxson spoke a few words on the advantage of sewing in social life.

Old-Time Pedestrian Ill.

Atlantic City, Sept. 20—James A. Cathcart, a broker of this city, who under the name of James Albert, won the international six-day pedestrian record in Madison Square Garden, about twenty years ago, is seriously ill at his home. Albert invested his earnings in real estate when land was cheap and is now one of the richest men in the city.

When Isaac Watts wrote the lines,
"Satan finds some mischief still For idle hands to do"
we wonder if he had in mind characters in his day who were no better employed than the boys on Front street last week who took pleasure in winding coils of thread around unsuspecting pedestrians.

A Sketch

By ETHAN ARBUCKLE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was sketching in the country. With my portable easel before me, seated on my three legged stool, I was doing a bit of landscape when a girl came by who surely did not appear rural. Her dress was ragged, her hat, a straw, darkened by the weather and having a tawdry ornament, while over her shoulders she wore a faded shawl.

Had I not, with the habit of an artist, kept an eye open for models I might not have noticed a certain kind of beauty under these frayed garments. The girl took off her hat and displayed a wealth of hair, with just enough red in it to make it gold. The day was hot, and she threw back her shawl. Then I noticed that her bodice was cut low and revealed a superb neck set on a pair of well rounded shoulders.

"Why do you wear that kind of dress at this time of day?" I asked.

"Because I haven't any other."

"Do you live about here?"

"No. I don't live anywhere. I'm tramping."

Then she cried.

Not a slip in grammer, not an unrefined expression, escaped her. She had evidently seen better days. Indeed, she might have lived in luxury.

"If you will let me make a sketch of you," I said, "I will pay you well for doing so."

"What will you do with the sketch? Will everybody see it? I wouldn't wish them to see it at home."

"I will put it in my portfolio. I don't think any one who knows you will ever see it."

She consented, and I made the sketch, putting in the colors exactly as they were. I gave her a good price for the pose, which she clutched eagerly. I believe she was hungry. While I worked I was talking to her with a view to learning something about her. But she would tell me nothing willingly, and I was unable to induce her to give me any information by artifice. At last I was obliged to let her go her way.

But her picture—it was a fine representation of "From Affluence to Poverty"—remained with me, gazing out at me from the sad eyes, and I found myself constantly taking it out from among my other sketches and looking at it. Indeed, I found myself unfit for work, so complete a hold had it taken upon me. I slept that night at a farmhouse and woke in the night depressed by a feeling that the girl was wandering about with no home, no money, nothing to eat and obliged to wear anything she could get to cover her. What a selfish world! Why had I not taken her into my heart and provided for her wants?

Then I remembered that there is a barrier which prevents young men from assisting young women. As to taking her into my heart, that I had done, though I did not realize what a foothold she had gained there.

One thing about her was patent. She was pure. No such beauty as hers need go in rags except through purity. It was this doubtless that prevented my banishing her from my mind and drew me toward her.

I have always had a habit of reading the personals in newspapers. I do so because I like to have my fancy started in weaving stories that the few advertised words indicate. One day I read the following:

Information wanted of Gladys Seymour, twenty years old. When last seen she wore a dark blue dress, cut low neck; eyes dark brown; hair the same, with a tinge of red in it.

I saw the subject of my sketch described in this personal. I called immediately on the advertiser and found a lawyer. I showed him my sketch, and he showed me a photograph. They were identical save as to dress. That of the photograph was silk, that of the sketch rags. He told me that the girl had been driven from home by the cruelty of a stepmother. She had gone vowing never to return. The stepmother had died, and the girl's father, who was alone, was anxious to find his daughter, but had little hope of doing so.

I determined to hunt for Gladys Seymour myself. Taking my sketch with me, I went to the place where I had made it, then started in the direction she had gone when she left me. I spent a day in discovering where she had slept that night. A farmer's wife had taken her in and given her a bed and a supper. Having learned the direction she had taken the next morning, I went on and tracked her in a direct line to a little town, where I lost her. But, showing my sketch and making inquiries, I traced her to a store, where she had been given work behind the counter. There I found her, though in a better costume than that in which I had met her.

I don't know which was more affected by the news I gave her, I at telling it or she at learning it. She went at once to her employer to say that she would like to go to her home, and he excused her from remaining. I furnished her with the means to get there—not as charity, but as a loan.

Gladys Seymour did not remain at home long with her father, for I stepped in and took her away from him. There was a bone of contention between me and my wife for a long while. She wished the sketch I had made of her when she was tramping destroyed. I loved it and wished to keep it. But the period was so painful to her that I finally consented to burn the picture.

PAVEMENT PHILOSOPHY.

Be a-live or you'll be a dead one.

Climb higher than your family tree.

There is the census taker, also the undertaker.

A boy's idea of the Fourth is a "bang-up" time.

Don't overeat; it causes high prices and low spirits.

Charity covers a multitude of sinners who ought to be working.

Telling the truth should be mixed with the leaven of diplomacy.

At the present price of foodstuffs, is a good appetite a good asset?

And, if you are bound to be a grouch, don't be a grouchy grouch.

Some people wait so long to make sure they are right that they never get ahead.

The self-made man is a valuable product if he doesn't put too high a price upon himself.

Sometimes when you think you are fooling the other fellow, the other fellow may be yourself.

It is better to wear out than to rust out; but it is still better to keep well oiled with common sense.

WHEN YOU FIND YOUR PLACE

You will be happy in it, contented, joyous, cheerful, energetic.

The days will be all too short for you. Dinner time and closing time will come before you realize it.

All your faculties will give their consent to your work, will say "Amen" to your occupation. There will be no protest anywhere in your nature.

You will not feel humiliated because you are a farmer, or a blacksmith, or a shoemaker, because, whatever your occupation or profession, you will be an artist instead of an artisan.

You will not apologize because you are not this or that, because you will have found your place and will be satisfied.

You will feel yourself growing in your work, and your life broadening and deepening.

Your work will be a perpetual tonic to you. There will be no drudgery in it.

You will go to your task with delight and leave it with regret.

Life will be a glory, not a grind.—Great Thoughts.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE TUTTLE FOR CONGRESS

The Democratic Congressional convention this afternoon nominated William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, for Congress. He received the unanimous support of Morris and Union counties. Dr. Isaac Barber, of Phillipsburg, got Warren county's support. The convention was held at Loew's theatre, Elizabeth.

Joseph Roseburg, of Warrenville, was elected temporary chairman of the convention and John Bell, of Morristown, and Fred Zior, of Elizabeth, were selected as temporary secretaries. James E. Martine, of Plainfield, placed the name of Mr. Tuttle in nomination.

Union county gave a solid vote of 107 for Tuttle and Warren contributed 63 for Barber. The congressional committee is composed of John Lowe, of Elizabeth; Morris G. Burke, of Warrenville, and William Kline, of Morristown.

FAULTY CONSTRUCTION CAUSES HOLES IN STREET.

Excavations for the new sewers on East Front street between Berckman and Leland avenue have revealed the cause of holes which have made their appearance in this much traveled thoroughfare. In some places it has been found that the macadam for resistance should be at least six or more inches deep.

During the next few days Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett will put a force of men to work filling in the holes which have increased in number on this street and hopes to have them filled in and rolled level within two weeks.

One who noticed this rather shallow top surface and in order to satisfy his curiosity as to why the stone was only two or three inches deep put the question up to the commissioner with the result that the above explanation of holes in one of the most traveled roads in the city became plain.

Several of the streets and avenues were laid with macadam years ago notably Park avenue and the work was done so well that today it is practically level, only an occasional depression being met with. Considering the great traffic on this avenue the surface has worn remarkably well. On East Front street depression after depression may be found between Watchung avenue and the scene of the present sewer operations, but these will soon be fixed to the satisfaction of those who have to travel along that route.

THE BRANDTS ARE BOUND OVER TO KEEP THE PEACE.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brandt, of Rock avenue and West Fourth street, who have been prominent, it is alleged, in many neighborhood quarrels, were arrested yesterday and taken before Justice W. E. Smith, of South Plainfield, who held the couple in $200 bonds to keep the peace. The Brandts were arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Robert Ellis, a neighbor, who told the court of the annoyance caused her and her family by the accused couple.

This is the third time, it is said, that the Brandts have been arrested on a similar charge, and it is said that they are not on speaking terms with any of their neighbors. Mr. Brandt is a mason by trade, and he and his wife have resided at Rock avenue and Fourth street for a long time.

Patients Are Improving.

Mrs. William Cody, of Bound Brook, who received a severe injury to her hand several weeks ago while at work at the Ideal Steam Laundry, has been discharged from the hospital and is now under the care of her own physician. Mrs. Marshall, who was employed at the laundry and received a similar injury to her hand, is improving.

P. C. C. AND HUNT CLUB TEAMS TO PLAY ANNUAL GAME.

The Plainfield County Club baseball team, captained by Morris J. Dumont, and the Watchung Hunt Club Team, led by J. Hartley Mellick, will play its annual game at the Hunt Club grounds Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. As one of the players remarked, "It will be a friendly but warm contest." Both teams have been engaged in practice every day for the past week getting ready for the diamond battle, and both sides are determined to win.

The line-up of the clubs has not yet been announce, but both clubs will select their strongest men. The names of the opposing pitchers is also withheld until the last minute, and it is said that they will furnish a great surprise. At the conclusion of the game the defeated team will give a dinner at the clubhouse to the winning aggregation.

Proctor's Pleasing Show.

The Military Dancers at Proctor's theatre this week comprise one of the best acts witnessed at this play house in a long time. The acrobatic features of the act are remarkable. There are seven girls and boys and they make a big hit. Roso Marston & Co., in a sketch, "Out All Night," is funny and Latford & Simon, clever musicians, together with "That Duo," a pleasing singing team, make up an exceptionally strong bill.

—Lovers of fine tomatoes will find fifty baskets at Neuman Bros. tomorrow, all sound fruit and rich in flavor.

DEMOCRATS RAP TARIFF

FOR A REVISION DOWNWARD.

Demands Retrenchment of Expenditures and a Strict Regulation of Corporations—Endorses Wilson.

By a vote of 157 to 68 Union County Chairman William E. Tuttle, Jr., was nominated at the Fifth Democratic congressional convention at Elizabeth yesterday as Judge William N. Runyon's opponent to succeed Charles N. Fowler. Isaac P. Barber, of Warren county, polled 68 votes, and the nomination of Tuttle was made unanimous.

The platform adopted is as follows:

"The Democrats of the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, in convention assembled, do ratify the platform adopted by he Democratic State convention at Trenton September 15, and indorse the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson for the office of Governor.

"We believe that tariff revision is the vital question before the public today.

"We charge that the Republican party by the enactment of the Payne-Aldrich bill has failed to keep its pledges to the American people. We condemn this law as unjust and as being chiefly responsible for the present high cost of living.

"We are opposed to tariff legislation which protects trust-controlled products from competition, and which enables American manufacturers to sell their goods more cheaply abroad than at home.

"We demand an honest revision of the tariff downward, particularly upon the necessaries of life, in the interest of all the people, and to this end we pledge the nominee of this convention.

"We pledge our support to the enactment, maintenance and enforcement of a comprehensive law against the use of money for corrupt and improper purposes at elections, and insist that there shall be no evasions of its provisions—whether its violators be high or low, rich or poor.

"We pledge our support to the enactment of laws, both in the State and nation, which will secure proper protection to life and limb, and to the enactment of an employers' liability act—drawn in accordance with humane and equitable principles.

"We believe in the passage of such laws by Congress and by our State Legislature as will hold mercantile and other corporations to a strict accountability in the conduct and mangement of their affairs within and without the State, and to this end we believe that the public service commissions, or the boards charged with the duty of supervising public service corporations, should be invested with such further powers as may be necessary to bring all corporations under their supervision.

"Retrenchment in public expenditures should be effected in all directions, and the extravagances of the Republican party in national as well as State affairs should be eliminated, root and branch, and to the accomplishment of this work we pledge our party and its candidates.

"We believe with Jefferson in the support of the State governments in all their rights as the most competent administrators for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies, and in the preservation of the general movement in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad. And we pledge the people of the Fifth Congressional Disrtict to a faithful performance on our part of the several objects set forth in this declaration of principles."

William E. Tuttle, Jr., was born at Horseheads, Chemung County, New York, December 10, 1870, and received his early education in the local schools of that place. He was afterward graduated at Elmira Academy and entered Cornell University when he was sixteen years of age. After studying two years at Cornell he went in the lumber business at his former home. Mr. Tuttle removed to New Jersey in 1897, and organized the firm of Tuttle Brothers at Westfield. This firm, composed of W. E. Tuttle, Jr., and Arthur D. Tuttle, has had a successful career in the coal and lumber trade, and their plant is now the most important industry in the town of Westfield. Soon after becoming a citizen of New Jersey Mr. Tuttle was recognized as a factor in the business and social life of the town of his adoption, and at the present time no man in Westfield is more thoroughly respected. That he has the full confidence and esteem of the people who know him most intimate-

UNION COUNTY BONDS ARE SOLD AT PREMIUM

County Collector N. R. Leavitt has sold one hundred and ten $1,000 county road bonds to the highest of several bidding concerns. The firm to buy the bonds is the John D. Everitt Investment Company of 6 Wall street, New York, the price being 102.17. The N. W. Harrison Company, of New York, was lowest bidder, offering 100.694 for the bonds. The price received by Mr. Leavitt is considered excellent considering the present condition of the bond market.

Director Cady and Mr. Leavitt were authorized at the September meeting of the Board of Freeholders to prepare and float the bonds. The bonds are payable in thirty years from the date of issue with interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, principal and interest at the National State Bank, Elizabeth.

The money raised by the bonds is to be used in paying for road work contracted by the county during the past year. The county has contracted for work amounting to about $160,000. As procedure is taken under the State Aid Road Act, the county pays but two-thirds of the actual cost of the work, the State paying the other third. The bonds will bring the county enough to pay for the county's share of the work.

ESTRANGED COUPLE REUNITED BY COURT

If the efforts of Judge William N. Runyon to effect a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Muldowney fails then it will be because neither has the judgment attributed to them by the magistrate this morning in the city courtroom. Charles E. Pagliuca, a brother-in-law of Muldowney, is to act as intermediary and the judge expressed the hope that his intercession would be successful.

In speaking in his own peculiarly forceful way to the couple this morning Judge Runyon made clear the vows they had both taken when they were married and while it was clear to his mind that the fault lay principally on the side of the husband, he declared his belief in the good sense of the couple and urged them to reconsider their determination to live apart.

Muldowney has been under bonds since last April to furnish his wife a certain sum each week for the support of his two children, but because of slack work and being laid off he had not fulfilled his contract fully. However, he said to the judge that he would give up the woman, who, it is alleged, has been the cause of all the trouble, and that he would make the effort to be reconciled to his wife provided she was willing.

Mrs. Muldowney declared that the only cause of their disagreement was the woman in the case and that if he would give the other woman up she would be willing to resume her position as his wife in any home he would provide for her. With this understanding the couple left the courtroom with their children and the prospects are bright for happiness to come to the home once more. Judge Runyon's speech to the couple lasted for twenty minutes and made a visible impression not only on the two principals in the case, but upon every listener.

The couple have two bright children and the parents are favored with good looks. Mrs. Mudowney is comely and attractive while her husband bears all the earmarks of a refined character.

Judge Runyon declared his intention of stopping any interference on the part of the alleged cause of the trouble even going so far as to have the suspect arrested if that were found necessary.

Funeral of Emil Thompson.

The funeral service of Emil Thompson, who died at Whitehouse on Saturday, was held from the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon and Son, on Park avenue, yesterday afternoon. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, officiated. There was a large attendance of friends, including representatives of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., and Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, of which Mr. Thompson was a member. The burial was in North Plainfield cemetery and the bearers were members of the above named organizations.

COLLIER WINS ON APPEAL

TROUBLE OVER ASSIGNMENT.

Plaintiff in Case Exonerated From Charge of Alleged Attempted Fraud—Assignee's Action is Upheld.

The Supreme Court at Trenton has just rendered a decision in the case of Asa Collier against Arthur De Brigard, reversing the judgment of non-suit rendered by Judge Newcorn in the District court here last winter. The decision is a victory for Counsellor J. Henry Crane, who represented Mr. Collier. Harry Runyon and Frank J. Blatz appeared for Mr. De Brigard.

The suit arose out of the assignment made about a year ago by De Brigard & Collier for the benefit of their creditors. William G. DeMeza, of this city, was made the assignee, and right after the assignment, Arthur De Brigard, the father of Louis De Brigard, the senior member of the firm of De Brigard & Collier, offered to pay all the liabilities of the firm if the business was turned over to him.

Mr. DeMeza, as assignee, upon the advice of his counsel, W. S. Angleman, conveyed the property back to the firm and caused the firm to convey the business to Arthur De Brigard in fulfillment of the agreement.

Arthur De Brigard then took possession of the business and commenced paying the debts of the firm, but, it was alleged, refused to pay Asa Collier, his claim of $73 which had been by an oversight listed in the deed of assignment as $190.

Collier brought suit through his counsel, Mr. Crane, to recover $73, the amount of his claim, before Newcorn.

The case was tried twice, a nonsuit being granted against Collier each time. In the first case, the nonsuit was granted on the ground that the statute of frauds intervened, and that there was no privity of contract between the parties to the suit; and on the second trial, the non-suit was granted on the ground that the agreement with Arthur De Brigard, by the assignee was void; and that Collier by allowing a larger amount to be listed in the deed of assignment than was due, was guilty of an attempt to defraud. Mr. Crane took an appeal to the Supreme Court which was argued at Trenton last February.

The Supreme Court speaking through Justice Reed, reverses Judge Newcorn's rulings on all points, and after reciting the evidence as to the transfer of the business to Arthur De Brigard, held that a valid title passed to Arthur De Brigard and that there was a sufficient consideration to support his promise to pay the debts of the firm, and raised a privity of contract between him and each creditor, and also removed the transaction from the operation of the statute of frauds.

As to Mr. Collier attempting to obtain more than was due him, the court says: "In that list, the plaintiff's claim was stated to be $190, instead of $73, the amount for which judgment was claimed and entered The list of claims was made up without each claim being carefully calculated. It does not appear that Collier fraudulently suggested that the amount due him would not equal $190. Collier did not put in, nor did he have the opportunity to put in his claim to the assignee under oath, so no fraud appears in making a false claim to that officer."

The court's decision upholds the action of the assignee and his counsel, and exonerates Collier from any attempt to obtain more than was due him and from any fraud in the matter.

Women's Association Meets.

The Women's Association of the Congregational church met yesterday afternoon for the first time of the fall season. There were about thirty of the members present and considerable preliminary work was done. One of the matters which will have the serious consideration of the association during the coming months will be Turkish missions on which subject papers were read yesterday. Tea was served after the meeting.

Endeavorers' Union Meeting.

The fall congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday, September 29, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be in charge of Frank Stewart, president of the local union. Plans for the work for the coming winter will be discussed and several short addresses will be made along various lines of Christian Endeavor activity.

MISS WILSON IS DEAD AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Miss Charlotte R. Wilson, daughter of Mrs. Lucinda S., and the late Charles M. Wilson, died at 2:30 o'clock this morning at her home, 426 Madison avenue, after a long illness. She was taken ill last February and since that time has been a great sufferer from a complication of disease. For some time her death was expected.

Miss Wilson was a member of Trinity Reformed church, the Sunday school and the Young Women's Mission Band, being active in religious work until her health prevented her attendance at the services. She was a young woman of exemplary Christian character, and was admired for her many excellent qualities by all who knew her.

Besides a mother, Miss Wilson is survived by two sisters, Miss Mabel Wilson and Miss Elizabeth Wilson and four brothers, Howard H. and Charles F. Wilson, of Detroit, Mich., Augustus G. Wilson, of Rye N. Y., and George D. Wilson who lives at home.

The funeral, which will be private, will be in charge of Rev. John Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

DR. ARD PURCHASES PARK AVE. PROSPERITY

Dr. Frank C. Ard, of Park avenue, purchased the property at 518 Park avenue, at special master's sale, yesterday, the consideration being $7,680. This includes $1,800 for the house; $4,800 for the lot and $1,040 for an adjoining strip nine feet wide, the stipulation being that the purchaser of the property take this strip. The property was formerly owned by the late John G. Smith.

The property was divided as follows: Miss Blanche Grasty and Miss Mary Adams were given an undivided sixth part as daughters of the dead man's sons. Their mother, Mrs. Laura Sweezey, had the right of dower in both shares. One-third was owned by Charles Hand and Mrs. Annie Hand had a right of dower. The other third was transferred by Mrs. Sherwin to the Plainfield Trust Company. Nelson Runyon, special master in chancery, had charge of the sale. William G. DeMeza represented Dr. Ard.

FRED KANEN WEDDED SEVERAL YEARS AGO

The friends of Fred Kanen, the former Plainfield boy who was injured in the Westfield wreck will be interested to learn that he is married and is the father of a little girl who is now about three years old. He is now living in New York city, where he is employed as a clerk in the circulation department of Collier's Weekly. His marriage to a New York young woman occurred shortly after he and his family left Plainfield, and was not made public until some time after.

Kanen, it will be remembered, was badly injured in the Central Railroad wreck at Westfield in 1903, when about two score Plainfielders lost their lives. He was about sixteen years old at the time and his condition was believed to be such that he would never be able to walk again. He recovered $20,000 damages from the railroad. The case had been tried twice before when the maximum verdict was $18,000.

Soon after the verdict was given Kanen's father, who was a tailor at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, gave up his business and the family moved to the house at the corner of West Sixth street and Division street. Young Kanan recovered from his lifelong injuries with remarkable rapidity and five months after the verdict for damages was given was walking about, and soon afterwards he secured a position in New York.

When his twin sisters, Clara and Florence, were graduated from the City High School in the class of 1907, the family moved to the Bronx, New York.

—Special for tomorrow at Neuman Bros., 100 baskets of Iron Mountain peaches, 75c and 85c per basket; also 40 baskets of the same fruit at 40c a basket.

Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of Putnam avenue, is slowly improving from a serious illness. Mr. Braider is now ill at his home with an attack of malaria, which at first threatened typhoid fever.

LEWIS AN EASY WINNER

Republican Gubernatorial Choice's Nomination is Made Unanimous.

ADOPT STRONG PLATFORM.

Favors Extension of Utilities Commission Powers—Approves Tariff Law—Praises Taft and Fort—For Conservation.

Vivian M. Lewis, the present State Banking and Insurance Commissioner, was nominated unanimously late yesterday afternoon as the standard-bearer of the Republican party for Governor, when the vote between himself, William P. Martin, of Essex county, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and Pierre P. Garven, of Hudson, showed that Lewis had 801¾ votes. Only 487 were necessary to a selection. Hudson county threw Garven's votes to Lewis before the count was over and on behalf of Union county Senator Ackerman also threw its solid vote to Lewis, and the convention broke up in a love feast.

When the vote was finally announced, Lewis polled 801¾ votes, William P. Martin, of Essex, 115¼, and Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, 56. Pierre P. Garven, Public Prosecutor of Hudson county, received the vote of 83 of the 175 Hudson county delegates, but immediately after they had been recorded they were transferred to Lewis, as stated. Union gave Lewis 54.

A PRODIGAL TO RETURN TO PITTSBURG HOME

Two young tramps, Neil Smith, colored, and Paul O'Brien, white, were picked up this morning by Detective Sergeant Flynn while they were acting suspiciously on West Front street near Giraud avenue. When arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court they both declared they were bound for Trenton to look for work. They were allowed to pursue their walk.

O'Brien is a bright young fellow and said that two weeks ago he left the employ of the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. at East Pittsburg and with eighteen dollars in his pocket started out to see some of he world. His experience had not profited him any and he was now repentant and was, like the Prodigal son, on his way back home. Judge Runyon asked the youth if he had ever read the story of the Biblical character and he acknowledged that he read it and understood it years ago, but never expected to appear in the role.

A five minute lecture convinced O'Brien that his his best move was homeward and he promised to make his way there as soon as possible and to wire his parents of his whereabouts.

USED BAD LANGUAGE; HE HAD TO APOLOGIZE.

Clarence Thomas, colored, twelve years old, was the defendant in the complaint made by Emil Zackendorff, of West Fourth street, this morning before Judeg William N. Runyon in the city court. Mr. Zackendorff said that youg Thomas had used some very violent language to him and he did not wish a repetition of the offense.

At Judge Runyon's suggestion the boy apologized and promised never to offend again. No penalty was imposed.

G. O. P. PLATFORM INDORSES NEW TARIFF, TAFT, FORT AND RECENT STATE POLICY

The Republican party, in convention assembled, heartily approves the administration of President William H. Taft, and we affirm our loyalty to the President, who has brought to the duties of his great office the highest ability and loftiest patriotism.

We commend to the people of this State the results of the labors of the Congress just adjourned, which has passed more measures which contribute to the benefit and development of the country than any other Congress since the organization of the republic.

We especially commend the tariff. The tariff question involves three great principles—the development of American industries and the protection of American labor; a revenue to provide for the expenses of the government and the making of the United States independent as against the world for the provision of everything that enters into the question of national defense. The tariff law of the last Congress provides for all these in ample way, and as one of the immediate results it has changed a deficit of $58,000,000 into a surplus of $28,000,000.

We indorse the action of President Taft and a Republican Congress in providing an expert and impartial permanent tariff board to investigate tariff schedules, with a view to a just correction of any inequalities and to relieve the country from political tariff agitation so disastrous to prosperity.

We heartily indorse the administration of Governor John Franklin Fort, and approve the wise, progressive and successful legislation enacted by the Republican legislatures during the term of his office.

True to the pledge of three years ago, the Republican party has enacted into law a sane and effective public utilities statute for the proper regulation of quasi-public corporations. It is a measure of regulation—not of administration or confiscation. It confers wide powers. It has been approvingly referred to by the press of the country as being the best exponent of this class of legislation thus far developed. The expense of the commission created by it is moderate, and in keeping with the traditions of the State in reference to such matters. The new commission has begun its labors and is working smoothly and effectively.

We favor a statute giving the Public Utilities Commission the power to fix just and reasonable rates to be charged by public utility corporations.

We approve the policy of conservation announced by the President and we believe, in so far as it is possible, the principles which govern that policy for the nation should apply to the State.

We believe in the principle that an industry ought to bear the cost of personal injuries sustained in the business. A Republican Legislature and Governor placed the first employers' liability law on the statute books of New Jersey, and they have also provided for additional legislation on the subject by the creation of an active and efficient commission, to report by bill at the next session of the Legislature. We pledge the party to a passage of a law carrying out the foregoing principle.

We believe in the enactment of a civil service law that shall provide for the permanent employment of officials so long as they discharge the duties of their positions in a creditable manner, to the satisfaction of their immediate superiors in office.

We favor such election and primary laws as will make the decision of the people at the elections and primaries easy of expression and sure of execution, and that the election machinery created shall be such that at the primaries all contesting candidates shall be represented fairly and impartially, and that by enrollment or otherwise the primaries of each party shall be confined to the membership thereof. We favor the election of all delegates to conventions under the primary laws of the State.

We heartily indorse the policy inaugurated by the Republican party of using all revenue from automobile licenses for the repair and maintenance of our splendid system of improved roads, and we advocate such legislation with respect to automobiles as shall be just alike to the automobilists and to the taxpayers of this State, and also properly promote the reciprocal relations between this and other States with respect to the use of their respective highways by non-resident automobilists.

We favor the wise and beneficial development of the commerce of the State, and to that end we pledge ourselves to the continuance of the policy of the construction and maintenance of our public highways and inland waterways, and we approve the policy of Federal aid in the improvement of our adjacent interstate waterways.

Fifteen years ago the Republicans of this State, appalled by the widespread corruption under Democratic administration, placed the Republican party in control, and have continued it in power since that time. The results have been greatly to the advantage of the State in administrative and legislative accomplishments, and demonstrates the wisdom of a further continuance of Republican power and responsibility.

BOROUGH TAX RATE $2.06

The Total Amount to be Raised in North Plainfield is $26,300.

AS COUNTY TAX $24,906.

State School Tax $11,206, and Special School Tax $27,090—Rate Nine Points Lower Than City's.

The borough rate of assessment is $2.06 on the $100. It has fallen 12 points from the 1909 rate, nine points more than the city rate fell in the same time. This new rate is based on the following items: County tax, $.58; State tax, $.26; Borough and Contingent fund, $.58; and special school, $.64. Last year the rate of assessment was $2.18. The chief drop occurs in the Special School tax, which is ten points lower than last year, while the Borough and contingent fund dropped three points.

Police Department, $4,000; Fire Department, $3,500; Street Department $6,900; Lights, $5,900; Bonds and Interest, $2,025; Water $1,500; Sewer, $800; Poor, $1,200; Board of Health, $600; Borough general fund, $5,500.

The total is $31,925. This with the contingent fund of $1,000 brings it up to $32,925, but with the estimated receipts from licenses, etc, $6,625, the total amount to be raised by taxation for borough expenses is $26,300.

The County tax is $24,906.50; the State School tax is $11,206.92; and the Special School tax is $27,090. It is on these figures that the new rate was computed.

One new item appears on the schedule this year. This is for sewers, $800.

OBSERVE 2ND ANNIVERSARY OF JOHN HALL'S CONVERSION.

Services marking the second anniversary of the conversion of John Calvin Hall were held at the Plainfield Rescue Mission, last night, and were enjoyed by a large audience. John L. Matty, superintendent of the mission, was in charge of the services, which were opened with the reading of Scriptures by Mr. Hall, after which Walter Firstbrook made a few appropriate remarks.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, then spoke on the "Blood of Jesus," in which he presented some interesting truths. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, of this city, also made an address on the subject, "How Simple to Accept Jesus," in which he clearly pointed the way to better Christian living.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, spoke on the subject, "The Good Shepherd," and the services were closed with remarks by Mr. LeMatty. Then followed a social hour and the serving of refreshments. Mr. Hall was given a hearty reception and words of encouragement were extended to him. During the evening Miss Clawson presided at the piano and Miss Grace LeMatty at the organ, the music being a feature.

AN AUXILIARY TO BE FORMED BY K. OF P.

Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting last night, when a committee comprising Samuel Robinson, Harry Werner, Charles DeGraw and A. E. Causebrook was appointed to arrange for a meeting to be held Tuesday night in the rooms of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., for the purpose of forming an auxiliary for men who do not want to take an active part in the organization by parading, etc. The membership will comprise older men.

Members of the uniform rank, as well as all other knights of the city, will go to Somerville, Monday night to engage in a euchre party, this being the first of a series of games to be played among the various lodges in this district during the winter months.

Had to Pay For Their Loot.

Allan Grant and George Harrison, two colored boys, who were arrested on Monday charged with the theft of a bicycle and two baby carriages, were allowed to go this morning by Judge Runyon after the amount of the stolen articles was refunded by the boys' parents to Mrs. Lackeroski, of East Third street, from whom they had been stolen. They will have to face the probation officer on Saturday morning.

Fanwood Tax Rate $1.66.

The tax rate of the borough of Fanwood for 1910 will be $1.66 on each $100 valuation. The total valuation for the borough is $590,840. The rate is essentially the same as last year.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure bad backs;
Cure lame, weak and aching backs
Cure every form of kidney ills
Lots of local endorsement to prove this.

Mrs. John Driscoll, 753 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The public statement I gave several years ago concerning my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills was correct and still holds good. I suffered from a dull pain across my back which clung to me incessantly. Hard work increased my misery and at times I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I tried plasters and remedies of various kinds but without relief. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I finally procured at Randolph's Pharmacy relieved me and for that reason I heartily recommend them."

STOKES IS LEADING FOR U. S. SENATOR

The latest primary election returns received at Trenton indicate that Former Governor Edward C. Stokes is the popular choice for the United States Senatorial candidate over Congressman Charles N. Fowler the next highest candidate, by between 1,800 and 2,500 cotes, and over Former Governor Franklin Murphy by about 3,000.

Essex county was the first county to file its official figures in the secretary of state's office. The returns from that county show 17,782 for Murphy; 13,705 for Fowler and 2,268 for Stokes, a total of 37,560 ballots cast. Martine's vote on the Democratic side was 3,594, and that for McDermit, 4,724.

The official figures from Passaic county show 3,742 for Stokes 3,249 for Fowler and 2,428 for Murphy. Returns from Gloucester county, with one district missing, indicate that Stokes will receive a plurality of at least 3,000 in the county.

NEWARK IS LARGER THAN NEW ORLEANS

Chicago's population is 2,185,283, the Census Office at Washington, D. C., has announced. In the past decade the Windy City has added 486,708 to her population, which in 1900 was 1,698,575.

The per cent. of growth for Chicago was 28.7, just 10 per cent. less than New York, and but 2.7 better than the rate of growth of the borough of Manhattan.

The population of New Orleans is 339,075, an increase of 51,971, or 18.1 per cent. as compared with 287,104 in 1900, as announced by the Census Bureau today. New Orleans thus falls from twelfth to fifteenth place. Detroit, Newark and Milwaukee having passed it in the last decade.

Statistics giving the population of the following cities were also issued:

Holyoke, Mass., has 57,730 people, an increase of 12,918, or 26.3 per cent., as compared with 45,712 in 1900.

Lowell Mass., has 106,294 people, an increase of 11,325, or 11.9 per cent., as compared with 94,969 in 1900.

Pittsfield, Mass., has 32,121 people, an increase of 10,355, or 47.6 per cent., as compared with 21,766 in 1900.

UNION COUNTY BUYS OIL TO LAY THE DUST

Freeholder Aaron D. Crane, of Roselle Park, who has been waging a war against the dust nuisance in Westfield avenue, announced Tuesday that the county board had given him a car of oil, to be used entirely on the north side of Westfield avenue, from Bayway, Elizabeth, to the Cranford line in Roselle Park. The oil will arrive today and will be spread immediately after its arrival.

The announcement will undoubtedly cause great rejoicing among the residents along the avenue, as throughout the summer and at the present time the dust nuisance has been almost unbearable. Vegetation along this side of the avenue has been ruined by the dust. Complaints have been numerous, among them being one from the Roselle Park Board of Health saying that conditions are injurious to health.

The announcement also marks another victory, for the assumption of jurisdiction over the north side of the road practically settles a question of ownership which has been in doubt for some time. The question was whether the county or the borough of Roselle Park owned the half of the road. The north side of the avenue represents the fifty feet of road added when the thoroughfare was widened some years ago for the extension of the trolley road.

Revolutionary Landmark Razed.

Middletown, Sept. 21.—An old house along King's highway, built before the Revolution, owned by George R. Greenwood, is being torn down to make room for a new structure. When the British went through this section on their way to Sandy Hook after the Battle of Monmouth some of the Redcoats spent the night in the house. It was subsequently owned by George C. Murray, an Assemblyman from Monmouth county, who sold it to the late Charles Coudert, a New York lawyer. It then passed into the hands of Mr. Greenwood, who is making extensive improvements to the property.

The sewing meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, scheduled for yesterday, has been postponed indefinitely.

The Dutch Arms, the men's association of Trinity Reformed church, will meet Wednesday evening, September 28, immediately following the prayer meeting. This will be an important meeting as the year's work will be thoroughly discussed, and every member is urged to be present.

Autumn Opening 1910

We Announce the Formal Opening Display of the Correct Styles in Fall Millinery on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday

September 21, 22 and 23

We very cordially invite you and it will be our pleasure to have you attend this important Fashion Show on these days.

The approved Millinery designs from Millinery centres and the efforts of skilled artists from our own workrooms find a prominent place in our exhibit.

Our display presents the cleverest ideas and distinctly stylish models which our Millinery buyers and artists have been able to assemble.

Your attendance is earnestly requested.

Formal Showing of Ready-to-Wear Garments for Fall

On these formal opening days we shall reveal to you the results of our careful, thorough preparations to assemble fashionable Fall merchandise of distinctive worth and merit.

You will find on display the authentic Fashions in Suits, Coats, Dresses, Waists and all other ready-to-wear Garments—a gathering of goods of character and quality. We believe we have anticipated every possible demand you can make on us and have made ample preparations to sustain the position we have attained as Plainfield's Leading Store.

The policies which have helped to build this splendid business of ours will be so pronouncedly apparent during the present season as during any time in our business history. In the future we will exert the same efforts to merit the confidence you have placed in us as we have done in the past.

Again we bid you welcome to our Fall Opening and trust you will give our store leisure inspection.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually,

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Among the many high-class attractions to be seen at The Plainfield theatre this winter, will be William H. Crane, who will make his first appearance here on Wednesday night, October 12, in one of his latest successes. He will be remembered by many for his success in "The Henrietta," and later in "Father and Boys," and playgoers will doubtless welcome the opportunity to see this clever actor.

Proctor & Sanderson will aim to present one metropolitan success a week during the season, and thus far they have booked in addition to William H. Crane, "The Arcadians," and Maude Adams.

The stock company will present "Thelma" tomorrow and the rest of the week and on Monday, when Miss Ilka Diehl, the new leading woman makes her first appearance, the offering will be "When We Were Twenty-one," one of Clyde Fitch's successful plays. This will require a large cast, including seven girls, and promises to be one of the best productions by the local company. The management is contemplating a number of improvements and changes at the playhouse, all of which it feels sure will be appreciated by the patrons of the theatre.

There will be infant baptism at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, October 9.

Improvements to the property of Marconnier chapel are to be made this fall, consisting of a new slate roof, painting of building, repairs to the sheds and furnace at a cost of $350. The funds have largely been raised by members of the chapel.

VIVIAN M. LEWIS.

One of Vivian M. Lewis' friends in sketching the Republican gubernatorial candidate's career writes that "he is a good mixer; has lots of friends in all walks of life," and in recounting his public services shows that the Paterson man has had the benefit of an unusually wide experience in politics and government. Moreover that he has invariably discharged a public trust with marked credit to himself and to those whom he has served. These are the things which count. It is because of these that the Republican nominee is a strong candidate; one who will appeal not alone to the rank and file of his own party but who will attract the independent voter and the voter of other affiliations who places principle above party—considers past performances when weighing the relative values of opposing candidates.

Woodrow Wilson, great though he be as a scholar and famous though he be as the head of one of America's magnificent seats of learning, is at a disadvantage. He has had absolutely no practical experience whatever in the affairs of the State government. He is an untried and therefore an unknown quantity. At the most he would be an experiment, and in this year of grace, we take it, the people of New Jersey are not willing to turn the highest office into a school of instruction. The demand is for a man who thoroughly understands the political situation; who is familiar with the prevailing conditions; who possesses an accurate knowledge of the various departments of the government and who can take up the State's business without wasting valuable time in acquainting himself with how things are done, how things should be done and what things are to be done.

Vivian M. Lewis is not only a man of splendid ability and unquestioned integrity but is ripe with experience. For years he has been in the public service in one capacity or another. As an assemblyman, as chancery clerk and as banking commissioner, he has rubbed elbows with the men who have been running the State and thereby gained a fund of knowledge which makes him fit in every sense of the word to take up the work as Mr. Fort's successor. He is a good judge of men. He knows what the State needs and what the people want. He is a candidate who should appeal not only to all Republicans but to men of all parties who have the best interests of New Jersey at heart.

THAT GARBAGE PLANT.

It may be right and proper for the Common Council to expend the people's taxes for opening up new streets and the like. Month in and month out, year in and year out, large sums are being used for this and that improvement. We get a $30,000 police headquarters; we get a $40,000 brick pavement. But when are we going to get a sanitary system of garbage collection and disposal?

Some years ago, a tract was purchased for a disposal plant. The action had been taken at the urgent request of the Board of Health and some people really had an idea that the city fathers were in earnest. The truth of the matter is, however, that since that time not one solitary step has been taken in the direction of bringing about the improvement. The pleadings of the health authorities in their annual reports have been utterly ignored. And today, the householder who pays his taxes with the expectation that in return the municipality will do what is done in almost every other city is compelled to pay some one to cart away the garbage or be fined for not doing so. The present unsanitary condition is a disgrace to any city that pretends to be up to date and all know we make that boast.

If it be a crime for a man to be born in that illustrious State, Virginia, then the Trenton State-Gazette in its issue today has a good argument against the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, but it strikes us that the distinguished scholar is to be held as much responsible for the place of his birth as the Republican party organization is for some of the rot found in the Trenton paper's editorial columns.

How times change. Governor Fort yesterday advocated pensions for the Confederate veterans. Just imagine what a howl would have been made had the late President Cleveland offered such a suggestion.

ly is indicated by the fact that he has been the president of the Westfield Board of Trade since its organization. He is also a trustee and the treasurer of the Free public Library, a director in the Peoples National Bank of Westfield, a director in the Mutual Building and Loan Association and a trustee of the Congregational church of Westfield. He has the unique distinction of being a member of the Exempt Firemen's organizations of both New York and New Jersey, having qualified for this honor by serving the full period as a volunteer firemen in both States. For a number of years he was President of the old Westfield Club which was the leading social organization in the town, he was also one of the founders of the Westfield Golf Club. He is a member of Atlas Lodge F. & A. M. and a charter member of the Westfield Driving and Riding Club.

Politically Mr. Tuttle has always been a consistent and active member of the Democratic party, and shortly after he became of age served as a member of the Democratic County Committee in Chemung County, New York, when David B. Hill was the leader of political affairs in that section! Upon his removal to New Jersey he continued his activity in the Democratic ranks and has served for many years as a member of the Union County Democratic Committee. For the past three years he has been chairman of this organization. Mr. Tuttle has never held any local political office; he was the candidate of his party for the Assembly in 1907 and received the highest vote given any Democratic candidate on the ticket in Union County that year. In the town of Westfield he ran over five hundred votes ahead of his party ticket and his total vote in the county was over ten thousand, being the largest vote ever given a democratic candidate in Union county with but one exception. This indicates to some degree the confidence and respect felt for Mr. Tuttle by the voters of Union county regardless of party lines. In 1908 he was a delegate from the Fifth New Jersey District to the Democratic National Convention held at Denver. He opposed the nomination of Mr. Bryan but yielded to the wishes of the majority of his party and in the succeeding campaign worked loyally and zealously for the success of the national ticket. At the Congressional convention held in 1908 at Phillipsburg, N. J., the name of Mr. Tuttle was presented by Union county for the nomination, but he withdrew for the sake of harmony in favor of Dr. Isaac Barber who was the choice of the Warren county delegation. In his political career Mr. Tuttle has contended consistently for clean political methods, and his earliest political activities were in behalf of Grover Cleveland; his democracy has always been of the conservative and sound type so thoroughly taught by that great leader of his party. Mr. Tuttle is a bachelor. His private library is one of the most complete in Westfield. He has found time during his active business career for traveling quite extensively throughout his own country, Europe and South America. A close student of public affairs, few men are better posted as to the needs and possibilities of the American people.

Fought Over Grapes.

A boys' fight over a small basket of grapes resulted in a complaint against Mrs. Maggie Kenner, colored, of Grove street, who tried to interfere in behalf of her son; and as a result she was haled to the borough police court this morning. Edward Driver testified that the whole affair was a mere boyish difference, and as a result the recorder suspended sentence.

Approaching Wedding.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Cecil Helen Rockefeller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rockefeller, of Willever street, to Frank Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Zimmerman, of Bound Brook. The wedding will take place early in October. Both the bride and groom are well known here and have a large circle of friends.

Rally Day Exercises.

Rally day exercises will be held at Grace M. E. church next Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Ora J. Shoop, will preach an appropriate sermon in the morning and in the evening the Epworth League will hold a rally service, with a special address by Rev. Dr. A. W. Hayes, of Westfield. The Sunday-school will also hold special exercises in the afternoon.

A Corn Roast.

Forty young people, members of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church, enjoyed an outing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Neier, Johnston's drive last evening. The entertainment included a corn roast and some old fashioned baked sweet potatoes done in the open air.

JUDGE CASE ADDRESSES 30TH N. J. VETERANS

The twenty-first annual reunion of the Thirtieth Regiment, N. J. Vols., is being held today with Gen. Wadsworth Post, of Somerville, and Plainfield is well represented by members of the regiment. Those present from here include Nelson Runyon, Sergeant C. H. Randolph, Theodore I. Runyon, Deputy Sheriff Peter V. Weaver, David R. Weaver, J. B. Stryker, Tenadore VanCleef, John Giddes, Jacob Manning, J. Lance Mundy and Randolph Thorn.

James Vanderveer, of North Branch, is president of the association; Nelson Runyon, vice-president, and James Bowman, of South Branch, secretary. The veterans held a business session this morning at Gen. Wadsworth Post rooms, and at 1 o'clock adjourned to Cawley's Hotel for dinner. Following the fine spread, there were short addresses by Judge Clarence E. Case and officers of the association. There was a large representation of veterans and all thoroughly enjoyed the exchange of reminiscenses, reviewing scenes and incidents of the Civil War.

SOMERVILLE.

MR. GUINEE ATTENDED THE AVIATION MEET

Patrick Guinee, of the Iroquois Hotel, has just returned from a ten days' visit to Boston during which he attended the great aviation meet in that city. One of the things which Mr. Guinee enjoyed was the joke played on Mayor Fitzgerald by Grahame White, the English aviator.

According to Mr. Guinee's story Mayor Fitzgerald was escorted to the front of the crowd of spectators by a group of newspaper men and when His Honor asked where he was to find his seat was escorted to a seat beside White who had tuned up his aeroplane in preparation for a flight.

Mr. White jokingly asked Mayor Fitzgerald if he wanted to go up. "Certainly I do," replied Mr. Fitzgerald, and without having a chance to repent of his rash quickness he found himself soaring above the multitude and out beyond the shore. Mr. Guinee said that when the mayor returned to the grand stand he reecived an ovation for his bravery in accepting a challenge given in jest.

Another incident which caused some merriment among the thousands who were watching the subsequent flights of the Englishman was that of the attempt made by a so-called 'magazine writer" to flimflam Mr. White with a bad check for $500. It happened this way, according to Mr. Guinee: A certain Miss Morris asked the aviator to take her up in his byplane and offered him the check in payment for the trip. She explained that she was a writer of magazine articles and wanted material for a good story on aviation. Mr. White gallantly took the young woman into the air, but after a few moments of flight he received a signal from one of his employees on the ground to descend. On landing he was informed that the check handed to him by the woman was bogus. She thereupon was forced to disgorge the contents of her pocketbook which amounted to nearly $100. She then made a hasty exit from the grounds.

At one time, said Mr. Guinee, there were nine aeroplanes chasing each other about the field in the air. He said that Mayor Fitzgerald declared after his trip out over the bay that the sensation was one he would hardly forget, and that he expressed himself as feeling absolutely safe even though the b'plane careened at times at peculiar angles.

RAILROAD MILEAGE MADE RECORD IN 1909.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 21.—In an analysis of Poor's railroad statistics for 1909 The Iron Trade Review states that one of the most striking features is that a greater increase in railroad mileage is shown for the calendar year 1909 than for any previous year since 1888.

The Review continues:

As showing in a general way the increase in railroad mileage we give below the Poor statistics at decennial periods, the mileage representing the number of miles of steam road operated on December 31, of the years named:

1830	23
1840	2,818
1850	9,021
1860	30,626
1870	52,922
1880	93,262
1890	166,703
1900	194,262
1909	238,356

The greatest period of new railroad building in the United States was in the eighties, the increase in mileage January 1, 1880, to December 31, 1889, being from 86,556 miles to 161,276 miles, or 74,720 miles. The two greatest years in the decade were 1882, with 11,569 miles, and 1887, with 12,876 miles.

In the nineteen years from 1890 to 1909, the freight ton mileage has increased by no less than 187 per cent., while in the same period the railroad mileage has increased only by forty-three per cent. Thereby the density of traffic is greatly increased. As a matter of fact, the number of tons passing over the average mile has precisely doubled in the nineteen years.

Of course it would be entirely unfair to assume that the increased business involves only an increase in operating expenses and not in capital charges. For the heavier traffic, in proportion to mileage of road, better terminals must be furnished, more auxiliary track provided and increased block signaling facilities installed. Beyond all this, however, there is undoubtedly a great gain to the railroads in the increase of traffic, which promises to continue indefinitely.

Will Begin Fifteenth Season.

Frederick F. Dawes, assistant teacher with T. George Dodworth, of 12 East 49th street, New York, will begin his fifteenth season for classes in dancing and polite training at the Seminary Hall, on October 11.

—Dennis Carney, who has been employed in the street department for a long time, is under treatment at the hospital for cancer of the face. His condition is reported to be good.

The Most Industrious Store in Newark—The City of Industry

Best by Comparison

Show of Millinery Show of Costumes

Show of Evening Wraps Show of Furs

FAR SURPASSES ANY SIMILAR EXHIBIT IN NEWARK TODAY

It is needless for us to boast of the opening displays we are making, because it is too well known to those who live in Newark and round about that this is the only store in Jersey equipped in metropolitan fashion, with the space, in length, breadth, and height, and with adequate light, to properly show the season's fashions.

It is too well known also that our stocks are far the largest carried by any store in the State, affording the widest choice.

But there are many new comers in Newark, the fast increasing population showing that hundreds of families are taking up their residence here every week, and it is well that these should be made acquainted with the fact that the State's Greatest Store measures up with metropolitan establishments, and that this is a good time to have it demonstrated to them.

We, therefore, extend a special invitation to new residents to see our opening displays and to make comparisons with other stores that they may appreciate the differences.

OPENING DAYS---Today and Tomorrow

You Will be Pleased With These

NEW TAILORED SUITS

From out the great collection of Tailored Suits we present for selection, we single these three lines which we are specializing at very moderate prices. Judge the stock by them and judge other stocks by them. See if you can match them at their prices anywhere else.

Smartest of tailored styles in Basket Weave Cheviots, Plain Cheviots, Serges and Mannish Mixtures, in navy, brown, smoke, electric and other shades as well as black; strictly tailored or full trimmed with silk braid, as you like; new gored or strap-plaited skirts; nothing extreme about them yet not commonplace—just such suits as most women seek, and see how low we price them—

$10.75 $16.75 $19.75

Fine Serge Dresses, full braid trimmed; pretty lace yokes; skirts nicely trimmed to match; a very special feature for Thursday's selling at.....$10.95

Fine Skirts of Chiffon Panama, Serge, Cheviot, Wide Wale and Mixtures; all the newest models, and the most favored shades; also black; a full range of sizes, value up to $8.50; take your pick at.....$4.49

Lingerie Waists at 97c

400 OF THEM—REAL VALUE $2.49

It took a lot of coaxing to induce the maker to sell us these waists so far below their worth that we are able to announce this wonderful sale of four hundred waists at a price that really looks ridiculous. But we got them and we are glad to offer them to you as you will be glad to get them.

These are very handsome waists; some have exquisite lace yokes; all are beautifully trimmed with embroidery, Valenciennes lace insertions and medallions. These are charming all-over effects, trimmed front and back, and they have high lace collars and long lace-trimmed sleeves. These waists come from one of the best makers we know of—one noted for his splendid taste and originality. There is a full range of sizes and they count the waists good value at $2.49; the selling price, beginning tomorrow morning will be.....97c

Fine Black Taffeta Silk Waists; high collar; long sleeves; with or without yoke effect; tucked and button trimmed; a full variety of sizes; special priced for tomorrow..$2.98

Business Suits for Men $12

We are fixing a new standard in Men's Business Suits and we are featuring these we sell at $12, believing them to be the best at that price.

Whether it is style you seek or long service, or beauty of pattern, you get them all in these suits at $12.

Dignity and durability are combined in them—a man can dress conservatively or with a bit of snap as he sees fit, but he need pay no more than the price we set for these suits. We are putting the best of materials and the best workmanship that could possibly go into a suit to sell at $12.

UNDERMUSLINS

Night Gowns—Low neck styles of nainsook, trimmed with dainty embroideries and laces, ribbon drawn; also high and surplice shapes of cambric and muslin, trimmed with neat patterns of embroidery insertions, embroidery ruffle on neck and sleeve to match; regular $1.25, for.....98c

Retribution

By BERTHA D. ALSOP

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

He was from childhood a lady killer. As a boy in knickerbockers he had given the little girls of his acquaintance flowers and invited them to have ices with him. They were not old enough to quarrel about him, but they doted on him all the same. As a youth he resembled a young Byron with his large blue eyes, his negligee flaxen hair and round white throat. Then came young manhood. By this time he found more zest in his attentions to girls, though fewer pleased him. He and they were still young enough to feel the sweetness of a flirtation, and occasionally when the denouement came he was obliged to admit to himself that he had been singed.

He had no thought of marriage, a home, children. He didn't consider himself old enough for that. When he reached twenty-seven he began to look forward to it as something that would naturally come about. At thirty-five he wished that it would come about. At forty he began to fear that it would never come. Then it occurred to him that he had better try to bring it about.

But by this time young girls had begun to consider him an elderly man. And, as for those near his own age, he had no use for them. He knew that men of forty have on rare occasions married girls half their age and both husband and wife been very happy in each other. Why not he? He resolved to make an effort.

An effort in love! He had glided naturally into so many affairs of the heart that to try to get into one seemed repugnant to him. Why had he not taken advantage of some one of these affairs to preclude the possibility of the lonely old age that was overshadowing him—why? He knew well enough why. He had always considered the game, not the reality. To have taken one of the girls he might have had would have been to give up a conquest. At least so he had regarded it at the time.

Having lost his position at home of a young man and consequently not being thrown in with young girls, he determined to go elsewhere. It was the season of outing, and he determined to go wife hunting by the sea. He had made many conquests there. Moonlight shimmering on the dancing waves had called out that which had moved many a girl to love him. True, now there were gray hairs in his moustache, and his Byronic forehead was higher than it had been, but he thought with the same surroundings he might do the trick as he had often done it before.

It was sad to see a young girl pass him without looking at him, whereas twenty years agone another of her age could not have refrained from a glance. He became acquainted with several of them, but somehow there seemed a gulf between him and them that he could not cross. These were half or less than half his age. Finally he met one between twenty-five and thirty who caught his fancy. There was this, too, about her that he did not find in the younger ones—they surprised him by acting and talking in a way that seemed childish to him. They seemed to him to have grown nearer the nursery than their prototypes. Surely the girls he had associated with when he was under twenty-five were not as frivolous as these misses. The older girl, on the contrary, talked and acted like a woman. She could be a companion to him.

He made up his mind that if he could win her he would do so. He made a few abortive efforts to make love as he would have made it fifteen or twenty years before. What he would have said and looked and acted then now seemed insipid to him. He desisted, contenting himself with the girl's companionship and showing her little attentions.

One thing troubled him. Though she accepted his attentions and listened to his chat, she did not seem to be impressed with his superior wisdom. He felt that, while she attended to what he said, she occasionally let it be known that she knew more of the subject he was talking about than he knew himself. Surely there was nothing near the nursery here. He was uncomfortable at the thought that this young woman felt him intellectually beneath her. It was rather that he felt her to be his superior.

When the season was drawing to a close he wished to bring matters to a focus. This used to be easy enough when he was a youngster playing a game. But now that he was a middle aged man, intending to tell a mature young woman that he loved her and ask her to be his wife, it seemed that the many times he had done the same thing came up to mock him.

However, he got it out.

"How times change us!" she said. "A dozen years ago, when I was sixteen, you proposed to me, and you did it beautifully. Then I thought you a god. Now, being older, I know you for a very admirable and pleasant gentleman. I thank you for the honor done me, but I am not now minded to marry."

He looked at her with a dazed expression, vainly trying to recall her as she was. But about the time of their former meeting he had proposed to too many girls to enable him to distinguish her from the rest. He arose in silence and retired.

He returned disengaged and is still a bachelor. His forehead extends to the back of his neck, his teeth are going, and he is alone.

AN ORDINANCE

To Prescribe Conditions to be Complied with Before any Private Streets or Roads dedicated or Offered for Dedication Shall be Accepted by the City.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That any person or corporation contemplating laying out or locating and constructing any street or road in the City of Plainfield shall before beginning such construction submit to the Street Commissioner, the proposed plans therefor, in which shall be included an accurate designation of the location and grades of such street or streets, road or roads, and the sidewalks thereof, as proposed to be laid out as aforesaid, and the proposed manner of construction. Upon receipt of such plans by said Street Commissioner, together with a petition for their approval, said Street Commissioner shall consult with the Committee on Streets of the Common Council, and thereafter give a hearing to said petitioners, if they so request; after such hearing said petitioners may alter such plans if they so desire, and request the approval of said Street Commissioner of the plans so altered.

If said original or altered plans shall be approved by said Street Commissioner, he shall so indicate thereon in writing signed by him and file said plans in his office, and endorse thereon the date of such filing. Unless monuments properly defining the lines of the proposed street or road on any such plan have been already set, hard stone monuments, at least four inches square on top and at least two feet long, shall be forthwith set in sufficient numbers to definitely locate the lines of the proposed street or road. All curved streets or roads shall be laid out with regular curves, and sufficient data shall be shown on the maps to enable the streets or roads to be accurately located. Such approval of said plans or any other action by said Street Commissioner with respect thereto, or with respect to said proposed streets or roads, shall not operate as an acceptance of the same as public streets or roads, and acceptance of the same as public streets or roads shall not be effected except by ordinance of the Common Council, the Common Council hereby reserving full discretion in the premises, and the powers of the Common Council in regard to streets and roads shall not be abridged by this ordinance in any manner.

Section 2. After the passage of this ordinance, no proposed street or road in the City of Plainfield shown on any plan filed and approved by the Street Commissioner as aforesaid shall be laid out, located anew, altered, widened, or changed in grade, except in accordance with said plans, and no street or road heretofore or hereafter offered for dedication or acceptance by the City shall be accepted otherwise than by ordinance of the Common Council. If any person or corporation shall hereafter construct or open for public travel any private street or road the location, direction, width and grades of which and the manner of construction thereof have not previously been approved in writing by said Street Commissioner in the method provided in this ordinance, then no public sewer, drain, fire hydrant or street lamp shall be laid or placed in or upon, or any public work of any kind done upon, any such private street or road so constructed or opened for public travel except by ordinance of the Common Council.

Section 3. The Street Commissioner may in his discretion cause a suitable sign to be erected at any place where any private street or road intersects any public street or road, to indicate that such street or road is not a public highway, but no damages shall be recoverable by any person against the City for any injury alleged to have resulted from any failure to erect such a sign.

Section 4. Nothing in this ordinance shall prevent the Common Council or Street Commissioner from permitting suitable sewers laid or to be laid in such private streets or roads by private property owners to be connected with the sewers of the City.

Adopted by the Common Council, Sept. 6, 1910; approved by the Mayor, Sept. 10, 1910.

CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor.

Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

AT THE Hallet & Davis STORE

The Purchase of a Piano is a Positive Pleasure

Here you have the advantage of selecting from a large stock, arranged in the most convenient way for the customers comfort while inspecting the different styles.

A number of parlors are arranged, two or three pianos being placed in each, so you can judge the tone, the style, the finish, know just how it will sound and appear in your music room.

Every piano is marked in plain figures, the terms stated in plain English, and there is but ONE PRICE. You have the assurance that the price you pay is the LOWEST POSSIBLE, thus avoiding the juggling, the cutting of prices prevalent in most stores, causing many customers to wonder if there is any REAL PRICE to a piano.

In selecting a piano at the Hallet & Davis store you avoid all of this unpleasantness. There is something about the Hallet & Davis store that inspires confidence, an air of stability, fairness, dignity, and when you select your piano here the "piano question" is settled for all time. A Hallet & Davis buyer is a satisfied buyer.

A large, well assorted stock of the latest styles are just in from our factory. We cordially invite you to make a visit of inspection and investigation.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The monthly meeting of the King's Daughters of the Temple Baptist church will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Miss Bessie VanNest, of Whitewood avenue.

The Sabbath school of the Seventh Day Baptist church will hold its rally day exercises Sabbath afternoon and Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will make the address.

The colored branch of the W. C. T. U. will meet in the Calvary Baptist church, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The annual reports will be presented and officers will be elected.

AUTOMOBILE WAS WRECKED WHEN STEERING GEAR BROKE.

While driving an automobile belonging to Harold Hansen at the corner of Craig place and Grove street at 10:15 this morning Harry Brown, chauffeur for J. Fred MacDonald, lost control of the car owing to the breaking of the steering gear. The car ran into the curb and the result was two broken springs and a shattered front wheel.

Fortunately for the driver, he was not thrown out nor injured, having shut off the power when the steering gear snapped. The automobile may be repaired, but it will be a costly operation.

CONFEDERATE PENSIONS GOV. FORT'S SUGGESTION.

The big event in connection with the forty-fourth annual encampment of the G. A. R., being held at Atlantic City, was the parade, today.

The campaign for the next commander in chief is being waged between Commander John E. Gillman, of Boston, and John McElroy, of Washington. Governor Fort in his address last night suggested that the surviving Confederate veterans be pensioned.

Funeral of Mrs. T. J. Nicholl.

The funeral service of Mrs. Thos. J. Nicholl, of Scotch Plains, will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of All Souls' Unitarian church, assisted by Rev. Franklin K. Matthews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, will be in charge. The burial will be at Scotch Plains.

MORRISTOWN HORSE SHOW, OCTOBER 6, 7, 8

The Field Club of Morristown, N. J., will hold its thirteenth annual horse show October 6, 7 and 8. The prize list is a large and varied one, containing fifty-eight classes, of which forty-seven are open to all, and the balance are restricted to owners of horses residing in Morris and Somerset counties, dealers being barred. There are other competitions for roadsters, horses in harness, tandems, four-in-hands, saddle horses, ponies, jumpers and draft horses. In some of the classes the conditions require that ladies must either ride or drive. Purses of substantial size are given to the first and second in nearly all the classes, and in others cups will be awarded. Entries close Saturday, September 24.

The judges will be Louis Haight, Richard Newton and Hamilton H. Salmon. The committee follows: John R. Brinley, chairman; George J. Little, treasurer; Dr. Frederick H. Humphreys, secretary; Walter P. Bliss, Charles D. M. Cole, A. A. Fowler, Robert A. Granniss, Jr., Joseph W. Harriman, A. Fillmore Hyde, Otto H. Kahn, Dr. D. H. McAlpin, Joseph W. Ogden, George R. D. Schieffelin, Kenneth B. Schley, Henry W. Shoemaker and Richard H. Williams. The assistant secretary is W. S. Blitz.

The private boxes for the show will be sold at auction at the Field Club, Morristown, Monday evening, September 26, at 8:30.

"The Duty of Husbands."

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is to preach a sermon on next Sunday morning, which every married woman and every woman who is contemplating matrimony should hear. His topic will be "The Duty of Husbands." It cannot help being interesting to the women and it will certainly interest the husbands.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram King, of 103 Duer street, are spending the week at Atlantic City, where Mr. King is attending the G. A. R. encampment.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK WILL SING IN THIS CITY.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, who will give a recital in Plainfield on Dec. 2, under the auspices of the Musical Club, is perhaps the most discussed and most justly admired singer of the day, and she should be of double interest to New Jersey because she has chosen to make her home in this State. Her cottage is one of the most picturesque of the country houses in the Montclair region, up in the Orange mountains near Signac, and is just such an ideal spot as the former home of Emma Eames on the slopes of the Appenines.

Mme. Schumann-Heink is probably the highest paid singer in the world today. Her earnings run up into the neighborhood of a quarter of a million a year. Her temperament is so humorous, so intelligent, and so sympathetic, and her personality is so magnetically interesting and compelling that she could command fame if she had no voice at all and simply spoke her lines. As it is her voice has a splendor and depth which is a revelation to the uninitiated and a never-failing spring of delight to the critic.

A prominent writer said recently: "American audiences are in love with the singer Mme. Schumann-Heink. She is so thoroughly democratic and so kindhearted. She is ninety-five per cent. heart! Hence her concert tour is a series of ovations."

Injured Child's First Thought.

Roselle Park, Sept. 21.—"Where is my candy?" were the first words spoken by Gertrude Shaw, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shaw, of Avon street, when her father pulled her from under an automobile which struck her at Westfield and Magie avenues here Sunday night. The car was driven by an Irvington man whose name was not learned. The child was running across the street to her father when hit. Her head was cut over the left eye and she was bruised about the body.

PLAN ONE FOR THE WEST END.

Two Supervisors Re-appointed—Another to be Named for Parker Field—Mayor Fisk Speaks.

Plans for opening another playground next season in the West End of the city, together with reports of this season's work, were discussed at a meeting of the Playground Association held in Mayor Fisk's office last night. All the members of the commission, George P. Mellick, Charles B. Morse, H. W. Marshall, Joseph W. Gavett, Lindsey Best, and Secretary H. E. Parker, together with Mayor Fisk, were present. Mr. Fisk stated that it would probably be the last time he would meet with the commission.

Speaking informally, Mr. Fisk expressed his appreciation of the work of the commission and hoped that its influence would be extended in the years to come. Mr. Mellick, as president of the commission, voiced the appreciation of the members for the impetus given the movement by Mr. Fisk.

At a later meeting the question of appointing a supervisor for the "Parker Field," given to the city by Andrew McClean Parker, as an athletic field, will be taken up, and plans for the use of the field will probably be announced at the November meeting of the commission. The field will be in readiness for use next season. It is also the intention of the commission to re-engage Miss Harriet E. Moe and Miss Mary Leonard Childs as supervisors for the Bryant and Franklin playgrounds next season. Their work this year was very satisfactory to everyone.

"The figures showing the attendance at the two playgrounds are as follows: Bryant School grounds, open 48 days, total attendance 6,009 children; average daily attendance, 125. Franklin School grounds, open 54 days, total attendance, 5,925 children; average daily attendance, 109. Grand total of 11,944 children in atehdance at both playgrounds, daily average at both grounds, 234. The children in attendance ranged in age from infants of one year, in charge of 'little mothers' to those of fifteen years. The average age was about eight.

"The playground population at Franklin School playground was cosmopolitan, at least eight nationalities being represented as follows: American, English, German, Italian, Hebrew, Swedish, Irish, Negro. Despite this condition discipline was never a serious problem with the supervisor. This proves I think, not merely the efficiency of the supervisor, but also the universality of he appeal of the playground. No serious accidents were reported. In fact, there was a remarkable freedom from injuries. But one case calling for the attention of a physician was reported and the boy thus treated soon returned to the playground. The intense interest of parents in the movement is reflected in the report showing that over 300 visited Franklin School ground and more than 200 Bryant School.

"As to results, without theorizing, it can be said that these things have been accomplished:

"First. Scores of restless children have been saved from two months of idleness with its attendant possibilities of vice and crime.

"Second. Through a varied and interesting program of out-door games and exercises, increased physical power, carrying with it protection against disease and greater ability to work and endure, has been made possible to these children.

"Third. The mental training received in the school has been continued on the playground where the child is constantly provided with opportunities for self-expression and self-activity.

"Fourth. The best moral and spiritual influence has been thrown around the children at the playgrounds through personal association with the supervisors, the Misses Harriet E. Moe and Mary Leonard Childs.

This means beter children in the home, better scholarship in the schools and a higher grade of citizenship when the boy and the girl shall have come to years of maturity."

TRAIN MINUS ENGINEER IS STOPPED BY FIREMEN

With his head badly battered and cut, Henry Olis, engineer of the Philadelphia & Reading fast freight, bound from Philadelphia for Bridgeport, managed to crawl nearly a mile to Ocean avenue, Jersey City, yesterday, when he lost consciousness and was picked up by a policeman and sent to the Jersey City Hospital. At the hospital it is said the man's skull may be fractured.

As the train passed over Morris Canal Bridge without checking speed Herman Sohner, the fireman, leaped across the engine cab and found that Olis was not at his post. He took the train on to Jersey City. A search was made for Olis, and the police were still hard at work when word was received from Jersey City that Olis had been found unconscious in the streets there.

It is believed that as the train reached the bridge Olis stuck his head out of the window and that one of the supports of the bridge hit him. Olis, although terribly injured, managed to crawl along the streets of Jersey City to Ocean avenue.

The train would have doubtless run into Jersey City and crashed into some other train had it not been that Sohner noticed the train moxing rapidly over the bridge, which is against the law.

COLORED CLUB MAY ENDORSE G. W. V. MOY

The Independent Progressive Republican club will decide tomorrow night whether it will endorse the party's nominee for mayor, B. Frank Coriell, or throw its support to G. W. V. Moy, who is considering whether he will accept the Democratic nomination and also a citizen's endorsement. It is quite probable that Moy will be their choice.

At the meeting to be held at Richard Norwood's home, 304 Arlington avenue, the party's nominee for city judge, William G. DeMeza, will be endorsed. The club, which has a membership of 100 has these officers: President, Joseph Mitchell; vice-president, Armstead Jackson; treasurer, Richard Norwood; corresponding secretary, Frank Selby; recording secretary, Eugene Coles.

The purpose of the organization, according to some of its members, is to obtain party recognition for the colored voter and to guard the interests of the race.

BEAL VS. HILLARD IN DISTRICT COURT TODAY.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon a suit brought by Mary Beal against James W. Hillard for the recovery of certain concrete blocks which the complainant alleges were taken from her premises to be used in the construction of the defendant's house, was resumed after having been heard for half an hour before adjournment at 1 o'clock by Judge Newcorn in the District court.

It is alleged in the complaint that Hillard bought the concrete from a person who was not authorized to sell it and that he knew of these conditions when he purchased the blocks. The blocks are in place in the building which Mr. Hillard has built and can hardly be removed now, but Mrs. Beal seeks to recover the value of them. Hillard claims that he bought the blocks in good faith and that he was unaware that the seller had no right to dispose of them.

Hunt Club's First Run.

The Watchung Hunt Club will enjoy a short gallop Saturday afternoon, the members meeting with the hounds at New Market pond at 3:30. The first check will be at the end of Clinton avenue, from there a course leading to the club grounds will be taken, arriving there about 4:30 o'clock, where an informal breakfast will be given by invitation. All riding members, whether they hunt or not, are earnestly requested to be present, as plans for the season will be discussed. Rufus C. Finch is master of the hounds. If stormy the hunt will be held a week later.

N. O. Moore, Jr., Resigns.

N. O. Moore, Jr., who was formerly business manager of the Recorder Press, but who resigned, has gone west, and his place is being filled for the present by Miss Greene, who has been assistant manager of the office. The Seventh-Day Baptist Publication Board has not yet chosen a successor to Mr. Moore.

Settle for Fire Loss.

Armstrong Mulford, real estate and insurance broker, of North avenue, today settled with Harry Taub, of East Fifth street, for the loss by fire on his barn a few weeks ago. Mr. Taub received $53.

ROSELLE WOMEN HELPS TO CONVICT DR. CRIPPEN

Evdence has been discover d by Mme. Belle Ginnett, of Roselle, which she thinks will establish beyond a doubt that the body ofund in the cellar of the home of Dr. H. H. Crippen, in London, was that of his wife, Belle Elmore. Mrs. Ginnett has been searching the hospitals of Philadelphia for facts relating to an operation performed upon Mrs. Crippen in that city eight years ago.

In speaking of her search, Mrs. Ginnett says: "Within a few days I expect to get proof in Philadelphia that the body found in the cellar of Dr. Hawley D. Crippen's home is that of my friend, Belle Elmore.

"It was Belle herself who told me of the operation. She said it had been performed in a Philadelphia hospital. I searched thirty-eight hospitals in my efforts to get some proof of the identity of the body found in Crippen's cellar. I am almost certain I have succeeded, and before I leave my home here in Roselle I will likely have the proofs. They will be a most important link in the case against Crippen."

MARTINE WANTS WILSON TO SPEAK IN THIS CITY

James E. Martine has been in communication with Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee for Governor, for the purpose of having him open his campaign in this city. According to a statement issued by Dr. Wilson yesterday, he will make one speech in each county in the State during the campaign, and efforts are being made to get him here.

Dr. Wilson informed Mr. Martine that he would like to open the campaign here, but arrangements have been made for him to make his first appearance in Hudson county. However, he promised Mr. Martine that he would speak in Plainfield early in October.

Mr. Martine went to Newark today to confer with James Smith and James Nugent, chairman of the State Democratic commitee, regarding Dr. Wilson's appearance in this city in October. Much pressure is being brought to bear to have the Democratic nominee speak in various parts of the State and it now looks as though he will have to forego his original p'ans and make more than the one speech in each county.

"BROWN OF HARVARD" CREDITABLY DONE HERE.

The Proctor & Sanderson stock company gave a fine performance of "Brown of Harvard," at The Plainfield theatre, last night before a large audience. This play of American college life was well acted by the leading members of the cast, Harold Mead, as "Tom Brown," being especially good, as was also Miss Eleanor Woodruff as "Marion Thorne," sister of "Gerald Thorne," which part was taken by J. C. Dougherty. The last named gave a fine interpretation of the role, dis-playing great talent. John A. Robb, as "Tubby Anderson," was exceedingly funny, taking his part in clever fashion. Others who scored were Miss Laurie Davidson, as "Mrs. Kenyon;" Miss Gloria Gallup, as "Edith Sinclair,' and Henry E. Piné, as manager of the 'Varsity crew.

Today and the rest of the week the company will present "Thelma."

HORSE RESCUED BY POLICE AFTER FALLING IN DITCH.

At 5 o'clock this morning Patrolman Richard Birmingham found a horse belonging to Samuel Rabinovitz, a peddler, of West Third street, struggling in an excavation made for the sewer connections of a house belonging to G. Cantor at 515 West Second street. With the help of other policemen brought from headquarters the horse was extricated from his predicament and was found to be uninjured.

The trench which had been dug by Italian laborers engaged in the work of connecting the sewer, was amply protected by red lights, but Rabinovitz evidently failed to notice them.

No Case Against Hoffer.

The case against George Hoffer brought on complaint of William Powell, of West Third street, was dismissed by Judge William N. Runyon in the city court this morning. No evidence was brought to show that Hoffer had committed the crime with which he was charged. There were several prominent men in the court room ready to testify to Hoffer's good character, but their testimony was not needed. Hoffer was defended by S. S. Swackhamer.

James Blair and Elvin Van Name are on an inland fishing expedition today.

TRADE BOARD'S PLANS

Civic Body to Take up Garbage Disposal Question at First Meeting.

AND FIRE DEPT.'S NEEDS.

Ministers and Teachers to be Invited to Attend—Rev. Dr. J. W. Shearer to Speak on "Anglophonics."

At the opening meeting of the Plainfield Board of Trade which will be held early in October, President William Jeffery expects that among the people present he will have all the school teachers and many citizens to hear the interesting things which will be brought prominently before the meting

Among the interesting things to be discussed will be the question of the needs of the local fire department, as mentioned in President Jeffery's speech at the June meeting of the board. It is considered by Mr. Jeffery that some improvements can be made in the apparatus as well as in the system and for this reason alone the meeting will be of interest to property owners in the city.

There is no possible doubt that the school teachers will have an uncommon interest in the speech to be delivered by Rev. Dr. J. W. Sherer, of Virginia, who will lecture on the topic, "Anglophonics, or the Phonetic English Alphabet." The other question, and one of the most needful ones to be brought before the meeting will be that of a municipal system of collection and disposal of garbage. This subject has had the attention of the taxpayers for many years, and it goes without saying that every householder in the city is concerned in the question of "why pay twice."

According to present plans all the ministers in this section will receive invitations to be present and this includes some who do not reside in Union. Teachers as well as principals of the public schools will be present including those from this city, North Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth, Cranford, Roselle, Rahway, Somerville, Dunellen, Bound Brook and other places. In fact the meeting promises to be one of the most important ever held by the local Board of Trade.

MISS MARGARET O'NEILL RICHARD FARRELL'S BRIDE.

The marriage of Miss Margaret O'Neill, of this city, and Richard Farrell, of Bayonne, took place at St. Mary's church yesterday afternoon, Father Hogan, the curate, performing the ceremony. A reception was held afterward at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sarah O'Neill, 173 North avenue. There were guests from New York Brooklyn, Bayonne and this city.

The bride was attended by Miss Bessie O'Donnell and the best man was Edward O'Conner, both of this city, and the ushers were Lawrence O'Neill, James A. Buckley and John F. Casey, of this city.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Lawrence O'Neill, who was prominent in this city forty years ago and who was highly esteemed. The groom is also well known here, where he has a large number of friends. After a trip the couple will reside at Bayonne.

PIPE LINE TO W. VIRGINIA PASSES NEAR PLAINFIELD.

Work is being pushed in the laying of the large Standard Oil pipe line which passes through Oak Tree towards New Market and thence to West Virginia. Where the pipe line crosses Park avenue near the Lehigh Valley tracks the laborers who are digging the trenches have met a difficult engineering problem. The road is so narrow at that point that vehicles can not pass if the trench is dug halfway across, as is usually done. As a result it is likely that the trench will be dug at night.

Work Progressing on Church.

Work on the foundation of the new St. Joseph's church is progressing rapidly. The ground has been dug and a foundation of concrete is now being laid. This will be completed by the early part of next week so that the framework may be put up before snow falls. The new edifice will be erected immediately in the rear of the present church and will be considerably larger.

—Use Press Want Ads.

—John Frawley, who has been a member of the Proctor & Sanderson stock company, will leave here Saturday, having accepted a position in a vaudeville sketch which will be offered on the "big time" route during the fall and winter.

LEWIS CLEAN AND ABLE IS ACKERMAN'S OPINION

"I am confident that the more the people learn about Vivian M. Lewis," said State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman yesterday, "the stronger he will become among the voters. Every public trust he has executed with ability and faithfulness. His record is clean and clear.

"He was a member of Assembly for three terms and leader of the Republican majority during his last term. His record as clerk in the Court of Chancery and as Banking and Insurance Commissioner indicate that he is a man of force and capacity.

"He is intimately familiar with the needs and details of the State Government, and I am sure if elected he will give the people of the State one of the best and most economical administrations they have ever experienced.

"Above all, Mr. Lewis is not an unknown quantity in public affairs. Theories will not control his actions, for he has the benefit by which the people will profit of long years of training and experience."

39 PROPERTIES SOLD BY THE CITY FOR TAXES

Thirty-nine properties, chiefly residential, out of a total list of 277 were sold for taxes in the office of Tax Collector William R. Townsend yesterday afternoon. In a majority of cases the mortgagees secured the several properties in which they were interested, while in other instances J. Francis Cahill, of Newark, representing a syndicate, purchased a number of properties. The sale netted $1,000, the lowest price being paid for a single property being $66 and the highest price, $134.86.

A half-dozen properties out of the entire list comprised vacant lots, while the balance were residential. Mr. Townsend is rapidly clearing up the delinquent list and an early settlement is anticipated on those remaining to be sold. These sales require much detail work and the collector is always anxious to dispose of the properties on the advertised day of sale.

DECISION RESERVED IN LOCAL DAMAGE SUIT.

Judge William Newcorn, in the District court this morning, reserved decision in the action brought by Charles Johnson, of South avenue, against Alfonso Colucci, a contractor, for damages sustained, in July to his horse and wagon which, it is alleged, fell into an unprotected trench opened by the defendant.

The suit brought by Johnson is for $300. Francis J. Blatz represented the defendant and Robert Newton Crane appeared for the complainant.

According to the two witnesses called for the complainant the hole into which his rig fell was unguarded and unprotected, but the four witnesses for Mr. Colucci denied this, and the testimony was so conflicting that Judge Newcorn could not decide the case without reviewing the entire testimony.

Supreme Castle to Meet.

The Supreme Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will convene at Scranton, Pa., O tober 11, and among those who will attend are Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin and Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Kinney. This will be one of the most important sessions of the Supreme Castle, as a great deal of important legislation will be taken up by the officers.

Wants Room in Courthouse.

County Superintendent Savitz, of Westfield, has made application to the Board of Freeholders for a room in the courthouse in which to conduct the duties of his office and at the same time applies for an appropriation for clerical hire. The board has the matter under consideration and it is quite likely that the requisition will be granted. The limit of clerical expenditure is $500.

Will Visit Bushwick Castle.

Past Grand Chief Horace J. Martin and a delegation of members from Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will visit Bushwick Castle, No. 12, of Brooklyn, tonight, for the purpose of presenting one of the members of the latter castle with a past chief's badge. The delegation will leave here on the 7:09 train.

Opening Fall and Winter Season.

A. E. Force & Co., dry goods merchants of West Front street, are holding their millinery opening and exhibit of fall and winter goods this week, and the public is invted to inspect the large and complete stock of new goods.

PLAINFIELD'S W. C. T. U. HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

All of the officers of the local branch of the W. C. T. U. were re-elected at the annual meeting in the Union rooms this morning. They are: President, Mrs. Mary D. Tomlinson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. H. Bennett; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine; treasurer, Mrs. A. G. Negley; and honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. J. W. Yates and Mrs. E. Parse. The following delegates were elected to the State convention to be held at Newark on Wednesday, October 12: Mrs. G. Staats, Mrs. E. A. Parse and Mrs. P. H. Bennett.

The treasurer's report showed receipts of $596.90 and a balance in the treasury of $31.19. Mrs. Tomlinson presided at the morning session which adjourned at noon. All of the officers of the local union were present.

This afternoon's session will be taken up largely by the reading of reports. Among these are the following: On railroad men, on Foreign missions, on the press and on evangelistic work. The corresponding secretary will also read her report. An important feature of the afternoon session which began at 2:30 o'clock, was a talk by Miss S. J. Keron, of Elizabeth, on "Prison and Jail Work."

MISS ESSIE THOMPSON TO WED LE ROY GWYER

Miss Essie Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Thompson, of 1103 Putnam avenue, and LeRoy VanAlstyne Gwyer, also of this city, will be married this evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which Miss Thompson is a member, will officiate.

There will be no attendants and the affair will be a quiet one, owing to the illness of the bride's mother. Only the members of the immediate families will witness the ceremony. After a wedding trip the couple will reside on Albert street. Mr. Gwyer is manager for the Brugiere Chemical Company, of Newark, and both he and Miss Thompson are well-known in this city.

DUNELLEN TAX RATE IS $1.96 ON THE $100.

Returns from the various taxing districts of the county, now being received by Clerk William A. Spencer, of the Middlesex County Board of Taxation, show that the rates in nearly all places are low in comparison with what they have been in past years. Dunellen's rate is $1.96.

According to the official returns received up to yesterday, rates in some of the districts are as follows: Woodbridge, $2.02; South Amboy, $1.52; South Brunswick, $1.36; Spotswood, $1.65; Monroe, $1.44; Perth Amboy, $1.78; New Brunswick's rate will remain at $2.16, according to the figures first compiled a few days ago.

REYNOLD WILLAMS SUCCEEDS W. F. HILL AS STAGE MANAGER.

Reynold Williams, formerly of the Poli Stock Company, of Springfield, and last season stage manager for Maud Adams on her road tour in "What Every Woman Knows," has been engaged to succeed Warren F. Hill, as stage manager for the Proctor & Sanderson stock company at the Plainfield theatre.

Mr. Williams will enter upon his duties this week. Mr. Williams has had considerable success as a stage manager for stock productions. He plans to present some of the latest successes of recent years, his opening production being "When We Were Twenty-One," on Monday, to be followed by "Prince Carl."

First M. E. Church Services.

Beginning Sunday, the regular services of the First M. E. church will be resumed as follows: Morning preaching service at 10:30, Sunday-school at 2:30 Epworth League at 7, and evening service at 7:45. On Sunday, October 2, the annual rally day exercises of the Sunday-school will be held in Vincent chapel at 2:30 o'clock. The Sunday-school association has about completed arrangements for the entertainment of the convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association, which will be held in the First M. E. church, Thursday, October 20.

To Initiate Candidates.

A number of candidates for membership in Murray patrol, oy Scouts' will be initiated Saturday. An interesting program has been prepared for the occasion. The inftiation will be under the direction of Boys' Secretary William Bingeman.

FACTORY INSPECTORSHIP

Chances are That Gov. Fort Will Not Reappoint Andrew McCardell.

DECISION MAY BE TOMORROW.

Commissioner Wm. L. Gloak, of the Common Council is After the Job, Which Pays $1,500 a Year.

Governor Fort will dispose of the remaining appointments for factory inspectors either tomorrow or next Tuesday and it is probable that the axe will fall on Andrew McCardell, of this city, who has had charge of the Plainfield-Elizabeth district for the last six years. Everything looked rosy for a reappointment until Mr. McCardell declined to lend himself to the effort to renominate Charles N. Fowler for Congress and then some person or persons started to "get at him." The opposition became known when the Plainfielder declared himself in favor of Judge William N. Runyon.

It is claimed, however, at the Department of Labor office in Trenton that factional politics cut no figure in the matter. The real reason, it is stated there, is that Mr. McCardell has not been devoting two days a week to factory inspection work as is required. The fact remains, however, according to his friends, that since he has been in office not a single complant has been made against his work either by an employer or an employee. It is further stated in his defense that while only devoting one day a week to the performance of his duties, he has really accomplished as much in that time as the other inspectors have in double the time. The reason for this is that he covers double or triple the territory in a day, using his own automobile for the purpose instead of going from one place to another by train as the others do.

There is only one other man out for the job. He is Tenement House Commissioner William L. Gloak, a member of the local Common Council. Mr. Gloak has been after the place for some time, but no one seems to know what his chances are for landing the job.

So far as the political phase of the opposition to Mr. McCardell is concerned, Gov. Fort gives it no weight whatever. He will be guided purely by the recommendation of Labor Commissioner Bryant who, it is said, wants a man who will devote two days a week to the work.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH MAY ERECT NEW EDIFICE.

The trustees of the Temple Baptist church at a special meeting, last night, were authorized to exchange the church parsonage building on East Second street, for the A. A. Farland property, 317 East Front street, with the idea that at some future time a new church may be built thereon. The East Front street property has a frontage of eighty feet and is two hundred feet deep, large enough for a handsome edifice. If it should be decided to make a change the trustees will sell the building and site where the church is now located. The present edifice was erected thirteen years ago and is rapidly outgrowing its demands.

An option was secured on the Farland property several days ago, the trustees believing it to be a wise move to get a suitable site while they had the opportunity. Rev. J. W. Musson, the pastor of the church and his co-workers, have accomplished a good work and the need of a better location has been felt for a long time. If it is decided to erect a new edifice, plans for a structure with all modern conveniences will be adopted.

E. J. Skinner Resigns.

Edward J. Skinner, of Elmwood place, who has been an agent for the Prudential Insurance Company for many years, has been compelled to give up his position on account of poor health. He has been a great sufferer with rheumatism and finds it impossible to hold his position.

TIZ--For Sore Feet

Tired, Aching, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty, Feet? Corns Callouses or Bunions? Use TIZ. It's Sure, Quick and Certain.

You Will Enjoy Using TIZ. The Most Pleasant Remedy You Ever Tried and Moreover It Works.

At last here is instant relief and a lasting permanent remedy for sore feet. No more tired feet. No more aching feet. No more swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more corns. No more bunions. No more callouses, no matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use TIZ.

TIZ is totally unlike anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleanses them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists 25 cents per box or direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended and sold by Corporation Notice.

PROPOSALS FOR SEWERS.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, at a regular meeting held Tuesday, September 6, 1910, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, October 3, 1910, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the construction of such portion of the sewers contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved August 1, 1910, as provided for in the plans and specifications adopted by the Common Council September 6, 1910, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, No. 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals, the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council.

Each proposal for the pumping plants must be accompanied by a certified check for $200.00 and each proposal for the remainder of the contract by a certified check for $300.00, payable to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield.

The Engineer's approximate estimate of the quantities of material required, and the work to be done, is as follows:

GOLF.

The Greater New York and suburban members of the American Association of Advertising Interests have formed a local branch. They call it the Metropolitan Golf Association of Advertising. Three tournaments are planned for this fall.

Owing to the large number of advertising men who are devotees of golf in this section of the country the officers of the association have found it necessary to limit the membership in the association to 150, and as there are now enrolled over 125 members but few vacancies remain to be filled. Anybody interested in advertising is eligible to membership. The September tournament will in all likelihood be held at the Baltusrol Golf Club on Thursday, September 29, when no less than twelve prizes will be competed for. The officers of the association for 1910-11 are as follows: President, William H. Beers; vice-president, Don M. Parker; secretary, Loius De Veau; treasurer, B. H. Ridder; chairman admission committee, Richard R. Mamlok, 290 Fifth avenue, New York. The association is composed of a number of prominent golfers, among whom may be mentioned L. A. Hamilton of Englewood, Joseph Knapp and Frank Presbrey of Garden City, A. S. Higgins of St. Andrews, W. C. Freeman of Fox Hills, Marshall Whitlach of Dyker Meadow, C. W. Inslee of Wykagyl, Kurtz Wilson of Apawamis, W. C. Childs of Greenwich, A. W. Erickson of Oakland, E. J. Ridgeway, J. C. Platt and Jason Rogers of Montclair, J. W. Erickson of this city, George Perry of Hackensack, and S. K. Evans of Knollwood.

A topic discussed at the meeting of the United States Golf Association committee during the amateur championship was the formation of a national handicap list of players and the investigations into the matter will be continued. The object is to limit the starters in the championship to those who on class are entitled to play without encumbering the field and delaying the game. It will be one of several plans to be worked out, with the hope that one may be selected that does not interfere with the privilege of all amateurs to enter if they choose.

If a system can be devised it will be as easy to handicap players on a national as on a State or league basis. On the September list of the Massachusetts State Golf Association, for instance, there are 3,317 players, allowing for membership in more than one club. In all that muster, to reveal how thoroughly the work is done, only twenty-seven are at three strokes or under. This is the selected division:

0—J. G. Anderson, T. M. Claflin, P. Gilbert, A. G. Lockwood, H. W. Stucklen, P. W. Whittemore, H. H. Wilder.
1—W. C. Chick.
2—T. R. Fuller, F. H. Hoyt, J. B. Hylan, W. R. Tuckerman.

SOME COMMON SENSE.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon in accepting a nomination for a twentieth term in Congress yesterday delivered one of his characteristic practical speeches. He gave his attention to "those who are peddling novelties in governmental policies" and especially made it plain that the attacks on the new tariff law are inspired by free-traders. The issue in the congressional campaigns, he declared, is nothing less than protection versus revenue tariff; and in this connection the Speaker of the House said:

"I am not a Jeremiah, for I have faith in the good sense of the people, even when advised by those who are peddling novelties in governmental policies, to keep abreast of this age of publicity. My notion about progress is that it should be a movement forward, not simply a loud noise about the necessity for the movement, nor an extravagant promise to accelerate the movement if given control of the machine. I have seen men who promised to get sixty miles out of an engine that had been making only thirty miles an hour if they could only get hold of the lever, and I have seen some of them in their ignorance reverse the engine, sending it and the whole train backward. I have met the man who claimed he could extract gold from sea water, but I have also seen John T. Raymond play Colonel Mulberry Sellers and heard him get off that dramatic sentence, "There's millions in it,' and I have measured the serious pretentions of the former with the comedy of Raymond as he illustrated the humor of Mark Twain. I may be a little old-fashioned in such matters, but I prefer a demonstration to a declaration, and our friends the enemy who are demanding another tariff revision to bring into effect a revenue tariff in place of the protective tariff look to me like reactionaries who would reverse the engine and go back over this phenomenal half century of progress to the old order before the war."

TAX RATES IN UNION ANNOUNCED BY BOARD

The Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes yesterday fixed the tax rates for the various municipalities throughout the county. As a rule, the rates show an increase over those of last year and in almost every instance, the increase is due to increased school expenses. Roselle Park has the highest rate in the county with 1.97, an increase of thirty-nine points over last year. This is due to the added expense of running and paying for the new schoolhouse recently erected there. The lowest rate is for Clark Township, where taxpayers will have to pay only seventy-seven cents on every $100 valuation. The rate for Elizabeth remains the same, 1.60.

The increase in Linden of several points is the only raise not caused by added school expenses. This is due to the new sewer which was recently installed.

Westfield, which had the high water mark last year with 1.95, shows a decrease of eight points in the rate. Rahway and New Providence Borough also have large increases, the rate in both of these municipalities being more than 1.90.

Plainfield	1.65	1.68
Elizabeth	1.60	1.60
Clark Township	.77	.96
Cranford	1.64	1.60
Fanwood Township	1.62	1.56
Fanwood Borough	1.66	1.68
Garwood	1.06	1.07
Kenilworth	1.18	1.44
Linden Township	.90	.85
Linden Borough	1.15	1.08
Mountainside	1.45	1.29
New Prov. Township	1.45	1.54
New Prov. Borough	1.92	1.76
Rahway	1.96	1.84
Roselle	1.60	1.72
Roselle Park	1.97	1.58
Summit	1.84	1.72
Union	1.28	1.38
Westfield	1.87	1.95

FIFTY POUNDS OF RATTLERS.

Box of Snakes Shipped to the Bronx Zoo by a Jersey Hunter.

Harry Trauger's annual shipment of rattlesnakes, fifty pounds of them, got away from Newton safely Tuesday night. The rattlers, safely boxed with a wire netting nailed tight all around, are destined for the New York Zoological Garden.

The snakes' buzzing sounded like a distant saw mill all the time the wire was being tacked on. The character of the shipment was noised around, and by the time the express car came along half the town was trying to get a peek at the box.

"We have had one fine season for rattlers," said Trauger. "I don't think I've seen more since I've been in the business. Don't tell me the rattlesnake is disappearing. It ain't so in Sussex. There wasn't a day in the mountains I didn't see at least one, and so I picked out only the big ones."

Shrinkage in Values

"May I ask what is the nature of your fortune, madam?"

RED CROSS STAMPS TO RAISE A MILLION

"A million for tuberculosis" is the slogan of the 1910 Red Cross Christmas stamp campaign. The familiar little seals that are seen on letters at Christmas time have proved such a success that this year about a hundred millions of them will probably be printed. Already twenty-five millions have been struck off and will soon be placed on sale.

The Red Cross has a new scheme this year for the sale of the seals. It will sell them to local associations and these associations will receive 87½ percent. of the profits, the other 12½ per cent. going to pay the expenses of getting them out. What is left will be divided equally between the Red Cross and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The stamps, which are of an attractive design this year, may be placed on the backs as well as the fronts of letters. The reason that the Red Cross desires to have them known as 'seals" is that last year the dead letter office of the Postoffice was packed with missives bearing only the Red Cross stamps. Many ignorant persons and some not so ignorant believed that the seals prepaid postage. About forty millions of them were printed last year, and the sum realized amounted to about $250,000.

Stamps of this character were used in Brooklyn and Boston as far back as 1862 in connection with Civil War bazaars and fairs. They disappeared for a time, but Jacob Riis, finding them used in Norway in a tuberculosis campaign, wrote an article about them which induced the Delaware State Association to adopt them in 1907. About $3,000 was raised in three weeks in Delaware and Eastern Pennsylvania. They were first used nationally in 1908 and $125,000 was raised by the Red Cross.

TRIED TO FILE OWN WILL AT OFFICE OF SURROGATE.

A well dressed stranger walked into Surrogate Parrot's office at Elizabeth yesterday and said he desired to file a will. "All right," remarked the surrogate. "Whose will is it?"

"My own," replied the man. "I devised it and want it filed for my wife's benefit.'

Surrogate Parrot, much surprised, said: "Why, your will cannot be filed here until after you are dead."

"Oh! I did not know that,' remarked the caller, and he walked out.

The surrogate said in twenty-three years of experience he never had such a request made to him before.

Metamorphosed

By DOROTHEA HALE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

The manager of burlesque opera sat at his desk. He had given out that he needed one who could take a woman's part to act, dance and sing. A girl about twenty years old, comely, with a good figure and a bright face, entered.

"Dance?" asked the manager.

The girl replied by pirouetting about in good style.

"Sing?"

She ran the scale. Her voice was a full, round soprano and very sweet. The range was remarkable.

"Act?"

She recited a passage in a well known play.

"You are engaged."

Miss Fredrica Harrow proved a success. She had in her a certain spirit of delivery that was especially appropriate to the parts she took. One role she played was that of a female Mephistopheles. When the audience left the theater after the performance they felt that they had been under the influence of a deliciously bad girl.

One Sunday morning the manager went to church. It is possible for a manager of a burlesque troop to go to church and with religious motives. But this manager did not go with such motives. He went because he had heard that in the choir was a remarkably fine tenor. The services opened with a tenor solo. The manager was astonished. There was Miss Harrow in man's clothes. He not only recognized her by her face, but through her voice, which was Miss Harrow's lower notes.

But there was one difference between Miss Harrow soprano and Miss Harrow tenor. The latter was as heavenly as the former was devilish. She sang an "Ave Maria," and it seemed that an angel rather than a mortal was praying to the Virgin. The manager did not wonder that the tenor was exciting attention. But he had no use for him in burlesque opera. He expressed the good, and with that the manager was not concerned.

"Where were you last night?" asked the manager the next day when Miss Harrow came to rehearsal.

"At home."

The manager said no more. He had slept over the tenor's identity and had come to the conclusion that he could not be Miss Harrow.

Not long after that a man in his troupe fell sick, and there was no one to take his part.

"How low are his lowest notes?" asked Fredrica.

The manager told her, and she said that she thought she could take the part. He also asked her to sing the lower notes, but she said she couldn't jump right into them; she must get it by practice. She left him, agreeing to be ready for the part when required.

Miss Harrow in man's clothes was a very different person from Miss Harrow in woman's clothes. In the first place, instead of singing the part in a low soprano voice, she sang it as a tenor. In the second, she made a failure in her action. Instead of being adapted to burlesque, she sang as if she were in oratorio.

"What the dickens is the matter with you?" said the manager after the first act. "Your singing is all right—indeed, it's a wonder for a woman—but you act as if you were preaching a sermon."

Miss Harrow hung her head and looked hurt. However, she finished the performance, and before the manager could catch her to find any more fault with her she had gone home. But the next day when she went into the theater he tackled her.

"There was something funny about your work last night. How did you get down to a real baritone, and what made you act like a clergyman?"

"I told you that with a little practice I could do the low notes, and, as for my acting, the part is different from those I've been playing. It is not a rollicking role."

"And it wasn't taken out of a hymn book, either."

"I'm sorry. I thought I could take baritone parts sometimes."

"So you can, but not where there's any deviltry in them."

In a few weeks the regular baritone was down again.

"I think," said Fredrica, "I can take that role. It's more serious."

"Who'll take your part?"

"I think I can take them both."

"Nonsense!"

"I'll show you how it can be done tomorrow at rehearsal." And she tripped away.

When the rehearsal came and the manager went on to the stage to conduct it he was more bewildered than ever. There were two Fredrica Harrows, fine and superfine.

"How's this?" asked the manager, staring from one to the other.

"Permit me," said Fredrica, "to introduce my twin brother, Frederick Harrow. He has a tenor voice."

Then she admitted that she had substituted him for herself in the man's part; that while she was all right he was religiously emotional.

"Well," said the manager, "I want you two. I have a scheme for an opera involving a transformation scene, man metamorphosed to woman and woman metamorphosed back to man. You two will do it to perfection."

And so it was that the twins appeared in a part prepared for them and reaped a harvest. The opera was called "The Devil and the Saint."

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

METHODS OF THE FRENCH HOUSEWIFE.

One of the chief characteristics of the Frenchwoman, no matter what her class, is her excellent housekeeping, and just now, when the Paris season is over, this characteristic is uppermost. She goes through every detail of the household with minute care, thoroughly overhauls linen chests, wardrobes and china cupboards, renovates all that is necessary and makes all arrangements for autumn cleaning. As she does with her house, so she does with her own clothing, and it is a real pleasure to be initiated into the mysteries of wardrobe. Everything is so dainty, so orderly and so suggestive of the care and trouble bestowed upon it that it becomes as interesting as a human personality. Moreover, it is not suggestive of frivolity but, rather gives one the idea that the woman herself is a fair and comely being, moved in all her actions by a spirit of beauty. She is practical also, and, though she spends a great deal of money upon the dainty garments she possesses, she rarely wastes anything.

The power of utilizing old materials has grown out of the Frenchwoman's natural instinct to buy good things—things which one cannot throw aside carelessly and which always remain a joy, even when they have been mended and cleaned several times. Thus, when one season is over she at once examines what she has and decides what can be adapted for the next, or what can be put aside for a few months. Even quite poor Frenchwomen possess real lace, hand-embroidered blouses, fine linen and beautiful colored embroideries; therefore there is far less to dispose of at the end of each season, but quite a lot of cleaning and remodeling to be done. It is the details of dress over which he Frenchwoman is so particular and which plays such an important part of the general effect. There is a saying in Paris that with a good veil, a good hat and gloves and good shoes a woman is always well dressed. It would seem so, for even in the plainest gown, the average Frenchwoman has a style and smartness all her own and which women of other nations seldom attain.

The Bathing Girl.

I said she looked like Venus, rising from the sea,
But when I told her of it, she much
was vexed at me.
Not that she was so modest, as she observed, but shoot!
It seemed I hadn't noticed her stylish bathing suit!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 25, 1910.

Topic.—My denomination at work for my country.—Ps. lxxxvi, 1-13. Leader, Rev. Sherman B. Doyle, D. D.

There is little doubt that every one of the great Christian denominations is doing something for our country or working along some lines of home missionary work. The probability also is that the majority of them are doing the same kind of work. One great evil in the great west at least has resulted from the haphazard and unsystematic manner in which the mission work was begun. There was no co-operation among the denominations, and the result was that in small towns varying from 1,000 up in population contained from six to eight or ten churches, all of them having only a name to live. If some arrangements had been made by which the country had been divided there would have been one or two strong Christian churches in each one of these places, and not a large number, almost on the point of starvation, and the ministers' lives worn out by having four or five churches under their care and preaching in each one once or twice in four or five weeks. Too late the great mistake has been seen, but it is hard to change present church arrangements, and the struggle goes on by pastors and churches for a mere existence. This is the saddest feature of our denominational work, especially in the western part of our country.

The Christian denominations of our land will never be organically united. Such a hope is as impossible as the realization of a future Utopia on earth. But experience has taught the church that it must unite in co-operation and fellowship, and especially in the missionary cause, if it is to be done in a sensible, businesslike and economical way. Such union is becoming closer and closer every day. It is manifested especially in home mission fields. In our newer fields Alaska, Cuba and Porto Rico, with the exception of the large cities, where all may go—these lands are apportioned to the different denominations. For instance, the Presbyterian church, because first on the ground, has received as her allotment the southwestern part of Alaska and the upper part of the Yukon valley. So that, instead of there being a number of churches at points like Eagles and Point Barrow, there is in each but one—a Presbyterian. In other portions there are only Methodists or Episcopalians, and, by the way, Point Barrow is the farthermost northern missionary point in the world. The only white people it contains are the faithful missionary, the Rev. Dr. Campbell and his wife. A year or so ago their church and other buildings were burned down. But they still stood "fast as good soldiers of Christ." They usually get mail once a year, but sometimes but once in two years! Such examples of obedience to Christ's great command should spur us with a greatly increased interest in and labor for this cause.

The methods of work used by each denomination should be studied by the societies belonging to it. It will be a most interesting study from the beginning to the present day. The methods of all are preaching, evangelistic work, the distribution of Bibles and tracts and the education of the children, spiritually, morally, mentally and industrially. But we should know our workers, where they are located and the story of our school work. The methods may be the same, but there is great variety in using them.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ezra vi, 8-10; Neh. ii, 1-5; Ps. ii, 18; cxlvii, 20; Prov. xiv, 34; Jer. xxix, 7; Matt. xxviii, 18, 20; Mark xii, 13-17; Acts i, 8; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14-15; 4 Ps. cxxii.

Tribute to American C. E. Work.

Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, ex-vice president of the United States, held the attention of a large audience of Endeavorers and friends in the Christian church of Indianapolis, Ind., in an address on "The Progress of the World's Society of Christian Endeavor and the Civilizing Power of Christianity as I saw It on My Trip Around the World." The occasion was a Christian Endeavor rally day, and it was great. Mr. Fairbanks spoke with sympathy and power, and his address sparkled with many a gem of truth.

We quote a few sentences:

"Wherever I found American missionaries I found them with an American flag in one hand and a Bible in the other. Close up the churches of our country and it will at once begin a retrograde movement. The ministry is the highest calling any man can engage in. I always honor the ministry. I had only a limited conception of the work of missions and what was being done in the foreign fields until I saw with my own eyes and felt in my own heart the great things which are being accomplished there. Among all the nations of the earth America leads in Christian Endeavor work."—W. Wells Stoddard in Christian Endeavor World.

Let Your Light Shine.

Don't hide your light under a bushel. Let it shine. Give wise publicity to your efforts for the young people. Get the pastor and Sunday school superintendent to speak often and heartily of the society and commend it and its work to the young people. It is not enough in these days of counter worldly attractions simply to permit Christian Endeavor to exist. The negative attitude does not meet the situation. Christian Endeavor to do its best work in any church must have the positive, enthusiastic support of the leaders of the church.—William Shaw, General Secretary.

IN A SPIRIT OF MISCHIEF

By SHIELA ESTHER DUNN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"My child, what's the matter between you and George?"

"Oh, aunty, I'm vexing him!"

"Don't do it."

A young girl sat at the feet of a woman of ninety. The tender curves in the face of the one contrasted strongly with the wrinkles of the other, who was her great-great-grandaunt. The one was of the early twentieth century, the other of the early nineteenth.

"When I was your age," the old woman continued after a pause, "General Jackson was president. He was a great fighting man, and since he not only fought the enemies of his country, but his own enemies, his example affected every one. He fought a duel with and killed a young married man who said something disagreeable about his wife. I always thought she was no saint, but the romance of it fired a young friend of mine, Albert Stevenson, and he was constantly looking for some girl on whom to practice Jackson's knight errantry.

"I was accepting the attention of a young Virginian, Fitz Hugh Fairfax. He was a remarkably handsome man and full of real chivalry, not the spurious kind affected by many others. He was devoted to me, and I loved him desperately.

"But our southern girls had the same romantic ideas as the young man. We thought it a fine thing to flirt with two or three men and at last give ourselves to some suitor who was ready to play Don Quixote in our defense. I was at the time playing a game with both Albert Stevenson and Fitz Hugh Fairfax. I had one other string to my bow, but I have forgotten his name. And yet at one time I thought I should marry him. Oh, dear, how one's memory fails after so many years!

"One day I was walking in the garden with Fairfax. We sat down on a bench under a tree. Stevenson called, and they told him I was in the garden. I saw him leave the house and come toward us. Fairfax was turned away from him. I am sure Fairfax was about to propose to me. He was bending over me with his face near to mine. Suddenly I jumped up, assuming an offended appearance. At the same time Stevenson joined us.

"He asked Fitz Hugh what it all meant. Very red in the face, he told Stevenson to ask me. Stevenson turned to me, and I, acting under the guidance of the spirit of deviltry that was in me, said never a word, but walked to the house.

"I was no sooner on the gallery than it occurred to me that some real trouble might come out of my freak, and, returning to the young men, I told them that there was nothing of moment between Mr. Fairfax and me and they were to consider the matter as not having happened. Then when Fairfax gave me that cold, contemptuous look, which I can see at this very moment, my blood ran cold. I knew he had loved me, that I loved him and that I had lost him.

"Neither of the young men spoke. As I had nothing more to say and influenced by the look Fitz Hugh had given me, I went away, leaving them together. I made a second mistake in doing this, but I couldn't remain where Fitz Hugh was after that look. I wished to go to my room and weep. There was more to weep for than the loss of his respect, and no man can really love a woman without that. It did not occur to me that after I had exonerated him there would be any trouble between him and Stevenson.

"I lay awake that night till dawn and then fell asleep. I awoke late in the morning and went downstairs into the dining room.

"'La's a massy, Missy Imogen,' said our table servant, 'have yo' heerd de news?'

"'No,' I said. 'What is it?'

"'Mars' Stevenson and Mars' Fitz Hugh fought a duel dis mawnin' befo' sunup, an' Mars' Fitz Hugh killed Mars' Stevenson.'

"I sank on the floor in a swoon.

"It was a long time before I recovered from an attack of brain fever. I recovered from the fever, but that's all I have recovered from to this day.

"Fitz Hugh never came to see me or, as far as I could learn, asked for me. I knew that in my heedless act and its result I had fixed a great gulf between him and me. He went back to Virginia. He never married, nor did I. But we never met again.

"A friend of both parties told me what had happened after I left the two young men. Stevenson assumed that I had exonerated Fitz Hugh because I was magnanimous and did not wish to make trouble. He posed as my defender and sent a challenge to the man who had insulted me. Insulted me! In another moment he would have asked me to be his wife. They fought with pistols, and at the first shot Fitz Hugh had fired in the air. Stevenson then made some irritating remark, whereupon Fitz Hugh on the second shot had sought to wing his opponent. By this shot he unintentionally killed his antagonist.

"By that one act I lost the only man I ever loved, made him a murderer with a sting upon his conscience, caused the premature death of one who loved me and have lived for three-quarters of a century under a blight.

"No, no, dear, don't vex your lover. Many a pair of young lovers have been separated and their lives turned awry by a spirit of mischief on the part of the girl. But mine is the worst of all."

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, the nineteenth day of September, 1910, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, pursuant to the provisions of an act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," approved April 7, 1890, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, a system of sewerage has been constructed in said city and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as was authorized by the several ordinances of the said city enacted under and by virtue of said acts of the Legislature and particularly the ordinances respectively entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the construction of a system of sewerage," approved July 25, 1894; "A further ordinance to provide for the construction of a system of sewerage," approved June 21, 1895; "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of an Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897; "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances, of the City of Plainfield," approved April 4, 1901; and "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved August 1, 1910; and

WHEREAS the Common Council hath ascertained and determined, and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine to acquire by purchase or condemnation certain land within said city, needed for sewerage purposes, and said Common Council hath deemed it expedient and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine that it is necessary to collect the sewage of a portion of said city from sewers to be constructed under the said acts of the Legislature and to elevate said sewage by means of pumps or pneumatic ejectors so that said sewage may flow into mains already constructed in said City, and to erect all necessary buildings, works and machinery thereon, and to take and appropriate for said purposes the lands and real estate hereinafter specified (the Common Council having ascertained, adjudged and determined, and hereby doth ascertain, adjudge and determine that the whole of said lands and real estate is necessary for said purposes) upon making compensation to the owner or owners, as in said acts of the Legislature provided, the said Common Council hath deemed it necessary and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine that it is necessary to take and appropriate for such purposes the said lands and real estate in order to effectually construct said further addition to said system of sewerage pursuant to said acts of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Common Council having duly investigated the premises and considered the same, is of the opinion that the public good requires the construction of said further addition to said system of sewerage, and particularly the adoption of said plan of raising the sewage, and the taking and appropriation of said lands as authorized by said act of the Legislature, and the Common Council hath so determined and doth hereby so determine;

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that the plan of raising sewage above specified be and the same is hereby adopted, in connection with the sewerage system already established as aforesaid, and that the land hereinafter specified being needed for said sewerage purposes, and the Common Council deeming it necessary to take and appropriate the same for such purposes, be taken and appropriated for the purposes aforesaid, pursuant to the provisions of said acts of the Legislature upon making compensation to the owner or owners thereof, as in said acts provided, that is to say: A certain tract situate, lying and being in the said City of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, described as follows:

BEGINNING at the intersection of the northwesterly side line of Sherman Avenue with the southwesterly side line of Monroe Avenue, as said streets are now laid out and opened, and running from said point in a northwesterly direction along said side line of Monroe Avenue a distance of two hundred feet to line of property now or formerly of William S. Bell; thence along said line in a southwesterly direction a distance of one hundred and fifty feet; thence in a southeasterly direction and parallel with Monroe Avenue a distance of two hundred feet to a point in the northwesterly side line of Sherman Avenue; thence along said line in a northeasterly direction a distance of one hundred and fifty feet to the point and place of beginning, together with the land in front of said premises to the middle of Monroe and Sherman Avenues. Being the property shown in red on map filed with the City Clerk September 19, 1910, entitled: "Map showing Land proposed to be taken and appropriated for Sewerage Purposes, City of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1910."

was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a special meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Thursday, the twentieth day of October, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting, to be held on the twentieth day of October, 1910, as above stated, or afterward, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance, notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.
J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Lay Out and Open a Portion of Denmark Road," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at 8 o'clock p. m., on the twentieth day of October, A. D., nineteen hundred and ten, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.
Dated Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 19, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

TO LAY OUT AND OPEN A PORTION OF DENMARK ROAD

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of the street known as Denmark Road, as already laid out opened and dedicated to the public and as shown on map on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Application Map for the Opening of Denmark Road from Ravine Road to the Southeasterly line of Netherwood Park, City of Plainfield, N. J., Sept., 1910," being the portion of said street extending from the easterly side line of Ravine Road to the portion of Denmark Road already accepted by ordinance approved April 2, 1906, be and the same is hereby accepted as a public street of said city.

AN ORDINANCE

to lay out and open Astor Place from the southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue.

WHEREAS, the Common Council have judged and hereby do judge that the public good requires that Astor Place should be laid out and opened between the points named in the title to this ordinance, therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That a public street to be known as Astor Place, be and the same is hereby ordered laid out and opened in said city as the line of said street is shown on a map made by Andrew J. Gavett, City Surveyor, and filed with the City Clerk, September 19, 1910, entitled "Map showing proposed Laying Out and Opening of Astor Place, from Clinton Avenue to Hunter Avenue and of Lyman Place, from West Third Street to Astor Place, City of Plainfield, N. J., August, 1910," to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

Said street shall be forty-five feet in width, that is to say, twenty-two and one-half feet on each side of the center line shown on said map. Said center and side lines of said street are delineated on the map above referred to.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken for the laying out and opening of said Astor Place (the larger part of said street having already been dedicated to the public), include that part of the property now or formerly of The Home Real Estate Company and property now or formerly of Sarah C. Runyon and Charles H. Hand, described as follows: Beginning at a point in the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, where the same is intersected by the northwesterly side line of Astor Place produced, and running along said side line of Astor Place produced in a northeasterly direction, a distance of 94.07 feet, to the end of Astor Place as already dedicated to the public; thence along the end of Astor Place as already dedicated to the public in a southeasterly direction, a distance of 45.25 feet to a point in the southeasterly side line of Astor Place; thence along said side line produced in a southwesterly direction, a distance of 98.05 feet to a point in the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue; thence along said side line in a northwesterly direction a distance of 45 feet to the place of beginning.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken and the lines of the proposed street as the same is hereinabove ordered to be laid out and opened, are shown on said map on file with the City Clerk, hereinabove referred to and made a part hereof.

EGOTISTICAL MEN

"Is there anything on earth," inquired the fluffy-haired blonde, "that makes you so utterly weary as the condescending action of some man you know who assures you in that complacent way peculiar to the type, that he is going to call upon you very soon? As if," she added, with an air of disgust, "we were all sitting around holding our breaths waiting for the telephone to ring. In the fond hope that it will prove to be some masculine admirer who desires to honor us with his company! I'm sick of it!"

"Me, too!" chimed in with ungrammatical fervor the girl with the coronation braid.

The fluffy-haired blonde embroidered two polka dots with a puzzled frown. "You see," she said, "if the girl has a large and well-worn sense of humor she merely smiles to herself and wonders if it would pay to jolt the man into a state of enlightenment. But if her sense of humor is undeveloped she asks herself with disturbing qualms if it is really possible that the creature thinks she is crazy about him."

She regarded the entire row of polka dots with disfavor, preparatory to beginning on another. "Not long ago," she continued, "I had the satisfaction of freeing my mind on the subject."

"Really?" cried the girl with the coronation braid.

"It was just by accident," explained the fluffy-haired blonde.

"You know," she proceeded, "I was visiting Marie in Milwaukee last month." The others nodded. "Well, a certain man whom we will call George and whom I have always known, happened to be there at the same time, on business. Now, I'm fond of George, in a way.

"When he called up the house where I was visiting and informed me that he was 'going to get out to call,' I was very amiable about it. He wanted to set a time, but naturally I couldn't make an engagement without consulting my hostess. So Marie and I talked it over, and she insisted upon shifting the entire week's calendar in order to leave an evening open for George to call. We had something interesting on hand for every night, too, but Marie felt that it would be rude not to receive George. Finally we managed it for Saturday, and I wrote George a note to that effect.

"In the course of time Saturday came, and so did George. This is the way he began: 'Well, well, you've been here ten days, have you? Really, I did mean to come out before this. I hope you'll excuse me. I've been up to my ears in work.'"

The members of the sewing circle exploded with mirth, but the fluffy-haired blonde was too indignant at the recollection even to smile. "He thought," she said, "that the joy of my visit was blighted by his inattention!

"I was perfectly paralyzed for a moment, and then I proceeded, without heat or prejudice, to elucidate certain ethical points upon which it seemed to me George's education had been deficient.

"He listened with startled attention until I had finished, then he said, in a surprised voice: 'You mean, then, that you think I am egotistical?'

"'Painfully so,' I told him.

"'But really,' he assured me, looking shocked, 'really, you don't know me at all if you think that, not at all! Besides, I honestly was awfully busy, or I would have come out—'

The fluffy-haired blonde stopped and sighed reminiscently. "Then Marie came down," she said, "and took in the situation."

"'It has just occurred to me,' suggested Marie, 'that if we all three like motoring, we can telephone to Charles King. He asked us to go out tonight, you know, and seemed very much disappointed that we had an engagement.' She turned to George so sweetly that he was naturally obliged to acquiesce, but I noticed that he was thoughtful all evening."

The sewing circle giggled again.

"Of course," murmured the girl with the coronation braid, "men are not all like that."

"Indeed they aren't," agreed the fluffy-haired blonde, with satisfaction. "When Marie comes to visit me I want to show her that my friends are not all like George. And if we marry the nice, unassuming ones—"

"We mostly do," said young Mrs. Allision, soothingly. "The others remain bachelors, and their egotism grows upon them."

Not Such an Empire, After All.

Somehow it shrinks the breadth of our country when we know that an old man can walk across it, from sea to sea, in 77 days.—Philadelphia Record.

The One Place.

A gentleman was standing in the lobby of one of Birmingham's leading hotels when some one made a remark about it being so easy to get a little "wet refreshments" in the Magic city. The young man said: "I have been in Birmingham for nine days and I have never found that wet spot yet, and I want to tell you I have looked for it, too."

The "never sleep" negro porter of this hostelry had become interested in the conversation, and advancing close enough to the speaker to tip his cap politely, asked this question: "Boss, where is you been stopping since you come to town—in de cemetery?"—Birmingham News.

NOTICE!

In compliance with Section five of "An Act concerning Trust Companies," (Revision of 1899), The State Trust Company at Plainfield, New Jersey, herewith publishes its certificate of authority to do business.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
DEPARTMENT OF BANKING AND INSURANCE.

CERTIFICATE OF AUTHORITY

WHEREAS, "THE STATE TRUST COMPANY" at PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, of the City of Plainfield in the County of Union has complied with all the provisions of an act of the Legislature of this State, entitled "An Act concerning trust companies (Revision of 1899)," approved March 24th, 1899, and the supplements thereto and acts amendatory thereof, required to be complied with before receiving authority to commence business; therefore,

I, Vivian M. Lewis, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of the State of New Jersey, do hereby certify, that the said "THE STATE TRUST COMPANY" at PLAINFIELD, New Jersey, is duly and legally organized under said act as a trust company, and authorized to transact business as such in this State.

IN WITNESS THEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at Trenton, this fifteenth day of September, A. D., nineteen hundred and ten.

PENNSYLVANIA CITIES GROW.

Johnstown Has 55,482, Gaining 54.4 Per Cent.—Altoona is 52,127.

Erie, Penn., 66,525; an increase of 13,792, or 26.2 per cent. over 52,733 in 1900.

Altoona, Penn., 52,127, an increase of 13,154, or 33.8 per cent. over 38,973 in 1900.

McKeessport, Penn., 42,694, an increase of 8,467, or 24.7 per cent. over 34,227 in 1900.

Williamsport, Penn., 31,860, an increase of 3,103, or 10.8 per cent., over 28,757 in 1900.

The population of Johnstown, Penn., is 55,482, an increase of 19,546, or 54.4 per cent., as compared with 35,936 in 1900.

Will Manage Vaudeville House.

David Rogers, formerly treasurer of the Plainfield theatre, but now acting in a similar capacity for William J. Counihan at the Majestic theatre, Schnectady, N. Y., is spending a few days in town greeting old friends. He expects to go to Erie, Pa., soon to manage a vaudeville house, which Mr. Counihan recently acquired.

Dance at St. Stephen's.

The young people of St. Stephen's church will hold an informal dance in the parish house tonight.

GOLF TOURNAMENT AT COUNTRY CLUB

The initial play for the golf championship will be an event of unusual interest at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday. There will be prizes for the winner, runner-up, best score in qualifying round, winner of the defeated eight and winner of the second sixteen. The play will begin with a qualifying round, 18 holes, medal play. The first sixteen to compete for a special prize. There will also be a consolation prize for the beaten eight of the first sixteen.

All match play rounds will be played at 18 holes, the championship and beaten eight at scratch and the second sixteen on a handicap basis, as follows:

October 1, the first round for the championship and second sixteen; October 8, the second round for the championship, second round for second sixteen and first round for beaten eight in first sixteen; October 15, all semi-finals; October 22, all finals.

In the qualifying round scores for the first round of the day will count, therefore players wishing to enter this competition and who play in the morning should be sure to enter before starting. Match play rounds may by mutual agreement be played before the day set therefor, but if the match is not started by 3 o'clock on the day set, the player not appearing shall lose by default.

The basis for handicaps in match play rounds for the second sixteen will be three-quarters the difference of the handicaps, fractions of one-half and over counting as one. Strokes to be taken at holes indicated on "Table of Odds." In case of ties (except in the finals) players must arrange to settle the tie by the following Friday night, otherwise the committee reserves the right to eliminate one by draw so that the rest of the competition may not be delayed. The rules of the United States Golf Association shall govern all play, except as they may be modified by the local rules in force on the links.

Foodball Meeting Tonight.

The Dunellen football team will hold an important meeting tonight at the home of H. C. Smith. All candidates who would like to try for the team are cordially invited to be present. The Dunellen Athletic Club proposes to put out a stronger football eleven this year than in any season past. At the meeting tonight plans towards this end will be discussed. Manager Ayers promises that the meeting will be called at 8 o'clock promptly.

No Elks Game Today.

There will be no baseball played by the Plainfield Elks this week. It was intended that the local club should go to Stapleton, S. I., to play a return game with the nine the locals beat last Thursday, but the Stapleton men have not notified the locals that they would be ready to entertain them, hence the postponement of the game. Probably the game will be played next Thursday.

Nelson Runyon Re-elected.

The following officers were re-elected yesterday by the Thirtieth Regiment, N. J. Volunteers: James Vanderveer, president; Nelson Runyon, of this city, vice-president; James Bowman, secretary. The following from this city attended the thirtieth annual reunion which adjourned yesterday. Nelson Runyon, Theodore Runyon, C. H. Randolph, Peter Weaver, David Weaver, J. B. Stryker, Tenadore VanCleef, John Giddes, Jacob Manning, J. Lance Mundy and Randolph Thorn.

Will Remove Old Distillery.

Alex Kane has taken the contract to remove the old distillery building at East Millstone, which was formerly used by the Fleischman's when they manufactured yeast at that place. He is now taking down two buildings in New Brunswick, one on Burnett street and one on Skillman street. One of these buildings is 169 years old.

William Claasan, formerly a barber on Park avenue, who left town several years ago without bidding adieu to his numerous business friends, is now employed by a contracting mason in Gloversville, New York. Claasan visited this city one night recently.

POLITICAL TALK.

Certificates of nominations and acceptances have begun to flow into the office of the secretary of State at Trenton and will continue to do so until a short time before the time for making up the official ballots of candidates for county and State officers. Yesterday there was filed the acceptance of Congressman Harry C. Loudenslager, Republican candidate for re-election to Congress from the First district; John J. Gardner, Republican candidate for Congress from the Second district; Congressman Ira Wood, Republican candidate for re-election from the Fourth district; Richard Wayne Parker, Republican candidate for Congress from the Seventh district; William H. Wiley, Republican candidate for Congress, and Lon H. Hankins, Socialistic candidate for Congressman from the Eighth district. The certificate of nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor on the Democratic ticket was filed by Chairman John R. Hardin and Secretary William K. Devereux, of the Democratic convention.

Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., James R. Nugent, chairman of the Democratic State committee, and the executive committee of the Mercer county Democratic committee called on President Woodrow Wilson at his home at Trenton yesterday and had a conference about the general situation and made three engagements for the gubernatorial candidate. President Wilson arranged to be at the interstate fair in Trenton September 29, but he will not speak. He was informed that it was the custom to have the gubernatorial candidate at the fair to hold a sort of levee, and Doctor Wilson consented to fall in. The other engagements made for Doctor Wilson were one to speak at Jersey City September 28. It will be the opening of his campaign in the strongest Democratic county in the State. He will also speak in Trenton October 3.

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs will likely be the new chairman of the Republican State Committee. Franklin Murphy, the present chairman, was opposed to most of the things for which Candidate Vivian Murchison Lewis insisted and his retirement is a foregone conclusion. Senator Briggs, on the other hand, while himself a regular, has favored giving the progressives proper consideration, and it is believed that his selection as chairman would not be displeasing to the great army of independents in northern New Jersey. Mr. Briggs served as State chairman in the campaign that resulted in the election of Governor Stokes.

PUBLIC EDUCATION IN NEW PROVIDENCE TWP.

A special meeting of the Board of Education of New Providence township has been called by the president, William Jeffery, for tomorrow evening. The appointment of a supervising principal will be considered. It is proposed to appoint William Woodruff, the present prncipal, as supervising principal and to engage a woman teacher to take his classes part of the time, and the rest of the time teach music and drawing. The sentiment of the community is against the introduction of music and drawing into the curriculum. At present there are five teachers in the township for the schools and a kindergarten is well equipped.

The standard of the grammar grades has been raised so that now graduates can enter the City High School and the Summit High School.

Campbell to Meet Thompson.

Johnny Campbell, the crack local bowler, will meet "Chick" Thompson, of Detroit, in a match series, four out of seven games, at Campbell's alleys tomorrow night. Thompson is rated as one of the best bowlers in the west and the local "champer" will have to be at his best in order to win the match.

Lots of New Babies.

Patrolman Sweeney is celebrating the advent of another little one whic harrived at his home yesterday afternoon. The new arrival is a girl and makes the third girl born to members of the local police force within the past three weeks. Patrolmen McCarthy and McGinley are the other two proud fathers.

SPECIAL COURSES AT THE LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

The various activities of the City High School are now in full swing; curriculum work is now running smoothly, the Oracle board has met for the first time, the athletic associations have organized, and now the supplementary courses have been announced for the fall and winter work.

These include, besides the usual domestic science and manual training courses, a new course in public speaking. This will be under the direction of Samuel B. House, Jr. The technique of public elocution will be studied and the training will be individual as well as general. Those who show special aptitude will be given opportunity to speak before the school. Those who qualify for this will receive two points; others will receive one point of credit. The course is prescribed for seniors, but is elective for other pupils. Much interest is taken in the course and many juniors and sophomores have elected it. The manual training courses too are proving their popularity.

Of these, a course in wood-turning is announced for boys either Mondays or Thursdays, from 1:30 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Carpentry benchwork will be given in two of the first four periods, Fridays. This will be in charge of Charles Bostwick. Girls, too, may now take manual training. The periods for girls are the first and fourth on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 1:30 o'clock to 3 o'clock. Two points credit will be given for this. An advanced course will also be given counting one point.

Other courses for girls will be one in domestic science, under the direction of Miss Harriet Parker, from 1:45 to 3:15 Mondays and Wednesdays. The course in sewing, cutting and stenciling will be given in the High School building in room 72, at 1:30 o'clock, Tuesdays and Thursdays or Fridays.

Gymnasium work, which is required of all pupils in the lower three classes, but which is elective for seniors, will be given under the direction of Miss Addie Parker Jackson. She will meet the girls Mondays and Wednesdays, and the boys Tuesdays and Thursdays.

With this activity in supplemental and regular curriculum work, comes the news that another student activity, a chess club, has been formed by a group of pupils. They will definitely organize tomorrow and will meet once a week to play chess and to study the science of the game.

"MURDER" AT NEW MARKET FOR THE MOVING PICTURES.

"For a Woman's Honor" the subject of a moving picture film made at New Market by one of the motion picture companies yesterday, excited the interest of the villagers. The play was enacted by a company of twelve. The principal scenes in the picture included the Percy Vail mansion, the lake, the old mill, and the main street. There is an elopmenet in the story, the lovers making their escape on horseback from the Vail home. There is also a murder, the arrest of the murderer, the trial, and justice finally triumphs. The scene of the story is supposed to be in the south, and the Vail house, of colonial architecture, helps to carry out this idea effectively.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. Wright, of Plainfield avenue, is making extensive repairs to his house, adding a bath room and servant's quarters.

Mrs. Delaney with her two grand children will occupy a part of the double house being built by Lewis Randolph.

Mrs. Hendrickson will soon occupy the cottage recently vacated by Mr. Bigley, who has moved to Easton.

Past Chiefs to Meet.

There will be a past chief's meeting of the 10th district, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at Somerville, tonight, when important legislation will be enacted, including the adoption of plans for a funeral benefit association. The plan is for each member of the Past Chief's Association to contribute a fixed amount upon the death of a member and thus establish a fund for his family. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and other past chiefs of Freedom Castle, No. 42, of this city, will attend.

Proctor's Big Bill.

Gus Edwards, famed for his original novelty vaudevill acts, will present "Graduation Days" at Proctor's theatre today. Five of his latest song hits have been written for the sketch. John Walsh & Co., will appear in "The Dock Watchman," and "The Great Powell, rival of Herrman, in a magical act, together with Poole and Lane, western sharpshooters, complete the bill.

William G. DeMeza, the candidate for the city judgeship, is recovering gradually from an attack of pleurisy.

ALL MY PIMPLES GONE.

Girl Tells How a Blotchy Skin Was Cleansed by a Simple Wash.

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Minnie Pickard, of Altamahaw, N. C. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema, and that was three years ago."

D. D. D. has become so famous as a cure and instant relief in Eczema and all other serious skin diseases, that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, blackheads, and all other minor forms of skin impurities.

The fact is, that while D. D. D. is so penetrating that it strikes to the very root of Eczema or any other serious trouble, the soothing Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients are so carefully compounded there is no wash for the skin made that can compare with this great household remedy for every kind of skin trouble.

D. D. D. is pleasant to use, perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, and absolutely reliable. A 25 cent bottle will give you positive proof of the wonderful effectiveness of this great remedy.

SAW HER PHOTO ON CARD, NOW THEY ARE MARRIED

A post card romance was made known at Cranford yesterday by the receipt of announcements informing the clerks and carriers in the Cranford postoffice that Robert J. Winans, one of the Cranford carriers, and Miss Kathryn Jones, of Terre Haute, Ind., were married Sunday.

Carrier Winans attended the Pan-American Exposition, where he met a brother of Miss Jones. Jones later mailed Winans a postal card containing his sister's photograph, and it is claimed that the young man immediately fell in love with the picture, and when his next vacation arrived he made a visit to the West.

The friends of Winans were surprised to receive the announcements. Mr. Winans is president of the local carriers' association and prominent in Red Men's circles.

The couple will return to Cranford to reside on October 3.

AGAINST SOCIAL LINES IN CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

At the afternoon session of the presbytery of Morris and Orange Tuesday, says the Newark News, the bulk of the time was taken up with a conference on "The Church and Social Righteousness," conducted by Rev. John McDowell, of Newark.

Dr. McDowell made the point that poor and rich should be treated alike, and that no differences should be made in the church between men of different standing in the outside world.

One of the gentlemen in the meeting expressed the opinion that a poor laborer should not associate in the same church with a rich man, and that such a wealthy man would not be wrong in objecting to such an association.

"If that wealthy man was a Christion," said Dr. McDowell, "he would not object. If he were not, I wouldn't say what his actions might be."

Rev. Dr. John MacNaughton, of Chatham, who had been appointed as a committee to prepare a minute on the death of Rev. Dr. Theodore F. White, of Summit, gave a brief sketch of Dr. White's life and character.

Permission was granted the Presbyterian churches of South Orange, Trinity and Mt. Freedom, to fill vacancies in their pulpits.

The resignation of Rev. Gottlieb Ruesch as pastor of the German Presbyterian church at Myersville was accepted. The resignation will take place on October 16.

Rev. Alexander Maccoll, of Morristown, who had been appointed chairman of a committee in the morning to decide whether members, applying for admission to the presbytery, should, at the request of one-quarter of the members of the board be obliged to undergo a written examination, stated that he had selected the following to serve on the committee: Rev. Dr. MacNaughton, Rev. James F. Riggs, A. T. Libbey and S. K. Taylor.

Rev. Dr. Elijah W. Stoddard, of Succasunna, who is over ninety years old, was present at the meeting.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Union County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Presbyterian church of Garwood, on Tuesday. REPORT W. C. T. U. WORK Interesting Accounts Given of What Has Been Done by Temperance Union.

MRS. T. H. TOMLINSON PRESIDES.

17,000 Pieces of Literature Distributed—Decrease in Membership —Prizes Awarded for Essays.

The work of the year of the local W. C. T. U. was reviewed in reports submitted at the afternoon session of the annual meeting yesterday. In all departments successful and encouraging work has been done. The afternoon session was opened with prayer by Mrs. R. C. Bodine, after which Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, the president, took the chair.

The banner report was from Mrs. M. J. Staats, superintendent of the work among railroad, firemen, police and trolleymen. It showed indefatigable work in the distribution of 17,000 pieces of literature among men in the foregoing occupations in Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Mrs. Carrie L. Bennett, the corresponding secretary, read her report. The Union numbers 188 members, a decrease of 38 from last year. Forty regular meetings, fifteen public and four social, and parlor meetings were held. The work was carried in twelve different departments and all showed effective results. She said in part: "Never in all the history of our Union has there been such great need of workers as there is today, and never has there been greater opportunity for service; but the laborers are so few. If every member of this Union would realize her responsibility and opportunity and 'help just a little' the influence which would go out would be felt all over this city.'

Mrs. Henry Thomas, superintendent of the Loyal Legion, was away on her vacation, so her report was given by Mrs. Tomlinson. Now there are 34 members in the Legion, and one of the features of the year was the closing picnic at the von Ohl farm. Speaking of this, Mrs. Tomlinson said: "If Mrs. Thomas had done nothing else but arrange this picnic, she would have done well."

Mrs. Emily Coard, superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, reported that the Plainfield schools had responded well to the prizes offered for themes on the subject. The essay of Margaret Leggett, which won the High School prize, showed careful investigation, as well as did that of Beatrice Cottrell, who won the eighth grade prize. A renewed effort will be made next year to interest boys in the prizes.

Mrs. Mary Winter read a report on Sabbath Observance and Sunday-school work. Requests to pastors to preach on the subject of temperance were met with responses from twelve.

Mrs. M. C. Dobbins read the report on work among "Soldiers and Sailors." She said that articles, testaments, candy, etc., had been sent to Captain Ben of the Mission Yacht for distribution among needy sailors where they would do the most good.

The Literature report by Mrs. Lotta A. Edell showed that numerous pamphlets, etc., had been distributed by the various departments. Mrs. Ira West reported on Social Meetings. Four meetings of this nature were held throughout the year and one was devoted to the topic of Equal Franchise, when a paper was read by Mrs. Isaac Miller. One public meeting was held and William Dalley gave a talk on "Christian Citizenship and Franchise."

A feature of the afternoon session was a talk by Miss S. J. Keron, of Elizabeth, county superintendent of prison work and penal reform. She described the life of the inmates of the county jail at Elizabeth. "Nine-tenths of them are there because of drink," she said. "The results of my weekly visits are hard to determine, but these people need help and sympathy as much as any others.'

A rising vote of thanks for courtesies during the past year was then given to the Plainfield newspapers. An Aaronic benediction closed the session.

Carso Carried a Revolver.

Frank Carso, of Richmond street, was fined five dollars by Recorder Dolliver for carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested yesterday on Somerset street by Marshal Culver after a chase. Carso had an altercation with a negro, when weapons were drawn. When the marshal interfered the negro made good his escape.

PYTHIANS TO GATHER IN THIS CITY TONIGHT

The members of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., are urged to attend the session of the Grand Lodge, K. of P., to be held in the rooms of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, tonight. This will be an important session, as the past chancellor's degree will be conferred on all eligible past chancellors in this vicinity. There will be delegations here from Elizabeth, Rahway, Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Somerville and many other nearby towns.

The members of Perseverance Lodge will entertain the Grand Lodge officers and other visiting knights after the meeting in the banquet room, and it is said that several surprises have been arranged. There will also be a fine entertainment. This will be one of four sessions of the Grand Lodge planned for as many places in the State prior to the annual meeting at Trenton in February.

MINISTER TO LECTURE ON THE BOY PROBLEM

"How to Know Our Boys," is the general topic of a series of nine lectures to be given every Friday afternoon, at the Y. M. C. A., commencing October 14, by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, Scotch Plains. These lectures have been planned for all the mothers of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and all will be welcome. There will be no charge for admission. The lectures will be given at 3:30 and will last from thirty to forty minutes, to be followed by an open conference.

This will be a brief course of popular instruction to make clear the problems involved in the moral and religious training of boys, and to point the way oward the solution of these problems by the proper application in the home of modern educational methods. Mr. Mathiews is fitted both by knowledge and experience for leadership in this important study. The dates and subjects of the lectures follow:

October 14, "The Profession of Motherhood;" 21, "How to Secure Obedience?" 28, "The Aims of Punishment and the Methods that are Most Effective;" November 4, "Obstinacy and Its Relation to Self-Reliance;" 11, "The Educational Value of Play, and Its Moral Benefits;" 18, "The Moral Value of Pride and Its Culture;" 25, "The Problem of Fighting and the Culture of Courage;" December 2, "The Moral Influence of the 'Gang', and What to do About It;" 9, "The Educational Value of Play, and Its Religious Benefits."

OUTING OF MEMBERS OF Y. W. C. A. TOMORROW.

The members of the Y. W. C. A. will hold their first fall outing tomorrow afternoon starting from the association rooms at 2:45 p. m. They will walk to Watchung Lake, where they will build a fire and have their supper. The young women will also search for bitter-sweet and gentian, which will be in bloom at this season of the year. The outing will be in charge of Miss Mosher, physical director of the association, and it is hoped that a large number of members will avail themselves of the trip.

During the fall months many similar outings will be held out-of-doors, and when the weather grows too cold for them plans will be adopted for indoor affairs at the association. Within a short time announcement will be made of the season's program, which Miss Tapping, the secretary says will be one of the best in the history of the organization.

Miss Swain Under an Operation.

Miss Edna Swain, youngest daughter of Phillip Swain, of Craig place, was operated upon at the hospital today for appendicitis. Miss Swain, who was graduated from the State Normal School at Montclair, last year, has accepted a position as teacher at the Watchung School and expected to begin her work yesterday, when she suffered an attack of appendicitis.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. THOS. J. NICHOLL.

The funeral services of Mrs. Thos. J. Nicholl were held from her late home on Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains, at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were largely attended by relatives and friends, including many of the older people of the village who had known Mrs. Nicholl during her residence at that place. There were also many beautiful floral tributes.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, this city, of which Mrs. Nicholl was an attendant for many years, conducted the service, and after reading appropriate Scripture selections, made a short address of eulogy. The burial was in the cemetery at Scotch Plains.

STOKES DEFEATS FOWLER IN U. S. SENATE CONTEST.

With practically every district in the State heard from, it was announced in the Secretary of State's office yesterday at Trenton that in the primary vote for United States Senator, ex-Governor Stokes had a plurality of 775 votes over Representative Fowler and 2,277 over ex-Governor Murphy.

Missing districts in Atlantic County increased the Murphy vote over figures heretofore given.

Walp Case Postponed Yesterday.

Warren J. Walp, who was arrested for using indecent and profane language to Patrolman Andrew Saffron yesterday, was represented in courts this morning by Counsellor Robert Newton Crane, who secured an adjournment for one week from Judge William N. PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF PUPILS IN BOROUGH

Physical examinations for all pupils in the borough were begun yesterday afternoon by Dr. A. H. Dundon and will be continued until each pupil has been reported on the school physical record cards.

The examination includes six heads: General condition, throat, mouth, teeth, hearing and sight. This is done each year and the record of each pupil is kept by the school. Whenever a child is found to be defective in anyway the parents are notified. It is then optional with them to see that the defect is remedied by their family physician. The records are retained from year to year; and it is thus possible to determine whether any improvement or not has been made. By means of these examinations any pupil suffering from a contagious disease is easily detected and precautions are taken to protect the other pupils.

The examinations are compulsory throughout the State once a year. One borough youngster refused to be examined and ran away. His parents were notified, and unless he presents himself for examination soon the truant officer will be sent to his home and his parents will be held accountable for his non-appearance at school.

PEACH FESTIVAL AT TRINITY REFORMED

The handsomely decorated Sunday-school rooms of Trinity Reformed church were the scene of brilliant activity last night when the members of the Ladies' Christian Work Society were busy serving peaches and cream to the multitude who attended. While it is impossible to state the exact amount earned by the society for the carpet fund, it may safely be said that it was considerable.

Assisting Mrs. Edward T. Van Winkle, who was chairman of the entertainment committee, were Mrs. J. Angerbaur and Mrs. Virginia Chickering. The reception committee consisted of Mrs. E. A. Parse, president of the society, and Mrs. B. D. Newell. Those in charge of the cake table were Mrs. Edward Cooley and Mrs. Theodore VanZandt. The waitresses were the Misses Leonore Miller, Margaret Leggett, Marguerite VanZandt, Helen Smith, Edna Bird, Jeanette Neal, Olive Bird, Gertrude Enander, Henrietta Enander, Marguerite Neal and Edna Cole.

The candy table was in charge of Miss Minnie Williams, Mrs. L. B. Van Camp and Mrs. J. T. MacMurray, while Mrs. Frank Storr and Mrs. Edward Miller served the cream.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the music. Through the courtesy of the Hallet and Davis Piano Company, L. H. Jacobi, Jr., operated a player-piano, playing selections of classical and popular music.

MISS GEORGIANNA SMITH ENGAGED TO MR. BREESE.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Georgianna Hoadley Smith, daughter of William Palmer Smith, of Belvidere avenue, to Edward Yarde Breese, of Trenton. Mr. Breese is the son of the late Captain James Buchanan Breese, United States Marine Corps, and the grandson of the late Captain Edward Madison Yarde, U. S. N., and is a cousin of Clifton Wharton, Jr., of this city. Mr. Breese is associated with the bond department of Taylor, Smith & Evans, bankers of New York. He is a member of the Military Order Loyal Legion, the Association of American International Riflemen and of numerous clubs.

Miss Smith, who is well-known in Plainfield and New York society, has been active among the younger society set here and greatly interested in charitable enterprises in this city, being prominent in the King's Daughters and its allied interests. No date has been set for the wedding.

Loney Haskell at Proctor's.

Loney Haskell, a headliner in vaudeville, being one of the greatest monologue artists on the stage, and more familiarly known as "That Rascal," will appear at Proctor's theatre today and tomorrow. He comes from Hammerstein's Victoria theatre, New York, where he has been making a big hit.

IN THE SOMERSET COURT

County's Grand Jury Disposed of Ninety Cases in Just Three Days.

SOME ARRAIGNMENTS FOLLOW.

Circello Gets Two Years—Mrs. Kennedy and Wm. M. Goff Plead Not Guilty—Rose's Trial Date is Set.

The Somerset County Grand Jury made a record for itself this week, requiring only three days to dispose of the ninety cases awaiting its consideration. The jury was called together on Tuesday and finished its labors yesterday afternoon. Of course the members hold themselves in readiness to be recalled at any time should the court need their services for any special cases.

Out of ninety cases before the jury twenty-five indictments were found and returned to the court. The cases will not be known until they are called for trial. There were important cases up for consideration, including the one murder case. The term is likely to be a busy one, owing to the number of civil suits listed for trial.

This morning there were several arraignments as a result of the grand jury's work. These included Mrs. Josephine Kennedy, wife of Michael Kennedy, and William M. Goff, of the borough, indicted for a serious crime. They pleaded not guilty and were held in $1,000 bail and in the absence of bondsmen were commtted to the county jail to await trial.

Michael Circello, aged about 20 years, who pleaded guilty of larceny in the borough, was sentenced by Judge Case to two and a half years in State Prison.

W. F. Sullivan and Thomas Ryan, who pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods at East Millstone, were also sentenced by Judge Case. Sullivan got one year and a half and Ryan two years and a half in State Prison.

Frank Rose, who is best known as a member of the famous "Dutch" Ides gang, and who was found guilty of holding up Paul Wagner at Bound Brook, on June 28 last, when arraigned pleaded not guilty and his trial was fixed for October 17. He was arrested in North Plainfield.

DOG BIT TWO OTHERS AND IS SHOT BY POLICE.

A mad dog scare in the Park section of the borough this morning resulted in the shooting of a large New Foundland dog by Dennis Gavin. Shortly after 9 o'clock a telephone message was received by Chief Marshal George Weiss that a large dog had bitten two dogs, one belonging to A. G. Hooley and another the property of Mrs. Henry Phillips.

Chief Weiss and Street Commissioner Barrett answered the call. They succeeded in tracing the dog to Greenbrook road near the Cadmus property. Here the canine was located in a large field, but it was found impossible to get near enough to it to shoot it with a revolver. Chief Weiss stationed himself in the field while Mr. Barrett went to the home of Dennis Gavin nearby to secure a shotgun. Gavin himself came out and shot the dog through the head.

The dog was a cross between a collie and New Foundland. Its value was considerable, but thus far the owner is unknown. Pending the result of developments for rabies, the dogs owned by Mr. Hooley and Mrs. Phillips will be confined closely.

MORTGAGE NOT RECORDED MEANS A LOSS OF $188.

Because they did not properly file a chattel mortgage on the goods and fixtures of Joseph Ciocci, of 103 Somerset street, the New Jersey Produce Company will lose its claim of $188.70. The company took a chattel mortgage August 16, which was not placed on record, and on August 24, Ciocci's mother, Mrs. Rosa Ciocci, took a chattel mortgage on her son's goods and through her counsel, William DeMeza, filed it immediately. Despite its later date of issuance this mortgage will take precedence. At the sale of the goods tomorrow Ciocci's mother will purchase her son's property and the Produce Company will lose its money.

Snell Case Put Off.

In the case of the Assistant Prosecutor against Fred Schnell, Robert Newton Crane asked for and obtained an adjournment of the case for one week. The case will be tried before Judge William N. Runyon on next Friday morning.

PAST SUPREME REGENT VISITS ARCANUM COUNCIL

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, at its meeting last night, enjoyed a fraternal visit from Past Supreme Regent Harry Ward, of Jersey City, and District Deputy Grand Regent George Anderson, of East Orange, both of whom made interesting addresses, telling of the progress being made by the order, not only in this district, but throughout the whole jurisdiction. Their remarks were encouraging to the members, learning as they did the latest news from the State and the condition of the organization throughout the country.

After the addresses and during a business session, George M. Christian was elected orator of Plainfield Council, to succeed H. W. Satterfield, who has been made vice-regent. A social hour followed, during which refreshments were served and cigars were passed.

EXPERT TO SELECT SITE FOR TUBERCULOSIS CAMP

The committee from the Board of Freeholders having charge of the work of establishing a tuberculosis hospital in the county, of which J. Hervey Doane, of this city, is chairman, is making progress. It is now awaiting the return of Dr. H. O. Carrington, of New York, from a European trip. He has general supervision of all tuberculosis work in New York, more particularly as regards construction work of camps, and is a recognized authority on the subject.

Immediately upon his return he will come to Union county and meet the committee for the purpose of selecting a site for the camp. There are several sites in view, but one that appeals most favorably to the committee is on the mountains back of Scotch Plains, where the elevation will permit of certain things that are absolutely necessary in the maintenance of such a camp.

The county has appropriated $50,000 through the Board of Freeholders for this work and later on an additional sum will be given to complete the work of construction and equipment of the camp. All the physicians throughout the county are urging haste in the establishment of the camp. One physician in this city informed Freeholder Doane yesterday that to his own knowledge there are at least 1,000 cases of tuberculosis in all stages in Plainfield and vicinity, and it is said that in Elizabeth the number is far greater. The committee hopes to have the camp ready for patients early next year.

AFTERNOON TEA TO BE HELD AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE.

Proctor & Sanderson are planning for a novel affair to be held at The Plainfield Theatre in about two weeks. It will be an afternoon tea, and will follow one of the matinee performances, the date to be announced later. All of the patrons of the house on that afternoon will be invited to attend the tea. The members of he stock company will receive the guests and the management hopes thereby to establish a feling of cordiality among its patrons and members of the company.

The theatre will be attractively decorated for the occasion, it being the aim of the management to make the tea a success in every detail. The subscription books for season tickets are open at the box office and already a large number of theatregoers have engaged their seats for the entire season, thereby being assured of having the same seats for every performance.

JURY FAILED TO AGREE IN HYATT VS. FAIRBAIRN.

A jury of twelve men failed to agree as to the merits of the suit brought on a contract by William S. Hyatt, of New Market, against Robbert G. Fairbairn, of Westfield, before Justice Clark in Scotch Plains, last night. According to the testimony, the allegations of the plaintiff were not corroborated sufficiently to convince the jury, and they disagreed.

Counsellor George Ball attended to the interests of Mr. Hyatt and Paul Q. Oliver of Westfield, took care of Mr. Fairbairn's interests.

J. P. Mueller Sells His Property.

Jacob P. Mueller, of Clinton avenue, has sold his property on that avenue, comprising 6¼ acres, opposite the property of C. O. Deakin, to Coley F. Sims, of 20 Rockview avenue, and has taken possession. The deal was made by Elston M. French, the real estate broker. Mr. Mueller has removed to Brooklyn.

MOY CANDIDATE OF MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

A Bi-Partisan Organization is Launched to Wage Vigorous Campaign.

MacMURRAY A VICE-PRESIDENT.

Depew President and Randolph Secretary—Declaration of Principles—Moy Accepts Democratic Nomination.

Thirty or more Republicans and Democrats compose the nucleus of the Bipartisan Municipal League, whose organization was announced today coupled with the formal acceptance of George W. V. Moy, of its nomination for the mayoralty with a Democratic endorsement.

Prominent in the club, which will wage a vigorous campaign to capture the mayoralty and to eradicate party lines in municipal affairs is City Clerk James F. MacMurray, recognized as the head of the local Republican organization until he led the fight here for Charles N. Fowler for the party's congressional nomination. R. Henry Depew, president of the New Jersey People's Lobby, and president also of the Plainfield Protective Association, and former Mayor Lewis V. F. Randolph are other influential members. LeRoy Ellis, president of the Plainfield Democratic club, is conspicuous among the Democrats affiliated with the club.

The purpose of the league, as set forth in its declaration of principles is three-fold: "First, an uncorrupted ballot; second, a manly independence of and separation from selfish and corrupt combinations, and third, the choice at the polls of men who shall best represent the interests of Plainfield, irrespective of party affiliation." It is asserted that the chief issue of the fight in this campaign will be the municipal control and operation of the water supply, to which the league is pledged.

At the last of three meetings, the league on Tuesday night passed this resolution unanimously.

"Resolved, That the Bipartisan Municipal League heartily endorses the candidacy of George W. V. Moy for the office of mayor of the city of Plainfield."

At the previous meeting this resolution was enacted:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that a bipartisan committee to consist of the chairman of this meeting and of two persons from each election district be appointed with power to carry on the campaign according to their judgment, but on the general lines laid down in he recommendations of the report which has been read, and that such committee have power of self-enlargement."

R. Henry Depew is president of the league and Mr. MacMurray and Patrick J. Reville are vice-presidents while Mr. Randolph is the secretary. The treasurer is J. F. Zerega. Various committees have been appointed and are now at work.

The first of a series of mass meetings in the interest of Mr. Moy's candidacy will be held at Reformed hall on Thursday night. Mr. Moy says that he and other members of the league will deliver frequent speeches during the campaign.

The acceptance filed with County Clerk Calvert by Mr. Moy today follows:

"Whereas, at a primary held in the city of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey, on Tuesday, September thirteenth, nineteen hundred and ten, I the undersigned, George W. V. Moy, was nominated as a candidate for the office of mayor of the said city of Plainfield on the Democratic ticket, and

"Whereas, before the holding of said primary I had not filed a certificate consenting to stand as candidate for said office if so nominated,

"This is therefore to certify that I, the said George W. V. Moy, am qualified for the office of Mayor of the city of Plainfield, aforesaid, and that I accept said nomination."

Celebrated First Fire.

By way of celebration of their first fire which occurred Monday night, the members of the Watchung Chemical Engine Company held a Farmers' Dance last night at Texiers' Mill The wealthy members of the company joined with their compatroits in a whole-hearted celebration of the occasion. It is planned to celebrate each fire in a similar manner.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A football team will soon be on the gridiron to represent the borough. Judging from the interest shown at the meeting last night at the home of H. E. Smith, there will be some heavy material for the eleven.

Mayor Sanford's clever idea to clean the borough's main street with money raised by subscription from the borough merchants proved successful. When needed, the plan will again be put in operation.

Owing to the exposed lake bottom due to the drought, New Market people living near the lake have been annoyed by an unpleasant odor of decaying growing vegetable matter.

Mrs. Maurice L. Rarick, corresponding secretary of the Union county W. C. T. U., will read a report at the annual convention next Tuesday.

An "Evangelistic and Almshouse" report is being prepared by Mrs. J. L. Manning for the afternoon session of the W. C. T. U. next Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Giles, J. W. Wagner and Jacob Fisher have returned from the G. A. R. encampment at Atlantic City.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

From present indications the campaign this fall will be one of the most exciting that the town has had in some time. Both Congressional nominees are well known in town and a full vote of both parties will no doubt be out.

Arrangements are completed for the first of the fall dances to be given by the Bachelors' Club in Excelsior hall Tuesday night of next week.

Miss Sadie Lee, of Front street, has enrolled as a resident pupil of St. Mary's College on Mountain avenue.

Mrs. George McVoy, of Plainfield, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. John H. Coles, of Park avenue.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held its semi-monthly meeting last night in the town rooms.

Henry Dean, of Park avenue, is sojourning for a time at the Delaware Water Gap.

SOMERVILLE.

Miss Margaret Anderson returned Wednesday to Mt. Holyoke College at South Hadley, Mass. This will be her senior year in that institution.

The engagement is announced by Mrs. John Zulauf of her niece, Miss Anna H. Burkett, and Edward V. D. Phoenix, of West High street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Dunster left this week for a month's trip through the West. A week will be spent in Chicago.

Mrs. William G. Tunison is spending a month in New York city as the guest of her niece, Mrs. Henry Grasse.

Edmund G. Kraft has returned to his duties with the Public Service Corporation after a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Lena Van Cleef, of Trenton, has been spending the week with Mrs. Louis C. Mack.

WESTFIELD.

Funeral services over Miss Sarah A. Russell were held Wednesday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Link, Embree Crescent. Miss Russell had been a resident of the town but a short time, having come here last year with her sister's family from Orange.

Westfield Park Commission is to have a new retaining dam constructed at the outlet of the Park Lake on Broad street. This will flood several acres that have recently been purchased by the commission.

There are at present over 1,300 pupils enrolled in the Westfield schools, an increase of about 350 over the enrollment of last year.

Westfield Council will on October 3 receive sealed proposals for bonds amounting to $6,873. The bonds will be payable one each year.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Mara, of Rockview avenue, have returned from a two months' sojourn at Belmar.

Martin Dixon, of Fairview avenue, has gone to New York, where he has taken a position with a large department store.

Miss Emma VanZandt, of Fairview avenue, who has been spending three months abroad, is expected home next week.

Mrs. A. Lissignolo and daughter, Miss Clarissa Lissignolo, of East Front street, have returned from a long sojourn at Belmar.

Mrs. Herman Berkhan, of Watchung avenue, will remove to New York city next week, where she will make her permanent home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Birch and son Ward, of Fairview avenue, have returned from Lake George, where they spent the summer.

Miss Margaret Kenney, of Sandford avenue, teacher of mathematics in the Newark City High School, has recovered from a recent illness.

CALLS 'EM "PAIR OF DUNCES" RIGHT IN COURT.

Camden, Sept. 23.—Following the hearing of testimony through nearly two days Vice-Chancellor Learning yesterday afternoon refused a divorce to Mrs. Fannie Limroth from her husband, Charles W. Limroth, a tobacconist. The vice-chancellor characterized the pair as the stubbornist ever seen in the court. In his own defense Limroth testified that his married life was happy until seven years ago, when they had a dispute over the time he wanted his breakfast. He said he gave his wife a week to change her habits and that when the meals were not forthcoming at the time he specified he began taking breakfast at restaurants. He denied remaining in bed until 8:30 in the morning and declared that the reason he declined to allow his wife to be operated on was because a professor told him an operation was not necessary.

Under the impression that the entire trouble was over the breakfast hour, Vice-Chancellor Leaming remarked: "Well, you are a pair of big dunces."

GOVERNMENT NOW OWNS ANDERSONVILLE PRISON.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—The eighty-three-acre tract of land embracing the famous Andersonville prison and fort in Georgia, the acceptance of which from the Women's Relief Corps, owners, was authorized by Congress and the transfer negotiations carried on at Atlantic City a day or two ago, is to be kept by the government in the same way as under private ownership. The prison has been a fruitful source of trouble in tracing title. The site the government now acquires includes the historic burrows made by the unfortunate prisoners.

The shift of ownership means that hereafter Congress must appropriate for the maintenance of the institution, which is to be kept intact as a landmark of the Civil War.

CONNIE MACK SOON TO SIGN UP FOR LIFE.

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Connie Mack, idol of the local baseball fans, is to be married. In spite of denials, protestations, evasions and impenetrable silence on the part of the famous manager of the Athletics, it was stated today by a person of authority that the ceremony will take place soon after the world's series.

"Official" announcement came today from Mrs. Margaret Hallahan, mother of Miss Catharine Hallahan, the prospective bride.

"I won't say when or where Connie Mack and my daughter are to be married," stated Mrs. Hallahan, "for that is a matter between themselves. They are to be married, however, on November 2."

DIE FROM EATING FUNGUS THINKING THEM MUSHROOMS

Mistaking toadstools for mushrooms resulted Tuesday night in the death of Otto Kovista and his four-year-old daughter Jennie, of 49 Joyce street, Orange. Two others, boarders, are in the Orange Memorial Hospital, in a critical condition. The death of her husband leaves Mrs. Kovista and a young daughter alone and penniless. She has a brother who recently came to this country, who is little better off than herself. She has no relatives in Austria, where she came from, to whom she can appeal.

The Kovistas had a hard time to get along and they took in two boarders. One of them Michael Popebja, a gardener, has been with them several weeks. Joseph Smolek was given a room last Thursday. On Sunday, Smolek invited Kovista to go mushrooming with him and they went up the mountain side in West Orange and gathered a quantity of what Smolek declared were "French" mushrooms.

Kovista told him they were no good, but the new boarder insisted that they were of a superior kind, and so when they got home Mrs. Kovista prepared a meal of them and the three men and the little girl ate them. Mrs. Kovista and another child did not.

That night all who ate the "mushrooms" became sick. They grew gradually worse and Tuesday a physician was called in. He advised that they be moved to the hospital at once and the Record ambulance was called. The three men were taken on the first trip and an hour later the little girl was taken.

It was seen at once that the condition of Kovista and his daughter was serious. It was thought that the others would recover. The condition of the father and his daughter became rapidly worse and at 9 o'clock Kovista died and the girl died three hours later. The condition of the others gradually became more serious and today their recovery was in doubt.

Deputy County Physician M. Herbert Simmons Wednesday granted a burial permit. The bodies were removed to Kunz's morgue.

Mrs. Kovista begged to be permitted to take the bodies to her home, but she was penniless, and admitted that they would probably have to be interred in potter's field.

Morgue-keeper Gustave Kunz said that he would make an effort to get relief for the woman, and if possible have the bodies decently buried, if sufficient money could be collected to provide for it.

The Kovistas came to this country from Austria seven years ago. They had a little money and this Kovista invested in the house in which they live. Subsequently, according to Mrs. Kovista, they were practically swindled out of what they had and now the house bears a mortgage for all it is worth. Kovista was a hodcarrier, and work has been poor lately, and except for the money brought in by the boarders, the family was without resources.

GREETED LAFAYETTE; OBSERVES 92D BIRTHDAY.

Elizabeth, Sept. 23.—The oldest man, so far as known, in Elizabeth and the only person now living, it is believed, in New Jersey, who shook hands with General Lafayette when the latter passed through Elizabeth, September 23, 1824, on his way to Mt. Vernon, eighty-six years ago today, is Benjamin Ogden Wade, a native of this city. Mr. Wade celebrated at his home, 32 Prospect street, his ninety-second birthday anniversary. He was six years and one day old when Lafayette visited Elizabeth and his father lifted him up in his arms so that he could shake the hand of the distinguished patriot.

There was a big parade and street demonstration in honor of the great Frenchman, all of which Mr. Wade distinctly remembers. Mr. Wade for thirty years was engaged in the wholesale stationery business in New York city and afterward for many years was Republican postmaser at Shamong, Burlington County, N. J., being removed during Cleveland's first administration. Since then he has led a retired life.

He resided for many years at Roselle, where his wife died two years ago. The couple never had any children. Mr. Wade is a member of the Third Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, and is in comfortable circumstances. He enjoys remarkably good health and is a conspicuous figure daily in Broad street here. Many persons called at his home today to congratulate the venerable nonogenarian.

Rally day exercises will be held by the Sabbath school at the Seventh Day Baptist church tomorrow at the usual hour, and Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will make the address.

Miss Mabel Hamilton, of Verdon street, has returned from Atlantic Highlands, where she has been spending the past week.

Mrs. Frank Hand and daughter, Miss Lavinia Hand, of Fairview avenue, who have been spending the summer at Monticello, N. Y., will return home next week.

An Abstract of Title

should not be confused with a

Guaranty of Title

The ABSTRACT is merely the history of the title, probably as accurate and complete as possible, but offering no protection against its own errors or omissions.

The GUARANTY is in reality a policy of insurance or bond, promising to pay any loss by reason of defective title arising from any cause. The Guaranty is the only complete protection.

FUNNY PLAYS MADE IN THE BIG LEAGUES

"It's the baseball club that is always going at full speed and trying to pull off the unexpected that makes the most plays of the variety classed as 'bonehead' by sporting writers. The fastest and best ball players pull off most of the plays which come under that head. Slowmoving players, who never take a chance, very seldom make plays which appear foolish, but which go wrong simply because the other fellows are there with the goods when they try to pull off the unexpected."

This was the statement of Manager Griffith, of the Reds. Continuing, he said:

"Ty Cobb, of the Detroit Tigers; Bob Bescher, of the Reds, and Tris Speaker, of the Boston Americans, are some of the players who must be classed as boneheads if a man is an ivory dome every time he tries to turn a trick and is foiled. Cobb is probably sent to the bench more frequently than any other player in the business because he runs wild on the bases and loses out because players on the opposing team weigh in with perfect fielding performances at the right time. Cobb is one of the country's greatest players because he takes those chances. He generally takes them when his team is most in the need of runs. If he succeeds his club wins, and if he fails it is almost an even bet that his club would have been beaten anyhow.

"There are ball clubs which never pull off plays of the bonehead type during their offensive play. A ball club that never takes chances will never amount to much. When a team goes along day after day doing the same old thing, the defensive work of the opposing team soon becomes pie. The players always know what is coming off and are never worried in the least. Clubs that fail to take chances lose many games by one run, which they could win by pulling off the unexpected once in a while.

"Of course, a club that takes chances is bound to be pulled up occasionally, but it is better to lose a game by taking a chance that goes wrong than to stand idly by and try to hammer the life out of a pitcher who happens to be unhittable that day, and lose because nothing daring is attempted.

"Keep your eye on the records of ball clubs and see if most of the plays classed as ivory dome stunts are not pulled off by winning ball clubs and then take a look at the losing clubs and see if they are not the ones which never attempt to do anything startling."

Close at 6 p. m., Friday; open all day and evening Saturday.

GOLF.

The discussion as to whether W. C. Fownes, Jr., the new national champion, is an Eastern or a Western golfer has been started afresh.

The champion, although a director in the Western Golf Association, is also identified with several others. First and foremost, he is loyal to the United States Golf Association. Last fall he played on the Pennsylvania team in the Lesley cup matches at Huntingdon Valley. This intercity affair, until the formation of the Pennsylvania State Association, was confined to New York, Philadelphia and Boston teams.

Fownes himself says that Pennsylvania is an Eastern State. His final words were: "Pennsylvania extends to the Atlantic Ocean and that's about as far east as you can get."

Handicap lists are becoming more general each year. The Philadelphia Golf Association started the ball a-rolling in the Keystone State, and a few months ago ratings were also compiled for Pittsburgers. Now, it is understood, arrangements are under way with a view to drafting an official handicap list for the entire State of Pennsylvania.

Apropos of handicaps, 3,317 names appear on the fall list of the Massachusetts Golf Association, showing an increase of nearly three hundred since the spring issue.

The present list represents an entire revision. There are seven players at scratch, as follows: J. G. Anderson, T. M. Claflin, Percival Gilbert, A. G. Lockwood, H. W. Stucklen, P. W. Whittemore and H. H. Wilder.

HERE AND THERE.

Here is a story that is told by a local lawyer who swears that it is an actual experience: A jury had retired on a murder case and had voted 11 to 1 for acquittal. The obstinate man was a small, red-faced fellow, apparently a heavy drinker. He held out for conviction and declared that he was ready to stay there as long as the next one. Every now and then he would lean over and suck the head of a small bamboo cane he carried. Finally the jurymen began to make ready for a night of it. The little man soon fell asleep over his cane and when he went further into the Land of Nod the stick dropped to the floor. Members of the jury picked it up and were about to return it, when they discovered that it was filled with whisky, and very good whisky, too. They passed it around, each taking a sip. Of a sudden the little man awakened and, reaching for his cane, attempted to suck more "oil of joy" from the head. He was very thirsty, but found the cane empty. After thinking some time, he said: "Boys, I believe I've changed my mind. I'll vote for acquittal. Let's hurry."

A noted clergyman was in his study writing when his 5-year-old daughter walked in and asked:

"What are you writing, papa?"

"I am writing a sermon, my dear."

"How do you know what to write, papa?"

"God tells me what to write."

After watching her father a few minutes the litt'e girl said:

"Papa, if God tells you what to write, why do you scratch some of it out?"

The members of the City Mothers Club and most of the other organizations which make up the City Federation absented themselves from the Pure Food Show at Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon. Even Alberta Hill, who has been the feature of the suffrage booth ever since it opened, went home at noon.

The club women felt that a lecture hall where the piece de resistance of oratory was a eulogy of an alcoholic beverage was no place for them, and they had already sampled several times every variety of pure food on the main floor. Those of them who had no other place to go went home after reading the program and discovering that Hugh Fox was going to talk about what a man should drink. Mr. Fox thinks beer and ale are the ideal thirst quenchers, and said so in several thousand words.

Of course, water was all right, he admitted, if one could only get it pure, but it wasn't likely that that could be done once in a hundred drinks.

Mrs. John Francis Yaeger, who had come to the show to receive the members of the Minerva Club and didn' find them, said that she thought a man ought to drink anything that would make him good natured. Mrs. Thomas Vivian, president of the National California Club, said she agreed with her.

Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., held a convocation last night and conferred the mark master degree on one candidate.

POLITICAL TALK.

County Clerk Calvert yesterday forwarded to the Secretary of State the official returns on the Senatorial vote at the primaries. The vote shows that Congressman Charles N. Fowler received a plurality of 2,655 in the county. James E. Martine, Democratic candidate, got a majority of 4,480 over Frank M. McDermit, the other Democratic candidate. The vote in the county was as follows: Fowler, 4,151; Stokes, 1,497; Murphy, 963. The Democratic vote was: Martine, 4,939, and McDermit, 459.

Announcement has been made that the campaign of William E. Tuttle, Jr., Democratic candidate for Congress, will be managed by Walter K. Wheatley, of Westfield.

Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican candidate for Governor, made public yesterday a letter he had received from ex-Governor Franklin Murphy, in which the latter expresses a desire to be relieved from the conduct of the coming campaign. Mr. Lewis said that when he learned that the State chairman wished to retire he urged him not to do so. He aslo said that he was glad to say that the retirement of Mr. Murphy would not mean the loss of his services, as he would continue on the committee as a member-at-large.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who was the opponent of Vivian M. Lewis, for the Republican nomination for Governor, has written to Mr. Lewis congratulating him on his success and placing his services at his disposal. It is probable that Senator Frelinghuysen will take a vacation of two or three weeks. When he returns he will jump into the campaign and do his best in helping to elect Mr. Lewis Governor.

The Democratic State Committee will meet at its headquarters, in Newark, today to discuss plans for Dr. Wilson's campaign. The auxiliary Democratic State committee will meet tomorrow also.

G. W. Watson Withdraws Entries.

George W. Watson, of New York, one of the largest exhibitors of horses at the various horse shows throughout the country, displayed dissatisfaction over the work of the judges at the Mineola show yesterday, and withdrew all his entries from the show. The trouble started when he exhibited Florham Lady and Florham Leader in the tandem class. Only four entries were received and all were put ahead of the Watson pair. Mr. Watson demanded an explanation, but claimed it was not satisfactory.

—Aside from the fine display of fruit at Neuman Bros. tomorrow there will also be a large assortment of fresh vegetables from which a selection for the Sunday dinner will be easy. The prices will be reasonable.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Noise Restricts Motorists.

Owners of automobiles throughout the country are rapidly bringing upon themselves some rigid restrictions which they will not enjoy. Reform legislation is always slow in coming, and for that reason generally goes further than is necessary. It seems to be a case of the breaking loose of pent-up waters. The annoyances referred to are the unnecessary use of horns, whistles and exhaust. Many drivers seem to have a mania for making all the noise they can, lest some should fail to realize they are in a moving car. The smoke nuisance is equally unnecessary and offensive, and that it also can be prevented is demonstrated in nearly all European cities, where heavy fines are imposed for violation. The result is a smoking car is seldom seen, for other drivers immediately call attention of the offender to his car. The motorcycle is even more offensive in its noise making. This, too, is equally unnecessary. The motorcycles in England make no more noise than a sewing machine. The public has about reached its limit of endurance of these disturbances of the peace, and unless the offenders promptly reform themselves city ordinances should and will be passed and enforced without regard to who the offender may be. This is an instance where a $10 or $20 fine will work a prompt and permanent cure.—Popular Mechanics.

Asks Co-operation of Pupils.

Principal Best addressed the pupils of the Plainfield High School this morning his remarks being for the special benefit of the freshmen. He cautioned the pupils about being careful to throw waste paper, etc., in the proper receptacles, thereby assisting the janitors to keep the grounds and building in the best of condition. Mr. Best believes the heart-to-heart talk will prove beneficial.

Miss A. E. Lincoln, of Park avenue, has returned from Waters Park, Pa., where she has been sojourning for the past five weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Shores Pray, of East Sixth street, returned last night from Atlantic City, where they attended the G. A. R. encampment.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sandford, of East Front street, will return home tomorrow from an extended trip in the south and the mountains during the past few months.

Judge John Ulrich, who attended the triennial conclave of Knights Templar in Chicago a few weeks ago, gave an account of that big gathering at a conclave of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., this week.

Shower for Bride.

The W. D. C. Club, of Dunellen, gave Miss Anna Flosback a shower last night. The guests brought with them many useful and beautiful gifts; and then took occasion to honor Miss Flosback with an informal entertainment. This consisted of phonograph and vocal selections. Light refreshments were then served. Among those present were the Misses Anna Flosback, Mary Flosback, Helen Bernard, Ivy Mattox, Elsie Perrine, Florence Mattox, Sarah Newmiller, Catherine Newmiller, Rose Wilson, Mrs. Sarah Newmiller, Mrs. Mary Wilson and John Stiller.

To Entertain Noted Players.

Effingham Pinto, of West Eighth street, who has one of the important roles in the revival of "Diplomacy," in New York, will entertain a distinguished company of players at his home on Sunday. The party will include Miss Helen Ware, now starring in the "The Deserters"; Milton Sills and Miss Gladys Wynn, of "Diplomacy," and Ernest Glendenning, of the "Baby Mine" company.

Dance Enjoyed by 80.

A dance in which some forty couples took part was held in the parish house of St. Stephen's church last night, under the auspices of the Girls' Guild. For a "beginning of the season dance" it was one of the most enjoyable ever held in the parish. Music was furnished by Charles Suhr, the organist of the church.

Will Hold an Echo Meeting.

An echo meeting will be held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church tonight at 8 o'clock, when the local delegates to the Afro-American Baptist State convention held at Camden, September 8-12, will make reports. The delegates include Rev. M. W. Vaughn, pastor; William Kline, Fred Vaughn, Mrs. Samuel Fields and Mrs. P. H. Brown.

First Hunt of the Season.

The riding members of the Watchung Hunt Club will hold their first run of the season tomorrow afternoon, meeting at the New Market pond at 3:30 and finishing at the club's ground at 4:30, where an informal breakfast will be served.

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

The regular meeting of the Board of Freeholders of Union county was held on Thursday, September 1, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed all members present with the exception of Freeholder Jensen.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur it was ordered that the minutes of the meeting of August 4 be approved as per printed copies on members' desks.

Communications.

Communications were received from the Mayor of the Borough of Roselle Park, from the Board of Health of Roselle Park, and from Samuel Koestler regarding the condition of Westfield avenue, asking the board to take some action in regard to same. On motion of Freeholder Krouse communications were received and referred to County Road Committee and County Attorney.

From the Holy Name Societies of Union county requesting the privilege of holding religious services in the county jail. On motion of Freeholder Doane the request was granted and referred to the Committee on Jail Inspection.

From J. J. Savitz, County Superintendent of Schools, requesting that provision be made for office and filing cases as referred by law. On motion of Freeholder Swain received and referred to the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings with power.

From Franklin Marsh, city engineer of Rahway, asking permission to law sewer pipes on Westfield avenue in the city of aRhway. On motion of Freholder Wilbur received and referred to County Road Committee with power.

Committee Reports.

Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Gentlemen—Your Committee on County Roads would respectfully report that at a meeting held on August 10 bids were received for the construction of a new roadway on the second section of Springfield avenue, Springfield Township. The contract was awarded to C. H. Winans Company (subject to the approval of the State Road Commissioners), for a tarvia roadway for the sum of $14,485.26, they being the lowest bidders.

HENRY KROUSE,
C. A. SMITH,
PETER MEISEL,
S. P. T. WILBUR.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and placed on file.

Gentlemen—Your Auditor respectfully reports: I have examined the books and vouchers of the Surrogate, Sheriff, Registrar and County Clerk and find the same correct.

The net receipts are: Surrogate, $636.75; Sheriff, $729.51; Registrar, $1,697.12; County Clerk, $231.86, which amount has been turned over to the County Collector.

Yours respectfully,
BENJAMIN KING,
Auditor.

On motion of Freeholder Smith reecived and placed on file.

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that it has inspected the jail, also the books of the warden.

We are pleased to report our pail a model of cleanliness and sanitation. We therefore have very little sickness or disease among the prisoners.

Number of prisoners in custody August 1	62
Number received during the month	92
Number in custody August 31	59
Number days board for Aug.	1,773
Maintenance, groceries, meats, and provisions	$243.93
Salaries	325.00
Total	$568.93

Cost per day per prisoner, 32c.

Respectfully submitted,
J. H. DOANE,
JOSEPH PERRY,
JACOB MARTIN.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener received and placed on file.

Gentlemen—Your committee on the Hampton Place Bridge, Cranford, would respectfully report that it has examined the bridge site, and is of the opinion that a new bridge should be built there, using the present foundations and covering with steel beams, and extending the bridge to the full width of the street.

In view of the low state of the bridge funds, however, your committee is of the opinion that the present bridge could be made o last until next year, by replacing a part of the planking on the top, and we would therefore recommend that such action be taken, at a cost not to exceed the sum of seventy-five dollars.

E. K. ADAMS,
C. A. SMITH,
ELSTON DARBY,

Freeholder Gruener moved that the report be received and the recommendation adopted, which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

Gentlemen—the undersigned committee have taken up and considered with the County Attorney the matter of the support of the Gyerrstadt children, who are now being supported by the Borough of Childrens' Guardians under and by virtue of the law of 1899, and we attach hereto a certificate from the Overseer of the Poor which would indicate that these children are not chargable to the Borough of Roselle, the father never having gained a settlement there; and we are advised that that being the case they are the proper charges, while confined and under charge of the Board of Childrens' Guardians, of the County of Union at the sum not less than $1.50 ped week per child; and we would suggest that from this time on the expense now borne by the Borough of Roselle for the support of said children under said law, be borne by the county of Union.

Very respectfully,
W. H. GARRISON,
EISTON DARBY,
JOSEPH PERRY,

Freeholder Doane moved the report be reecived and the recommendation adopted, which on roll call was so ordered by an unanimous vote.

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Normandie Place Bridge, Cranford, would respectfully report that it has awarded the contract for the construction of the said bridge to Elmer L. Moore, he being the lowest bidder, at the price of five hundred and twenty dollars.

Signed by the committee,
E. K. ADAMS,
JOSEPH PERRY.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener reecived and placed on file. The undersigned committee respectfully report that it has appointed Mr. A. T. Crane as bridge tender at Milton avenue, Rahway, N. J., term to expire May 1, 1911.

ADOLPH GRUENER,
W. J. THOMPSON,
W. H. RANDOLPH,

On motion of Freeholder Doane received and placed on file.

New Business.

By Freeholder Thompson.

Whereas, by the assuming of Lake avenue as a State and county road, it has necessitated the erection of a larger and more substantial superstructure over the Robison Branch, near Goodman's Crossing; therefore be it

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to consider the advisability and practicability of utilizing the present bridge when removed, by placing the same over Pumpkin Patch Brook on Bounes Lane.

Freeholder Smith moved the adoption of the resolution, which was so ordered. The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Thompson, Berry and Darby.

By Freeholder Krouse.

Resolved, That the County Collector be and hereby is authorized to pay the money appropriated to hospitals as follows:

Elizabeth General Hospital, eight thousand (8,000) dollars.

Alexian Brothers' Hospital, three thousand (3,000) dollars.

St. Elizabeth Hospital, thirty-seven hundred and fifty (3,750) dollars.

Muhlenberg Hospital, of Plainfield, fifty-two hundred and fify (5,250) dollars.

Summit Hospital, two thousand (2,000) dollars. Be it further

Resolved, That aforesaid amounts should be payable on December 28, 1910.

Freeholder Gruener moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

By Committee on County Roads.

Resolved, That the bill of A. W. Stiles for $570 for building a bridge on Springfield avenue, now county road, be paid when properly audited by the Committee on County Roads.

HENRY KROUSE,
PETER MEISEL,
C. A. SMITH,
S. P. T. WILBUR.

Freeholder Darby moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

By Freeholder Crane.

Resolved that a committee of three be appointed, with power, to recover the present bridge on Colfax avenue, at Larch street, Union Township, Union County, N. J. The present woden covering to be removed and a new cover of steel beams and concrete arches to be placed upon the bridge which is 77½ feet long by 6 feet span. The cost of the work not to exceed the sum of $850.

Freeholder Smith moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was so ordered by an unanimous vote. The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Crane, Adams and Doane.

Whereas, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union has contracted to construct, and is about to construct within the county of Union, several roads or sections thereof, by macadamizing the same in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled, "An act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State," (Revision of 1905), chapter 58 of the Session Laws of 1905, and the supplements and amendments thereto; and

Whereas, the names of the roads so to be improved, and the amount of the contract price for improving the same are as follows, namely:

Palisade avenue and Madison Hill road	$39,219.50
Raritan road and Lake avenue	41,083.30
Shunpike road	37,232.60
Springfield avenue and Turkey road	26,244.62
Section of Springfield avenue	14,485.26
Engineers' fees as per contract	7,913.25

And whereas the estimated two-thirds cost of the proposed work to be done under and by virtue of the provisions of said act will exceed the sum of $110,000, and

Whereas this board deems it advisable, in accordance with the provisions of the said act, to issue bonds of the county for the sum of $110,000, being about two-thirds of the estimated cost of said work, instead of certifying to the County Board of Assessors said estimated cost and have their assessors include the same in their assessments of county taxes, in accordance with the provisions of the eighth section of the act above referred to; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, do hereby authorize and direct bonds of the county to the extent and amount of $110,000, being about two-thirds of the estimated and contract cost of the work of macadamizing the several roads or streets above enumerated, about to be improved under and by virtue of the provisions of chapter 58 of the laws of 1905, and the supplements and amendments thereto, to be issued; said bonds to be designated as "Road Improvement Bonds;" that said bonds shall be for the sum of $110,000, and in amounts of $1,000, each, payable in thirty (30) years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, principal and interest, payable at the National State Bank of Elizabeth, N. J.; that said bonds shall be signed by the Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union and the Collector of said county, and sealed with the seal of the board, and properly

Sale $2.00 to $3.50 Golf Vests

"Golf Vests" is the name by which these ever popular handy garments are known, but thousands are worn by women who are not golfers. They are a knit jacket without sleeves, handsomely bound on edges, with braid to secure the shape and edge. A large knitting mill became financially involved and were forced to sacrifice all their made-up product. We secured the vests at a fraction of their value, and they go to you the same way.

There are dozens in the lot we could place in our regular $2.00 to $2.50 lines. Fact is, they are the same exacting vests we sell hundreds of every Fall at $2.00 to $3.50. Just the garment to wear under a suit or a rain coat or around the house. Make an inexpensive but excellent holiday present. An opportunity that does not occur once in years, and at the price offered, though the quantity is large, they cannot last more than the day, so don't miss it.

Solid colors in black, gray, red and white, plenty of two toned effects, as white with a tiny bit of red or green in the wave, black with a dot of white, and many other combinations. Reg. $1.50 to $3.50 golf vests... 89c

Men's and Young Men's Unusual Fall Suits at $15 and $16

You can do justice to your personal appearance and continue to wear your old summer suit. It pays to be singled out as the correctly attired man—and you will be in one of these $15 or $16 Suits. You would easily mistake them for $20 garments on account of their individuality and clever tailoring.

There are conservative as well as radical models, in the new popular brown shades, also a variety of gray effects with the usual M. & B. shape—retaining qualities built into them.

Fall Overcoats $12 to $30

A light weight overcoat is a comfort these cool evenings. Here are garments that will especially appeal to those who are particular about style, individuality and shapeliness, as well as quality. All the new Fall shades in herringbone and fancy mixed effects, also oxford and black.

MEN'S SAMPLE SHOES $3.85

These are regular $5, $6, $7 and $8 Fall Sample Shoes from a leading manufacturer of high-grade footwear for men. All leathers.

Freeholder Wilbur moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolution, which on roll call was so ordered by an unanimous vote.

Freeholder Wilbur addressed the board in regard to two bills which had been presented for repairs on Hamilton street bridge, Rahway. He thought the members from Rahway had exceeded their authority in ordering work done without first having a committee appointed as the by-laws provide, also that the lumber used was of an inferior quality, and asked that a commitee of three be appointed to examine the work before bills were ordered paid.

Freeholders Randolph and Gruener explained why the work done was so large; that they had started o do some small repairs but found the bridge in such bad condition that it was necessary to recover the bridge before some accident might occur.

The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Wilbur, Gruener and Jones.

Freeholder Wilbur was at this time excused by Director Cady.

The following bills were read and on motion ordered paid:

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

THE GRYOSCOPE COMPASS.

How many readers of the Daily Press, if given an ordinary magnetic compass, and were then asked to walk across the room in a given direction, could do it? Most people imagine that the compass needle points north and south, and instances are on record where hunters have perished in the woods because of this error. The fact is that the needle points west of north about eight degrees in this locality, at the present time. To use a compass the proper thing to do is to turn the compass around until the needle point eight degrees west of north, and then bear off to the right of the needle that many degrees. Any direction you wish to take will then be correctly indicated on the compass when the needle is kept over the point of the true local "declination." Before going into the woods the declination should be ascertained from some nautical almanac or some almanac, or from a civil engineer. For additional safety, a little practise in your backyard will be excellent precaution. To make sure of accuracy, carefully note the direction of the north star any clear night and draw a line on the window sill pointing toward the star. Then place the centre of the compass on this line and find the declination; that is, how many degrees the needle points to the west or east of this north line. To find the north star, select the two stars on the side of the big dipper opposite the "handle," and follow with the eye in the direction they indicate, and the eye soon notes a star standing alone which will easily be seen to be the star desired: In the Rocky Mountains the nedle points anywhere from true north to fifty degrees east of north, while all points west of a line running nearly north and south through Ohio the declination is east instead of west at the present time.

Thanks to this wobbly old earth of ours the compass needle shows not only daily but also annual variations, but the main swing of the needle occurs once every century or two.

For example, in London in 1580 the needle pointed eleven degrees east of north. A hundred years later it pointed true north; then it swung to twenty-five degrees west and is now back to about sixteen degrees west of north.

Hence, it may be seen that "a little knowledge is dangerous." To become familiar with the compass not only must all these things be known, but the effect of magnetic iron in the vicinity must also be taken into consideration.

The compass on board ship is sometimes surrounded with a shield of soft iron and magnets are placed near the needle to counterbalance local magnetism.

Recently the gryoscope has come into use on some warships instead of a compass. This consists of a heavy little wheel so balanced on almost frictionless bearings that when once set in motion the wheel will spin for weeks. It is a peculiarity of such spinning motion that the wheel always remains true to its original plane, and if set in motion in a true north and south direction and then carried aboard ship and placed in position like the ordinary mariner's compass, it is said to maintain its direction under all conditions, and no amount of shock due to firing of heavy guns or pitching of the ship will make it deviate in the least.

Fond of Children.

"Is she very fond of children?"

"I should say she is. She fought her husband for seven months in the courts just to get the custody of them."—Detroit Free Press.

Former Sheriff John Ramsey, of Flemington, underwent a surgical operation at St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton, Wednesday.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Edgar, the young son of Thomas Buzby, of Rancocas, suffered concussion of the brain by being kicked by a colt Tuesday.

Mrs. Selby, of Almonesson, fell from a carriage Tuesday and broke her wrist. At the time she held a baby, but saved it from injury.

John Shivler, a farmer, of Swedesboro, is missing. Before leaving home he is said to have cut the telephone wire connected to his house.

H. Douglas Bamford, twenty-one years old, died at St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton, Wednesday, from injuries received in a fall from a motorcycle about a month ago.

In an effort to stop a dog fight, Raymond Welsh, of 1238 Second street, Camden, was bitten on the hand Wednesday and had the wound cauterized at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Constable Charles Deal, of Mantua, for $3 purchased a lame horse that was to be taken to Gloucester to be killed for its hide. He turned it loose in pasture, and the horse is becoming more valuable each day.

Blood-poisoning, resulting from the disturbance and infection of an old injury, caused the death at Trenton, Wednesday, of Anton Schlegel, sixty-seven years old, and one of the best-known German residents of the city.

Caught between an elevator and floor at an oilcloth works in Camden Wednesday, John Pasquelle, twenty-three years old, of 225 Pine street, sustained a painful injury to the right ankle and was taken to Cooper Hospital.

David Dunn, of Pennington, was arrested Wednesday by Special Officer Thomas M. Cashell and taken before Squire J. M. Dalrymple, of Hopewell, and was fined $5 and costs for being disorderly on a midnight trolley from Trenton. He broke a window in the car.

J. T. Tallman, a prominent farmer of Columbus, was feeding his ensilage cutter Tuesday, when he slipped forward and his hand was caught in the knives of the machine. The blades were drawing his arm into the cutter when an employe knocked the belt from the engine, stopping the wheels. Tallman's hand and arm were badly cut and torn.

As the result of having a pot of lye thrown into his face, Peter Malinson, of 902 Calvin street, Camden, may lose the sight of both eyes. He is now in a hospital receiving treatment, but the physicians have very little hope of saving his sight. Mrs. Wadysla Ross, of the same address, is in the Camden county jail, under $1,000 bail, for having thrown the lye. She says she took this method of resenting Malinson's request to be allowed to kiss her.

In Passais, P. J. Ahern and Charles W. Schroeder, of the United States Secret Service, and Policeman Stephen Koran arrested Wednesday two men who are said to be part of a gang that has been making and passing counterfeit bills in New England. The men are charged with participating in the utterance and passing of counterfeit money in Manchester, N. H., and with attempting to pass two counterfeit $50 bills in Passaic. They were taken to New Hampshire.

DIME IN SHOULDER OF A FIRE HORSE.

An operation performed yesterday by City Veterinarian Matthew A. Pierce on a horse in fire engine company No. 4, of Paterson, to ascertain the cause of a lump which had been raised on the animals shoulder resulted in finding a ten-cent piece. It was embedded in the flesh nearly an inch. How the coin come to get in the horse's shoulder is unknown, but Dr. Pierce ventured to say that the coin had been there about three years.

The horse was then attached to the chemical and was being driven through Main street at a rapid pace. Just as it neared Grand street, the animal slipped and fell, sliding for several feet along the pavement. Dr. Pierce is under the impression that the dime was picked up by the horse then and that the cut escaped the eye of the doctor, who attended the horse afterwards. The swelling was reduced by the removal of the coin.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES.

London, Sept. 23.—Advices from Jerusalem are that the excavations on the summit of the Mount of Olives resulted in the discovery of the remains of a Christian church dating from about the year 330. The floor of the nave is still buried. That of the transepts is entirely exposed. It is of mosaic and is perfectly preserved.

There is a baptismal pool in the south transept. One tombstone has been found bearing the inscription, "Theodorus" in Greek, which is quite legible. In the chancel there are two separate mosaic floors of different designs, one thirty inches above the other. The lower is considered to be a floor of St. Helena's church dating from 330, while the upper floor is a restoration.

The site is taken as that selected as the spot fixed by the oldest tradition as the place where Christ taught the disciples "how to pray."

QUALIFYING ROUND AT P. C. G. TOMORROW

With fair weather tomorrow it is expected there will be a large entry list for play in the qualifying round for the club championship at golf at the Plainfield Country Club. The first sixteen will compete for the championship and the second sixteen for a special cup. The first round of the day will count, therefore players expecting to play both morning and afternoon should enter their names for this competition before starting on their morning round as no one will be allowed to play a practice round and then engage in the qualifying round. This is clearly covered by rule 4 relating to "practice on day of competition" under "special rules for stroke competition," which reads as follows:

"On the day of the competition, before starting, no competitor shall play on, or on to, any of the puting greens, nor shall he intentionally play at any hole of the stipulated round which is within his reach, under penalty of disqualification."

This rule will be enforced. "Marty" O'Loughlin expects to have the course in good condition, with all the putting greens, including those which have lately been seeded, in commission. He also expects to have putting greens cut and rolled and new holes made early in the day, so that all should be smooth and true for players who go around in the morning. As in the past, only active members are eligible to play for the club championship.

GREAT GAME OF BALL AT WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB.

Great preparations have been made for the annual baseball game to be played at the Watchung Hunt Club grounds tomorrow afternoon, between he Plainfield Country Club and Hunt Club teams. The contest will be started promptly at 2:30 o'clock, and it is expected that there will be a large crowd present to witness the game. Morris J. Dumont as captain of the country club team, has picked the strongest men, including several old college players. Duncan Bulkley will pitch and Mr. Dumont will catch.

For the Hunt Club, J. Hartlely Mellick is the captain and he believes he has the strongest aggregation and that his team will win. William Rushmore, who, as a college pitcher, had many victories, will be in the box, and Henry L. DeForest, also an old college player, will do the receiving.

After the game the defeated team will entertain the winners at dinner at the clubhouse, and the famous Eureka Quartet, of New York, will be present and give one of their best programs. This quartet is known as one of the best in the country. It has appeared here on several occasions and always made a hit.

Y. M. C. A. BASEBALL TEAM MAKES HIGH 1910 AVERAGE.

The averages for the Y. M. C. A. baseball team have been computed and show the following interesting facts: Average team batting, .233; fielding, .916; average runs per game, 4; average hits per game, 7. The total scores for all games are: Y. M. C. A., 83; opponents, 65. The games won are 15 and 5 lost. The strike-outs by Y. M. C. A. pitchers are 214 and by opponents' pitchers, 138. There were no home-runs, and B. Adams, J. Fritts, Dumont and P. Adams each have one three-base hit. Peacock is credited with five two-base hits, Dumont with 3, Miller with 2; and Taylor Wilcox, Fritts, Newell, P. Adams, Marsh and Martin each have one two-base hit. The total two-base hits is 17. This record for 1910 compares favorably with previous past baseball records.

DEEP WATERWAY ASSOCIATION TO MEET SEPTEMBER 27.

On September 27 in the Executive Department at the State House, Trenton, there will be a conference of many who are interested in a ship canal across the State. James E. Martine, candidate for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket, adopted this idea in the stand he took whe nhe became a candidate. he took when he became a candidate.

Governor John Franklin Fort has given his consent and approval to the project and Hon. J. Hampton Moore, member of Congress and president of the Atlantic Deep Waterway's Association, has accepted an invitation to address the gathering. Mr. Martine has received an invitation from President F. W. Donnelly, of the association to be present and it is not without the bounds of possibilities that Mr. Martine will have something to say on the subject of deep waterways on this occasion.

Who is "Tom the Peeper"?

What is alleged to be a "Tom the Peeper" has been annoying the residents along Park avenue near Fourth street for the past few nights, but in spite of the vigilance of the residents he has escaped detection. Extra precautions are being taken to trap the fellow.

Lydia Chapter, Order Eastern Star, will hold its first fall meeting in Masonic Hall tonight.

FREEHOLDER'S COUNSEL SETTLES ROAD DISPUTE

There is no doubt now as to ownership of the north side of Westfield avenue from Elizabeth to the Cranford line. County Attorney Codington, of this city at a meeting of the Road Committee of the Board of Freeholders, at the courthouse, Elizabeth, Wednesday afternoon, stated that after a careful examination of the records he is convinced that the north side of the thoroughfare belongs to the county.

The decision settles a long dispute between the county and the borough of Roselle Park and is a victory for Freeholder Aaron D. Crane, of Roselle Park, who has long contended that the county owns the north side of the road.

There has been considerable agitation of late regarding the ownership. Letters on the question have reached the county board from various sources. One was from Attorney Samuel Koestler in which he endeavored to prove the county's ownership. The Borough Council and Mayor of Roselle Park also took up the question.

As a result of the communication the Board of Freeholders at its last meeting referred the matter to the Road Committee and the County attorney for an investigation.

Attorney Codington said yesterday that when the avenue was widened the deeds for the widened part were made to the county and that the franchise to the trolley company over the road was given by the county. He said that there is no doubt but that the county accepted the north side of the road and has never relinquished its ownership.

Proctor's Good Show.

"The Great Powell," the rival of Herrman, the magician, is the big hit at Proctor's theatre this week. He performs many startling tricks and illusions with lightning rapidity. His Domestic Lady

By Annie Hinrichsen

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Because she had heard her brother and his friends laughing over Morton Kenneth's complaint that there were no simple, domestic women and that for this reason he intended to spend his life as a lonely bachelor, she wrote to him.

She was thirteen.

"Dear Sir: I understand that you are a primeval man. That is, that in spite of the glaring footlights before which you have danced along the busy way that leads to wealth and fame; in spite of luxurious, magnificently gowned society queens who would pervert your tastes and set up in your soul a false standard of womanhood, you still feel within you the longing for the simple life when expenses are small and a wife is subservient—and a good cook.

"I will be such a wife to you. I am an old-fashioned woman. That is, I have a domestic soul. I believe that a woman's true vocation is to be her husband's handmaiden; to serve him, cook for him and help him pay in installments for a nice cottage with a little garden in which he can hoe when weary with life's bustle and the close, hot air of a down town office.

"Will you not let me hear from you in regard to this matter at your earliest convenience, and oblige,

"Yours very respectfully,
"DOROTHEA HILLWOOD."

To this he replied:

"Dear Madam: Your favor received. I wish to express to you my appreciation of your kindness and my sincerest thanks for the honor you would confer upon me. But I feel that I have no right to unite my worldly life with one as pure and innocent and unselfish as yours.

"Again thanking you, I remain,
"Yours very truly,
"MORTON KENNETH."

Ten years later she met him. But he did not remember. He had been so busy becoming a great statesman that proposals from unknown young women had no place in his mind. He was a member of the state legislature, leader of his faction in the house and member of half a dozen important committees.

"You Will Vote for It."

For a month he was very devoted to her. He went to see her every day in her apartments in a frivolous and popular hotel, and told her how intensely he disliked women who lived in hotels, instead of in homes of their own. He sent her violets because, he said, they were symbolical of the type of woman he most admired—sweet and modest.

The legislature convened and he was compelled to go to the state capital for the winter session.

A week later, Mrs. Bonde Boyde, grandest of all the grand dames whose social and club activities fill the society pages, went to the capital and with her she took her niece, Dorothea. The Woman's Progressive league had prepared a bill granting women certain municipal privileges, and this bill was to be introduced in the house. Mrs. Bonde Boyde was president of the league.

She and her niece reached the capital late in the afternoon and went to an historic, old hotel.

After dinner Morton Kenneth came to her in the hotel drawing room. He sat down on a slim, squeaky, little chair so close to her that his shoes touched her new, rose-colored broadcloth.

"What are you doing here?" he asked gloomily.

"I am here because I am interested in certain measures pending before the house."

"What? Lobbying? You? Dorothea—" His tone was exactly what it would have been if he had caught her in the act of hanging her grandmother.

"House bill 153," she went on tranquilly.

"Woman's suffrage? You? Dorothea—"

"I desire you to support that bill," she said, as if she were asking him to call the waiter. "It will be read in the house tomorrow and referred to a committee of which you are a member. You will see that it is reported favorably out of the committee and its next reading in the house you will make a speech—a good, strong speech—in favor of it. You will vote for it every vote you control."

Then the smolder of the young man's wrath became a conflagration intended to destroy all her assertive and progressive tendencies. For two hours she listened to remonstrance, expostulations and downright refusals.

The next day she heard from the gallery of the house the bill read and referred to the committee on resolutions. Mr. Kenneth bowed to her, from a distance, in the house and in the hotel dining room.

For several days he treated her with a high and mighty disdain which should have reduced her to the clinging vine state. But it did not.

The chairman of the committee on resolutions gave a theater party one evening and after it a supper at the hotel. He was a young man and very charming. Morton Kenneth was not invited to the party.

When the chairman put Mrs. Bonde Boyde and her niece into the elevator about midnight, Mr. Kenneth was sitting in the corridor on a seat opposite the elevator staring into space and busily engaged in not looking at them. A few minutes later a maid brought Miss Hillwood a letter.

"Dear Dorothea: I am tired of foolishness. Drop this ridiculous woman's rights business and marry me. You are frittering away a sweet, womanly soul in an unprofitable, insincere life. Every woman should be in a home of her own with a husband to take care of her. Won't you take the home and the husband I offer you? Give up this chase after fads, this artificial way of living. I love you. I want you for my own. Won't you marry me, dear?

"MORTON."

To this she replied:

"Dear Sir: Your favor received. I wish to express to you my appreciation of your kindness and my sincerest thanks for the honor you would confer upon me. But I feel that I have no right to unite my worldly life with one as pure and innocent and unselfish as yours.

"Again thanking you, I remain,
"Yours very truly,
"DOROTHEA HILLWOOD."

Next morning the telephone wakened her.

"Were you that kid?"

"What kid?"

"The kid that proposed to me years ago."

Silence.

"Say, Dorothea, are you still there?"

"Yes."

"Will you come down to the parlor? I want to see you."

"No. I'm busy."

"But I have something to tell you. The resolutions committee met this morning and your bill was reported out favorably."

"Mr. Gray promised me it should be."

"Gray didn't have a thing to do with it. I did it myself. And this afternoon, by special order, it is to be read again in the house and I shall make a speech in favor of it."

"Do you believe in the bill, Morton?"

"I believe in you."

"I want you to believe in the bill. Do you?"

"Wouldn't support it if I didn't, even for you."

"Do you believe in women's rights?"

Silence.

"Morton, do you believe in women's equal rights with men?"

"Yes."

"Do you believe in the broader life for women, the same privileges that men have, political, business and social—especially social?"

"Oh, Dorothea."

"Do you?"

"Yes."

"I'll be down. And, Morton—are you still there—I'll walk over to the state house with you, if you want me to. Hush—don't tell me over the phone that you love me. Yes, I do want to hear you say it—of course I want to know how much you love me. Tell me when I come down."

Edwards' Economy of Time.

A hundred and fifty years ago Jonathan Edwards was the leading theologian of New England. With his doctrine and his preaching we have nothing to do. His habits of industry, however, furnish the men and women of this generation a lesson which they will do well to study until they have learned it by heart and can repeat it in their lives.

This trait of the noted divine is described in the pages of "Heavenly Heretics," a recent book by Rev. Lyman P. Powell.

No one was ever more careful in the use of time. He lived by rule, rising before five, spending 13 hours in his study every day, reading the Bible and every book of worth he could lay hands on, catching every thought that came to mind and putting it on paper.

His habit of note-taking became with wassing years so inveterate that even while he was at his daily exercise on horseback he was wont to jot down on scraps of paper stray ideas, pin each scrap to his coat, and come galloping home with papers fluttering to the breeze from shoulders, breast and coat tails.—Youth's Companion.

Substitute Suggested.

"I say, me good man," queried Algernon Perceval Montmorency as he entered the drug emporium, "have you—aw—a good hair wenewah that I could use on me mustache, doncher know?"

"Yes," replied the druggist, "but we have something still better for your purpose. It is called 'Blank's Hair Originator.'"

BOLD ENEMY OF THE SNAKE

Unfortunately the Mongoose Also Has an Insatiable Appetite for Chicken.

"The loneliest living creature in the United States is undoubtedly the mongoose," was the statement made by Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological park. "I believe that there are but two or three of the beasts in this country. Mongoose society, you might say, is not teeming with members. A mongoose is a pink-eyed, flexible-snouted little animal, with a shape like a debutante. He is chiefly waist, that is to say. He is partial to snakes, as a steady diet, or, perhaps, it might be better to say a wriggly or unsteady diet. He was one of the original 'catch-'em-alive-Os.' A mongoose will kill almost any sort of an ordinary sized snake. Most of the constrictor family, however, are too big for him. But he's a bold mite of a furry creature and will tackle almost anything in the serpent line. A mongoose is easily domesticated and in many respects is quite as pleasing a pet as a cat or dog.

"The single objection to him is the fact that if he can't have his snakes he is only too willing to subsist on chicken. As a raider of henroosts a Maryland darky is a neophyte compared with a mongoose. That is the reason there are so few of him in this country. There is a federal law which absolutely forbids the importation of a mongoose. It really is a pity that this most companionable of animals has to be barred from the country. But you simply couldn't keep a chicken in the same neighborhood with a mongoose, safeguard the henhouses as you might. A mongoose can go any place he chooses. If there isn't a hole, he imagines one and crawls through it. I'd like to keep one in the Bronx reptile house, but I couldn't afford to. He'd dine on my rarest snakes, despite anything I could do to prevent him."

American Folk Songs.

As yet no ballad writer has appeared in America that rivals Kipling or the pre-eminent Burns. The product we have from professed ballad singers is mediocre. But out in the far corners of the land there are to be found the folk songs, true ballads whose authorship will never be known. The course of our national development and the inherent romance of the fields and forests has inspired the ordinary lyre to lofty songs. And the life of isolated communities and the common if narrow interests of the men who work in gangs under all sorts of dangers have given rise to song and chaft that savor of the blood. The English department of Harvard university has commissioned John A. Lomax, associate professor in College Station, Tex., under the Sheldon fellowship, to gather together these typical ballads. The old cowboy ditties, the chanteys of the coast, the gulf and the great lakes are what he wants. There are also army songs, lumberjack chants, the songs of voyageur, miner and vagabond. All these serve to characterize vividly life that is passing. And it may be that thorough search will reveal unsuspected treasures.

Cradle Unfashionable.

Cradles are going out; children are not wearing them any more. People tell us that rocking is unhygienic; babies, according to modern idea, should go to sleep naturally in a stationary germproof bed, with antiseptic pillows and a sanitized rattle. Sentiment may save the cradle for a little while, but sooner or later it will go to the dusty attic along with the haircloth sofa. Maybe the infant of tomorrow will bear up somehow under these accumulated misfortunes, will struggle along somehow to maturity, but what about the artists, the poets, the song writers. What a world of sentiment and melody has been woven around the theme of the mother and the gently rocking cradle! What kind of song will the poor poet of the future be able to make about an enameled iron crib with brass trimmings!—Success Maagzine.

The Cultured Old Man.

"Algernon is very interesting," said the stock broker's daughter.

"What does he talk about?" inquired her father.

"Why, he's ever so well posted in Shakespearean questions," was the answer.

"Young woman," said the financier, sternly, "don't let him deceive you. Don't you let him make sport of your ignorance. There isn't any such stock on the market. I ought to know, for I've been on the exchange long enough."

Still Preaching at Ninety-One.

Rev. L. C. Wood recently entered upon his ninety-second year. For more than 64 years he has been vicar of Singleton, near Blackpool.

He is in excellent health, works hard in the parish, preaches regularly and presides at various agricultural meetings of associations with which he is connected. He attends all the public functions in the Blackpool district, and a few days ago he delivered a panegyric on the late King Edward which revealed great mental as well as physical vigor.—London Standard.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD.

A BUSINESS WOMAN

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

When coal oil was found in West Virginia among the few who held on to their land was the widow Turner.

When the widow Turner was left to care for herself she possessed sixty acres of sterile land, a wretched old cabin, a mule and a cow. She had always worked in the field with her husband. She was a large, bony woman, unable to read or write, and the very homeliest among a lot of homely women. No one predicted that she would marry again, and she had no encouraging thoughts herself. She lived alone, and all the farm work was done by her own hands.

When the oil excitement got started all the landowners around the widow Turner sold out. She alone held on. She was offered five times what her farm was considered worth, but she shook her head. As a matter of fact, she was frightened.

Then along came a tin peddler. She had dealt with him before and found him honest. She told him her troubles, and he said:

"Widow, I am going to talk plainly to you. You are as ignorant as a mule and as homely as a stump fence."

"I know it," was the answer.

"If things had run along as they were going you couldn't have found a man in the United States to marry you."

"I admit that."

"But now you can. You can not only find a husband, but money with him. Let me tell you what to do."

They had a long conversation, and the result of it was that when an offer for the farm was renewed next day it was accepted with a proviso. The widow demanded $50,000 in cash and a husband. It was acceded to at once. It would be very easy to find a man to marry her and run away afterward. Plenty of them could be hired for $2,000. But the widow wanted an acceptable husband. That was different. Thirty men were paraded before her, and she rejected every one. The capitalists had figured on a soft thing and got left. After two months' search and after fifty men had been brought forward one was found to fill the bill. He was no scrub. On the contrary, he was a broken down gentleman. It was like mating an eagle with a crow.

Yes, he would do, but there were details to be considered. He must be bound to certain things, and the buyer of the farm must guarantee him. He must be bound not to run away and not to apply for a divorce. He must be bound to live in the same house with her and not be absent over three days at any time without her written permission. He must teach her the common branches of education and rules of etiquette. He must take her to New York city and Niagara falls once in two years. If she wished to sign he must not be put out. Her money must be her own. There were about a dozen other things mentioned, and the broken down gentleman said he'd be hanged if he would. They had promised him $10,000, but he said it wasn't enough. He hung out until he was offered the same as the widow. They told him that a smart lawyer could pick a dozen loopholes in the contract.

But the widow wasn't through yet. They must allow her $10,000 for a lawyer's fee. They agreed, and she sent to Chicago for one of the leaders of the bar. Then came the guarantee. The guarantee of the buyer was not enough. The lawyer insisted that some one must guarantee him. This was done. Time had been wasted, and "gushers" were being struck all around them. The money was counted out, the marriage took place, and the next day the divorces were at work. The newly weds went to the nearest village to pass their honeymoon.

The broken down gentleman had gone into the thing to make a stake. He had a good mind for billiards, good clothes and good dinners, but not for legal matters. Within three days he ran away. The wife called upon the guarantors to return him. They had to hire a detective and hunt for a month. When he was brought back he was locked up for two weeks. He appealed to the law, but the law said that his wife had a right to take all reasonable precautions. He had bound himself to teach her certain things. He refused. She called upon his guarantors, and they forced him to do it. He had taught her the A B C's when he ran away again. Again he was brought back.

Although the work of drilling wells had begun at once, there were no results. They drilled here and there for more than a year, but not a pint of oil was had. That farm was just over the oil line somehow. Geologists said there ought to be a great lake of oil under it, but it didn't turn out that way. In buying and drilling more than half a million dollars was expended. At the end of a year the broken down ran away again. When his backers were called upon to return him they agreed to give the wife $5,000 to let them off the contract. The tin peddler came along and advised her to take it, and she did. She is still living on that little farm in the Buckeye State, and, though her singing scares the cows for miles around and she is not up on all quette and has to spell out the long words, she has money to burn and is fairly happy. The tin peddler, too, his conscience reproved him for a good deed done.

TURNING FROM IDOL WORSHIP

Indians of Nicaragua Rapidly Being Brought to a State of Christianity.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Zollhoper, Moravian church missionaries to the Indians in Nicaragua, are at the Grunewald. Mr. and Mrs. Zollhoper are from Germany, and have been located on the Mosquito coast of Central America for ten years. They are returning now from a year's vacation at their homes, and have heard nothing as to the trouble in Nicaragua.

"Our work in Nicaragua is confined to the native Indians," said Mr. Zollhoper recently, "and we have now about 6,000 of these former heathen worshipers under our control."

Mr. Zollhoper said that the basis of the Indian superstition was that there were two gods, one a male and one a female, but there was no joint control by these two.

"The male god," said he, "is called Wonaisa, which means in the native language 'our father.' This god is supposed to be a good deity, but the natives do not think much of his power to control their affairs. They seem to think that he lives very far off somewhere, they do not know, and that he pays very little atention to the affairs of man, but still they think that there is nothing vindictive about him.

"The other god is a female deity, and is named Yapti Misera, which means 'mother of the Indians.' This goddess is supposed to dwell in the Indian heaven, and to rule the spirits of the departed. Their idea of this heaven is like that of the Turkish or Mahammedan religion. They believe that there will be dancing and drinking, and all kinds of merrymaking there, and once a year they have a feast to this Yapti Misera, and this feast is characterized by all sorts of self-indulgence."

Mr. Zollhoper said that the native Indians were allowed to live very much as they pleased, and they were not affected by any changes of government. He said that they were becoming Christianized very rapidly, and that, once taken out of their own crude superstition or religion, they made very good people.—New Orleans Picayune.

Checking the Compass at Sea.

The steel hull of a vessel is rendered magnetic during construction by the hammering of the metal, and every steel vessel has to have its compass corrected to counteract its own magnetic lines of force. The magnetic influence is further complicated by the load carried by the vessel if this load is magnetic or capable of being magnetized. The ore-carrying vessels of the great lakes experience great difficulty on this account, and the United States hydrographic bureau is endeavoring to teach pilots and captains of vessels plying in this trade how to check their course by means of the pelorus. The pelorus is an instrument similar to the sun dial, being provided with a gnomon and a graduated arc on which a shadow of the gnomon is cast. The instrument is set in a north and south direction, as indicated by the compass, and then by noting the shadow on the graduated arc, it is possible to tell by comparison with tables, furnished by the government, just how far from the north and south position the gnomon really lies, thus showing the compass' error.

The Siamese Twins.

Siamese Twins was a name given to two children, Eng and Chang, born of Chinese parents in Siam, in 1811, having their bodies united by a band of flesh, stretching from the end of one breastbone to the same place on the opposite twin. The Siamese Twins were purchased of their mother at Meklong, and were brought to America in 1829 for exhibition purposes, and were afterwards taken to England. After realizing a competence by exhibiting themselves in the various countries of Europe, the Siamese Twins settled down in the southern states, where they were married to sisters and had offspring. Ruined by the Civil war in America, the Siamese Twins again made a tour of Europe, and exhibited themselves again in London in 1869. They died January 17, 1874, the one surviving the other only two hours and a half, and then then dying from the effect of the shock on a heart already weak.

New System of Jointing Lead Cables.

A new system of jointing lead cables has been developed in England. It consists in placing a thin ribbon of pure tin between the surfaces that are to be joined, and then heating them with a blow lamp. The surfaces in the presence of the tin melt at a lower temperature than normal, and thus they are soldered together. The tin ribbon is treated with a composition to prevent oxidation during heating. Another system of jointing consists in the application of a mold over the cable. A piece of tin ribbon is applied to the surfaces which are to be joined, and then molten lead is poured into the mold. The flow is so directed as not to burn through the lead sheathing of the cable.

A Repulsive Practise.

"Ever noticed it?" queried the party who propounds queries on the installment plan.

"Did I ever notice what?" asked the other, who did not even pretend to be a mind reader.

"That the person who finds fault invariably insists upon returning it to the owner," concluded he of the prelude.

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

TELLS OF FLIGHT BY NIGHT

Paulhan's Account of Trip From London to Manchester Is Interesting Reading.

Paulhan, the French aviator, tells of certain incidents in his recent record-breaking flight from London to Manchester. "When I went to London I had no real idea that I should be able to start that day, and I had only five hours' sleep the night before. I found the atmosphere rather disturbed when I rose; there were small, gusty puffs and 'ricky currents, and it was somewhat difficult to find just the altitude at which they would bother me least. I heard the cheering of the people as I circled over Hendon. I followed the line of the Midland railway to Hampstead. By this time I knew that I had fulfilled the conditions necessary for a start, so I flew directly for the Northwestern railroad. A pelting rainstorm lashed me for 20 minutes while I was in the neighborhood of Rugby. Fortunately, I am not unused to flying in rain; therefore, although it was uncomfortable, it had no effect upon my flight. I flew until it was quite dark. All I could make out beneath me was the smoke of a train once in a while and the occasional flicker of lights from a village. I came down rapidly from 300 meters to 100, so that I could be more certain of my direction.

"Then came the most exciting moment of my flight. Darkness had fallen before me. I saw the lights of Lichfield. I decided to alight in some convenient meadow before reaching the town, and to do this I sunk down to 150 feet. I was immediately above what looked like a large factory with a chimney. I am now told it was a brewery, and so, to alight safely in the field with no damage done, I made a fish-hook turn and my machine was now pointing toward London.

"Suddenly my motor stopped, every drop of petrol exhausted, and the machine swooped downward almost like a stone dropping. What should I do? Beneath me was the brewery and a certain smash. Behind me was a narrow field which was almost like a spider's web with a mesh of telegraph wires. I had an imperceptible fraction of a second in which to make up my mind, and I decided to risk the telegraph wires. As I sunk I made a sharp twist right back on the line of my course and was lucky enough to lift myself over the wires."

Adventures of Pearl Necklace.

In remarkable circumstances a pearl necklace worth $16,000, which was stolen a few days ago from the Marquise de L., has been recovered. The marquise, who was staying at a Paris hotel, had ordered some shoes. These were brought by a messenger boy, who took the opportunity of pocketing the necklace.

On arriving home the lad's mother found the jewels in his pocket. He told her he had bought the necklace and was soundly scolded for spending the money on such rubbish. She took the row of pearls, and gave it to her little daughter, who went to school with it round her neck. "I thought the whole thing was not worth ten cents," said the little girl's mother to the magistrate when the lad had been arrested. As the necklace was too large for the girl, her mother took some of the pearls out, which she put in her work-basket amongst buttons, needles and threads.

All the pearls were found and handed to the marquise, who was so much amused at the adventures of the recovered necklace that she withdrew the complaint, with the result that the boy was set at liberty.

Stableman's Unlucky Find.

An unfortunate experience has just befallen a French stableman named Brodequin. Seven years ago when cleaning a carriage he found a brooch with a white stone inset, which he took to be an imitation diamond. He married, and a year later became the father of a girl. The brooch was used to hold up the baby's bib and on her sixth birthday Brodequin took the child to a jeweler's to buy some earrings. The child was wearing the brooch, and the jeweler recognizing the white stone as a diamond, offered £40 for it.

Brodequin refused the offer and took the brooch to another jeweler, who handed him over to the police. Experts find the brooch to be worth £150 and Brodequin is to be prosecuted for theft because he did not take his find to a police station seven years ago.

Plowed Up a Roman Coffin.

A discovery of great archeological interest was made in a plowed field near Westbury, Wiltshire, England. About a foot from the surface a plowman on Lord Ludlow's estate came across the remains of an ancient coffin.

Investigation proved it to be a lead shell, the outer wooden covering perished. Bones and teeth in a good state of preservation were found inside, these being subsequently reinterred. The lead shell was taken by Mr. Cunnington, secretary of the Wiltshire Archeological society, to Devizes museum. He considers that a Roman settlement had formerly been made in the neighborhood, the interment being of that period.

GREAT NIGHT FOR KNIGHTS

Grand Lodge Special Session Held in Rooms of Perseverance Lodge No. 74.

MR. KEELER MAKES A HIT.

General William Hitchcock, of Jersey City, and Judge Schenck Speak—"Dutch" Supper Served.

The first special session of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, ever held in this State took place last night in the lodge rooms of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, and at least two hundred members from out of town were present. Three more meetings of similar character are to be held, Millville, Long Branch and Paterson being the places.

The local lodge was in charge of Past Grand Chancellor John Ulrich, assisted by Grand Chancellor Elmer Drucher, of Elizabeth; Grand Vice-Chancellor Harry Keeler, of Newark; Grand Prelate William Quick, of Somerville; Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Margerum, of Trenton.

Frank Putnam of this city, was appointed grand master-at-arms; Charles Fredericks, of Elizabeth, grand inside guard; F. M. Littell, of Perth Amboy, grand outer guard. Plainfield was also honored by the appointment of V. W. Nash, Jr., on the committee of credentials. With Mr. Nash are Josiah Pool, of Elizabeth, and William B. Edgar, of Neshanic.

Twenty-two members of the order received the degree of past chancellor, among whom were seven members of the order in this city, six from Somerville, eight from Elizabeth and one from Rahway. Speeches were made by all of the presiding officers and Major-General William Hitchcock, of Jersey City, who urged the members of the order to join the uniformed rank or the auxiliary which is to be instituted in this city on next Tuesday night.

Harry Keeler of Newark, delivered the speech which most of the members will remember for years. Mr. Keeler talked on selfishness and showed some points which brought the question squarely before his hearers. There are three candidates for the office of supreme representative, Judge Ulrich, Joseph Wilson, of Perth Amboy, and Henry Heinrichs, of Paterson, and some of Mr. Keeler's remarks were straight to the point on the aspirations of these candidates.

Among the other speakers were Judge Lewis H. Schenck, of Neshanic, who gave a splendid talk on the value of the order to humanity in general; Lewis Moosbrugger, candidate for the assembly, who dilated upon the splendid fraternal relations existing between the local lodges, and officers who declared that the splendid condition of the Knights was almost equal to the condition twenty years ago when a total membership of 15,000 was the number in New Jersey. A special effort is being made to bring the total membership up to 15,500 by November 1 and already the committee having the matter in hand report applications of 500.

Following the business session and the speechmaking a "Dutch" supper was served at which nearly three hundred members and friends enjoyed themselves. Members were present from Freehold, Paterson, Somerville, Neshanic, Flemington, High Bridge, Rahway, Elizabeth, Newark, Jersey City and Bound Brook.

It was the most enthusiastic and most profitable meeting the order has ever held in this city. The members of the two local lodges who took the grand lodge degree were: from Peresverance Lodge, No. 74, Oliver R. Pierson, Charles A. Peterson, William Baker, John R. H. Hall, Fred Douglass and Joseph Baker. From Unity, No. 102, E. P. T. Smith.

LOST A SUIT CASE; FOUND SOME LIQUOR.

A white-bearded man, probably sixty-five years old, wandered around this city last night looking for a lost suit case. But as he wandered he visited the various saloons and by 10 o'clock was so much under the influence of liquor that he did not know whether he was looking for a suit case or a head of Pennsylvania cabbage.

The aged wanderer gave his name as Max Morge and claimed to hail from Titusville, Pa. He said he had been visiting the Allentown fair and somehow had got off the train at the wrong place. He was taken care of at a local hotel and sent on his way rejoicing this morning.

AUTO CLUB TO DISCUSS MOTOR LAW IMPROVEMENT

The Plainfield Automobile Club will take some action on the resolutions which have been presented to other New Jersey automobile organizations and accepted by them on Tuesday night, Sept. 27, in order to get a uniform law passed regarding the carrying of automobile licenses and upon which so much discussion has taken place of late in other States.

There are eighty-five members of the local club who have signified their intention of being present on this occasion and in addition all the candidates for the Assembly have been invited to hear the question discussed. It is probable that the efforts of the local club will bring out a large attendance and Harry Marshall, the president, is anxious that every member shall bring a friend who is an owner of an automobile.

J. H. Wood, president, and H. A. Bonnell, secretary of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, will be present and add their voices to the general sentiment for a betterment in the inter-State license law in so far as it relates to motor cars.

A mass meeting will be held on the date above noted on the top floor of the City National Bank building and automobile owners are requested to note the date and place.

HANS, THE FLUTE PLAYER, NEEDED IN PISCATAWAY TWP

Because rats gnawed their way into teachers' desks in several of the Piscataway township schools, the Piscataway Board of Education has ordered metal botoms to be put into the desks. At the New Market school, the rats not only gnawed their way into the desks but chewed up some papers belonging to the teachers The attention of the board had been called to this fact several times and it decided to take action yesterday. The work of putting in the metal bottoms will be done next week.

Another drawback with which the board has had to contend is flagpoles. At the Foster avenue school some boys whose identity is unknown cut the halyards and pulled them out of the flagpole there. Now the board will have to engage a steeple jack to put in new halyards. And at the Parker school a flagpole which was ordered, is still undelivered. At the meeting of the board yesterday, Contractor Coriell, who is to supply the pole, was notified that it must be in position before the middle of October.

MYSTERY IN SHOOTING STILL UNEXPLAINED.

The police were called by telephone at 12:45 o'clock last night by neighbors of the Von Ohl family, of Lane avenue. Several revolver shots were heard, followed by the screams of a woman. Patrolman McGinley and Driver O'Gorman went to the address in the patrol wagon and found that Mrs. Von Ohl had been frightened by what appeared to have been an attempt to steal one of her horses.

The policemen reported that there must have been a mistaken idea in the mind of someone, for they discovered the missing pony in the field near the house and they found that the animal had simply slipped his halter nad wandered out of the barn. The shooting was not explained, although the patrolmen spent nearly two hours investigating the mystery.

Rally at Grace M. E. Church.

There will be rally services at Grace M. E. church tomorrow morning when all the members and probationers are earnestly requested to be present. In the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Sunday school rally will be held. Rev. Dr. A. W. Hayes, of Westfield, will give the address. At 7 o'clock in the evening the Epworth League will resume its vesper services. Prof. H. C. Krebs will make the address. The evening service will begin at 7:45.

Will be Good Now.

Seven small boys living in the West End were arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon this morning on charges of disorderly conduct preferred by Cormick McDonough, of 63 Summit avenue, North Plainfield. It was alleged that the boys had maliciously destroyed some of Mr. McDonough's property. Judge Runyon gave them a lecture and exacted a promise that their future conduct would be better than "Buster Brown's."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Crawford, of Keyport, formerly of this city, spent yesterday in town with friends.

HOLY NAME RALLY PLANS

Program Announced For Big Demonstration of Catholic Society Here.

SPEAKERS ARE SELECTED.

Former Attorney General Donnelly, Rev. Joseph MacMahon, Both of New York, to Make Addresses.

When the first demonstration of the Holy Name Society is held in this city Sunday, October 9, 3,500 delegates will march in the half-hour parade and take part in the exercises. These will come from the six parishes of Elizabeth, two of Plainfield, and from Roselle, Cranford, Westfield, Dunellen, Raritan and Somerville. The object of the celebration is to engender respect for the name of the Savior and publicly to protest against blasphemy and foul speech.

The details of the demonstration have been completed. A parade of the delegates bearing blue and white banners with the symbol of the society, "H. N. S.", and headed by a flag bearer carrying the American flag, will march through the principal streets of the city. No matter how many nationalities are represented, the American flag only will be carried. Michael J. Caffrey, president of the local society, will be marshal of the Plainfield division. Michael D. O'Keefe will be marshal of the other division.

After the parade religious exercises will be conducted within the grounds of St. Mary's church. Two addresses will be given. Rev. Joseph J. MacMahon, of the church at 143d street, New York, will give one of the speeches and the layman to give the other will be Joseph J. Donnelly, formerly Deputy Attorney-General of New York State. Father Bogan will welcome the visitors and introduce the speakers. The Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be by the venerable Dean Gessmer, of Elizabethport. The speeches will be along the line of higher standards of citizenship and the influence of morality in the upbuilding of the people. The fact that it is a distinctly religious demonstration explains the absence of so-called "prominent people" on the platform.

Each delegate will receive Holy Communion in his own parish before coming to Plainfield.

Arrangements have been made with the Jersey Central railroad for reduced rates for the delegates. Van Baar's band, of New York, will head the Plainfield division of the parade, and Raritan and Elizabeth will bring their own bands.

Mrs. Terry Under Peace Bonds.

Mrs. Rose Terry, an Italian, of Somerset street, was held in $50 bonds by Justice of the Peace Thomas Snape yesterday to keep the peace. Mrs. Terry occupies a half of a double house. Her neighbors in the other half are Maggie Bell, and her mother, Mrs. Rose Jackson, colored. The charge was one of disorderly conduct and was preferred yesterday morning. Bonds were furnished by Mrs. Terry's husband.

S. S. Swackhamer Will Speak.

S. S. Swackhamer will speak at Warren chapel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on the subject, "The Saloon Question in the Borough." The address will be pertinent to the visit of Mr. Swackhamer and Rev. J. O. McKelvey to Somerville this week, when they appeared before the courts and remonstrated against the granting of two liquor licenses in the borough. All men are invited to attend the meeting.

Revival at Dunellen.

The clergymen's association of Dunellen and New Market is preparing for an evangelistis campaign to be held this fall. The evangelistic meetings will be undenominational in nature and will be held in the assemblies of the various schools in Piscataway township and in churches in and about Dunellen and New Market. All of the pastors are to unite in the work which will begin next month.

Tickets Ready for Dollar Dinner.

J. Henry Crane, who is a member of the committee in charge of the dollar dinner to be given by the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, early in October, announces that he has tickets for the affair and those wishing to purchase them can obtain the same from him.

Century Tire Co. Chartered.

Among the concerns chartered in the State department at Trenton, yesterday, was the Century Tire Company, with a capital of $125,000.

William E. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue, is detained at home with intermittent fever, which at first was thought to be typhoid.

WILSON TO SPEAK HERE

Democrats Gubernatorial Candidate to Make an Address Thursday Night.

HIS ITINERARY ANNOUNCED.

Chairman Nugent Arranges For the Candidate to Make Four Speeches Each Week Until Election Day.

The New Jersey Democratic State committee met at its headquarters in Newark yesterday, and after the members had made reports of a rainbow hue listened to a speech by Chairman Nugent, and arranged the itinerary of Dr. Wilson's speaking campaign.

The Democratic candidate for Governor is to speak four nights a week from now until election day—Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights—and the following dates have been arranged for him: September 28, Jersey City; 29, Trenton Interstate Fair during afternoon; Plainfield at night; 30, Newark; October 1, Monmouth county; 3, Mercer county; 5, Gloucester; 6, Burlington; 7, Cumberland; 8, Cape May; 11, Paterson; 13, Atlantic City; 14, Freehold; 15, Toms River; 16, Somerville; 20, Flemington; 21, Phillipsburg; 23, Newton; 24, Salem; 25, Camden; 26, Perth Amboy; 27, Bergen county; 28, Elizabeth; 29, Hoboken; November 1, Passaic; 2, Oranges; 3, Morristown and Dover; 4, New Brunswick; 5, Newark.

Mr. Nugent in his address urged the committeemen to get busy, saying that there was a hard fight ahead.

"This year we enter the contest with a reawakened hope and entire confidence in our future success," he declared. "There remains, however, stern and difficult work before us, and overconfidence cannot win victories. It is our duty to immediately lay plans for the most vigorous and aggressive campaign possible. This can be accomplished only by co-ordination of action and self-sacrificing work. It rests with you, gentlemen of the State committee, to direct this fight."

Campaign headquarters will be opened in Newark, with William K. Devereux in charge.

JUSTICE'S INDISPOSITION PUTS AN END TO HEARING

Proceedings were heard before Justice Clark yesterday afternoon on complaints of J. K. VanNess, who claimed that four workmen, Edward Schymer and his brother, Mark, John Hummer and Edward Brown, employes of Alexander Milne, had no right to tear down a building purchaser by Geo. Forsythe from the executors of an estate in which VanNess was interested. The building was bought in by Mr. Forsythe at a foreclosure sale and he attempted to take immediate possession.

The structure was not the kind that Mr. Forsythe cared for on the premises and according to the testimony presented he engaged Alexander Milne and made a contract with him to tear it down. Mr. Milne sent the four men mentioned above to do the work and they were stopped by Mr. VanNess.

Mr. Forsythe has had lots of trouble ever since he purchased the property and several times, it is said, the matter has been laid over for a hearing and bonds furnished for an appearance in the case. Yesterday afternoon William G. DeMeza and V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared in the courtroom ready to proceed with the case, but owing to the indisposition of Justice Clark they were unable to accomplish anything beyond having the men in the employ of Mr. Milne discharged and the case adjourned until next Thursday. Those interested in the case may or may not appear in the Scotch Plains Town hall on Thursday as a result of yesterday's proceedings.

Guest at Baden-Powell Banquet.

William Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., who successfully founded a local patrol of Boy Scouts, attended a banquet in honor of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the movement, at the Waldorf Astoria last night. Copies of the official book written by Ernest Thompson Seton and bound in red leather were distributed as favors.

Graduation Exercises at Trinity.

Graduation exercises of the beginners, primary and junior departments of Trinity Reformed church Sunday school, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. These exercises, held once a year, are always interesting and usually attended by a large number of members and friends of the school.

RUNYON EULOGIZES TAFT

The Republican Congressional Nominee Praises President and Vivian Lewis.

HE SPEAKS AT ELIZABETH.

Assemblyman Schwartz Also Addresses Elizabeth Central Committee at Downtown Republican Club.

Reiterating the statement he made in his fight for the nomination, Judge William N. Runyon, after addressing the Elizabeth Central committee at the Downtown Republican club, in that city, last night declared that when elected to Congress he would vote and work for the best man for Speaker. He added that he did not consider Cannon's candidacy for that place one conducive to party harmony and that therefore he did not consider him the man for the place.

Repeating what he had said many times before, he paid a strong tribute to President Taft during his speech at the meeting, and stated that as a wise, temperate and thoughtful chief executive he should receive the support of all the people and that it would be his constant aim to work for Mr. Taft's policies. He also eulogized Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, referring to his magnetic personality and clean record.

Judge Runyon addressed the committee and upheld the Taft administration. He said that every Republican should realize Taft's ability and work hard for his policies. He referred to the President as the "safety valve of the nation."

Augustus W. Schwartz, nominee for Assembly, said that this is a most strenuous campaign. He urged Republicans to co-operate if they wished success. "Something may slip," he said, "and the wrong party will come to the front."

Charles Wagner, a young attorney whose political career began when he was elected president of the Downtown Republican Club a few months ago, criticised Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee for Governor, saying that he had never been confronted with public problems and was unused to the handling of State affairs.

Samuel J. Berry, nominee for Mayor, spoke briefly. He outlined his platform. Elias Applegate, nominee for excise commissioner; Frederick Bender, nominee for the Union County Board of Freeholders, and Sydney Williams delivered addresses.

Assistant Postmaster James White presided

D. A. R. CHAPTER RESUMES ITS ACTIVITY ON OCT. 18.

Camp Middlebrook chapter, D. A. R., held its first meeting of the fall season at the library club rooms in Bound Brook on Tuesday last and some twenty members were present. Mrs. C. W. Thomae, the regent, was the host, and an interesting and profitable afternoon was spent. The names of two applicants were presented for consideration and one previously presented for membership was elected.

Representatives from Continental, Morristown, Frelinghuysen, Princeton and Jersey Blue chapters were present and work for the coming year was planned. They include a needlework meeting in October, probably on Tuesday, October 18, and on that date the election of officers for the coming year will take place. Mrs. Rogers, of River road, Bound Brook, will be the hostess on that occasion at the Homestead.

On last Tuesday some especially interesting addresses were given which included talks on "Valley Forge" and the "Declaration of Independence" by members of the society. There are sixty-one members of the society and the present plans include a course of lectures to every woman connected with it. All the members are urged to attend the meeting at Bound Brook on October 18.

Gym to Open Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium opens next Saturday for the fall and winter work. Plans for the opening are now being completed by Physical Director Whittaker and Boys' Secretary William Bingeman.

—Neuman Bros. will offer for sale this afternoon and evening 100 baskets fancy peaches at 50c, 65c, 75c, 85c and $1.00 per basket. This is all choice fruit and will be the last of the special prices on peaches.

MAYOR SANFORD'S IDEA AS TO SUNDAY CLOSING

"I do not propose to be made a catspaw to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for others who are too cowardly to make a complaint," said Mayor W. A. Sanford, of Dunellen, in regard to the recent criticism regarding the enforcement of the Sunday closing law of the State and the borough. "I do not feel it my duty to act the part of a spy or public prosecutor; therefore I propose once more to call upon the Law and Order Committee of our Council for an ordinance adequate to meet our present needs, to give a public hearing upon the same, and abide by the result."

As told in the Daily Press earlier in the week, Mayor Sanford has endeavored to make the borough and State laws relative to public morals living rather than dead issues in the borough. Some criticism was directed against this movement, but the mayor believes that a public hearing, in which all may express an opinion will show that a majority of the citizens of the borough are in strong sympathy with such action. Accordingly he has pursued this plan, and at the meeting of the Council a week from Monday the proposition for a new ordinance will be brought up.

WANTS UNIFORMED POLICE FOR DUNELLEN BOROUGH

Dunellen will soon take one more advance step if Charles E. Tinsman's proposition to have a uniformed paid police force meets with the approval of the Council. Hitherto the good conduct of Dunellen has been cared for by a marshal, usually some man who had other occupation. As a result, the job of looking after all corners of the growing borough has been particularly difficult. Recently some burglaries were committed and the inadequacy of the lone marshal and his deputies who are seldom if ever readily available was proved.

This led Charles Tinsman, a real estate dealer of Dunellen, to prepare a paper which has been given wide circulation in the borough. It sets forth plainly the need to Dunellen of a police force, if it is to attract home seekers. His proposition is to submt the decision to the voters at the next general election. If it meets with approval there then the police force is assured. If not, then for the present, the force could be supported by subscriptions from business men—at the rate of $5 a year, according to Mr. Tinsman's calculations.

A few years ago Dunellen took a big jump from the rural stage when a national bank was established there. Last week a still greater jump was taken when a street cleaning department was inaugurated. This department consists of Peter Schneiderwind, who has been engaged by the borough merchants to sweep North avenue. A white canvass uniform was purchased for him; and since he began worR Dunellen has proudly boasted of a "White Wing."

The success of this venture in borough municipal improvement led Mr. Tinsman to launch his idea in regard to a uniformed police force. In the borough the proposition has met with considerable favor, and is in line with a recent movement to establish a public library.

TO BE SENT TO JAMESBURG IF THEY DON'T REFORM.

Allen Grant and Frank Brown, the two colored lads who were accused of stealing two perambulators and a bicycle, and whose parents settled the amount claimed as the value by Mrs. Slovacek, were placed in charge of assistant probation officer W. B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, this morning. The two boys will have to report daily at police headquarters, and any delinquency will mean their removal to Jamestown School.

In speaking of the methods pursued in the attempt to reform boys, Mr. Hamilton said this morning that every chance was given to the boy to make something better of himself, and the way some of the boys have become useful citizens lends every encouragement to the officers who have the delinquents in charge. The juvenile court is one the boys do not relish, as it means the reformatory for most of them.

M. V. Williams Coming.

M. V. Williams, of Athens, Pa., the well known evangelist, has been engaged to conduct a three weeks' evangelistic service in this city commencing Sunday, October 23, under the auspices of the three local Methodist churches. He will spend a week at each church.

DEMOCRATS FOR COUNCIL

League Mayoralty Candidate Wants Minority Party Representation.

A LARGER SCHOOL BOARD.

Moy to Advocate a Board of Nine Members Instead of Five—Has Not Resigned from City Committee Yet.

Another surprise was sprung by the Bipartisan Municipal League this morning when it was announced that its mayoralty candidate George W. V. Moy would advocate minority party representation in the Common Council. Mr. Moy, himself, said that the report was correct and that he firmly believed that the body should be composed entirely of the one party, but that a healthy minority is only fair. For that reason he considers, he says, that the Democrats should have some say in the city government. His idea is that he councilmen-at-large should be chosen from the ranks of the minority party.

One other thing that Mr. Moy will advocate is a more representative Board of Education. His plan is that proper representation would be brought about by adding four more members to the board, making it a body of nine instead of five as it has been for years. The water question, however, will be the main issue for the league, which, is pledged to the scheme of municipal control and operation of the water supply.

Republican leaders today expressed some surprise over the announcement yesterday that City Clerk James T. MacMurray had "bolted" and had become vice-president of the League which will fight against the election of the party mayoralty nominee, B. Frank Coriell. They said that it was expected that not only he but Mr. Moy would abide by the result of the primaries, inasmuch as each had previously and since declared that they were Republicans. Chairman Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the Republican City Committee, when asked today said that he had not received Mr. Moy's resignation as a member of that committee, but he declined to make any statement as to the League or its leaders. Mr. Moy, who is vice-chairman of the city committee, as told yesterday, has decided to resign his membership in that body.

The League mass meeting scheduled for Thursday night has been postponed because the Democrats have arranged for their gubernatorial nominee, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, to speak here on that night.

Men prominent in the League reiterated today that the fight would be a purely local one and that the members will loyally support Judge William N. Runyon as the Congressional nominee.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS CHARLOTTE WILSON.

The funeral services of Miss Charlotte Wilson, daughter of the late Charles M. Wilson, were held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the late home on Madison avenue, and were private. Only the members of the family and a few close friends were present, including S. B. Carson, Miss Wilson's employer when he was manager for Hill & Shupp's dry goods store in this city.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Miss Wilson was an active member, conducted the services. He read appropriate Scripture texts and then made a short address of eulogy in which he spoke of the Christian life of the departed and of her great patience in suffering. He closed with an earnest fervent prayer.

There was a beautiful display of floral tributes from relatives and friends. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were Horace J. Martin, Sr., Chauncey F. Colthar, Edgar F. Sheppard, Harry F. Crawford, Elmer P. Wheeler and Charles M. Dolliver.

Collision Narrowly Averted.

Two automobiles nearly came together last night at a little before 11 o'clock at the corner of Watchung avenue and Front street. One of the cars had no head lights and the driver of the other car could not hear the approach of the one without the lights. Only six inches separated the two cars when they were stopped. Neither of the drivers would disclose his name.

New Market Mill Closed.

Owing to the drought at New Market and the scarcity of water in the lake, the mill there has had to shut down. It depends wholly for its power on water from the lake, and since the water in the lake has sunk beneath the level of the sluice which leads into the raceway, the mill had to be closed.

WESTFIELD.

The road committee of the Council is finding fault with the W. H. Weldon Contracting Company over the delay in completing the town road work. Mr. Weldon, manager of the company, has promised to finish all the work in town within thirty days.

Samuel W. Reese and James W. Fink returned yesterday from Atlantic City, where they attended the reunion of the G. A. R. Both men are members of Winfield Scott Post of Plainfield.

Residents along the tracks of the street railroad complain that the company is not sprinkling its tracks as in former years, and propose to take the matter to the Council.

Bishop O'Connor will be at Holy Trinity church Sunday afternoon to confirm one of the largest classes in the history of the church.

SOMERVILLE.

An effort is being made to have the annual Hallowe'en celebration this year excel everything witnessed in the borough. One of the possible features of the parade is the procession of the school children. The Civic Society will offer prizes. The officers selected by the special committee to handle the celebration this year are A. A. Roger, Mrs. Hugh K. Gaston and William D. Quick. The celebration will take place October 31. The annual inspection of the borough fire department is likely to take place on that day, and the firemen and the apparatus are expected to appear in the parade in the evening.

At the annual meeting of the Raritan Ministerial Association the following were elected to office: President, M. E. Church; vice-president, Rev. Dr. W. H. De Hart, and Rev. W. M. Corwin, clerk.

A New Back for an Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull ache in the small of my back and sharp pains darted through me when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began their use. Two boxes of this remedy fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended it since to other persons suffering as I did."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BIG GUN BURSTS ON THE GEORGIA

Washington, Sept. 24.—During target practice of the Atlantic fleet off the Virginia Capes Thursday one of the big twelve-inch, fifty-ton guns of the battleship Georgia burst on the first range shot. The muzzle as far back as the forward end of the jacket was blown off. The crew miraculously escaped injury.

No further details were given in Admiral Schroeder's telegraphic report. The accident, of course, put a material part of the Georgia's battery out of business, but the battleship still has three twelve-inch guns to work with and will continue the target practice with them. It will not interfere with the Georgia's participation in the coming European cruise of the Atlantic fleet, for another gun which is being built at the Washington Navy Yard will be in readiness to replace the ruined one by November 1. The accident occurred during the continuance of what has proven a much handicapped battle mimicry by the sixteen formidable defenders on the Atlantic Coast. The practice has been on for about ten days, but has been seriously interfered with by stormy weather outside, ships crossing the range and other things that vexed Admiral Schroeder and his officers. The practice continued Thursday, but the progress was slow owing to the rough sea which rendered towing difficult.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Officials of the State Board of Health have been visiting the canneries of Salem county to ascertain their sanitary condition.

A bonfire Thursday badly burned Agnes Coyle, three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Coyle, of 189 Ninth street, Passaic.

The bull belonging to John P. Day, of Woodbury, which recently gored two farmhands, has been sold and will probably go into bologna.

His right shoulder blade fractured by falling from a step at his home at Moorestown, Samuel Smith, forty-three years old, was treated at the Homeopathic Hospital, Camden.

A box of strawberries was presented to Miss Henrietta Goff, of Cape May, by her aunt, Mrs. Isaiah C. Goff, who gathered them on her farm at Eldora, twenty miles above the resort.

While raking hay at Clayton Thursday, Dr. Jacob F. Crane caught his foot in the rake, and before he could stop the horses was pulled under the machine, breaking two of his ribs.

Former pastors and parishioners from all parts of the State and from other States will gather tomorrow at the Old Weymouth Meetinghouse at services in commemoration of its 105th anniversary.

William J. Duffy's smile quickly disappeared in the Camden court Thursday when Judge Joline sentenced him to two months in the county jail for assault and battery on his wife.

By reason of the attorneys interested being engaged in other courts the taking of testimony in the bankruptcy against Assemblyman Henry R. Patem, of Collingswood, was Thursday adjourned until October 4.

On the farm of Clement Budd, near Woodbury, a corn reaper attracts attention. The machine, drawn by horses, cuts one row of corn at a time, ties the tall stalks into small bundles and tosses them behind ready for shocking.

Restitution having been made and the victim of the robbery not desiring any punishment inflicted, Judge Joline, in Camden Thursday let Frank Tischner off with a fine of $75 for the theft of $300 from John E. Master, a barge captain.

For stabbing Stephen Blake, a negro, during an argument over four cents, Jesse Pruitt, also a colored youth, was Thursday sentenced to eighteen months in the State prison by Judge Joline at Camden.

Pleading guilty to a charge of drunkenness, Frank Halbert, the Philadelphian who Wednesday attempted suicide by hanging in the Camden Jail, was Thursday sentenced to thirty days by Recorder Stackhouse.

When the husband of Mrs. Hubert Davis, of Audubon, Camden county, failed to find his wife on reaching home, he instituted a search and discovered her dead body in a wardrobe on the second floor. She had evidently been reaching for some clothing when she succumbed and her body fell inside among the clothing.

John McCann, of 13 Ramapo avenue, Paterson, a victim of over-indulgence in liquor, amused himself and frightened citizens and automobile owners Thursday evening by running from the sidewalk in front of approaching automobiles at Washington and Ellison streets. He ran in front of a machine driven by Edo Van Winkle and the latter narrowly escaped smashing a wagon in avoiding McCann, who was arrested.

Stanley Humbert, of Montclair, has been visiting friends in the borough.

HERE AND THERE.

John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, was on his private car enroute to Mexico at the time that Halley's comet was visible at 3:30 o'clock in the morning. The train was speeding through the State of Texas when Hammond rose at that ungodly hour and went out on the observation platform of his car to see the comet.

On the platform he found two tramps and spoke to them cordially. They told him where they were going and thanked him for his politeness.

"You fellows wait here a minute and I'll get you some cigars," said Hammond.

When he produced the smokes one of the tramps said:

"Look here; if I had cigars like these to smoke and a place like that car to sit, you wouldn't catch me running out here to see a comet. There's no telling what you rich guys like to do."—Popular Magazine.

Kant, the great philosopher, cultivated peculiar habits which enabled him to accomplish a certain work in the world, says the London Globe. From the day he began to write until his death, sixty years later, we are assured that he kept the first two hours of the morning free from interruption, even eating his breakfast alone. No matter what the emergency, his family or servants dared not disturb him in these two hours of meditation. The rest of the morning until 1 o'clock was given to his work. At 2 o'clock he dined, always with invited guests, usually those interested in different pursuits from his own. Kant's effort was to rest and amuse his mind by contact with as many diverse intellects and characters as possible. At night when ready ot retire he remained for half an hour perfectly quiet, alone and without a book—as far as possible, he said, without thought—in order to calm his brain for sleep.

Kant was born at Koningsberg in 1724, his father being a saddler in moderate circumstances. He entered the university of his native place when sixteen, but circumstances prevented him from taking his degree until sixteen years later. So wedded was he to the scenes of his youth that it is said that he was never beyond a radius of thirty miles from the seat of learning to which he owed so much and which was so greatly indebted to him. He died at Konigsberg in 1804.

Reno—A Western resort much affected by the Eastern smart set and by sports and athletes from all over the world. Scenery cosmetic and peroxide. A delightful spot to rusticate and rid oneself of physical afflictions and encumbrances. The most extreme cases cured in six months—some in fifteen rounds. No place for children.

Leavenworth—A breezy, mid-West resort of increasing popularity with bankers, trust presidents and frenzied financiers. Hoel de Barz, erected by the Federal government for the accommodation of the superacquisive, the finest institution of its knd west of Atlanta. Special suites reserved for long term parties.

Pittsburg—The site of the famous Councilmanic Immunity Baths. This popular resort is sometimes designated as Hell-With-the-Lid-Off. Visitors during the coming season will be afforded the rare spectacle of witnessing the adjustment of the lid into place.

New York—A stratified, gilded city situated just east of the United States, and populated by deportation of the European surplus. Send for F. Hopkinson Smith's dainty brochure: "The Polite New Yorker—Where is it?"

Atlantic City—The home of a famous broadwalk peach, famed for its exquisite coloring, bloom and curves. Scenery ranging from Sylphlike to beefy. The cefebrated outdoor art gallery is vew by thousands of thousands of inland critics annually.—Smart Set.

LITERARY

The leading story in the Red Book Magazine for October is entitled, tersely, "Steel." It is a story of an old man's hope for his ne'er-do-well boy and is by James Opuenheim, whose stories have, within the past two years, placed him in the front rank of American fictionists. It is rarely that magazine readers are offered so tremendously gripping and human a story as "Steel." In it an entire novel is compressed and it breathes the spirit of the great steel mills where its scene is laid.

Forty years ago there were not, comparatively speaking, many magazines—and it was forty years ago that The Century issued its initial number. Many popular periodicals have risen and disappeared, while some have continued within that period and even trace their origin to an earlier date. As a rule, each of these magazines addresses itself to supply some particular need in the world of current literature. In commenting editorially, in the October number, on the close of its fortieth year, The Century finds that its "range has been little changed" since the date of its birth. Today it emphasizes its desire to exercise "the conservative function of a family magazine" and indicates as its aim "to be of use to its readers, to minister to their enjoyment, by fiction, poetry, art and miscellany, that shall take them out of their cares through wholesome humor, or absorbing pictures of the imagination, and through the rarest of qualities—that of charm."

"Success Magazine" for October contains a significant article by Ernest Poole, "America's Young Men," in which the author touches on the ambitions and various careers open to young men. Franklin P. Adams, in "Lo, the Poor Musical Comedy," tells of the mixed and stressful sensations of writing a musical comedy to order, as experienced by O. Henry and himself. In "Marriage in America" Robert Haven Schauffler gives some interesting figures founded on careful investigation of the attitude of college girls toward marriage. In an article entitled "What's the Matter With Our High Schools?" Benjamin C. Gruenberg shows the present trend of education and the increasing scope of the school in directing and forming the life interests fo the pupils.

GOLF.

An idea in disk marks equal to the polo balls used at Shinecock Hills as a non-spoiler of the turf was a success at Brookline. The markers are of metal, shaped like a top with the point stuck in. This cannot mar the turf and they are easily seen. There never was such a championship for animated nature as a side show, even the turkey buzzards that flew over and about Chevy Chase when the women played there in 1908 being discounted. Squirrels played about the putting greens until chased to the street by the coming of a pair of players, and rabbits often jumped from a trap bunker to scurry away to the woods.

An early couple on the fourteenth fair green one morning heard loud cawings from half a dozen crows on the edge of the woodlands. The birds were too busy to mind the golfers, and drawing near they saw the crows had banded together to scare away a fox. Reynard may have been after a nest of young crows. At all events besides making an outcry the black crows would make dives toward the fox, taking care they were always out of reach, and they kept up the chase until lost to sight among the trees, but they could be still heard cawing.

When up with Wood in their match Anderson played his ball near a path to the trees along which the golf caddies' big cat was sauntering in quest of birds as is their nature. The cat sniffed at the ball and then ignored it, but Anderson could not forget the sniff and as his luck changed he sad the cat was a hoodoo to him.

During the national tournament a man whose ideas in the game were as positive as they were limited got into an amusing argument. He reached the course in time to become one of the gallery which swarmed along behind Fownes and "Chick" Evans in the semi-final round.

When they came to the short seventh hole the visitor remarked: "I suppose 2 is bogie here." "Oh, my, no," replied his friend, who then proceeded to explain why bogie 2s were impossible. Still the other remained unconvinced, and a moment later, when Evans supplemented a fine mashie shot by holing a log put for a 2, the visitor turned to his companion with a scornful look which seemed to say: "I knew I was right."

It will be some time before Robert C. Watson, secretary of the United States Golf Association, will be seen at his office in New York. Immediately after the decisive championship match the secretary, accompanied by Mrs. Watson and a party of friends, started for Canada. His preserve is the objective point, and when Watson arrives the big game will suffer.

The book of the new piece, which is in two acts, is by Mark Swan and Edgar Smith; the lyrics are by Edward Madden, and Ben M. Jerome, Melville Ellis and Louis A. Hirsch composed the music. The first act scene shows a hotel at Ostend, the famous European seaside resort, and the second act takes place in front of the palace in Zurach. Principals in the company supporting Mr. Bernard are: Winona Winter, Nella Bergen, Amelia Summerville, Adele Rowland, Alice Gordon, Anita Francesca, Louis Harrison, George Anderson, Martin Brown, Henry Norman, Charles R. Burrows, Henry Holt, Dolph Ryan, Paul Musaens, Edwin Tester and Frank Sargent.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"When We Were Twenty-one" will be the offering at the Plainfield theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and the rehearsals by the company give promise of a fine performance. This delightful comedy play was made famous by Nat Goodwin and it has delighted thousands of theatre-goers wherever produced. Miss Ilka Diehl, the new leading woman, will make her first appearance in this play, and there will be other changes in the cast. Miss Eleanor Woodruff, Miss Gloria Gallup, Miss Laurie Davidson, J. C. Dougherty and John A. Robb, as well as Harold Mead, the leading man, who have become favorites with patrons of the house, have exceptional opportunities to display their talent in the forthcoming production. The last half of the week "Prince Karl" will be presented. This afternoon and evening the last performance of "Thelma" will be given.

Clarence Covert, of Harlingen, has been visiting friends in this city.

Miss Elsa Cook, of Summit avenue, who has been spending the summer at Portland, Me., has returned.

Miss Marie Bellerjeau, of Trenton, has been visiting her brother, William Y. Bellerjeau, of Somerset street.

LEE STATUE AGITATION ENDED BY G. A. R. VETS

The veterans assembled at the national encampment of the G. A. R. at Atlantic City yesterday decided by a vote to table the majority report of the committee on resolutions asking Congress to take the Lee statue from the national capitol. The vote was 133 to 102. There was heated discussion on both sides. Many remarks were heard in denunciation of the effort on the part of some to bar Lee's statue from the national capitol, and among those who spoke vigorously against such action was Major Eli Torrance of Minnesota, chairman of the resolution committee. He made a strong appeal in behalf of Virginia and the old Confederates.

Recommendations of the bill to give soldiers 70 years old an increase to $20 a month, 75 years $25 and $30 a month for those disabled were adopted, and the matter referred to the Legislative committee to try and have it passed at next Congress. It was also decided to admit to the Grand Army men who served in the Revenue Cutter Service during the war. The veterans condemned the proposal to pay all old soldiers a pension of $1 a day. All the new officers were installed last night. Next year's encampment will be held at Rochester, N. Y.

THIS MEXICAN WAR VETERAN A WONDER.

Bill Maccabee received visitors at the United States Home in Philadelphia Thursday in celebration of the 107th anniversary of his birth. Comrades of the Civil War came to Bill's room to "pass the time o' day," but the comrades who fought with him in the Mexican War were not there, for Bill Maccabee is the oldest sailor now on the rolls of the United States Navy, and he has survived most of the members of the old school of seamanship before steam became a factor.

Bill sat in his rolling chair during the day, his weather-beaten face breaking into an occasional smile, but he was muffled up like a mummy and scarcely ever shifted his position. He was able to smoke his pipe, however, and to salute the flag when his chair was rolled out on the porch. About a year ago he fell in his room and broke his hip. The fracture never knit.

Bill received postcards yesterday from ports and sailors' homes. He was particularly pleased with a postcard sent to him from some of his Civil War comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, now at Atlantic City. It was sent by members of a post from the town in which Bill was born, down on the eastern shore of Maryland, 107 years ago.

CHILDREN'S BIBLE TALES FROM W. D. MURRAY'S PEN.

Another book from the pen of William D. Murray has just come from the press, "Bible Stories to Tell Children." The book contains the more familiar and picturesque Biblical stories, such as the "Christ-Story," "Disobedient Jonah," "How the Baby Moses was Saved," and "Samson, the Strong Man." In all, there are twenty-four such stories and four well executed page-drawings taken from Wilde's Bible Pictures, illustrate the text.

In the work Mr. Murray set before himself the task of making the stories actually real to children. To do this he has amplified the Biblical text by a judicious imagination. If anything, this adds to the charm of the book. His diction is largely Anglo-Saxon, his style is simple and direct, and his art of story teling effective.

Mr. Murray defines his object in writing the book in his preface: "We are only just beginning to recognize the great importance of the story in education, and we ought to use it even more than we do. It is hoped that these stories will serve in some degree as models so that those who use the book will be led to put many more Bible stories into their own words, filling in such details as anyone knows must have accompanied the incidents. Any parent or teacher," he adds significantly, "can do this," and stories must be told with eyes and hands, as well as voice, so that the scene is brought vividly before the listening child.

Mr. Murray has been superintendent of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Sunday-school for many years past, and has been unusually successful in his work among children. In concluding his preface, Mr. Murray gives a clue to the incentive to his new book when he says: "The stories in this book are only a few of those which for years he has been telling to little children, and he feels from his own experience that if Bible stories are told as these have been, lasting impressions for good will be made upon the hearts of the children who hear them."

NOTED BAG PIPE PLAYER DEAD AT HARRISON.

Thomas P. Doherty, of 44 Washington street, Harrison, died about 9 o'clock Thursday night at his home after a few days' illness from an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. Doherty was well known in Irish societies, both in this State and New York, and was known as the champion Irish bagpiper. Mr. Doherty came to Harrison from New York several years ago and purchased the McCall handball court at Fourth and Davis streets, which he conducted. The place was the scene of many celebrated games. Last February Mr. Doherty had an attack of pneumonia and was confined to his home for several weeks, but recovered. Last Sunday he entertained a number of friends from New York and played the bagpipes. In the evening he complained of a cold, which grew worse and on Monday Dr. A. A. Muligan was called and diagnosed the case as another attack of pneumonia. He leaves a widow, four daughters and two sons. A daughter, Miss Catherine Doherty, is a nurse in the Kings Park Hospital, Long Island. She was summoned by 'phone last night, but owing to duties she had to perform in caring for a patient in danger of death at the hospital could not reach the house in time to see her father alive. The girl fainted upon reaching the hous and finding her father dead.

Mr. Doherty was a member of Branch No. 2 St. Patrick Alliance of America, of Harrison, and Division No. 4, Ancient Order of Hibernians.

PRISON SENTENCE FOR A "BROKER IN HEARTS."

Isaac R. Warns, "broker in hearts," as he styled himself, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Landis in Chicago to serve fourteen months in the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth for using the United States mails to defraud.

Warns confessed that he had used the mails in carrying on the business of his marriage bureau. His circulars depicting the sadness of lonely old age were read in court.

One of his books sent to prospective customers was entitled "The Way to Win a Woman's Heart." It contains the following passage:

"You do not know what it is to live alone, uncared for, unknown when old age overtakes you. Solitude fills one with horrible agony. Solitude at home by the fireside at night is so profound, so sad."

ACCIDENT SPOILED RECORD OF FIFTY-THREE YEARS.

A record of fifty-three years' service as an engineer without being in a wreck was broken last night, at Seymour, Ind., when Engineer James McGregory, of Jeffersonville, Ind., aged seventy years, running a Pennsylvania passenger train from Indianapolis to Louisville with a No. 13 engine, crashed into a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at this place. No one was njured.

McGregory, who has only eight days more to serve before being put on the retired list, stopped near the crossing and without seeing the approach of the freight started forward. Although the train was moving slowly, it had gained sufficient momentum when it reached the crossing to cut through the freight, knocking several cars from the track.

Colored Club for Moy.

The Independent Progressive Republican club, composed of some of the colored voters who are working for more recognition of the colored voter in appointments, met last night to endorse G. W. V. Moy's candidacy for the mayoralty. The club will hold a mass meeting in the near future.

Miss Emma VanZandt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. VanZandt, of Fairview avenue, returned Tuesday on the Scandinavian Liner United States, from a three months' trip abroad. Miss VanZandt spent most of her time in Denmark, Sweden and Norway and had a delightful trip.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The funeral of Mrs. Billew, wife of a former pastor of the Baptist church here, took place at her home in South Amboy on Thursday. While attending the funeral of a friend she dropped deal shortly after leaving the house.

The new Baraca class continues to steadily grow. The success attending the recent festival held by them has given much encouragement. The class is about to purchase new windows for the church edifice.

On Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. J. J. Allen, will preach to the children on "What We Ought to Be" and in the evening an illustrated sermon will be delivered on the subject, "From Creation to Jacob."

Mr. and Mrs Charles Jackson, formerly of this place, are spending their vacation touring the New England States. They have already visited Portland, Chelsea and Boston, and report a fine time.

Canoeing on the lake still continues popular. A party of six in two canoes with their kodaks took a number of beautiful pictures along the lake.

The Ladiess' Aid Society meeting held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Thorne was largely attended. Plans for the winter's work were discussed.

Mrs. Wilery Voorhees and daughter have been visiting at Lakeside Farm.

Rev. J. J. Allen preached in the New Durham chapel last evening.

Mrs. Edward TenEyck is rapidly improving from her recent illness.

SAVED

By T. DEWITT BOWMAN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Farmer Insley was tossing about in bed vainly trying to sleep. At last he arose, went to the window and looked out. The moon was at the full, illuminating everything in sight—namely, the undulating plain, scattered dwellings and the meeting house more than 200 years old. Suddenly Insley opened his eyes wider than they had been opened during his sleeplessness. A light passed across one of the windows of the church. He went to the door, opened it and stood looking out. All was still. Not a house was lighted save by the moon. Not a living creature was in sight.

The light appeared again. This time it was stationary for a few seconds, then seemed to have been extinguished.

Insley hurried into his clothes and ran as fast as his legs would carry him to the church. As he proceeded he thought that he had better see than be seen. He knew the church well and felt confident that he could enter by a basement window. A tall tree cast a shadow on his approach. Finding the window, he crawled in stealthily, and, guided by sufficient light from without to enable him to see his way, he ascended a staircase leading up into the vestibule. Opening a door only so far as would enable him to peep into the body of the church, he saw a strange sight.

Two men were standing by a window, the moon shining full in their faces. The one was young and of city mein—that is, so far as Insley could see by moonlight alone. The other was dressed in the garb of a clergyman. The men were talking, but he could not hear what they said. Now and again the younger man would take out his watch and look at the time impatiently.

Then Insley heard a knock at the church door. The men heard it, too, and the younger hurried to the front of the church. The watcher, that he might not be seen, descended the stairs, but not so far that he could not know what passed in the vestibule. The young man opened the church door and admitted a woman. There was no light for him to see by, but he could hear.

"Sweetheart," said the man, "what has kept you?"

"I heard father tossing about in bed and dared not venture."

"Well, come. It will soon be over, and then you'll feel better. You are all unstrung."

"Oh, I can't."

These were the last words Insley heard, for the man drew the girl into the body of the church and toward the other end. Insley entered and passed in shadow part way down an aisle entering one of the high pews. The two men and the woman were in shadow, but presently Insley saw one of the men and the woman standing in a flood of moonlight, with their backs toward him, while the man in clerical garb faced him and them. The clergyman held in his hand a lamp or candle covered so that its light could only shine on the page of a book he held in his hand.

Insley knew that a marriage service was about to be performed. Whether it was a case for interference or one to suffer to proceed he knew not. But he had passed the romantic age when one sympathizes with those who would wed in opposition to their parents' wishes and was not minded to permit the marriage without being informed of the circumstances attending it. One thing made him suspicious. The pastor of the church was a large man, while this one was of medium height and slender. Besides, the pastor was not a person to wed couples in his church at midnight and if he did would not require a light upon his book by which to read the marriage service.

True enough, a marriage service was begun. Insley could hear every word. When the clergyman asked if any one had aught to say why the two should not be joined together in wedlock Insley said solemnly:

"I forbid."

At the same time he dropped down into the pew. He did not see the commotion his words produced, but he heard a woman's cry. Then there were indistinguishable sounds and a muffled voice:

"We'd better get out. Some one's got on to it. You'll be jugged for this."

"So will you."

Insley heard steps—men's steps—hurrying past him in the aisle and passing out of the front door. As soon as all was still he went down to where he had seen the bridal party standing. His foot pressed something lying in the dark on the floor. Stooping down, he felt a woman's form. Raising her, he carried her to where the moonlight shown upon her face.

Great heavens, she was his own daughter!

She came to herself, and by the light she saw him gazing down upon her with a mingled expression of surprise and pain.

"Father!"

"Bessie!"

"Is it a dream?"

"No, dear heart, not a dream, but a reality. Some one from above—possibly your mother—sent me here to save you."

He carried her home in his arms. It was the old story of a villain from the city seeking to attack maidenhood to lead astray a simple country girl.

The Boundary Line

By Clarissa Mackie

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

"Adora!" called Mrs. Wynne from the front door.

The girl turned at the gate and looked back with resentful eyes. "I'm not going to speak to any of the Lanes," she said sharply.

"I thought you might forget," said the older woman.

"I shall never forget, Aunt Ann," said Adora proudly, as she passed through the gate and out into the crisp snow of the road.

She did not turn toward the village street but made her way up a narrow, untrodden path. Presently the path wound into the tall, brown silent woods with its carpet of snow underfoot and bare interlaced branches outlined against the blue sky overhead.

As Adora walked slowly through the woods her thoughts were of the year before, when she had first come to make her home with Aunt Ann Wynne. Then it was that the Lanes had been Aunt Ann's most intimate friends, but there had been trouble over a boundary line in the woods and Mrs. Wynne complained that Silas Lane was trying to take advantage of the fact that she was a woman who did not understand matters of business—and after that it went from bad to worse, until Silas Lane actually claimed the brook that formed the boundary line between the two properties; then, the two families did not recognize one another, and to friendly little Adora this was a great blow.

But that was not the worst. When half of the year had gone by, John Lane had come home from the agricultural college where he was learning to be a twentieth century farmer. Adora met him at a barn dance, and as soon as she learned the name of the handsome stranger whose steady, grave gray eyes followed her wistfully in the mazes of the dance, a sudden terror struck to her heart—for she very much feared that she would have liked to know John Lane. But she was forced to whisper a reminder of the feud to one and another in order to avoid an introduction to the stranger, and when the time came to go home, Adora had a vision of a very stern John Lane whose eyes avoided her timid glance, while John Lane secretly carried away a sore heart and recollection of a sweet, oval face with shy brown eyes.

They met in the village and passed haughtily by—each with beating heart. When the holidays were over John Lane had gone away again and Adora lost her interest in the winter amusements of the village and even went so far as to find fault with Aunt Ann's attitude against the Lanes.

Adora's way through the woods led across the brook that formed the boundary line between the two properties. It added to her discomfort to find Silas Lane, himself, diligently chopping a hole in the ice of the brook preparatory to dropping a fishing line into the icy water underneath.

"Howd'y do?" said Silas, politely, as Adora passed with daintily lifted skirts. "The laurel's pretty handsome this year."

Adora inclined her head gravely, but made no response. She had promised Aunt Ann not to speak to the Lanes and she would not break her promise—and yet, something impelled her to pause and look wistfully back at the old man who had returned to his sport with a little angry laugh.

Suddenly, he looked up and saw her watching him with grave intentness and with an impatient gesture, he threw down his line and came toward her.

"Mad at me, ain't you, miss?" he queried, dryly.

Adora shook her head slowly.

"'Spose your Aunt Wynne's told you all about how I cheated her out of the brook—eh?" he insisted.

She nodded.

"Well, I didn't cheat her—it's belonged to us for three generations, only your great-grandfather, he surveyed the property in his day and, as cool as you please, he just annexed the brook. We just let it go year after year, but when I was looking out for John—that's my son—to come home and take over the farm, I felt's though he ought to have the brook. It's ours by right and the water-power will be just the one thing that's lacking on our farm. I told Mrs. Wynne, I says: 'Go down to the recorder's office and see the papers for yourself. It's all down in black and white,' but, woman-like, she wouldn't stir a step, but just sits back and sulks!"

"Is that true?" Adora broke the silence at last.

"Every word's true. You can go down to the office this minute and ask the clerk to prove it to you. I wish your aunt would make up her mind to be good friends and—"

But Adora had sped back across the brook, and when Silas had finished speaking she was quite out of sight among the trees.

Aunt Ann Wynne was quietly knitting when Adora burst into the room; the girl's cheeks were aglow with excitement and her soft eyes shone with expectation.

"Whatever is the matter, Adora?" asked her aunt, curiously, as Adora sank breathlessly into a chair and pulled off her gloves.

"I spoke to a Lane!" announced Adora defiantly.

Mrs. Wynne stared incredulously.

"Which one?" she snapped.

"Silas Lane, himself."

The older woman's lips were set in a straight line and her needles flashed in the sunlight.

"I merely uttered three words," explained Adora; "I was passing through the woods when Mr. Lane spoke to me—he said my great-grandfather had annexed the brook years ago when he surveyed the woodland. He said we never had owned it, and that it was theirs. And he could prove it by showing us the records; so I said to him: 'Is that true?' When he said it was I came home. Is it true, Aunt Ann?"

"I don't know," returned Mrs. Wynne, obstinately.

"Have you seen the records?" persisted Adora.

"No—and I don't want to! That brook's been in my family as long as I can remember and I shall always consider it mine! Your Uncle Will always spoke as if it belonged to us—no, I don't want to see any records!"

"But, Aunt Ann, if you are so sure that it is yours, why not examine the records—then you can prove that you are right!"

Mrs. Wynne's face flushed deeply and her voice trembled when she spoke: "Go and examine the records yourself."

Adora jumped to her feet and pulled on her gloves with little nervous jerking movements. "Very well. And if we are in the wrong I shall acknowledge it by speaking to the Lanes whenever I meet them!"

The door closed behind her, and Mrs. Wynne leaned forward and gazed wistfully from the window at her departing form.

Adora found the recorder's clerk busy in the outer office, and stated her errand.

"The records are in the vault, Miss Adora, and you'll find some one in there now, I think. He's looking up the same record, and he'll show it to you." The clerk turned away to attend to a newcomer.

The vault was a small, steel-lined room, whose shelves were filled with bulky volumes. Under a swinging lamp a young man was bent above a big book. He turned as Adora stepped forward. It was John Lane.

"Oh!" said Adora, breathlessly, in response to his bow, and then she added, with sudden frankness: "I came here to examine the records to see if it is really true that the brook has always belonged to your people."

John Lane smiled. "And I came to see if there was not some mistake about our claim—and the brook might be returned to your aunt!"

"But why?" asked Adora.

"Because," smiled John Lane, enigmatically, but something in his eyes told Adora the reason why, and her own fell in confusion.

"Please show me the records and tell me the truth," said Adora, earnestly. "It all seems so foolish, somehow—the feud and everything."

"I'm afraid it is ours," admitted John Lane, as he explained the matter to Adora, and when she was quite convinced, and the clerk had furnished her with copies of the record, that Mrs. Wynne might also be convinced, the two walked slowly homeward in the sunset.

A yellow light streamed over the glistening expanse of snow and formed a golden path over which they trod in some new-found happiness, too full for words. The few sentences they had exchanged had been commonplace enough, but there was another language that came to both of them, all untaught, as it does to every one of us some time or another.

Mrs. Wynne saw them coming up the frozen path, and the strained look in her eyes gave place to one of intense relief.

"I guess Adora's found the brook belongs to Silas Lane now—but somehow, I have a feeling that it will still belong to the family. I always did like Johnny Lane!" And she arose to open the door.

Who Named Pennsylvania?

In connection with a recent sale in England of the letters of William Blathwayt, a correspondent of the London Daily News makes the interesting assertion that Blathwayt, and not William Penn, selected the name for the commonwealth which he founded in the new world. According to this authority, when William Penn applied to Charles II. for permission to name his new colony after the king, Blathwayt, who was in attendance on his majesty, being a staunch Tory and high churchman, vigorously objected. "No, your majesty," said he, "let the Quaker call it after himself," and Pennsylvania accordingly it was named. Secretary of state though he was, Blathwayt must have been an odd character, for he contrived to obtain the good opinion of both Pepys and Evelyn at one and the same time, but he played not fair to the Stuart cause. "He crossed, I believe, with James to Dublin, and probably joined in the Irish jig with O'Flynn and Lady Bendetta at Dublin castle, and then apparently he went straight back and espoused the cause of William."

LORD LOVELAND DISCOVERS AMERICA

BY C.N. AND A.M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

This is the remarkable romance of a young lord, poor in pocket, rich in personal attractiveness and well endowed with egotism, who came to America to secure an heiress and got the awakening of a lifetime. Handsome, spoiled, supercilious and vain, yet brave, chivalrous and kind, Lord Loveland is a very interesting chap, and his adventures in the land of heiresses develop more humor, more pathos and more surprises than are to be found in a half dozen novels.

Gentle reader—"The Marquis of Loveland!"

CHAPTER I.

THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA BY LORD LOVELAND.

"EVEN the last resort has refused me." Loveland broke the news to his mother when he had kissed her.

"Miss Mecklenburg?"

"Yes; I begin to realize that I'm a sinking ship. The early rats are deserting me or declining to come on board. Clever little animals!"

"You shan't sink," protested Lady Loveland, clasping the pretty hands whence all save the wedding ring and its guard had gone to pay a visit of indefinite length to Messrs. Battenborough. "The idiot, to refuse you—with her nose too!"

"She didn't do it with her nose, mater. Her engagement to Doriana was announced the morning after she'd offered to be a sister to me. It was the size of her purse, not her nose, which caught his eye. But sooner or later he'll beat her."

"I hope so. She deserves it for taking him instead of you. Oh, Val, what a world!"

"Don't grouse, mater. I might have beaten her if I'd got her, and then there'd have been a scandal. I can't stand women with important looking teeth and noses which throw their other features into perspective. Besides, Lillah Mecklenburg isn't as young as she's painted."

"So few women are nowadays, dearest," sighed Lady Loveland, who in living for her handsome son did not trouble to live up to the past of her complexion. "Oh, Val, it's hard you should have to think of such creatures! But what are we to do?"

"That's just where I want your advice," said Loveland, who had come a long way to get it, for the distance from London to the north of Scotland is formidable when birds are out of season.

Lady Loveland was flattered that Val should ask for her advice, which, when offered gratuitously, he had never been known to take.

"My advice!" she echoed sadly. "That's all I can give you now, although I did hope, dear boy, I must confess, I—I have been trying for limericks. It was for your sake, and I hoped to win large sums. I thought of lines all night long, and I did send in some splendid ones, a thousand times better than those for which other people (dreadful people, my dear, with names like Hogson and Dobbs) have won hundreds of pounds. I gave the editors permission to use my name, too—one would have thought a valuable advertisement for their papers. But all I've won after the greatest efforts has been fifteen and six—an insult—while these Dobbs and Hogsons—I believe the editors must be Socialists. And the shillings for the postal orders have counted up into pounds. I am crushed with remorse."

"Never mind, dear; you meant it for the best," said Val, who cared more for his mother than for any one else in the world—except himself. And that he made this exception was largely Lady Loveland's fault, for she had brought him up to believe in but one person of paramount importance, adorning the universe—Percival George Victor Edward Gordon, thirteenth marquis of Loveland. "The ship's too far under water to be raised with limericks."

"Dearest, is it bad as that?"

"It's as bad as anything can be. Look out of your window at the snow falling. Well, that's nothing to the way it's snowing bills outside my window. If you and I can't think of something to clear the weather I shall have to chuck the army."

"What horrible creatures tradesmen must be!" said Lady Loveland, whose opinions had come down to her crusted and spider webbed from the cellars of the stone age. "To think that we'd have had power of life and death over them if we'd lived a few hundred years ago! I wish those times could come back."

"The world at large doesn't agree with you."

"It oughtn't to be at large," replied Lady Loveland without the smallest idea of a joke. "It's reached a pretty pass when Worms who make boots and uniforms and"—

"And sell wine"—

"Oh, if you like"—

"And jewelry"—

"Very well. Admit the jewelry"—

"And motors. I've wasted a good deal of substance in riotous motorcars, mater."

"Oh, I suppose men of your position have some right to enjoy their lives. As I was saying, it's come to a pretty pass when Worms who make or sell what every gentleman must have—things that ought simply to come like the air you breathe—can turn and rend an officer of the guards, a peer of the realm, without fear of being crushed."

"If I'd chosen to be a kind of secret advertising agent for tradespeople I might have been dressed and wined for nothing, motorcarred, too, perhaps," said Loveland. "I know some fellows who do go in for that sort of thing. But I'm hanged if I could. I'd rather blow out my brains decently."

"Oh, my darling, don't speak so wildly!" implored his mother. "There must be resources we can call upon—if we could only think of them."

"I have called on several people's resources without any good coming of it." Loveland grinned faintly, though he was in the depths of depression and had suffered from insomnia for at least a week between 8 and 10 in the morning when so popular a young man should (in his own opinion) have been dreaming of last night's pleasures instead of worrying how to pay for them.

"Don't be flippant, dearest. I can't concentrate my thoughts when you are. Ah, if we could have let Loveland castle as well as we did twelve years ago!"

"It's crumbled a lot since. And we're too poor to repair ourselves, let alone our castles."

"You at least don't need repairing," said his mother, gazing at her son with admiration. "You're the handsomest young man in the kingdom."

Loveland laughed, though he believed her. As a child he had been kissed by all his mother's prettiest friends because he was so absurdly beautiful and so precocious. If he had been a plain or stupid boy he might have grown up to be an estimable young man as marquises go. "Why don't you say 'in the world?'" he asked.

"I'm not a woman to exaggerate, dearest. All the Lovelands have been good looking. One has only to go into the picture gallery at the castle to see that. My argument is that as you're the best looking and the cleverest"—

"I don't know a blessed thing, my dear ladyship; never had any education. You ought to have sent me to Eton instead of coddling me up with tutors and"—

"You didn't think so then. I remember well when it was proposed you flung yourself on the floor and howled."

"So of course that settled it."

"Why, yes. You generally settled things like that. You had such a determined way, dear. But you were born knowing more than many studious, uninteresting young men have forgotten. Then your South African career—it was like a romance. You were a mere child, hardly nineteen—so brave! And then the thing you did on the battlefield! Of course you ought to have had the Victoria cross, but as it was the newspapers rang with your praises, and I was besieged for your photographs to publish. That deed alone would have made you a personage of consideration even without your rank."

"I COULDN'T BEAR THE CHAP."

"I've told you lots of times, mater, the whole thing was a sort of accident. I couldn't bear the chap. If I'd stopped to think I don't believe I'd have run back a step to drag him out from under fire. But I was there hauling him away before I knew what I was doing."

"Yes, you have told me and other people. But no one believes you. How could they? They see it's your modesty." Lord Loveland's mother was perhaps the one person on earth who would have attributed to him this quality. "And, as for disliking the young man whose life you saved at the risk of your own, of course that proves you all the more noble. Everybody must see that."

"Oh, well, it's a jolly good thing for me if they do," said Val, mechanically passing his hand over the scar on his forehead, which became him like a hall mark or a halo. It, together with the South African brown that never quite faded, had made him still more ornamental in the eyes of the pretty young married women with whom he was popular; also in the eyes of girls, who liked to dance and flirt with Lord Loveland, even though they preferred to marry dukes and princes. "But what are you working up to so elaborately, mater?"

"To your prospects. There's no young man so liked and wanted everywhere."

"Oh, I'm fair at polo. I can ride straight and shoot a bit," said Loveland, with a pretense at self depreciation he was far from feeling. "I get asked to all the amusing house parties. But you know as well as I do that stopping at such places is a lot more expensive than swaggering about at the most expensive hotels in Europe."

"I know, dearest," sighed the devoted lady who by industrious spoiling had made him what he was. "Val, you want my advice. Well, I've had an inspiration, I do believe, a real inspiration. Why don't you go to America?"

"To try ranching?"

"Good heavens, no, my son! To try marrying. In America you'll succeed brilliantly. Why not run over and see what there is?"

She spoke as if to see meant to have, notwithstanding certain failures nearer home. But Loveland's sense of humor, which had a real existence, did not always bestir itself when his own affairs were in question.

"Oh, girls!" he said distastefully. "Why go there for them? Plenty come over here to collect us."

"Ye-es. But think of the competition. There are still unmarried dukes. It's so annoying. There always seem to be dukes and foreign semiroyalties who might better stop in their own countries than prowl about ours, seeking what they may devour. Let them look at you—the girls, I mean—on their native heath, where practically no competition can exist, for who ever heard of an American heiress marrying an American man?"

"I suppose it must happen sometimes," said Val.

"It's never in the newspapers. Do you know many Americans, Val?" his mother went on thoughtfully.

"Hardly any except Jim Harborough and—er—his cousin, who has married Stanforth."

This was another instance of a misguided young woman who preferred a duke to the marquis. Therefore she remained nameless between mother and son.

"Mr. Harborough would, I suppose, give you letters of introduction to the right people over there."

"Oh, yes, I suppose he would! He doesn't approve of me, but he couldn't refuse letters to his wife's cousin."

"Doesn't approve of you, indeed! What impertinence! But perhaps he's jealous and thinks you were once in love with Betty."

"I never was in love with Betty. First cousins are a bit too near to be interesting."

"It's just as well you didn't care for Betty. But she's a sweet girl and must have made a good many friends in the States. Oh, Val, you really ought to go over! I'm sure you'd be the greatest success."

"Perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea." Loveland patronized his mother's inspiration. "Of course Harborough and Betty would both give me letters. If I had to marry—horrid bore at my age—and could afford to choose I'd take an English girl of the right sort. But Americans are a lot better than English ones of the wrong sort. If a man's a beggar he must be content with the wine and wives of the country where he begs."

"That's true," agreed Lady Loveland, who had never in her life spoken to an American girl, but was now eager to become dowager for the sake of a desirable one. "If you went to New York—or somewhere—you'd see enough girls to feel you were picking out the best. Oh, you would virtually have a clear coast! And, judging from novels I've read, everybody in American society would be fighting for the honor of entertaining you."

"They wouldn't amuse me," said Loveland in the blase way he had cultivated since he came back a wounded hero of nineteen in the last year of the South African war. "I should be there purely on business." But, though he spoke like a tired man of forty rather than a happy and healthy one of twenty-six or seven, he was beginning to lean toward his mother's advice. He could easily get a long leave. He had a couple of months due to him. After that, when his engagement was published in the papers, tradesmen would hold their hands.

"It oughtn't to take you many weeks," Lady Loveland was reflecting aloud, "if you went at the right season and to the right place."

"The season is different for different places over there, Betty says," remarked Loveland, who now, having discovered America as a spot worthy of note on the world's map, was ready to explain it to his mother.

"How odd!" exclaimed Lady Loveland, to whom all things were odd and scarcely proper if they were not as in Great Britain. "But, oh, of course, you only mean that they go to one place to shoot at a certain time, to another to hunt at a different time, as we do"—

"Not exactly that, I think," said Val, getting out of his element. "I believe it's something to do with the thermometer. Betty went in summer and was obliged to stop at Newport. One reads things about Newport."

"Yes, though I forget what," replied his mother, dismissing Newport. "But in the States there must be heiresses abounding in great numbers everywhere, as all American girls appear to be rich in more or less degrees. They flock to Europe from towns with the most extraordinary names. I know there was one—Oshkosh or something of that sort."

"I hardly think I should have to go as far afield as Oshkosh, wherever it may be," said Loveland, glancing at his double in the mirror, where was reflected also the worn furnishing of his mother's drawing room. With a pang he saw the sorry background and forgot himself for a moment in thinking of Loveland castle, a very noble, dull palace, all marble, gold plate, portraits and precedence when in its prime, echoing sadness now until such time as the heir might redeem it with some fair lady's dollars. The murmur of those echoes depressed him, as did the white whirl of snow veiling the windows of the shooting lodge whither Lady Loveland had retired to live upon nothing that he might have something.

"Of course you won't need to go to Oshkosh," Lady Loveland said. "I only meant that if there could be millions in a town with such a name what must there be in others more important and easier to get at!"

"I'll stick to the important ones that are easy to get at."

"That means you are making up your mind to go?"

"It's practically made up, thanks to you, mater. I believe in quick decisions."

"Well, then, it's quite settled. I feel it's for the best. And I can trust you to bring me a daughter-in-law to be—well, not to be ashamed of. You might find something that would do on the ship which would save so much time and trouble!" exclaimed Lady Loveland, brightening. "You could marry immediately on landing. And yet—perhaps it would be foolish to do anything irrevocable until you'd looked to see what there was in New York. You mustn't be reckless when so much depends upon prudence. Still, it would be wise to sail on a good ship, where you might meet millionairesses. That would be only an ordinary precaution."

"THE PINK WHAT?" ASKED LOVELAND, STARTLED.

"It wouldn't be an ordinary price," said Loveland.

"We must manage it somehow—and a good cabin. You owe that to your position."

"I owe so much already I may as well owe a little more."

"Val, dear, I asked you not to joke. It confuses me. And I need to concentrate all my ideas upon one point. Let me see—yes, the pink pearls!"

"The pink what?" asked Loveland, startled.

"I still have them—the double rope, you know."

"I know—another beastly heirloom."

"Still, one can pawn heirlooms. Your bride can redeem it and the other things. I've always saved the pink pearls for a great emergency. This is a great emergency. Battenborough ought to give seven or eight hundred. And, though seven or eight hundred, as you say, wouldn't go far among the debts, they might send you to America and back."

THOMPSON WAS EASY FOR JOHNNY CAMPBELL

It was with little difficulty that "Johnny" Campbell won his match with "Chick" Thompson, of Detroit, at Campbell's alleys last night. The local "champer" was in excellent form for so early in the season and gave a splendid exhibition of clever bowling to the many spectators who thronged the alleys.

Campbell clinched the match by winning four games straight averaging 219.2 to his opponent's 194.3.

After this set-to another series, two out of three games rolled, and again Campbell was returned the winner.

Thompson rolled in somewhat better form in this series, tallying 264 in the second game, which is the high score for the season at the local alleys. His average for the three games was 213 while Campbell averaged 205. The scores of both matches are as follows:

Thompson	182	216	179	202
Campbell	211	231	225	211
Thompson	180	264	195
Campbell	192	199	224

C. E. UNION PLANNING FOR AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN.

The September congress meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the Y. M. C. on Thursday night, September 29, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be in charge of Frank Stewart, president of the local union.

There will be several short addresses by the chairman of the committee. Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will address the Endeavorers upon the subject, "Work that Our Local Union can do During the Coming Year." Walter Firstbrook will also speak upon "Personal Work."

The Philadelphia Record.

There are three essential elements, according to "The Philadelphia Record," that make for success in a modern newspaper. First, it must print all the news, with an eye to the interests of all types of readers, in attractive and entertaining form. Second, whatever political cause it may editorially espouse, it must be fair, free of outside dictation, and sincere in advocating the policies it believes to be best for the general welfare. Third, it must be clean, wholesome and elevating in its influence. "The Record" itself possesses all these elements of success, and the nsome. Independently Democratic in politics, it is as nearly non-partisan as a newspaper can be in its news columns, which fully and accurately cover the entire field tributary to Philadelphia.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Special rally exercises will be held at Warren chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 o'clock.

St. J. Perrin will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock.

The teachers of the Temple Baptist church Sunday-school will hold a special meeting on Monday night at 8 o'clock to plan for the coming year's work.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie pastor, will preach at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow, morning and night. There will be an organ recital in the evening from 7:30 to 7:45.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church held a cabinet meeting last night at the home of Miss May Randolph, of Sandford avenue, when several new members were elected and plans for the fall and winter were discussed.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, will preach tomorrow morning on the subject, "Be Not Overcome of Evil, but Overcome Evil with Good." The sermon will be appropriate to a fight the pastor is making against the saloons of the borough.

Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock on the topic, "Joy," and Miss May Grant will sing a solo. The Epworth League will meet at 7:15, Miss Stafford being the leader, and Mr. Kemble's evening topic will be "Frontiersmen."

REV. MR. MAGUIRE SPEAKS AT RALLY DAY EXERCISES.

Interesting rally day exercises were held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church this morning under the auspices of the Sabbath school. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the school, the enrollment of the former being 118. The feature of the exercises was an address by Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. His talk was chiefly of interest to the children and he presented many interesting truths.

Another feature was a vocal duet by Mrs. John B. Cottrell and Miss Nancy Randolph. There were songs by the children who also took part in some other simple exercises, all of which made the program a pleasing one.

BEVERIDGE'S PERSISTENCE.

Albert J. Beveridge, the "Grand Young Man of Indiana," who is now up to his neck in a desperate fight to make his State go Republican in the next election, is persistent in anything he undertakes. A writer in the Popular Magazine tells how, when he was fighting the bill giving Statehood to Arizona and New Mexico, in President Roosevelt's administration, he used to go to the White House practically every day to enlist the strong support of the President.

On one occasion a newspaper man entered Mr. Roosevelt's office by one door just as the Senator from Indiana was leaving by the other. The President turned to the journalist with a look of annoyance on his face, started to speak, and then checked himself.

But the impulse was too strong. "If I die within the next thirty days," he burst out, "I want them to put on my tombstone: 'Pestered to death by Beveridge!'"

THE FORUM.

Charges Fraud at Primaries.

Editor The Daily Press:

In another paper on Wednesday there was a screed of misinformation furnished by an eavesdropper. He was that by his own statement—"One who heard what was going on in the room but was not on the inside." If this listener of the corridor had entered the room he would have been offered a seat, for it was an open-door meeting of thirty-two gentlemen from every section of the city engaged in considering what should be done in relation to the frauds perpetrated at the recent primary, when many pretended to be Republican citizens who were not, and whose votes thus swelled the Coriell count, and when others voted the ticket under even less reputable circumstances.

The ticket was "sweetened" at both ends. The respected and popular name of Judge attracted certain voters, whilst voters of another class appeared to have been attracted by compensation of from one dollar to two dollars apiece. It was sought in some cases to give an air of legality to the payment of money by employing certain voters as "workers" at the polls; when, however, the vote was definitely secured, the rest of the "work" of the so-called "workers" became unimportant. Some of the one-dollar men were, as I am credibly informed heard afterward to complain that they did not receive full price. In certain districts the aggregate vote for the ticket which came out of the poll was greatly in excess of the actual aggregate of Republicans in existence in that district.

The thirty-two gentlemen at the meeting (about two-thirds Republicans and one-third Democrats) objected to these frauds, and considered measures to punish and prevent them, and considered measures, also, toward emancipation of Plainfield from Water-and-Ring control. The Courier's report was wrong throughout. There was no "wordy war." Nobody "left the place" during the conference. At its close every one of the thirty-two men pledged himself by a rising vote to the resolution of progress which you have published. A Bi-partisan Municipal League has been organized, which all good citizens are invited to join, without dues or pledges, except as evincing their approval of this movement, and in support of George W. V. Moy, for mayor, an earnest campaign will be conducted.

A MILLINERY HINT.

What our English friends call a "dodge" in millinery was shown to me recently by a girl student in a technical school.

I had a light blue hat faced with silk of the same shade, but I could get no colored millinery wire to match it. Nothing but black and white were anywhere to be seen, and either would have been hideous.

"Paint it," said my student. "We always paint the white silk wire with watercolors, and get the exact shade we want. It works beautifully."

J. J. Keppler to Speak Here.

There will be a meeting of machinists of the city at their headquarters Monday night, when J. J. Keppler, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, will address the men. Mr. Keppler has just returned from an extensive trip throughout the country and will have something of interest to say to the mahcinists about trade conditions.

HOW TO END DIVORCES

Men Should Stay Home Evenings, Consult Their Wives and Be Generous.

SO SAYS PASTOR MAGUIRE.

He Should Have No Secrets Apart From Her—Only Wages She Gets is His Love, Declares Pastor.

In a sermon directed to husbands in the Park avenue Baptist church yesterday morning, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor, put himself on record as being against the marrying of divorced persons and declared that he would never perform such a ceremony. He further declared that if all the churches unite on that stand the divorce court of the country would soon be put out of business. "Marriage in these days," he said, "is being put on the level of commercialism and as such cannot have the blessing of the Almighty."

In his opening words the pastor said that it takes more than four walls and a roof to make the home. "If the roofs were lifted from the homes of the citizens of this city what misery would be disclosed. The only remedy for all of the ills of the household is found in the word love. Husbands should tell their wives oftener of the love they have for them and not let it go as an acknowledged fact never to be referred to. A man and his wife should live in perfect confidence with each other and have no secrets between them. Thousands of commercial failures could have been averted had the husband only consulted the wife when troubles came.

Great countries like France, Italy and these United States are suffering the consequence of divorce laws which make it so easy for the dissatisfied to be become separated, but there should also be laws which will prohibit the remarrying of those divorced. Your wife hungers in her heart for the word of love. Don't always assume that because she knows you love her that she does not want you to repeat it over and over again, for she does. The husband ought at all times be ready to sacrifice his life for his wife. He should find excuses for her faults. The only wages your wife gets is the love you give her and you should not be stinting her all the time.

Spend your evenings at home, at least some of them and you will find after a while that you enjoy yourself more in her company than at the lodge or club. Your wife should have a generous allowance and your pocketbook should always be open to her. In all conditions of life a husband can rely upon his wife for help. Her intuition is something that men cannot begin to have. Therefore consult her in everything.

"Comfort her. Sympathy and love help both the husband and wife in the training of their children. Begin to train the child before it is born by resolving upon its training early. Then keep it up and your child will be what you want to make it. Kindness is better than harsh words with the little ones. Remember they are learning from you and do your duty toward them.

"Discipline can be managed without crushing the spirit of a child. Remember that your child is an echo of yourselves and be guarded in your speech. And I caution you men to not make idols of your wives. Love them, yes, but remember that God has appointed you as a priest in the household and it is your duty to there set up the family altar which should have the same care and reverence as the church of which you are a member. Remember that love is or should be the ruling feature in the home and this will lead you into the paths of Godliness."

Rev. Mr. Maguire had a large congregation many of the people coming from other churches. His text was taken from Ephesians 5:20 and the topic was "Duties of Husbands."

Democratic Rally.

The Democratic club will meet tonight at its rooms at 102 North avenue. County Chairman William E. Tuttle, the party's nominee for Congress, will make an address on the issues of the campaign. The Assembly nominees, Messrs. Brodhead, MacLaughlin and Morris, will also speak. The meeting will begin promptly at 8:00. All voters irrespective of party are invited to be present.

Will Celebrate Anniversary.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Senior C. E. Society of Trinity Reformed church will be held Tuesday evening, October 11. All former members and presidents will be invited. A history of the society will be read. All societies of the city will be invited. There will be special music, a social hour and an address by Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, of Somerville.

CORNELIUS D. TAYOR, HOTEL MANAGER, DEAD

Cornelius D. Taylor, aged about forty-nine years, one of the best known hotel men in the State, died at his home in Dunellen, this morning from a complication of diseases. He was son of William H. Taylor, and for twenty-seven years has been manager of his father's hotel at Dunellen. Mr. Taylor had a host of friends. He had a genial disposition and always entertained in a lavish manner.

Mr. Taylor was born at Montville, but had resided at Dunellen the greater part of his life. He always took an active part in the affairs of the borough and was interested in sports of all kinds. He was a member of George H. Adams Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Newark.

Besides a father, Mr. Taylor is survived by a wife and two children; also two brothers, George W. Taylor, of Elizabeth, and Edward Taylor, of Dunellen.

The funeral will be held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and will be private. Rev. Mr. Bond will officiate.

WATCHUNG HUNT MEMBERS RIDE AFTER THE HOUNDS

The Watchung Hunt Club held its first chase of the season Saturday afternoon and it was an auspicious opening of the hunting season, there being nineteen riders in the field. The start was made from the New Market pond and the course, which extended through to Clinton avenue, across the Delafield farm and thence to the clubhouse, included fifteen good jumps. There was only one spill, that of C. W. Holland's groom. He was not seriously hurt. Huntsman Watkins rode with the party, and Rufus C. Finch was master of the hounds.

Upon the return of the riders to the clubhouse all partook of a fine breakfast as guests of Rufus C. Finch. Later a dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Holland and the Eureka Trio also entertained with vocal and instrumental music. Next Saturday E. S. Hooley will give a dinner party to about fifty friends. Those in the chase were Rufus C. Finch, C. E. S. Bellows, Charles Wildey, Hart Farlee, C. W. Holland, Harry L. Finch, Mr. and Mrs. Albin Trojan, Hugh Gormley, Schuyler Casey, of this city; H. W. Rose, of New York; Walter Webb, of New Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brown and Walter Brown, of Westfield. The hounds will be sent out again Wednesday morning at 6:30 o'clock.

STOCK COMPANY WILL PRESENT "WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE"

The Proctor & Sanderson stock company will revive one of the greatest of the successes of Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott, "When We Were Twenty-one," at the Plainfield theatre, today, tomorrow and Wednesday. It is a splendid stock piece, comprising many admirable roles, which will afford the members of the company abundant opportunity to display their talent. Henry V. Esmond, an English actor, wrote this play and it has been translated into eight different languages. Miss Ilka Diehl, the new leading woman, will make her first appearance today, with other changes in the cast.

"Thelma," was presented to large audiences on Saturday, afternoon and evening, the play meeting with much favor. It was conceded that it was one of the best efforts of the stock company. Harry Sharp, who played the difficult part of "Siguard," made a decided hit. The last three days of this week, "Prince Karl," will be the offering.

Primary School Enrollment.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson said this morning that according to the State law no pupils can be entered in the kindergarten and the first primary grades after tomorrow, excepting in the Jackson School. The exception is made possble because of the late opening of this school. The next opportunity for the entering of pupils in these grades will be in the first week in next January

Chattel Mortgage Sale.

There will be a chattel mortgage sale of the goods of Vail & Gardner, grocers, at the store, 300 East Front street, tomorrow afternoon. Codington & Swackhamer are attorneys for Althea L. Vail, holder of the mortgage, which was given in March, 1903. John Manley is the baliff.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dilts, of Irvington, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Dunn, of Duer street. Mr. Dilts is a nephew of Mrs. Dunn.

FIGHT AGAINST SALOONS

Swackhamer Urges Borough Residents to Protest to Somerset Court.

SPEAKS AT WARREN CHAPEL.

Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey also Asks Men to Work Against Granting of Two License Applications.

Warren chapel was filled to its capacity, last night when Samuel S. Swackhamer stepped to the front of the platform to deliver his address of protest against the issuance of two more licenses in North Plainfield. Preceding Mr. Swackhamer's speech a short song service was held. Rev. J. O. McKelvey introduced the speaker.

Mr. Swackhamer devoted the early part of his speech to denouncing the selling of liquor on Sunday. He declared that this evil was and is conducted in defiance of the law and that it was within the power of the voters to put a stop to the practice. He said that other trades were compelled to keep their doors closed on the Sabbath, but there seemed to be no attempt in certan places to prevent the saloon from doing business on that day.

Mr. Swackhamer pointed out that the present slavery to the saloon was worse than the slavery which caused the war of the rebellion. In his efforts to put down the traffic, he said, the voters of this State had not stood by him, but he knew that now the sentiment is changing and soon the tide will turn in favor of locap option and those who are working for the salvation of the youth of the land will have such a triumph as will make the vaults of heaven ring.

Two licenses are to be passed upon by Judge Clarence L. Case on October 8, and Mr. Swackhamer pleaded with all the men present who were in favor of restricting the sale of liquor in the borough to send in their protests if they were unable to take a trip to Somerville in person. "I would protest against a license for my own brother," he said. He has no animosity against the liquor men themselves, but against the stuff they sell. Mention of the defiance of the dealers at Atlantic City was made and then a final plea for a protest against the granting of the two licenses in the borough.

Rev. Mr. McKelvey supplemented Mr. Swackhamer's remarks by again urging the men present to send their protests. The congregation consisted largely of men and nearly every denomination in the city as well as the borough was represented. Many pledges of support for the protest were given by the men present.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES. AT THE FIRST BAPTIST.

The rally day exercises at the First Baptist church Sunday school yesterday were enjoyed by a large number of members and friends. Superintendent James E. Church was in charge of the program. A feature was the music, new books, "The Bible School Hymns," being used for the first time. Grant Colfax Tullar, one of the authors of the books, was present and led the school in singing and whistling several hymns from the book. This was greatly enjoyed by all, as was also the music furnished by Miss White, trumperter, who has been a member of the large orchestra at the auditorium in Ocean Grove the past summer.

The lesson was taught by H. W. Herrman, and Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor, offered prayer. The Sunday school was attractively decorated for the occasion with American flags, and each member of the school was presented with a small American flag during the exercises.

Autoists Meet Tomorrow Night

The Plainfield Automobile Club will hold a meeting tomorrow night on the top floor of the City National Bank building to discuss plans for securing a more uniform law for the operation of automobiles in the State. All owners of automobiles and others interested are urged to be present. J. H. Wood, president, and H. A. Bonnell, secretary of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, will be present and speak.

Cake Sale a Success.

The cake sale held at Trinity Reformel church Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Home department of the Sunday-school was a success. About $10 was netted for the flower fund of the church. Mrs. Henry VanName is the superintendent of the department, and she was assisted by other members.

REV. MORGAN ASHLEY TO LEAVE NEXT THURSDAY

Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church for the past two years, preached his last sermon in that church yesterday morning to a large congregation, taking for his topic, "Steadfastness."

Rev. Morgan Ashley.

Rev. Mr. Ashley has accepted a call from All Angels' church, in New York city, where he will be the curate.

Yesterday's services consisted of communion at 7:30 in the morning, morning prayer and sermon at 11 o'clock, and evensong at 4 in the afternoon. Just after the morning service the ceremony of baptism was conferred on the daughter of George Staats.

Rev. Mr. Ashley will probably leave Plainfield on Thursday. On Saturday night members of the parish gathered at the parish house and surprised the rector by giving him a farewell reception. Nearly a hundred of the flock were present.

During his incumbency here Mr. Ashley has practically doubled the membership of St. Stephen's and is much beloved by the congregation he is leaving. In All Angels parish in New York there are about five thousand people, 1,500 hundred of whom are communicants of the church.

Rev. Mr. Ashley is a graduate from Princeton University and the General Theological Seminary, New York. He came to this city from East Orange two years ago.

LOST CONTROL OF AUTO; STRUCK A YOUNG WOMAN

Miss Sadie Mattox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron B. Mattox, of Spruce street, is confined to her bed today as the result of injuries and shock received yesterday morning when she was struck by an automobile on Liberty street and dragged nearly a block. Presence of mind alone saved her from possible death or being badly hurt as she pulled herself to the hood of the radiator just as the machine dashed against a tree. The young woman was removed to her home and Dr. F. J. Hughes is in attendance. Besides being in a highly nervous state, she has a broken thumb and a severely sprained back.

In company with her sister, Miss Mary Mattox, and Miss Alice Dixon, Miss Mattox was returning from St. Mary's church when the auto dashed around the corner from Fifth street into Liberty. It was driven by Mrs. Walter Longman, of West Seventh street, who had apparently lost control of the wheel. The auto leaped the curb and dashed into the crowd of parishioners going to and from mass. The people scattered in all directions. Miss Mattox alone was struck. She would have been knocked down but for the fact that she grabbed hold of a lamp and clung desperately to it. Mrs. Longman seemed to have lost all control of the auto and it continued on despite the efforts of a dozen men to stop it. Miss Mattox finally pulled herself to the hood just as the car swung into a tree in front of St. Mary's church.

The accident was witnessed by fully 500 people and several women fainted when it seemed that the young woman might be crushed to death.

Hen Lays Egg for Rescuer.

Frightened by an automobile yesterday, a hen flew from the Boulevard bridge over the Morris Canal at Bayonne and landed in the canal. A dog followed the hen, and, fastening its teeth in one of the hen's wings swam ashore with it. In return for the favor the hen laid an egg on the towpath, but the dog paid no attention to the reward and sauntered away.

Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, of New street, has returned from a sojourn at Atlantic City.

LIBBY OPPOSES WOOD

Fourth District Democrats Nominate a Princeton Professor for Congress.

S. S. SWACKHAMER ALSO RAN.

W. E. L. Sperry Acts as Chairman at Convention Held at Somerville—Dr. Wilson's Candidacy is Endorsed.

Major William Libbey, a professor in Princeton University, was given the nomination for Congress in the Fourth district, at the Democratic Congressional convention, held at Somervillie today, and he will be opposed by Congressman Ira W. Wood, who was renominated by the Republicans last week. The nomination of Prof. Libbey was assured because the Mercer county delegation controlled the situation.

There were two other candidates, W. E. L. Sperry, of Trenton, who was chairman of the convention, and George Vanderbilt, also of Trenton. A vote was taken in caucus after Sperry withdrew in favor of Libbey, and the later received 93 votes, while Vanderbilt was given 34. The name of S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, was mentioned, but later the nomination of Major Libbey was made unanimous.

The convention organized this morning by electing W. E. L. Sperry, of Trenton, chairman, and D. H. Beekman, of Somerville, secretary.

The party platform was read this morning, it being merely a reaffirmation of the 1908 platform, and this was adopted this afternoon. It criticizes the Payne tariff law, and charges that the Republican policies are favorable to the trusts, and that the highcost of living is due to these policies. It endorses Dr. Woodrow Wilson and his platform. Hunterdon county had no choice for Congressional nomination.

AN ITALIAN COURT OCCUPIES JUDGE RUNYON THIS MORNING.

For fighting in the street at the corner of North avenue and Richmond street last night, Richard Pellegrino, Michael Sando and Andrew, all living on West Front street, were fined $5 each this morning by City Judge William N. Runyon. A revolver was found on one of the men, but as all denied any knowledge of the weapon it was confiscated by the police.

Philip Charco, an Italian, of East Third street, became so interested in the capture of the murderer last night that he refused to leave a chair in front of headquarters when requested to do so by Doorman O'Gorman. As Charco repeated his desire to stay around O'Gorman accommodated him by locking him up in a cell over night. Charco said he had been drinking a little. He received a suspended sentence.

"Aunty" Arnold's Narrow Escape.

"Aunty" Arnold, aged 93 years; aunt to Mrs. H. P. Reynolds, of 819 First place, is slowly recovering from the effects of an accident at her home a few days ago, which might have proved fatal. Mrs. Arnold, who is both blind and deaf, fell the entire length of the front stairs at her home and was picked up in a semi-conscious and helpless condition. Dr. Sarah D. Keeney was summoned and an examination showed that there were no bones broken, and Mrs. Arnold was suffering chiefly from shock. She is now improving under Dr. Keeney's care.

A Birthday Surprise.

Miss Hazel Williams, daughter of Mrs. L. R. Williams, of Crescent avenue, was tendered a surprise party in honor of her birthday, Saturday night. Thirty-six of her friends from this city and Westfield were in attendance and enjoyed music, games and dancing until 11 o'clock, when refreshments were served. A feature of the program was piano selections by Miss Emma Jimerson, of Westfield, and Fred Zweifel, of this city. The affair was arranged by Edwin Williams.

Death of Samuel Ellis.

Samuel Ellis, a prominent resident of Hartford, N. Y., died at his home in that place last Thursday, following a stroke of paralysis. He was seventy-three years old and was the father of Oscar W. Ellis, of Warrenville, formerly of this city. The latter attended the funeral service yesterday afternoon and will return from Hartford the latter part of the week.

Approaching Marriage.

YOUNG MAN VICTIM OF TYPHOID FEVER

Earl W. Lynn, aged 18 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Lynn, of 410 Grant aveune, died at Muhlenberg Hospital at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon from typhoid fever. He had been ill since August 20, when he was first taken with pleurisy after which he suffered an attack of typhoid fever. Everything possible in the way of medical attention was provided the young man at the hospital, but he failed to improve under the treatment.

Mr. Lynn was born at Detroit, Mich., and removed with his parents to this city a year later, where he has continued to reside. He attended the Stillman school, where he was popular with all his schoolmates, and where he made excellent progress in his studies. He was also a member of the First M. E. church and the Epworth League. The young man had a host of young friends, who deeply regret his death.

The funeral will be held from the home of his parents Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church will officiate. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

BIG CONFIRMATION CLASS AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

The largest class of boys and girls that has ever been confirmed in St. Mary's church received the rites in the edfice this afternoon. The total number was 160 and the parents and friends filled the church to its capacity.

The apostolic ceremony was conducted by Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. O'Connor, of the Newark diocese, assisted by Chancellor Charles A. Smith and other visiting clergymen. The attendants included Rev. Father Murphy and Mgr. John Burke, of New York; Very Rev. Joseph E. Dolan, of Rome, Italy; Rev. Father Miller, of North Plainfield, and the priests of St. Mary's church, Rev. Fathers Bogan, Hogan and Sciolla. The service was closed with the benediction. Following the ceremony the congregation was addressed by Bishop O'Connor, who gave the class some timely advice.

The visiting clergymen were guests of Father Bogan at dinner given in the rectory previous to the service in the church.

RUNYON BIBLE CLASS TO EAT THE WATERMELON.

Members of the William N. Runyon Bible class of Hope chapel will hold a watermelon social tomorrow night to mark the close of a membership contest which as been conducted during the summer. The young men were divided into two sections, known as the "Reds" and the "Whites", and each sought to outdo the other in bringing in new members. The "Reds," under the leadership of James Penny, were the winners and the "Whites", captained by Arthur Fluck, will have to be hosts at the social. The contest increased the class roll from forty to eighty-six.

The organization was started by Judge W. N. Runyon and is now in charge of Howard McWilliams. The latter will be chairman of tomorrow night's affair and among the guests will be Judge Runyon, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and Rev. Fred B. Newman, of Trenton.

DUNELLEN SAENGERBUND ENJOY FIELD DAY SPORTS.

The Saengerbund Club, of Dunellen, held their semi-annual field day Saturday afternoon, playing a five-inning game of ball and ending up the fun with an old fashioned country dinner, with real spring chicken and the usual trimmings.

The ball game attracted a crowd of the Saengerbund's friends and nearly resulted in the murder of the umpire. John C. Dilts was the man alleged to have caused a riot among the players. Anyhow, it was lots of fun and the umpire was in no real danger. Sides were chosen by the brothers Craig, and Bob's side won by a score of 7 to 6.

Harry Brentnall was presented with a cricket bat by the members. Mr. Brentnall was a noted cricket player in England.

Will Attend Bankers' Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Rowland, the Misses Alice and Ursula Rowland, of West Seventh street; Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick and Miss Edith Mellick, of East Seventh street, leave today for lower California. The trip will be made on the "Bankers' Special" train, and will extend over a period of about thirty days. Mr. Mellick and Mr. Rowland will attend the bankers' convention to be held at Los Angeles.

ITALIAN MURDERED; ASSAILANT CAPTURED

Antonozzi Slashes Lahgi With Stilleto on the Street and His Victim Dies in the Hospital.

On a charge of murdering Francisco Lahgi, 22 years old, Batista Antonozzi, of 422 East Third street, 24 years old, was held without bail for the action of the grand jury by Judge William N. Runyon this afternoon. The alleged murder occurred at the corner of East Fourth and Watchung avenue at 8:20 o'clock last evening and was committed with a stilletto. Lahgi was hurried to the hospital, where Drs. Pittis, E. W. and B. VanD. Hedges and Norman H. Probasco worked over the mortally injured man for two hours, when he died.

Before passing away Antonnizzo gave the police a statement and was also able to identify his assailant. He declared that he knew of no reason for the taking of his life. The statement of the prisoner, however, differs. He declared last night that Antonozzi had assaulted him twice, once at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the corner of Fifth street and Watchung avenue and later at 8:1y, the time he defended himself with his knife. Antonozzi was caught by Roundsman Higgins and Patrolman Nick Meyers, the latter pulling the prisoner from underneath his bed at his home on East Third street. The house was in darkness when the officers arrived at the place where they had traced the fugitive, who had run from the scene immediately after the crime was committed.

Twenty witnesses were examined by Prosecutor Swift, assisted by Walter Hetfield, Jr., and up to noon had only secured one who could be held as a material witness in the case. From the stories so far told no motive has been established for the crime. Contradictory stories have been told by the prisoner, the first being that Lahgi had been persecuting him for months, especially on Sundays when partly intoxicated, but when questioned again he declared that they had always been friends.

The story told by several others is that Antonozzi had quarreled with his victim over the payment of the beer which the party had been drinking all day. At the height of the quarrel it is alleged that Antonozzi told four of his companions who live in Raritan, to leave the house and he would fix Lahgi. Lahgi also left the house, but was followed as told above.

The dead man had a large number of relatives and friends in this city, while it is said that the murderer has but few acquaintances. The body of the dead man was removed this morning to Cole's undertaking establishment, from whence it will be removed to the home of a relative.

In the pockets of Antonozzi were found, besides a knife, $122 in money, which he claims to have saved up from his daily work on the streets for a local contractor.

An autopsy was performed on the body of Lahgi at Coles' undertaking establishment this morning by City Physician C. B. Lufburrow, assisted by Dr. Norman W. Currie and Acting County Physician Munger. They found three deep stab wounds in the body, one of which pierced the lung on the right breast, another in the back near the shoulder, and a third in the abdomen which laid open a gaping wound.

The inquiry into the causes leading up to the crime was resumed this afternoon at police headquarters, but up to 3 o'clock no motive has been established for the murder. There were several witnesses still to be examined.

Girls, Here's a "Catch."

A girl who is willing to become the wife of a farmer may get the job by writing to Jesse Smith, of Mount Bethel, near Delaware, Warren county. Jesse wants a wife. The only requirements he demands are that she be between twenty-two and thirty years old and good looking. Oh, yes, one more qualification. She must not wear hobble skirts. Jesse is thirty-two years old, he says, and longs for a good life partner. He smokes, but doesn't drink.

"Ready" Is the Word in Our Newer, Better, Upholstery Store

When we say "ready"—and invite you to see our showing of upholsteries—we speak with a confidence born of a knowledge of the completeness of our stocks and of its thoroly satisfying character.

We do not boast in the slightest degree when we declare that there is not in all Jersey an upholstery store with a stock that even remotely approaches this one in magnitude or comprehensiveness. Go where you will, into any city, into any store, look over their lines and make a comparison with ours. You need not be an expert to see the difference. The most unsophisticated will see the difference at a glance. Truly there is no comparison.

We go even further in our claims—we invite you to visit the very biggest and best of the New York houses—bar none—and make comparisons. There are stocks that you might think as good, but you will find none that excels the one you find here, nor will you have lower prices quoted you.

It is conceded by those who know stores best that Hahne & Co. Upholstery Store ranks with the finest show places in America, but this elegance, this superb arrangement, this fine display would be of little value to the public if, back of it all, there were not ample variety of good quality merchandise rightly priced.

We can not hope to convey to you an adequate idea of our stocks, but we will mention just a few of the beautiful things that await you and quote just a few prices.

Marie Antoinette Curtains—Extremely beautiful patterns, in a range almost bewildering, in both white and Arab—a collection of which we are extremely proud; here at the following prices—

Long Curtains, $5.25, $6.50, $6.75, $8, $9, $10 up to $40.
Sash Curtains, $4, $5.25, $5.75, $6, $6.50 and $7.50.

Irish Point Curtains which are always greatly favored and are in the usual great demand this season, are here in exceptionally wide variety of patterns and qualities, priced as follows—

Lace Curtains, $2.50, $2.75, $3.50, $4, $4.75, $5, $7, $8.75 up to $25.00.

Sill Curtains, 2½ yds. long in white, $3, $3.50, $4, $4.50 and $6.

Renaissance, Lacet Arabian, Real Arabian, Madras and Scrim Curtains are here in wonderful variety; also Muslin and Bobbinet Ruffled Curtains, all of them at prices that are easy to pay.

Lace Bed Sets of Scrim, Swiss, Renaissance, Marie Antoinette Lacet Arabian and Real Arabian in great variety; prices running all the way from $2.75 to $50.

Curtaining Materials by the yard are shown in perhaps wider variety than in any store in the whole metropolitan section. Expert comparisons have revealed to us the fact that no New York store shows as great a variety of these goods as we do, the prices beginning at 25c a yard and going to $3.50 for the very heavy nets.

Fancy Figured 36-in. Wide Swisses are here in large variety of designs, as well as in all sizes of dots—the always popular kind, at 12c the yard.

40-in. Swisses, 20c, 25c and 35c the yard.

Rich Imported Curtainings such as will be found in no other Newark store are here in just as generous variety as the domestic goods—exquisite patterns, in ever so many qualities.

Imported Madras—White and ecru; 36 inches wide, at 30c; 45 inches wide at 39c.

White and Ecru Imported Madras—36 inches wide, 30c; 45 inches wide 38c; 50 inches wide, 50c, 65c, 80c, 85c, 95c and $1.

Colored Imported Madras—36 inches wide, 38c; 45 inches wide, 65c, 85c and $1; 50 inches wide, $1.50.

2 yards wide, $2.50, $2.75 and $3.75 per yard.

Best Quality French Bobbinets, in 48, 54, 72 and 108 inch widths and a full line of Lacet Arabian Motifs and Edging for all classes of curtain work; Irish Point, Lacet and Renaissance Door Panels.

Fine quality of Fancy Lace Nets in Arabian, 45 inches wide, $2.50 and $3 per yard.

Irish Point Vestibule Laces, 12, 18, 24, 27 and 36 inches wide, from 45c to $4.50 the yard.

Lace Novelty Nets in white and Arab, 40 inches wide, 35c, 45c 55c and 65c per yard; 50 inches wide, 75c, 85c, 95c, $1 and $1.50 per yard.

Filet Lace Novelty Nets—Ivory; 50 inches wide, 50c, 75c, 85c, $1, $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75 per yard.

40-in. Scrims in white, Arab and ivory; plain and fancy effects, at 19c per yard. Also a large line in the finer qualities up to 65c per yard.

Portieres are shown in such variety as to satisfy every possible taste and every purse. It matters not what color scheme you have in mind, you will find it easy to pick something here that will perfectly harmonize with it.

Cotton Madras Portieres with tapestry border effects as well as the fringed styles; $2.75, $3.50, $4, $4.75, $5.75, $6.50 up to $15.

Mercerized Portieres in the same class of goods, $3.50 to $20.

Mercerized Gobelin Portieres with fancy Verona Velour backs—very elegant indeed, may be had at $22.50 the pair.

Jute Velour Portieres—the best quality imported velour; beautiful patterns and color effects; $29.50 and $35.

Rep Portieres in surprising variety of combinations and colorings, at $3, $4, $5.50, $6.75 up to $15.

Verdue Tapestry—so popular last season—will be even more so this season; here at $1.75, $2, $2.25, $2.50 and $3 the yard.

Silk Damask, Silk Brocades, Mercerized and Silk Gobelins, as well as the more popular cotton and mercerized Armure, with fancy weave effects, are shown in many patterns and colorings at popular prices.

At the decorative counter there is an unmatched stock of Pillow Girdles, Pillow Cords, Cotton and Silk Edgings, Gimps, Pillow Tops, Curtain Loops, Portiere Loops for all classes of decorative work.

Printed Fabrics, such as Cretonnes, Fancy Art Tickings, Burlaps, Plain and Fancy Denims, in such variety as to satisfy every demand, at the most popular prices.

Window Shades, Pole and Curtain Fixtures, suitable for all classes of interior work, in immense variety, surely the best equipped department in the city.

Orders executed promptly.

How to Have a Warm House

First—install a BOYNTON "Square Pot," Patented, Furnace in the basement.

Then—in the morning before business and in the evening before retiring, step down and turn the BOYNTON clinkerless, ash-cutting grate. This clears the fire perfectly. Now put in a little coal; set the dampers for the degree of heat you wish, and leave the

BOOKS RECENTLY ADDED TO THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Miss Bowman, the librarian, today issued the list of books recently placed on the shelves at the Plainfield Public Library:

Edward C. Booth—The Doctor's Lass.

Frances Boyd Calhoun—Miss Minerva and William Green Hill.

Warwick Deeping—Rust of Rome.

Frances Yvon Eccles—A Century of French Poets.

John Galsworthy—Country House and A Motley; shore stories.

Samuel Gompers—Labor in Europe and America.

Ian Hay—The Right Stuff. "We do not go so far as to say that Mr. Ian Hay is invariably convincing, but there never was a time when idealisation deserved a more cordial welcome, and his engaging story is one of the rare cases in the dreary desert of arid ability."—Spectator.

William John Hopkins—Old Harbor. "To any readers who love 'Pride and Prejudice' and 'Cranford' 'Old Harbor' may be recommended without the slightest misgiving or reservation."—New York Times.

Prevost Hubbard—Dust Preventatives and Roadbinders. "The author's treatment of the subject is clear and comprehensive, and the book is one which should be read by every road engineer."—Industrial Engineering.

Selma Lagerlof—Invisible Links.

Harold McGrath—Splendid Hazard. "As the title suggests, this is a story of action. It deals with an expedition directed by the discovery of a document which tells of 3,000,000 francs which are buried in Corsica—the sum that was raised by Napoleon's adherents to bring back the banished warrior from Corsica."—New York Times.

McLaughlin, James—My Friend the Indian. "This story of the experience of one of the last of the old Indian fighters is full of romance and stirring incidents."—New York Times.

Marvin, Frederic R.—The Excursions of Book-Lovers. "The book is a worthy offering to book-lovers by a book-lover."—New York Times.

Miller, Henry Russell—The Man Higher Up. "A strong, true picture of elemental man. The account of the development of the bar-room fighter into the trusted and trustworthy leader of the State is readable and convincing."—New York Times.

Moore, John Trotwood—Uncle Walsh's His Stories. "Thirty-two first class negro stories full of humor and negro philosophy.

Ray, Anna Chapin—Over the Quicksands, sequel to Bridge Builders. "Picturesque descriptions of life in and around Quebec."JIndependent.

Thompson, Silvanus P.—Life of Lord Kelvin, 2v. "Although the nature of the book and the recondite character of Kelvin's special studies call for judicious skipping by a lay reader, we do not hesitate to say that it is one of the most interesting and best-written biographies which have appeared during the last ten years."—Athenaeum.

Wemyss, Mary C. E.—The Professional Aunt. "A welcome glint of sunshine is the little tale after the woes and problems with which so much modern fiction is drenched."—New York Times.

Wilbur, Mary Aronetta.—Everyday Business for Women. "It covers her methods of banking, the management of the check-book, foreign exchange, getting money in emergencies."—Bk. R. Digest.

Keeping Up Appearances.

"A woman finds a man out after she is married to him," said Mrs. Jangle, bitterly.

"Yes," replied her husband, meekly. "But that doesn't give him a chance to lay off the mask. He's got to go on for years trying to keep the children convinced that he is an intelligent and morally responsible person."—Washington Evening Star.

Not Resentful; Only Curious.

"You advertised all the comforts of home," said the man with the frivolous hat.

"Well," rejoined Farmer Corntossel, "aren't you getting them?"

"Yes. But how did you know I was accustomed to a hall bedroom and canned food?"—Washington Evening Star.

Cultivate It.

Love must be cultivated, and can be increased by judicious culture, as wild fruit may double their bearing under the hand of a gardener; and love can dwindle and die out by neglect, as choice flower seeds, planted in poor soil, dwindle and grow single.

One cup sugar, yolks of four eggs, one cup of hot coffee. Cook like a custard. When cold add one quart of sweet cream whipped very stiff. Pack in salt and ice four hours. This will serve about nine people.

SOMERVILLE WINS 5-3

Visitors Lead From First Inning and Hit McLaughlin With Ease.

ALBERT'S SENSATIONAL CATCH.

Plainfield Scores Two of its Runs on Hits by Schott—Eighth and Fourth Innings Curiously Indentical.

Somerville had sweet revenge on Plainfield Saturday afternoon when she wiped out the stinging defeat of the week before by the score of 5 to 3.

The visitors made two runs in the first inning and held the advantage throughout. Toward the latter part of the game they hit McLaughlin heavily, who appeared to be out of form.

The first two runs were easily tallied. Anderson, the first man up, singled; Jung got a base on an error; McDonald placed a fast fly to center and Anderson and Jung ran home. In the second inning Alberts, the Scotch Plains boy, made a sehsational catch of a long drive to centerfield, falling backward over the other fielder as he grabbed the ball in his right hand.

Plainfield scored its first run in the fourth inning. Nelson fanned out; McLaughlin placed a two-bagger to center; Barnes struck out; Schott shot a grounder close to first base and Emery, who ran for McLaughlin, crossed the pan. Again in the eighth inning Plainfield tallied. Nelson flied out to right field; McLaughlin placed another two-bagger just as he had done in the fourth inning, and Barnes again struck out. Schott hit towards third and Barnes, who ran this time for McLaughlin, crossed the pan. Thus two of the runs scored by Plainfield were scored on hits by the popular fielder Schott.

In the last half of the ninth Plainfield tallied its last run. Boyd fanned out; Emery drove to right field; Jack Martin popped out to shortstop and with two outs the crowd began to leave the field. Carlstrom drove well to center though, and Emery ran to third base. Nelson then placed a fast fly to right field and Emery crossed the pan. Carlstrom was on his way to repeat the stunt when caught out at home while sliding.

Pickled Crab Apples.

Nine pounds apples, four pounds sugar, one pint water, one quart vinegar and broken cinnamon and cloves one-fourth tablespoon each. Leave the crab apples whole with the stems on. Put them in a crock, a layer of apples and a layer of sugar alternating, pour vinegar and sugar over them and let them stand over night. Drain and heat the liquid adding to it the broken pieces of cinnamon and cloves which have been tied in a bag. Heat slowly to the boiling point and when the liquid is clear add the apples and boil until they are tender. Put them in glass jars. Let the liquid boil down to a syrup and pour it over the apples in the jars and seal airtight.

TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL GRADUATION EXERCISES

The annual graduation exercises in the various departments of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school were held yesterday afternoon and, as usual, proved interesting to the members and friends of the school. The attendance for the afternoon was 421, one of the largest of the year. Superintendent F. E. Smith was in charge, while interesting exercises were held in each department in connection with the graduation of the children. As each department was promoted, Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the church, made a short and appropriate address, in which he congratulated the children for the excellent work done by them during the year.

The graduates to the junior department entered the large room first, taking part in simple exercises, then the graduates to the primary department and lastly the little tots going from the beginners to the primary department. Those going from the primary to the junior department each received a Bible. Earl Cooke and Edna Francis Smith, of the primary department, received books for doing the best work during the year.

Miss Helen Smith was in charge of the exercises in the beginners' department; Mrs. J. M. Tier had charge of the primary department and Miss Harriet Randall was in charge of the juniors. Each child promoted received a diploma. The graduates were as follows:

Primary to junior department—Edna Frances Smith, Ruth Eleanor Freeman, Helen Asbury Hand, Margaret Virginia Smith, Dorothy May Crane Grace May Sowden, Helen Elizabeth Thompson, Mildred Mary Clarke, Esther Kellogg, Vera Ella McCready, Hazel Marguerite McCready, Helen Louise Scribner, Lucy Anna Dress, Helen Louise Edwards, Grace Brewer, Ethel Blanche Givens, Harry Schleif, Howard Kline Willett, Raymond Hansen, Andrew Peter Greve, Jamess Wilson, Elmer Case Saums, George Harry Sheing, William Howard Allegar, Arthur Edward Laury.

D. A. R. TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING IN OCTOBER

Camp Middlebrook Chapter, D. A. R., held its first meeting of the fall season on last Tuesday afternoon at the Library club rooms in Bound Brook, Mrs. C. W. Thomae, the regent, being hostess of the occasion. An interesting and profitable afternoon was spent. The names of two applicants were presented and one previously presented was elected to membership.

Plans were formed to have a neighborhood meeting late in October and a committee appointed to take full charge. Members of Morristown, Continental, General Frelinghuysen, Jersey Blue and Princeton chapters will be invited to attend, they being the chapters interested in marking General Washington's line of march from Princeton to Morristown.

Papers were read on the New Jersey signers of the Declaration of Independence and Valley Forge. There were about eighteen members present and after dainty refreshments were served a rising vote of thanks was given the hostess.

The next meeting will be held on October 18, at the Homestead, the home of Mrs. Willam Rogers, River road, Bound Brook, and all who can are urged to be present as it will be the seventeenth annual meeting and election of officers.

Rally Day at Grace M. E.

An address by Rev. Dr. A. W. Hayes, of Westfield, was the feature of rally day at Grace M. E. church yesterday afternoon. Dr. Hayes' subject was "What Time Is It?" and in order ot draw a lesson for the children and others from it he used a clock and a number of watches. The address was most unique and convincing. Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll was afterward introduced and made a few remarks. The school rooms were very prettily decorated in honor of the day and Superintendent W. J. Conroy had charge.

AUTOMOBILE IN CRASH; C. B. LEVY SLIGHTLY HURT

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Levy and two-year-old son, Irving Jerome Levy, of Duer stret, accompanied by Mrs. M. Weinberger, of the borough, and Wilber Greenfield, of this city, had a narrow escape from serious injury while enjoying a ride in Mr. Levy's automobile yesterday afternoon. The Plainfielders were going along the Stelton road in the direction of New Brunswick, when they were run down by an auto driven by Wilber White, of Bloomfield. The accident occurred at the fork of two roads.

Mr. White, who was accompanied by his wife, was coming from Metuchen and was headed toward the main road. There was a car ahead of Mr. White, which passed the Plainfield party, and Mr. Levy not wishing to take any chances, ran his machine over to the right of the road and stopped to allow Mr. White to pass.

Whether Mr. White lost control of his machine is not known, but he almost ran headlong into Mr. Levy's auto, breaking both radiators, the windshields, wrenching the axles of the cars and giving the occupants of both a severe shakeup. The flying glass struck Irving Levy, cutting his head, but the others escaped injury. Both cars were so battered that the owners had to leave them on the road.

Other automobiles which happened along soon after the accident picked up the stranded people and brought them home. Irving Levy was attended by Dr. J. Henry Buchanan. His injuries are not serious. Mr. White, it is said, practically admitted that he was at fault, claiming that the car ahead of him prevented him from seeing Mr. Levy's machine. The latter had brought his car to a standstill to allow Mr. White to pass, and it is said was not to blame for the collision.

Warren Chapel Rally Day.

The rally day exercisse at Warren chapel were in charge of Superintendent J. W. Gavett and comprised a varied program. Addresses were made by E. E. Parvin and C. W. Williams. Solos were contributed by E. E. Pilger, tenor of the Crescent avenue church choir, and Miss Nora Schenck, members of the intermediate and pdimary departments gave recitations and exercises.

COMMUTERS BLAMED BY LOCAL OPTIONIST

Asserting that conditions in New Jersey were different from those in the Western States, J. Frank Burke, superintndent of the Anti-Saloon League in New Jersey, in the Methodist Episcopal church at Morristown yesterday, excused the failure of the league in securing the passage of a local option law in this State, though he said the local option vote in the State was four times as large now as it was when he took up the work in New Jersey.

The great bodies of foreign-born citizens in the cities were mentioned as one of the causes for the lack of enthusiasm over local option. Conditions on the seacoast of the State were also ascribed as a reason for failure, as was the very small rural population of the State.

"But the great body of commuters give us the most trouble," said Mr. Burke. "Going every day to New York or Philadelphia, these men purchase New York and Philadelphia newspapers, and in consequence they are in touch with politics and business affairs in New York and Pennsylvania but of their own State they learn but little."

Mr. Burke told how in Newark there were sixty saloons close to the doors of factories, and described the "treating" system in vogue among factory employes, saying that it tended toward the destruction of American homes.

"We are working to write the local option law on the hearts of the people," said Mr. Burke, "for we know we must do this before we can get it written on the law books of the State."

ATE LOBSTER SALAD; 2 DEAD AND 2 ARE ILL

Two men are dead, two others seriously ill and several more sick as the reported result of eating lobster salad at an Elizabeth polce banquet given in that city three weeks ago. The dead are Richard McMahon, John Sullivan. Those seriously ill are Counciman Owen Farrelly, Daniel Sullivan, brother of one of the dead men.

McMahon died in the Alexian Hospital, Elizabeth yesterday and Sullivan died there last night about 9 o'clock. The other two men who are seriously ill are also in the Alexian Hospital.

The banquet was given in honor of the appointment of John Kelly to the Elizabeth police force. There was a large number in attendance. In front of the men was placed lobster salad. The four men left the banquet hall in the best of spirits. For the next week nothing troubled them and the salad was forgotten.

McMahon was the first to succumb. About two weeks ago he was taken ill. His condition became serious and he was taken to the Alexian Hospital. Councilman Farrelly was the second to feel the effects of the salad, and he, too, was taken to the hospital. The Sullivans became patients in the institution soon afterward.

Mr. McMahon and Mr. Sullivan died after suffering intense agony for two days. Several other men who ate small quantities of the salad are reported as fee'ing ill, but their condition is not regarded serious.

Today it was stated at the hospital that Councilman Farrelly is a little improved, although not yet past the danger point. McMahon was vice-president of the local arie of Eagles, and was a prominent member of the Young Men's Catholic Association of St. Patrick's church, and of the Entre Nous. He was also connected with several other social and political organizations.

ORIGINAL OF LITTLE DORRIT DEAD IN ENGLAND.

Word has reached American that Mrs. Georgiana Hayman, who claimed to have been the original of Little Dorrit, the character made famous by Dickens, is dead at Southsea, England, at the age of 81.

Her father was often visited by Dickens at his London home in Westminster Bridge road, and in this way the author first became acquainted with Mrs. Hayman, who was then Miss Bridges. Mrs. Hayman's brother was also the original of Dickens' character known as Tiny Tim. Fond of imitating a tightrope walker, the little fellow was one day walking along a railing outside the house, when he fell and was impaled on a spike.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A clam bake was held yesterday on the Gould farm near Johnston drive, which was attended by a number from here and Plainfield. The bake was all that could be desired and the day was an ideal one for an outing.

The rally service of the Baptist Sunday school held yesterday morning the church was a most successful one. Teachers and scholars have all returned from their summer vacations and were out in force.

Berkeley Heights lost again Saturday to New Providence by the score of 9 to 5. Berkeley Heights was strengthened with several players from the local team and Fredrickson and Hand as the battery.

Robert Walpole and George Lyons tried their luck for bass at the Passaic river yesterday. The day's catch netted several fine bass and pickerel.

Fred Clarke, of Bartle avenue, has returned from a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Newark and Brooklyn.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

A well attended weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

PREDICTS RAIN AND COOLER WEATHER.

The weather bureau at Washington issued this bulletin last night:

"A hurricane that was felt Sunday morning near Bermuda is moving in a northeast direction, and is causing dangerous storms. On Sunday morning advices concerning this disturbance were sent to the principal ports on the Atlantic coast, and wireless telegraphs sent to vessels at sea of the position and direction of the movement of this storm: Some indications were shown by reports from the West Indies of a storm.

"In the United States the weather east of the Rocky mountains will be unsettled with rains during the next three days, extending eastward almost to the Atlantic coast. Cooler weather will prevail in the middle west Monday and Tuesday, and the eastern States Wednesday. A disturbance has formed in the Behring sea, which will probably move across the United States, attended by showers and cooler weather. This disturbance will in all probability be followed by a marked change to cooler weather in all parts of the country east of the Rocky mountains.

LIFE IN A COAL BREAKER

Dark Picture Drawn of Employment to Which Young Boys Are Bound.

Practically every boy graduates from school to the coal breaker before he is fourteen—some boys as early as ten or eleven years. The coal breaker is a gaunt, tower-like wooden structure, at the top of which the coal is broken into the required size for use and then sent in a continuous stream down chutes which empty into waiting coal cars or pockets. The boys are employed to pick out of the moving stream the pieces of slate as they appear—straddling the chutes, or sitting on small wooden projections at the side. The atmosphere in the breaker is so thick and dark with flying coal dust that an attempt to take a photograph of a couple of boys at noon, near a window, resulted in one indistinguishable black surface; the noise is so great that I could not distinguish the words of my guide even when he put his mouth close to my ear and shouted; the movement and shaking of the whole structure are at times so violent that in some breakers I have been obliged to hold tightly to a hand rail for safety. The boys grow so cramped from long sitting in one position that sometimes they seize the opportunity to chase one another around the slippery metal platforms. And there was not one superintendent in the four or five collieries that we have happened to visit who did not, upon our questioning, relate at least one tragedy that had occurred in his experience, of a boy who had slipped into a coal pocket and been smothered, or had been mangled and killed by falling into the machinery. When we have asked whether the slate picking could not be done by mechanical devices, the invariable answer has been, "Yes, but the boys are cheaper."—Harper's Magazine.

OLD AIDS TO THE HAT TRADE

Severe Laws Have Been Passed In England to Protect Various Makers of Headgear.

Hats have in England been subject to very severe protective enactments. The blocked beaver hat, for instance, imported by Sir Walter Raleigh from the low countries, won its way so rapidly that in 1571 Queen Elizabeth passed an act to protect the making of "thrummed" caps, made from wool for the advantage of the landed proprietors, whose sheep furnished the material. The statute provided that "every person, except ladies and Jews (why were Jews excused?) shall on Sundays and holidays wear on his head a cap of velvet wool made in England. Penalty 3s. 6p. per day." About a century later the law, for which there is nothing too high or too low, having taxed men's shoes, turned its attention once more to their hats, and soon put a check on all improvements in the trade by requiring every vender of hats to take out a license under a heavy penalty. Subsequently a stamp duty was imposed on all hats, which were officially marked inside where the maker's name now appears. The penalty for selling a hat without a stamp was £10, and the penalty for forging a hat stamp was—death! Whence, no doubt, the modern custom of the man who goes to church, sits down, looks into his hat—to read his maker's name!

A Novel Bed.

"I'm a hundred per cent. healthier for sleeping up next to the ceiling," remarked a certain dweller out East Capitol way. "I'm not only above the drafts that frisk back and forth from the window to door and cause half the colds we suffer from, but I breathe a far purer quality of air and hence awake more refreshed. Foul air always settles in the lower part of the room; the purer air floats above where I sleep."

He has rigged for himself a complicated system of weights and pulleys whereby he can hoist his couch from the floor and suspend it, like Mohammed's coffin, the while the slumbers. As to the possibilities of rolling out of bed, he refused to make comment.—Washington Star.

The Question Answered.

The late Mr. John J. Ingalls, United States senator from Kansas, once told with great glee the story of a joke at his own expense, the humor of which, however, he enjoyed as keenly as if he had not been the victim of it.

"I went one evening," said Mr. Ingalls, "to make a political speech in a small town. I presume the people thought I would have difficulty in filling an hour; at any rate, they called upon the village choir to assist.

"I trust that the hymns were selected before my arrival, but of that I cannot be sure. I know that before the talk the choir sang, 'What Shall the Harvest Be?' and after it, 'Nothing but Leaves.'"—Youth's Companion.

Luxury of Law.

"I haven't the vestige of a case," said the crafty client to the craftier lawyer, "but I have money."

"How much?" casually inquired the legal one.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars," proclaimed the client.

The lawyer put out his hand.

"Shake hands!" he said. "You have the best case I ever heard of. I'll see that you never go to jail with that sum!"

And he did.

The client there went "broke."

SURPRISED VISITOR TO CITY

Good Old Uncle Josh Wondered at Liberality Displayed by "Them Oprey People."

A few days ago a resident of Shamong township came over from Jersey to lay in a supply of seed potatoes, cultivator teeth and other things, and after looking over the cut glass and picture display in one or two lifesaving stations, he rambled out Market street to see the city.

While making the tour Uncle Josh ran across a building operation where an old structure had been torn down to make room for a more modern one. The bricks which had been taken from the old building were piled several feet high and many yards long in the street, and, of course, were covered from one end to the other with theatrical posters.

Uncle Josh let his eyes play on the brick pile for several minutes while an expression of mingled surprise and admiration floated over his countenance. Finally he turned to a policeman on the corner.

"I jes' tell you what it is, constable," he remarked in a confidential tone, "them oprey people don't mind ther expense when they start to do a thing, do they?"

"I don't know," was the wondering response, "what do you mean?"

"Why, jes' look at thet," said Uncle Josh, pointing to the brick pile, "who would think thet they would go to all ther trouble o' puttin' up a brick wall as thick as thet jes' ter paste them actin' pictur's on?"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

HAD FUN WITH PRESIDENTS

Children of the White House Seemingly Had No Fear of Chief Executives.

Agnes Carr Sage, in her book, "Boys and Girls of the White House," has included some stories of children who, without living in the presidential mansion, were privileged to have their fun at the president's expense. Among them was the adopted daughter of Dolly Madison. Who was the president is not told, but the chances are in favor of Van Buren. The little maid stood a good chance of knowing Van Buren, Harrison, Tyler and Polk in the White House. Van Buren is the one who would have enjoyed the joke most heartily.

Mistress Dolly's closing days would have been desolate, indeed, but for Anna Payne, the child of a brother in Kentucky, whom she adopted late in life. This young girl was her constant companion after the death of Mr. Madison, in 1836, and a veritable sunbeam in the home which she made at Washington within a stone's throw of the White House.

A prankish little creature was Anna, and up to all sorts of mischief. Thus, one first of April, she invited the one who was then president to dine, without mentioning the fact to her aunt.

When that worthy lady was horrified by the unexpected arrival of so illustrious a guest, Anna flew in and laughingly informed them both that it was only an "April fool."—Youth's Companion.

A Strange Hairpin.

"This," said the gay bachelor, leading his visitors through the flat, "is my famous collection of hairpins."

The hairpins, 100 or more, filled a Louis Quinze cabinet. Some were of shell, some of silver, some even of gold.

"This is the strangest," said the bachelor, "this hollow glass one. See, there is a fluid in it, a perfume. And here is a tiny hole, so that, when the pin lies obliquely in the hair, the perfume is emitted slowly in delicate drops.

"It is a Japanese hairpin," he concluded. "A geisha in a Yokohama tea house gave it to me. I can still see her as she sat on her cushion, playing the samisen, while very slowly, in drops resembling tears, the perfume fell on her amber-colored cheek."

Advantage of the Blind.

A correspondent, writing on the illiteracy of the native classes, points out a strange anomaly. In devising the "Oriental Braille" alphabet for the use of the Indian blind it was found that the 63 combinations of the six Braille dots will serve to give the blind one code for the whole of the languages and dialects. With this code the Indian blind are being taught, and no difficulty has arisen in any vernacular. The ordinary native blessed with sight is more unfortunate. The complicated nature of the native syllabaries is such that it requires from 500 to 1,000 sorts of type to print a book even in simple language. Originally the letters of Asoka were simple in form, but the modern varieties of Asoka's letters have become elaborate and complicated.—Allahabad Pioneer.

Had to Find His Man.

"Mark Twain," said a magazine editor, "liked to tell, as an illustration of persistance and push, a story about a Sheepshead bay race. He said that at the end of an important race a young man shouted so savagely, 'Hats off! hats off, there!' that every one in hearing distance obeyed him and stood bareheaded. A moment later the young man hastened towards an elderly gentleman, shouting as he ran, 'You can put on your hat again now. It's all right.' Some one asked him later why he had made all the people take their hats off. 'Well,' he replied. I'd bet fifty with a bald-headed man, and I had to find him, hadn't I?'"

Lord Loveland Discovers America

"I'll have to throw a few sops to Cerberus if I want new clothes to impress the American girls," laughed Val. "That brute Deedes won't give me so much as a waistcoat unless he gets something on account."

"Pay him something," said Lady Loveland. "Pay what you must. Keep what you can for yourself. As for me, I want nothing."

"Except a rich daughter-in-law," finished her son, his spirits rising, though the snow still fell. After all, it was only October, and there was sunshine elsewhere. In America perhaps it was now shining on his bride to be. "I'll write to Betty about the letters," he said, "after you've given me some tea."

CHAPTER II.

THE INESTIMABLE FOXHAM.

ONE of Loveland's most easily detected virtues was his careless habit of telling the truth. He had never lied or even fibbed whitely as a small boy. But [illegible]keley had always maintained that his bold truthfulness of her [illegible] was the result of inconsiderateness rather than nobility of soul.

She said (and she ought to have known, as she had been acquainted with him since she was two and he eight years old) that he did not bother to think of polite fibs simply because the feelings of others were not for him of enough importance to seem worth saving at the cost of mental effort. Besides, according to Betty, Val took an impish delight in shocking people. Now, in his letter to Betty asking for introductions he made no attempt to cover his real intentions with the roses of pretty fiction.

He let it appear plainly that he thought his cousin, having visited America and snatched a millionaire from the matrimonial grab bag, ought gladly to help him succeed in the same game.

"The wretch!" said Betty in the midst of reading Loveland's brutally frank letter to Jim, her American trophy. "I believe he has the impudence to think I married you for money! I'd like to shake him and box his silly, conceited ears!"

"They may be silly and conceited, but they're exactly the shape of yours, darling. So I couldn't find it in my heart to box them, no matter how much good it might do their owner," said Jim Harborough, who had been Betty's husband for nearly a year and was joyously watching her triumphs as a young married woman.

Naturally Betty kissed him for this speech, as they were at breakfast alone together, the servants banished.

"Well, anyway we won't give him the letters," she said when she had gone back to her own place, not far away.

"Won't we?" asked Jim, with a thoughtful air.

"No, certainly not," returned Betty. "I like your countrywomen and won't deliberately let Loveland loose to prey upon them."

"I 'guess' they can take care of themselves," said Jim, putting on his Yankiest accent.

"I don't know. Some of them might fall in love with him," suggested Betty doubtfully. "He's awfully good looking, with a kind of winning, boyish way and a voice that's far too nice to express him, really. One often feels too lenient with Val, as if he were one of one's own pet weaknesses come alive and walking about."

"As for his looks, he's more like you than your own brother is," said Jim—"eyes, dimples, curly hair and all. So you wouldn't want me to hate him, would you? And, as for his voice, it's occurred to me that maybe it expresses something in his real self—the hidden self that he and nobody else knows anything about—the self he's never had a chance to develop or find out because his mother and other people have spoiled him from his babyhood."

"That's very subtle of you, Jim, as well as very kind and like you," said Betty. "I wish I could think it's true, as he's my cousin. But, thank goodness, I for one never spoiled him. I scratched his face once when I was a small girl, and I'm glad. I wish it had left a mark."

"It would have been even a more honorable scar than the one South Africa gave him. But I admit he is rather an unlicked cub at present. I pity the girl who falls in love with him as he now is."

"Always was and probably ever will be, Loveland without end," finished Betty flippantly. "The cheek of him—expecting me to ask you for letters so that he can go over to your country and do his best to make some nice American girl miserable for life and spend all her money. I shall punish him, since I can't do anything worse, by telling him exactly what I think of him."

"There are other ways of punishing him more fitting to the crime perhaps," remarked Jim thoughtfully.

"What ways?"

"Giving him the letters."

"Jim!"

"And then—and then—well, a lot depends upon whether he's a born egoist or merely a made one. I haven't quite worked out the idea yet. It's simmering. It'll soon begin to boil."

Whether Jim Harborough's idea had already boiled or not, at all events that same afternoon a fat envelope went out by post, registered and addressed to the Marquis of Loveland, Cragside Lodge, Dorloch, N. B. In it there were at least ten letters of introduction, all to names the bare mention of which had powers to raise the circulation of society papers in America or create a flutter in Wall street.

Times were bad, said Battenborough, the polite and popular pawnbroker; therefore Lady Loveland got only £600 on the pink pearls. Two hundred were sprinkled about among Val's creditors like pepper out of a pot where such seasoning was necessary. A hundred more were spent outright, with heartburnings, upon obstinate tailors, hatters and hosiers, who would not fail, hat or hose, except upon installments of ready money. Fifty pounds were apologetically retained by Lady Loveland, who grudged every penny to herself and especially to her servants. Another fifty a little more than paid for a cabin almost worthy of his lordship on the big ship Baltic. Fifty and some vague dust of gold and silver went into Val's pocket for current expenses and the remaining hundred and fifty condensed into the form of a letter of credit.

Of course there ought to have been more, much more. But there would have been less had not Loveland's man, Foxham, given notice at the last moment. Foxham's grandfather had died (even valets have grandfathers) leaving a tidy sum, and as there were peculiarities in the will Foxham would lose his chance of inheriting if he left England.

Loveland privately thought it almost equivalent to lese majesty that his man should desert him for such a selfish trifle as private interest. But he would have scorned to retain a servant who wished to leave him. Besides, there were advantages in losing even such a treasure as Foxham before the two passages were taken.

"I dare say I can get some fellow over there if everything goes well," said he. "Meanwhile I shall save money on old Fox. He hasn't opened his mouth about wages—jolly impudent if he had, because, of course, he knows I'll pay up when it's convenient. And, anyhow, a hundred and fifty in the letter of credit is the least I can rub along with on the other side. I must 'look sharp,' as Harborough says, and pick up the right girl so as to get everything in shape as soon as possible or I may find myself in a mess. I learned to shift for myself like a regular navvy in South Africa. A chap has to keep clean and have the right folds in his trousers, whatever happens, and I worried along somehow without disgracing the family. I can do the same now, though it'll be a bore, especially till I get used to it again."

Thus the pink pearl money was apportioned, a little here and a little there, and made to go as far as possible.

Foxham stopped with his lordship till after the return to London, doing the final packing and all his ordinary work as usual, without a greedy word as to arrears of wages.

On getting back to his quarters near Wellington barracks Val was somewhat surprised to receive a visit from Harborough, who had never come to call on him before.

"So you've got your leave, I hear, and are sailing for my blessed country in a few days!" Jim remarked.

Loveland replied that this was the case and happened to think of thanking Jim for his letters of introduction.

Harborough answered casually that that was all right and went on to say that he had read in a paper or heard from a man that Loveland had taken his passage on the Baltic.

"Yes," said Val; "I wanted to go over on a good ship."

"Well, the Baltic's a ripping one—couldn't be a better," Jim admitted. "But I should have thought you'd have the curiosity to try the newest thing."

"The Mauretania?" said Loveland. "Don't suppose I could have got a passage on her for the next three or four trips across."

"Perhaps you couldn't," said Jim. "But I can get you one."

"Why, she sails tomorrow, doesn't she?" asked Val.

"Yes," said Jim, "but you can go on her if you like, with a good cabin, too, all to yourself."

"My passage is paid for on the Baltic, and my name's on her passenger list," said Loveland.

"Well, it's too late to have your name printed on the Mauretania's passenger list or perhaps to get back your money for the Baltic," said Jim, "but that needn't stand in your way. You won't have to pay for your cabin on the Mauretania. It's going begging. A friend of mine who can't sail has given his ticket to me to do with as I like, but as he's a man whose movements make things in Wall street jump up and down like a seesaw he doesn't want it known that he's got to stay behind because he's seedy; that's all. If you want to go in his place, go and say nothing till you get on the other side. By that time he'll be on his way on a following ship. At least that's what he hopes."

"Do you mean that if I want to cross in the Mauretania I must pass under your friend's name?" asked Loveland.

"Oh, no, nothing of the sort," answered Jim Harborough, smiling his pleasant smile. "What I meant was don't go advertising the fact that you've got Henry Vanderpot's cabin because he's not well enough to sail. All you'll have to do is to swagger about as if you'd meant to be a passenger on the Mauretania from the beginning of things."

Loveland was prepared to do any amount of swaggering, though he did not say so to Jim or indeed acknowledge it to himself. He replied that if this were the only condition he would accept the ticket and instruct Foxham (as he would not have time himself) to try to sell the passage which he had paid for on the Baltic.

"Fox'll have several days to do it in, and I'll tell him if he brings it off there's 10 per cent for himself," said Val. "Meanwhile I'll be enjoying myself on the Mauretania."

"Meanwhile you'll be enjoying yourself on the Mauretania," echoed Jim.

"I suppose there are sure to be a lot of millionaires on board?" suggested Val.

"Sure to be, even at this time of year."

"With pretty daughters?" Loveland's tone and air in making this addition were so conceited that Jim would have wanted to kick him if he had not looked so ridiculously like Jim's own adored and beautiful Betty. Besides, the scar showed white on the brown. This had been a brave boy. Jim was inclined to believe that he was worth reforming.

"With pretty daughters," Harborough repeated, his tone quiet, though his eyes showed a danger signal. "However, be prudent. Don't make up your mind too soon. The best fish aren't always caught in the deep sea. One waits to have a look round the markets."

Loveland grinned. "Thank you for the tip. I won't forget."

"You'll hardly have time to let people know your change of plan," said Jim. "But of course if you don't mind a little expense you can Marconi to Lady Loveland from the ship."

"Of course," assented Lady Loveland's son, who would not have thought of the attention had it not been suggested to him. "But it will hardly be necessary."

"Perhaps not," said Jim.

Loveland's only experience of sea life, except for a little yachting, had been in going out to and returning from South Africa, but he had learned to take care of himself on shipboard, and, though his name was not on the passenger list of the Mauretania, his deck chair was soon placed by an attentive steward in a sheltered corner nearly amidships. This advantage was secured by a tempting tip, a tip out of all proportion to the giver's resources; but, then, there were many people on the Mauretania who came on board more like clients returning to a hotel where they had been known by the management for years than passengers traveling on a new ship, and Loveland did not intend to be defeated in an unequal competition.

When the deck steward politely asked if he wished to use a visiting card as a chair marker Val told him to write the name of Loveland on a slip of paper or a luggage label; anything would do. So the steward did as he was bidden, ignorant that he served a "lord."

Loveland did not feel that he needed cheap advertisement. It would soon leak out that he was a personage, and, sure enough, it did. When he had discreetly explained to the purser his possession of Mr. Vanderpot's cabin the news of the change went round from steward to steward and was promptly "spotted" as a titbit by the greatest gossip on the ship, who happened to inhabit the stateroom opposite.

Major Cadwallader Hunter (a retired major, of course; he would not have had time to develop his qualities while on the active list) was told that he had Loveland for a neighbor and looked at the cabin door with kindling interest. Hunter was an American of a type laughed at by the best of his own countrymen. He knew his Burke and Debrett better than many an Englishman even of that middle class which can afford to be ignorant of no detail concerning the aristocracy. He was aware that there existed a Marquis of Loveland who was young and unmarried; he knew all about his family connections, and he wondered how such an important gentleman had strayed on board the Mauretania unheralded. "I suppose this fellow must be the Loveland, of course," he said to himself. "But why not be published frankly on the passenger list? Can there be a secret?"

FOR CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

Fifty-Six Members Entered For Annual Tourament at the P. C. C. Course.

FINALS TO BE PLAYED OCT. 22.

Prizes for Winner, Runner-up, Best Score Qualifying Round and Others—The First Round on October 1.

The annual play for the golf championship of the Plainfield Country Club which began on Saturday with the qualifying round, attracted the largest entry list in the history of the club, there being fifty-six players entered for the big event. Of this number Roger F. Murray and John R. Greason withdrew; W. G. Cooke, H. J. Cochran and H. S. Rogers returned no cards and two players were disqualified.

Owing to the large entry list a third sixteen was provided for and a prize will be secured for the winner. In the first sixteen four players were tied for last place, namely, A. M. Collens, Clifton Wharton, Jr., W. H. Rogers and W. T. Kaufman, with a score of 89. Those tied in the first sixteen will play off later. H. R. Stockton won the lowest gross score prize with a 77.

The play for the championship continued throughout the entire day and the course was crowded with contestants for honors. Prizes are offered for the winner, the runner-up, best score in qualifying round, winner of the defeated eight and winner of the second sixteen as well as winner of third sixteen. The play began with a qualifying round for the championship, the second and third sixteens to compete for special prizes. There will be a consolation prize for the beaten eight of the first sixteen. All match play rounds will be played at 18 holes, the championship and beaten eight at scratch and the second and third sixteens on a handicap basis, as follows:

October 1, the first round for the championship and second and third sixteens; October 8, the second round for the championship, second round for the second and third sixteens and first round for beaten eight in first sixteen; October 15, all semi-finals; October 22, all finals.

Those who qualified on Saturday were as follows:

H. R. Stockton, 77; W. Lester Glenney, 79; R. S. Rowland, 79; F. C. Talmadge, 80; J. Whitney Baker, 80; Dudley H. Barrows, 80; William T. Glenney 81; Morris J. Dumont, 81; Henry D. Hibbard, 82; J. E. Erickson, 83; Arthur Murphy 85; C. B. Morgan, 85; R. G Morse, 85; Willard Wadsworth, 87; S. D. Lounsbery, 88; A. M. Collens, 89; Clifton Wharton, Jr. 89; W. H. Rogers, 89; W. T. Kaufman, 89; S. H. Patterson, 90; O. W. Gott, 91; E. J. Patterson, 91; E. T. Willson, 91; E. B. Shoemaker 93; H. F. Fox, 93; S. P. Wood 94; C. W. King, 94; L. G. Carman, 95; E. P. Goodwin, 96; L. R. Hopton, 96; R. S. Cox, 96; L. H. VanBuren, 99; C. M. Church, 99; G. S. Clay, 100; Howard Huntington, 101; J. A. Lane, 101; G. F. Earl, 102; W. A. Bours, 102; G. M. Holstein, 102; C. C. Riggs, 103; B. F. Kraffert, 103; Henry L. Hall, 104; A. W. Kleinecke, 104; L. H. Gates, 104; P. H. Stewart, 105; Harold Serrell, 111; D. G. Weems, 111.

First sixteen—W. Lester Glenney plays winner of tie; C. B. Morgan vs. H. D. Hibbard; Dudley H. Barrows vs. J. Whitney Baker; Arthur Murphy vs. R. G. Morse; H. R. Stockton vs. R. S. Rowland; W. T. Glenney vs. Willard Wadsworth; S. D. Lounsbery vs. M. J. Dumont; J. E. Erickson vs. F. C. Talmadge.

Second sixteen—C. C. Burke vs. loser No. 2 of tie; E. H. Patterson vs. E. B. Shoemaker; E. T. Willson vs. loser No. 1 of tie of first sixteen; L. R. Hopton vs. L. G. Carman; C. W. King vs. loser No. 3 of first sixteen; H. F. Fox vs. S. P. Wood; R. S. Cox vs. E. P. Goodwin; O. W. Gott vs. S. H. Patterson.

Third sixteen—P. H. Stewart vs. D. G. Weems; Howard Huntington vs. G. F. Earl; Harold Serrell vs. L. H. VanBuren; George S. Clay vs. C. M. Church; A. W. Kleinecke vs. B. F. Kraffert; H. L. Hall vs. L. H. Gates; W. A. Bours vs. J. A. Lane; G. M. Holstein vs. C. C. Riggs.

In addition to the championship event, there was a golf ball sweepstakes, 18 holes, handicap, medal play. C. B. Morgan was the winner with a score of 77, 7-70.

There were several amusing incidents throughout the day's play. One player was penalized two strokes for picking up his ball when within two inches of the cup. His attention was called to the infraction of the rules and he replaced the ball and played the hole as he should. Another player was disqualified for allowing his partner to put his ball at one of the holes, while another player was counted out without his knowledge. He gave his partner his card to attest with the understanding that he would turn in the score. He failed to do so and the player did not know the fact until told so by a member of the committee.

'BOBBY' LEECH SHOOTS THE RAPIDS OF NIAGARA

Bobby Leech, of Niagara Falls Ontario and formerly of this city, went throught the thundering Whirlpool Rapids in a steel barrel Saturday afternoon, having started from the Maid of the Mist landing on the New York shore. He drifted about in the Whirlpool fifty-five minutes before friends caught his barrel and pulled it ashore.

The day was wet and dreary. The banks and bridges were noticeably barren of interesting onlookers, and there was nothing but Leech's determination to coax him on to death or seeming fame. It was 3.57 o'clock when he drifted into the suction of the rapids. The current sweep him fiercely on over the route five times travelled by Graham in a similar manner; once by Margaret Wagenfuhrer on Sept. 6, 1901, and by pretty Maud Willard on Sept. 7, 1901, when she went to death in a barrel drifted about in the pool for five hours.

Three minutes after passing under the railroad bridges the barrel in which Leech was a passenger was adrift on the whirling waters of the pool. He was carried over to the Canadian side and then caught in the up-current and swept toward Driftwood point. At one time he was within a few feet of the Canadian shore, but nobody was there to rescue him, his friends not having had time to reach the spot. Leech did not know where he was, for he had no pepp-holes in the barrel. He was carried out into the middle of the pool and then round again.

When next he approached Driftwood point the barrel was caught by William Hill, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, with a spike pole and towed to shore. Leech was helped out in pretty good condtion.

He says he will make another trip next Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. If possible he will go to Lewiston and thus equal some of the trips of the late Carlisle D. Graham, who was first to navigate the Rapids in a barrel.

PERSONAL.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Everyone familiar with the present and last season's record of musical comedy, knows that "The Arcadians" scored one of the biggest hits of years, running all last season at the Liberty Theatre, and continuing its run at the New York theatre at the opening of the present season. Its producer is Charles Frohman, who has given us some fairly perfect musical productions in the past, and promises in "The Arcadians" the best he has ever done. The newest of musical comedies will be seen in this city at The Plainfield theatre on Monday evening, October 3, and comes direct from the New York Theatre, where it ends its engagement on October 1. The company consists of over one hundred people, headed by the same great cast of principals and with the beautifully and lavishly gowned chorus, and with the most spectacular scenic settings, should not fail to please the most critical of audiences.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold an all-day sewing meeting tomorrow at the church with a basket luncheon at noon.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, will hold its first fall meeting Friday afternoon at the church. Miss Helen Armstrong will have charge of the devotional services, the topic being "My Duty Toward the Holy Spirit." Mrs. Clifford Manning will present a paper on "Africa, the Country."

Proctor's New Show.

Roland Seargent & Co., will present a comedy sketch, "A Quiet Life," at Proctor's theatre, today, and a feature will be "Hathaway's Indian Tableaux," a tale of love and jealousy among the Indians. Brooks & Jeannette, comedians and Commodore Tom, one of the smallest educated ponies in the world will complete the new bill, with the latest life motion pictures.

Opens a Studio Here.

Signor Nino Fernando Tetamo, of 19 Somerset street, announces in The Daily Press today, that he has opened a studio at the above address for instruction in piano, vocal, opera and concert repertoir. Signor Tetamo has had a wide experience in teaching music and has been very successful.

WATCHUNG HUNT'S TEAM DEFEATS COUNTRY CLUB

The Watchung Hunt Club and Plainfield Country Club ball teams demonstrated their ability to put up a fine article of baseball at the Hunt Club grounds Saturday afternoon, the former finally winning by a score of 5 to 2. The contest was witnessed by an unusually large number of people, many enthusiasts making the trip to the grounds in autos and carriages. It was the opinion that the game would be a farce, but they were agreeably disappointed, for instead, the contest narrowed down to a real live diamond battle, in which the Hunt Club members proved their superiority.

Harry Butler and Morris J. Dumont were in the points for the winning nine, while William Rushmore and Henry L. DeForest officiated for the Country Club aggregation. The latter nine was short a man, and the home club courteously loaned them a player, it being agreed that the last man at the bat in each inning should cover right-field for the visitors.

Rushmore fanned ten of the opposing batsmen, while Butler returned the compliment by striking out six men. Morris J. Dumont distinguished himself by making four of the eight hits for his team, while Arthur L. Otterson was credited with two bingles. The Country Club only got five hits off Butler, and they were well scattered. The Hunt Club scored its runs in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings, while the visitors tallied its two runs in the third inning.

After the contest, the defeated team entertained the victors at dinner, and the Eureka Trio, of New York, kept everyone in good humor by a popular program of songs and instrumental music.

The lineup and score by innings follows:

Watchung Hunt Club—Gilbert Fletcher, 2b; W. Brown, ss; D. Bulkley, 3b; M. J. Dumont, c; A. L. Otterson, lf; Hartley Mellick, 1b; Butler, p; W. B. Tyler, cf; George Ring, rf.

Plainfield Country Club—Arthur Lovell 3b; W. T. Glenney, ss; H. L. DeForest, c; Ames Brooks, cf; J. R. Greason, lf; Clinton Ivins, 1b; Harry Eaton, 2b; William Rushmore.

COLONIA COUNTRY CLUB DEFEATED BY PARK G. C.

Owing to the fact that the Park Golf Club team played a return match with the Colonia Country Club at the latter place, Saturday, there was little doing at the local course. The Parks regained lost honors of a week ago, when they were defeated, by taking Saturday's game by a score of 10 to 9. The match was close and exciting throughout. A feature was the fact that Dr. H. K. Carroll, of the Park Golf Club, defeated his opponent, C. H. Hart, captain and champion of the Colonia Country Club, by 6 up and 5 to play. Captain Hart has been defeating the best players this season and his defeat on Saturday was the worst one for him in a long time. C. B. Morse, captain of the Parks, was unable to play, owing to an indisposition. The summary:

Park Golf Club—Dr. H. K. Carroll, 3; W. V. Byard, 0; J. V. Beekman, 0; A. E. Smith, 3; Dr. Runquist, 3; W. E. Lough, 0; A. E. Morrell, 1; total, 10.

Colonia Country Club—C. H. Hart, 0; McCormick, 3; Ward, 3; Corbin, 0; Morris, 0; Peterson, 3; Bowers, 0; total, 9.

The deciding game will be played within a short time the date and place to be announced in a few days.

POLITICAL TALK.

Under the auspices of the Plainfield Democratic Club a meeting will be held at its headquarters, 102 North avenue, tonight. Among the speakers will be William E. P. H. S. Notes.

The teachers of the Plainfield High School, headed by Lindsey Best, had an enjoyable picnic on the mountain on Monday. They went to the grounds of the baby camp, where they ate supper by the light of their camp fires.

—The peach season is drawing to a close, still Neuman Bros. have some fancy stock; also quinces, apples, pears, tomatoes and a fine variety of fruit.

WILSON CLUB ORGANIZED

SAUNDERS IS MADE PRESIDENT.

Townsend, Osgood, Van Deventer and Harrington Vice-Presidents—To Work Only for Woodrow Wilson.

A number of citizens of the borough of North Plainfield got together last night in the parlors of the Hotel Chatham and formed what will be known during the present political campaign, as the Woodrow Wilson Club, with some of the most prominent citizens of the borough at its head. The club is pledged to work for the election of Dr. Wilson and while there are several well known Republicans in the list of club members they in no wise promise to support the rest of the Democratic ticket. Their connection with the club being merely in the interests of the gubernatorial candidate of the Democrats.

These officers were unanimously elected: President, Former Mayor William L. Saunders; first vice-president, former Mayor Samuel Townsend; second vice-president, J. O. Osgood, president of the Board of Health; third vice-president, Augustus VanDeventer; fourth vice-president, Timothy F. Harrington; secretary, David J. Carney. The executive committe consists of A. E. Kenney, A. A. Cannon, H. P. Vosseller, Thos. F. Gough and John E. O'Mara.

As soon as the organization was perfected the meeting was adjourned to allow a large delegation to go over and confer with the Plainfield Democratic club with the object of helpng out in securing a proper auditorium for the mass meeting to be held on Thursday night at which Dr. Wilson will speak on the issues of the campaign. It is believed that Reform Hall is altogether too small to accommodate the crowds which will want to attend this meeting and pressure is to be brought on the managers of the two local theatres to secure one of them. A committee was appointed for this special object and they are at work on the task.

When seen this morning one of the committee declared that the Plainfield theatre would probably be the scene of the meeting.

MISS JENNIE GRAY DEAD IN HER SEVENTEENTH YEAR.

Miss Jennie Gray, daughter of Mrs. Annie Gray, died this morning at 4:30 o'clock at her home, 916 West Fifth street, after a few months' illness. She was in the seventeenth year of her age and had lived in Plainfield nearly all her life. Miss Gray was graduated from the Stillman school last June and expected to enter the high school this fall, when illness prevented. She was a member of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church and the Epworth League.

Miss Gray had a large circle of friends who admired her for her many excellent qualities, and her death is a distinct loss. Besides a mother, Miss Gray is survied by a sister, Miss Gertrude Gray, and two brothers, James Dodd and John Gray. The funeral will be held from the late residence, Thursday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will officiate, and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

ALEXANDER LUSARDI SELLS OUT TO PHILLIP KIVATINOS.

Alexander Lusardi, one of the pioneer fruit dealers of the city, having been engaged in the business on West Front street for twenty-three years, sold out yesterday to Phillip Kivatinos, of Philadelphia, and the latter has taken possession. Mr. Lusardi has decided to take a long trip covering a period of about a year, which will include a visit to his native home in Italy. He will be accompanied by his children. He will leave Plainfield during the early part of the winter.

When Mr. Lusardi came to Painfield he located on West Front street where his store is now situated, and has been very successful in business. During his long residence in this city Mr. Lusardi has made a host of friends. He has always taken an active interest in city affairs and has held the high esteem of his fellow merchants.

Borough Makes $10.

A man giving the name of Joseph Brown which the police say is fictitious, was arrested in the borough Saturday night for disorderly conduct. He gave $10 bail for appearance in court last night, but when his case was called he failed to appear. Recorder Dolliver declared the bail forfeited.

JERSEY CENTRAL REPORT

Annual Earnings, $27,436,800 Twice as Big as the Previous Year.

IT IS EQUAL TO 33.18 PER CENT.

Revenues Increased and $1,203,000 Paid Off on Funded Debt—Many Great Improvements Made.

The pamphlet report of the Central Railroad of New Jersey for the fiscal year ended June 30 was published yesterday, showing a big increase in net earnings over last year and a balance available for dividends on the $27,436,800 capital stock more than twice as large as at the close of the fiscal period of 1909. The balance is equal to 33.18 per cent. on the capital stock, contrasted with 16.54 per cent. in 1909 and 17.57 per cent. in 1908.

The report states also that the funded debt was reduced during the year by $1,203,000 to $50,268,000 through the retirement of five series of short-term equipment bonds.

Of the total operating expenses more than half was paid direct to labor, and the increase of expenses due to advances in wages was set at 4.14 per cent. Considerable improvement work was put under way during the year; notably new express and station facilities at Jersey City at $300,000; a covered lighterage pier in Jersey City, $426,100, and track elevation near Cranford, $115,448.

The statement has total revenues stated at $25,041,624, and increase of $2,039,278; total operating expenses, $15,151,768, an increase of $1,056,942, with net revenue of $10,489,856 increase $982,336. A large share of the total balance was derived from profit of sales of stock of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company and two dividends on the stock of the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company.

WORLD WIDE TRAVELER GUEST OF PLAINFIELDER

Miss Emma Smith, of Adelaide, South Australia is the guest of Mrs. Maria Praed, of Grant avenue, for several days. Miss Smith was connected with the educational department of Adelaide for over twenty-five years and in December, 1908, she gave up her position to travel. Miss Smith has traveled in every part of Australia, New South Wales and New Zealand, until June 17, 1909, when she embarked for England. Arriving there, she was welcomed by relatives and friends and extensively entertained. She visited all the principal cities of England, Scotland and Ireland, and then she sailed from Liverpool for Boston Mass., when, after a stay of several weeks, she came to New York.

The great buildings, the subways, tunels and many other centres of attraction interested Miss Smith. Referring to traffic regulations in London and New York, Miss Smith said that the enforcement of them in New York is far more efficient, and besides, she complimented the New York policeman on his soldierly bearing.

Since coming to Plainfield, Miss Smith has been charmed with the city. Referring to the suffragette question, Miss Smith said that nothing of that sort disturbs the public mind in Australia, for there women vote on every question brought before the commonwealth. Miss Smith has voted for a number of years. In Australia the women take an equal interest in the elections with the men, and they all exercise the right of suffrage.

After a stay of a month or so in the United States, Miss Smith will leave for London; from which place she will tour France, Germany, Spain and Italy, and then return home, after an absence of two and a half years.

Rector and Bride Coming Home.

Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and his bride, who have ben abroad for several weeks, left for home on September 21, and are due to arrive this week. They will not return to Plainfield until October 1, and after they are settled in their home a reception will be given them by the parishioners of Grace church.

Milk Thieves Active.

Residents of East Fifth and Sixth streets have reported to the police that someone is stealing milk from their porches during the early morning hours. The police will investigate the matter and hope to stop the practice.

REV. C. D. BURROWS MAY COME TO ST. STEPHEN'S

Rev. Charles D. Burrows, curate of Trinity church, Jamestown, R. I., it is rumored, will be the successor to Rev. Morgan Ashley, as rector of St. Stephen's church. It is understood that a call has been extended to Mr. Burrows and that he has signified his willingness to accept. A meeting of the vestry will be held within a few days to decide the matter.

Mr. Ashley, who has resigned to become curate of All Angels' church, New York city, of which Rev. Morgan Townsend is the rector, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday, and will soon take up his residence in New York.

COUNTY BOARD ORDERED TO MAKE TWO RECOUNTS

The Union County Board of Elections at a meeting held at the Court house, Elizabeth, this morring, received a notice from Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen that he had ordered a recount of the councilmanic vote in the Third ward of Elizabeth and also a recount for councilman in Westfield. According to his orders, the first recount is to be begun Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and the second at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. As it is likely that a recount of the Elizabeth contest will occupy the entire day, it is probable that the board will continue in session until late that night. The application for the Elizabeth recount was made by John Hecht, a Democratic candidate for council.

Purely routine business was transacted at the Election Board's meeting this morning.

WALTER J. TRAVIS TO PLAY AT P. C. C.

Walter J. Travis will play at the Plainfield Country Club all day tomorrow, and the members are much pleased at the prospect of seeing the well known amateur and a world's champion play over their course. Mr. Travis was unable to play in the tournament at Plainfield two years ago, when Findlay S. Douglas tied with Frank Reinhart for the principal prize at score play with a fine 71.

Mr. Travis will play both morning and afternoon, and as his play is probably at least three strokes better than it was in 1904, when he won the British championship from as good a field as ever entered, Plainfield people may reasonably expect to see some very fine play. The morning round will begin at 10:15 and the afternoon round at 2 o'clock. All residents of Plainfield and anyone interested in golf have been invited to follow the play.

Mr. Travis, besides winning the British championship, has won the American national event three times, oftener than any other player. He has won the Metropolitan championship three times, and over a hundred club open tournaments in the last ten years. He holds more records for club courses than any other amateur in this country or anywhere else, and at the age of forty-eight is still the more frequent winner of golf tournaments in this country. Mr. Travis will be the guest of Leighton Calkins, the president of the club.

Killed by B. & O. "Flyer."

Anthony J. Galleth, of Roselle, employed in New York as a cloth cutter, was killed at the Roselle station of the New Jersey Central at 6:15 o'clock this morning, while trying to cross from the west to the eastbound tracks to catch his train for New York. He mistook an approaching B. & O. "flyer" for a local, and before he could clear the tracks was struck, his body being cut in half. Mr. Gallath was a member of the Aldene M. E. church. He leaves a wife.

Fined For Drunkenness.

Albert Sanderson, colored, was fined five dollars this morning for being helplessly drunk on West Front street, yesterday afternoon. He was arrested by Patrolman McGinley.

Received Their 1911 Chalmers.

Mr. F. V. L. Jones, of Evergreen avenue, and Mr. E. G. Ely, of Cranford, have just received their 1911 Chalmers cars, purchased from Thompson Auto Co. •••

The hours for Sunday services at Warren chapel for the winter are: 10:30 a. m., preaching; 2:45, Sunday-school; 8 p. m., preaching.

FOR APPOINTIVE BOARD

Voters May Decide Whether They Desire to Take Advantage of Law.

COMPOSED OF NINE MEMBERS.

Petition Signed by Five Per Cent. of the Voters a Requisite to the Submission of the Question.

It is not improbable that the voters will be asked at the coming election to decide whether they desire to substitute an appointive board of nine members for an elective board of six members to have charge of their public educational matters. Some prominent citizens who desire the Board of Education to be entirely removed from politics, it is said on good authority, have been in conference with Mayor Fisk during the last few days urging him to renew the recommendation along this line made in his last annual message.

With this end in view they want the mayor to actively advocate such a change to be made with the consent of the people at the next election. Report has it that the Mayor is favorably inclined believing that were such an innovation brought about no executive of the city would appoint any but the most competant men for place on the board.

The school law provides that such a change may be ordered by the voters at a general or municipal election provided it is ordered by a resolution of either the Common Council or the Board of Education, or on petition of five per cent. of the voters. As the petition is the most popular method, one has been prepared and is now at The Daily Press office where any voters desiring the submission of the question at the general election may sign it.

Should the proposition be carried at the election, it is the duty of the mayor to appoint nine men to compose the board, three for one year, three for two years and three for three years.

ANTONNOZZI GOES TO ELIZABETH FOR TRIAL

At 5 o'clock last night the formal complaint of the State against Battista Antonnozzi was made by Assistant Prosecutor Walter Hetfield, Jr., before Judge William N. Runyon in the city court. Prosecutor Swift, of Elizabeth, worked with Mr. Hetfield all day examining witnesses, but up to the time the prisoner was sent to the county jail they had been unable to establish a motive for the crime.

Fernando Ferravante, the only eye witness of the murder of Francisco Laghi, on Watchung avenue, Sunday night, was held in $5,000 bail and was taken to Elizabeth in default of the bonds. Another witness, Angelo Torrando, fifteen years old, who witnessed one of the quarrels which it is alleged led up to the crime, is held in the local jail pending an attempt to secure $1,000 bail bonds.

Antonnozzi was taken to Elizabeth at 6 o'clock last night by Detective Sergeant John Flynn and Sergeant Herbert Overbaugh. When arraigned before Judge Runyon the prisoner made a determined fight for what he believed his rights, but after a prolonged argument he was convinced that he had to go to Elizabeth any way, so he became quiet.

The interests of Ferravante, the principal witness, are being looked after by Counsellor William G. DeMeza, who will make an effort before Judge Atwater in Elizabeth to have the bail reduced in his client's case.

The boy, Angelo Torrando, who was held in $1,000 bail as a material witness in the murder of Francisco Laghi, was released this morning on bonds furnished by Donati Guerino, of this city.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIES AT NEW ORLEANS.

S. A. Sabbacher, of Rahway road, received word by telegram last night of the death of his nephew, Edward Hayman, at New Orleans. Mr. Hayman lived here until a year ago and had a wide local acquaintance. He was twenty-four years old and previous to entering the employ of his uncle was a student at the Plainfield High School.

The telegram gave no particulars of the death and Mr. Sabbacher wired for them. It is possible that the body may be brought to this city for burial.

CORNER-STONE FROM ERIN

Granite Block for St. Joseph's New Edifice Gift of Mother of Priest.

TO BE BLESSED IN NOVEMBER.

Stone Comes From the Scene of St. Patrick's Labors in Ireland—To Be Dressed at Local Quarry.

The corner-stone for the new St. Joseph's church to be erected in the borough, arrived yesterday on the Steamer Baltic, of the White Star Line, havnig come from County Armagh, Ireland, where it was purchased by relatives of Rev. W. H. Miller, of St. Joseph's church. The stone is the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, of South Amboy mother of Father Miller.

Considerable interest attaches to the stone by reason of the fact that it comes from the seat of St. Patrick's sea in Ireland, where he preached and carried on his mission work. It is of gray granite and said to be a particularly fine specimen. Cardinal Logue, who is now in this country, having come from the same section where the stone was selected, will officiate at the blessng of a similar stone for St. Patrick's church, Philadelphia, in a few days.

The stone for St. Joseph's church will reach Plainfield in a few days and will be sent to Bartle's quarry, where it will be trimmed and put in proper shape, according to the plans of Joseph Jackson, of New York, the architect for the new edifice. The time for blessing the new stone will probably be in November about Thanksgiving Day, when imposing ceremonies will be held.

"WHEN WE WERE 21" IS ENJOYED BY LARGE AUDIENCE

The presentation of Henry V. Esmond's charming comedy, "When We Were Twenty-One," at The Plainfield theatre, last night, by the Plainfield permanent stock company, was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. The production was marked by the first appearance of Miss Ilka Diehl, the new leading woman, and she interpreted the role of "Phylls," in a delightful manner. She has a pleasing way and seemed to win great favor with her audience, judging by the frequent applause. She shared with Miss Eleanor Woodruff, as the "Firefly" in the honors of the evening. The latter was especially good in a difficult part.

Harold Mead, as "Richard Carewe;" Farrel McKnight, as "The Imp;" J. P. Dougherty, as "David Hirsch;" M. F. Ryan as "Terrence McGrath;" H. V. Sams, as "Col. Miles Grahame," and Warren F. Hill as "Sir Horace Plumely Bart," combined to give a smooth performance, acting their several parts in clever fashion. Mis Gloria Gallup and John A. Robb had small parts, but they did well.

SERIES OF ENTERTAINMENTS PLANNED BY TEMPLE BAPTISTS.

The trustees of the Temple Baptist church have decided to hold a series of lectures and entertainments during October and November to meet the financial needs of the church. Arrangements have been made to hold the affairs at the First Baptist church, and among those already engaged are Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church; Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, who is pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, and L. V. F. Randolph. Charles W. McCutchean has been chosen chairman of the committee to plan for a musical.

The church recently incurred considerable expense, including the purchase of 200 new chairs from the Lambertville Baptist church, and it is for the purpose of liquidating this expense that the lectures and musicale are being planned. The dates for the entertainments will be announced later.

Seymour Perkins, Jr., Celebrates.

Seymour Perkins, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Perkins, of 223 East Sixth street, gave a birthday party today to a number of his young playmates and friends, the occasion being the second anniversary of his birthday. The party was from 2 to 5 o'clock. Games were played. Master Perkins was the recipient of a number of gifts from relatives and his young friends. His aunt, Miss Edith Anderson, of New York, was a guest and directed the children in the playing of games. A collation was served, a feature being a birthday cake. Covers were laid for twelve.

DEMOCRATS HAD A RALLY

Crowded House Greets William E. Tuttle and Other Noted Speakers.

TARIFF AND G. O. P. RAPPED.

Calvin E. Brodhead, Former Mayor W. L. Saunders, H. J. McLoughlin and J. E. Martine Urge United Action.

Crowded to the doors and with such speakers as William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, Democratic candidate for Congress; H. J. McLoughlin, of Elizabeth, candidate for the Assembly; William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, a splendid orator, and James E. Martine, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, the campaign of the Democratic club opened with a rush last night at the club rooms on North avenue. It was the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of Democrats in the history of the club. Every mention of the name of Woodrow Wilson was cheered and James E. Martine received an ovation when he arose to speak. All the speakers were cordially applauded and both the candidates for the assembly pledged themselves unequivocally to support Martine in event of their election. The tariff and the G. O. P. were rapped good and hard and Senator John Kean came in for a few incidental criticisms.

Robert C. Woodhouse, Democratic candidate for the Common Council in the second ward, acted as chairman of the meeting at the request of Leroy J. Ellis, president of the club. The first speaker was William E. Tuttle, who declared that this was a year for a Democratic victory, not only here but throughout the country. He said that the trend of sentiment was all against the Republicans, especially in the East. He gave thanks to the insurgents for the beating the G. O. P. got at the primaries. Mr. Tuttle referred to Governor Fort's speech at Elizabeth last year as an indication of the corruption which exists at Trenton and declared that it was up to the Democratic party to correct the condtions existing there. He gave a synopsis of the Democratic platform and urged the unanimous support of the whole ticket, and specially urged the support of Mr. Martine.

Calvn E. Brodhead, candidate for the Assembly, followed Mr. Tuttle in a speech which bristled with points raised against the tariff and John Kean. He declared that there was a wide-spread desire throughout the Senatorial district to remove John Kean from public life and the opportunity was at hand now. He referred to the high cost of living and attached the blame for it on the Republican party and the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

H. J. McLoughlin claimed that he was no politician, but gave a splendid political speech. He declared that the appointments to office were the biggest part of the political graft, interspersing his caustic remarks with humor which pleased the big audience

Former Mayor William L. Saunders held his audience for fifteen minutes with a remarkably eloquent speech. He said that this campaign was worthy of the best effort of everybody, and believed that Mr. Tuttle would be elected. He had no doubt that the Republican party had allied itself with the special interests and had lowered itself to a state of "privilege." The country has prospered, he said, in spite of protection. According to the present tariff which the Republican Congress aided and abetted by Messrs. Payne and Aldrich, the poor laboring man ought to be riding in an automobile, shoeless, with a pair of cotton socks on and with a bottle of champagne stuck to his lips for they are the only really reduced necessities. Mr. Saunders references to the tariff brought forth frantic applause.

Howard Fleming and James E. Martine also spoke. Mr. Martine's speech being a charactertisic effort with a reference to Thomas Jefferson, in which he was likened to Woodrow Wilson, whom his enemies call a mere-literary man. Mr. Martine declared that Jefferson was also a literary man and showed his ability in the drawing of the Decleration of Independence. Referring to Judge Runyon's declaration regarding a speaker of the house to create harmony in it he declared that there had been too much harmony already and that that was just the trouble.

After the meeting the executive committee of the club and members of the newly formed Woodrow Wilson Club, of North Plainfield, Mr. Saunders was asked to preside at the meeting on Thursday next at which Woodrow Wilson is to speak. Mr. Saunders consented. A press committee was appointed with David J. Carney as chairman, and a committee on ways and means.

SOMERVILLE.

The Second Reformed church Sunday began the observance of rally week. At the service Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. A. A. Pfausteihl, preached a special sermon on "Home Coming." The congregation was large. In the afternoon the chapel was crowded when the Sunday-school held their rally day exercises. All departments had a part in the program and the promotions with diplomas were interesting from the intermediate to beginners. Summer school suggestions were given by one of the five teachers who were at Asbury Park last summer. This evening there will be a rally of the young people at the Christian Endeavor meeting, and all those having belonged to the society at any time are invited. Wednesday evening the congregational mid-week meeting will be in the form of a rally also. Later, meetings of a purely social character will be held. The members of the church have been asked by the pastor not to make engagements during the week, but give their time to this rally week.

Pursuant to orders received from regimental headquarters, Company M resumed its regular weekly drills last evening. The regular olive drab uniform, puttees and cap were worn. The members of the company began target practice on Saturday. The following conditions govern the shooting for the several medals: The Matheson and Cook medals are to be contested for only by active members and the honorary members' medal only by the honorary members of the company. The Matheson and Cook medals will be awarded to the enlisted men making the highest and next highest total scores at the 200, 300 and 500 yard ranges. The Mack medal will be awarded to the enlisted man who has never qualified as a marksman, but who shall make the highest total scores of the 200, 300 and 500 yard ranges. No more than one medal will be awarded one man. Two strings of five shots each, slow fire, with two sighting shots, will be allowed at each range.

The Jewish synagogue, which has been in course of construction for several months past, was formally dedicated Sunday afternoon. The services were begun in Germania Hall, where the congregation has been meeting. After a brief service there the congregation marched to the new edifice on East Main street. Services were conducted by several rabbis from neighboring cities. Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, made an address. The congregation has been working hard for three or four years to get a house of worship. The new building has a seating capacity of about 300 and it cost nearly $10,000. M. T. Baum, proprietor of the East Somerville Stove Works, was chairman of the committee which arranged the dedicatory services.

Special rally day exercises were held in the First Reformed Sunday-school Sunday afternoon. In the evening a union service of the two Reformed churches was held in the First Reformed church.

Miss Lillian Demarcy, of Altmount place, has been spending a week with her brother, Arthur P. Demarcy, near Neshanic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, of Middaugh street, are guests of their son John Harris, and son at Jersey City Heights.

Miss Ruth Weldon, of Lebanon spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs E. S. Weldon, on Cliff street.

Miss Savage returned to her home on West Cliff street Saturday after spending the summer near Boonton.

Miss Abby Cramner, of North Bridge street, has been entertaining Miss Vera Hamilton, of Pittsburg.

WESTFIELD.

Walter Irving was arrested Saturday night on complaint of Wolf Ox, of Elm street, who claimed that Irving took an overcoat out of his place without paying for having it repaired. Irving was released until this afternoon, when he will be given a hearing before the recorder.

Thursday of this week will be the last day of the half holiday for this year. Closing the stores Thursday afternoon has worked very successfully, and the Merchants' Association expects to continue it next year.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington is gathering data concerning bee-keeping in Union county through circulars sent to the postmasters in the farming districts.

The power ditch-digging machine is working in Lennox avenue, and in consequence a part of the street is closed.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The tenth social dance of the Bachelors' Club will be held in Excelsior hall tonight. The club has arranged to entertain a large number of its friends and as this is the first of the fall dances a most enjoyable time will no doubt be had.

The Ladies' Circle of the Baptist church will hold an all day sewing bee in the church parlors tomorrow. All members and friends who are interested in the work are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jamison, of Stanbury avenue, are expected to return home the latter part of the week, from a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in New York State.

Ground was broken yesterday for a new building on the McIntyre property on Park avenue. The building will be a store for the ground floor and flats above.

The Fanwood Field Club intend putting a strong eleven on the gridiron this fall. Practice is being held regularly and some very strong teams are being booked.

There is plenty of good material in town for a bowling team and the knights of the pins should get together and put a representative team in the field.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, Sr., of "The Gables," are expected home shortly from the Adirondack mountains, where they have been spending the summer.

Mrs. Philip Jahn has returned from a visit with relatives and friends at Bernardsville.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

No native producers of musical comedy have given this country more successes than Charles Frohman. His production of "The Arcadians" is said to have eclipsed all of his former efforts. It has been declared the hit of New York for the current theatrical year. The story of the Arcadians concerns the experience of James Smith, a London restaurant keeper, who lands from his airship in Arcadia, a beautiful mountain country in the heart of Greece. His strange ways interest the innocent shepherds and shepherdesses. All goes well until he tells a lie. Then he is given a bath in the "Well of Truth" and comes out a young man and purged of his sin. He is called Simplicitas. He tells these charming country folks of London and they decide to go to London with him and reform the people. The second scene is laid at the Askwood Race track, near London, where the gaiety of the season is reproduced with remarkable fidelity and beauty. Here Simplicitas meets his wife, who fails to recognize him in Arcadian costume. The third act pictures Smith's hotel transformed into an Arcadian restaurant where nuts and fruit are served by Grecian maidens and Peter Doody, a reformed jockey. Smith or Simplicitas is detected in a lie again, and after another bath in the "Well of Truth" he comes out his old self and confesses his escapade to his wife. The beauty of the piece is not revealed in the story of the play. That lies in its exquisite setting, its beautiful music, the charm and grace of the women who take the principal parts. In addition there is clever comedy contributed by the comedians. Charles Frohman will send on tour the same company that is appearing at the New York Theatre now. Rarely does a musical comedy after leaving New York present the same cast on the road, but in this instance Charles Frohman promises the people of this city the New York company intact. The play will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday night, October 3.

CARL R. SCHULTZ TO MARRY AGAIN.

Announcement of his intended marriage to Miss Minnie Chappell, of New London, Conn., was made Sunday by Carl R. Schultz, of the Carl H. Schultz Mineral Water Company, of New York. The wedding, according to Mr. Schultz, will take place on Thursday next, at his home in Murray Hill, N. J.

Mr. Schultz made no defense to a suit for divorce brought by his first wife about a year ago. The suit was brought in New Jersey, Mrs. Schultz charging that her husband was not contributing to her support. A master in chancery recommended that she be granted a decree.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS CASES TO BE REPORTED

Dr. Bruce S. Keater, as secretary of the State Board of Health, yesterday sent letters to some 3,000 physicians of the State ordering them to report to the State Board all cases of infantile paralysis coming under their notice. The State board has decided that it was best to seggregate such cases, thoroughly quarantine against them until the cause of the disease and some knowledge of its cure is obtained. The letter received by a Plainfield physician says:

"Dear Doctor—At a meeting of the Board of Health of the State of New Jersey, held on August 30, 1910, the following resolution was adopted:

"'Resolved, That in accordance with the power conferred upon the State Board of Health by the provisions of section 1 of chapter 160 of the laws of 1895, anterior poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis is hereby added to the list of diseases which shall hereafter be reported by physicians to local boards of health in accordance with the provisions of said act.'

"On account of the increased number of cases of this disease which are occurring in this and other States it is essential that statistical data should be gathered as to the localities which are affected, and that careful study of individual cases should be made by physicians. It will aid in these inquiries if each physician will forward to the office of the board a list of cases of infantile paralysis which have come under his medical supervision during the year 1909, and also from January 1 to September 1 of the present year."

LITERARY

Magazine editors would probably deny that they concentrate more thought and energy on one number than another, yet the fact remains that the autumn issues often seem stronger than those which have immediately preceded them. Perhaps the editors do this unconsciously—just as other folk in other walks of life take up their burdens with renewed zest after the relaxation of the summer season. Lippincott's Magazine is one of those which open the fall campaign with especially meritorious October numbers. The complete novel—long a feature of this publication—is "The Riders of Petersham," a stirring tale of the South and its "nightriders," by Rupert Sargent Holland, author of "The Man in the Tower."

Mrs. Roosevelt's Tact.

People who followed the stories of the Roosevelt family's travels in Africa and Europe will have taken note of the modesty, the uniform excellent taste and good sense which marked Mrs. Roosevelt's part in the ceremonies of which her husband was the centre. Mrs. Roosevelt's name appeared little in the newspapers; she attracted just as little attention as possible to helself, and she succeeded in enlisting the sympathetic co-operation of the American correspondents in keping her in the background. Mrs. Roosevelt's social skill never showed to better advantage than during this tour. She managed always to avoid either the extreme of self-effacement or any undue assumption that the distinctions showered upon Colonel Roosevelt were intended for anybody else than him.—Success Magazine.

GOLF.

First on the list in a competitive way among the golfers this week is the sixth annual seniors' tournament, scheduled for tomorrow and Thursday, over the links of the Apawamis Club, at Rye. There is every indication that most of the wielders of driver and iron—that is, those who own up to having seen fifty-five years or more—will be on hand in an endeavor to win one of the many handsome prizes offered by the committee.

There are eight trophies in all, as follows: Best gross score, thirty-six holes, two days' play; second best gross score, thirty-six holes, two days' play; best net score, thirty-six holes, two days' play; second best net score, thirty-six holes, two days' play; best net score first day's round, eighteen holes; second best net score first day's round, eighteen holes; best net score second day's round eighteen holes, and second best net score, second day's round, eighteen holes.

Because of the steadily increasing size of the fields, it was found advantageous to extend the tournament to two days last year. It is expected that fully as many if not more will be on hand again. Horace L. Hotchkiss, Edmund C. Converse and Simeon Ford constitute the committee.

New England will enter the limelight again when the representatives of the Pennsylvania, Metropolitan and Massachusetts associations gather at the Myopia Country Club on Thursday for the Lesley Cup matches. As the Metropolitan team is the holder, it will stand out on the first day and watch Pennsylvania and Massachusetts struggle for the privilege of challenging. The Bay State team, which has already been announced, is probably the best ever mustered over Boston way. Last year at Huntington Valley Pennsylvania beat Massachusetts 9 to 6, and then the Metropolitan forces gained the verdict over Pennsylvania, 8 to 7.

Aside from the big championship event at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday, the day was a delightful one at the clubhouse. A large number of members enjoyed luncheon there, while nearly eighty persons remained in the evening for dinner. Superintendent John Hilton was kept busy all day, looking after the wants of the members and friends, and altogether it was an exceedingly busy day at the club.

The fact that the Park Golf Club players had a team match on at Colonia, Saturday, the local course looked deserted. However, there will be several events next Saturday, including continuation of the tennis tournament.

The golf championship play will be continued at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday. There are three sixteens to engage in the play, the first sixteen being for the championship.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

There will be a meeting of the State Grange at Berlin Friday evening, when a class of seventy-five will be given the sixth degree.

Thieves forced an entrance to the home of Harry Bossard, of Hampton, and stole a diamond ring, silverware and eatables.

The male members of the Woodbury M. E. church will turn out Wednesday to lay cement walks about the church. The ladies will see that the men are not hungry.

A pot of fat boiling over in the bakeshop of Otto Neukirch, of 161 Albion avenue, Paterson, was the cause of a fire at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, which gutted the bakeshop and a part of the rear portion of the two-and-a-half-story building.

Government coast guards on Two Mile Beach, near Cape May, Sunday picked up a life-preserver bearing the name of the Sea Gannet, formerly the private yacht of President Delaney, of the Menhaden Fishing Company. The Sea Gannet was burned off Barnegat about three months ago. The captain and crew took to the small boats and were picked up and carried to Boston by a coast liner.

LOW DEATH RATE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The death rate in the official death registration area of the United States dropped to 15 per thousand of population last year, according to the Census Bureau's forthcoming bulletin on mortality statistics for 1909. This rate is lower than that for any previous year of registration and probably is the lowest that ever occurred in the history of the country. In 1908 the death rate was 15.4 per thousand.

It is a fact of much interest, the bulletin states, as showing the general prevalence in 1909 of favorable conditions for human life, that the death rate of England and Wales for that year was 14.5 per thousand, which was the lowest on record for that country, while the rate of 14 for the city of London was even lower and demonstrates the fallacy of the belief that high death rates are necessarily found in large cities.

Of the total number of 732,538 death sduring 1909 in the death registration area, which represents a fraction over 55 per cent. of the provisionally estimated population of continental United States, no less than 196,534, or 26.8 per cent., were of children under 5 years old, and 140,057, or 19.1 per cent., were of infants under 1 year old.

"A great part of these deaths of children are entirely preventable and the causes which produce them are not being successfully combated," the bulletin says.

MACHINE PICKS BERRIES.

New Device Used in Harvesting Cranberry Crop.

Cranberry picking machines will be more generally in use in Burlington county now than ever before. From the principal cranberry growing districts come reports that satisfactory results are being obtained with these new scooping devices that make short work of the harvesting. Some of the operators can make the machines pick the loose berries off the ground, and are able to gather the crops without the slightest injury to the berries. This proficiency, however, comes only after years of experience.

The machines are slipped under the berries, and by an upward or tipping motion, called rocking, are drawn away from the vines, and the berries roll back into scoops in perfect condition.

The taking of berries with machines is not a new idea, it being a matter of record that our forefathers scooped their wild cranberries with machines.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA WHERE SALVES FAIL.

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OFF.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 25 cent trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

Plainfield, N. J., September 27, 1910

PALMER H. CHARLOCK TO BE 33RD DEGREE

The Supreme Council of Sovereign Grand Inspectors General, thirthird degree, for the Northern Masonic Jurisriction of the United States of America, which held its ninety-eighth annual session last week in Detroit and at which six Masons from New Jersey were crowned and received the thirty-third and last degree of regular Freemasonry, was fraught with special interest to Masons generally, especially to those of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite.

Perhaps the item of interest most likely to attract the attention of Masons in this vicinity is that Postmaster Palmer H. Charlock, of Elizabeth, was elected to receive the thirty-third degree at the next annual session. This honor was awarded him for his service in the bodies of the irte located in Jersey City, particularly in the capacity of master of the Chapter of Rose Croix.

The men who receive the degree rarely known in advance when they are to be nominated or elected, although their mert and service may have prepared the minds of their associates for the news.

During the recent session of the council its deliberations were of unusual importance to the rite at large and just before ts close the resignation of the Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander General Samuel C. Lawrence, of Medford, Mass., was announced. He is succeeded by Barton Smith, of Toledo, O., who held the second office by rank, that of lieutenant grand commander. Until the next triennial election of officers in Boston, in 1912, this vacancy will be filled by appointment and the Scottish Rite membership at large are in a state of expectancy not unlike that prevailing prior to the election of a President of the United States. No hint of the succession has escaped yet.

J. J. Keppler Talks to Machinists.

J. J. Keppler, of Chicago, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, addressed the local members of the union in Eagle Hall, last night, and during the course of his remarks he took occasion to explain some previous statements relative to wages being paid to machinists at Yonkers, N. Y., to which the Yonkers Gazette took exception. He explained in detail the wages being paid for each class of work, refuting what he called misquoted statements in the Yonkers Gazette.

POLITICAL TALK.

The Democrats of South Bound Brook, met last night, and decided to meet on Friday night for the purpose of forming a permanent organization. The party members have endorsed the entire Democratic ticket.

BIBLE SOCIETY ELECTS.

Mr. Vosseller Resigns After Serving Twenty-five Years.

Flemington, Sept. 27.—The Hunterdon County Bible Society, at its ninety-fourth annual convention, held in the Flemington Presbyterian church, elected these officers: President, Elias Vosseller, of Flemington; vice president, the Rev. J. W. Kreiching, of New Germantown; treasurer, J. Sherman Cooley, of Flemington; recording secretary, William Bellis, of Copper Hill; corresponding secretary, B. F. Robbins, of High Bridge.

Elias Vosseller resigned as treasurer after acting in that capacty for twenty-five years. During the year the society raised $600 for the Sage Endowment Fund. The next annual meeting will be held in the High Bridge Reformed church.

CAR CRASHES INTO COWS.

Four Are Kiled and Many Hurt by Trolley.

Trenton, Sept. 27.—One of the suburban cars of the Johnson Trolley Company en route from Princeton to this city yesterday dashed at full speed into a herd of cows owned by the Heath estate, near this city.

Four valuable cows were killed outright, two were maimed so badly that they had to be killed and several others severely injured. The accident was caused by a heavy fog that prevented the motorman from seeing the herd.

The car was badly damaged in the collision, but none of the passengers were injured.

Not Mr. H. S. Phillips' Dog.

Henry S. Phillips, of Duer street, wants the residents of the borough to know that it was not his pet white poodle that was bitten by a supposed mad dog on Friday last, but it was a dog belonging to Henry R. Phillips, of Washington Park.

LAYS TO ANTI-GOSSIP HABIT HER 102 YEARS.

Mrs. Jane Beam, of Paterson, who observed her 102d birthday anniversary Sunday, declared that she owed her long life to not gossiping about her neighbors and reading good books.

"I don't believe that drinking helps to keep men and women alive," she says, "but it is certainly a remarkable thing the way drinkers manage to hang on. I don't drink myself—I have never tasted liquor; so I won't assume to point out the pitfalls of drinking to others."

LEG CRUSHED UNDER TRAIN.

Express Runs Down Joseph Gimba Near Carteret.

Elizabeth, Sept. 27.—Struck by a Perth Amboy express train near Carteret last night, Joseph Gimba, of 10 Lefit street, Carteret, had his right leg crushed. He was removed to the Elizabeth General Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the leg at the knee.

Gimba was walking along the railroad tracks near Carteret when he was struck by the express, due at Elizabeth avenue at 6:46 p. m. The engineer stopped the train immediately after the accident. He was taken in the train to the local hospital.

WEEHAWKEN IS GROWING.

Population Increases More Than 100 Per Cent.

Weehawken Sept. 27.—This place has a population of 11,228 according to announcement made last night by the census office. In 1900 its population was 5,325.

Its increase during the last decade was more than 100 per cent.

Land 800 Pound Shark.

Captain John Hennessey's fishing crew yesterday morning landed an eleven foot shark weighing eight hundred pounds on the shore after a hard fight. This is the second shark caught along this section of the Jersey coast within the last two days.

For U. S. Supreme Court.

The names of R. V. Lindabury, Justice Swayze and Chancellor Pitney are among those being considered by President Taft who will fill a vacancy in the United States Supreme Court shortly.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Rev. J. J. Allen, who has so acceptably filled the Baptist pulpit here, has returned to Crozier Seminary at Chester, Pa., to complete the last year of his college course. He will then be in readiness to accept a permanent call.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Klinger are enjoying themselves here among their many friends, after an absence of two years, in the far West. They expect to remain here permanently.

Walton Smith, who has been employed by R. B. Manning & Brother, has given up his position to assume the duties of lamp tender at the Lehigh Valley station.

David Kellogg, wife and baby have returned to their home in Glen Ridge after a pleasant visit with Mr. Kellogg's parents at Holly Grove Farm.

The Italian who murdered Patrick Cahill in a shack on the Samptown road entered Trenton prison yesterday to serve a twelve-year term.

John Conger has left the employ of Oscar Thorne and is nursing a bruised leg, having fallen from his bicycle.

George Suydam and family have removed from here to the farm of Mrs. Percy Von Ohl.

Philip Smith still continues to suffer from boils on the back of his neck.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The funeral of Cornelius D. Taylor, whose death occurred early yesterday morning, will be held at his late home on Lincoln avenue tomorrow afternoon. The service will be private and Rev. Ernest D. Brown will have charge. Burial is to be made in Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

A clam chowder supper is to be held in the Methodist church tonight. It will be in charge of the Ladies' Aid Society and the members have spared no effort in order to make the affair a success. Rally day exercises will be held in the church next Sunday afternoon and night.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Firstbrook, of Philadelphia, are expected today for a visit with the latter's parents, Captain and Mrs. Benjamin Cole, of Washington avenue. Mrs. Firstbrook will remain while Mr. Firstbrook will return to his duties with the Philadelphia Press tomorrow.

Comrade John Wagner, who returned Saturday from the G. A. R. national encampment at Atlantic City, left yesterday for Gettysburg, Pa., to spend a few days in viewing familiar scenes on the battlefield.

Emil Vogel, of Dewey Park, returned home today from Muhlenberg Hospital, where he underwent treatment for typhoid fever.

Mrs. Daniel Moody, of New Market road, left yesterday for Jamaica, L. I., to spend a week with relatives.

John and Roy Dutcher, of Newark, have returned home after a visit with friends in the borough.

John G. Taylor, of Camden, was the guest of Jud e Campbell, yesterday.

Miss Hilda Steffens, of New York, has returned home after a visit with Miss Ruth Moore, of West Fourth street.

Edward Baker, Jr., of Duer street, has been entertaining his cousin, Benjamin Kishner, of Sacramento Valley, Cal.

OAK TREE.

Mrs. M. S. VanCourt, aged 72 years, mother of W. E. VanCourt, is quite ill threatened with penumonia. She was taken ill Friday night and Dr. J. Hervey Buchnnan is attending her.

Steady progress is being made on the work of laying the water main between Raritan and Elizabeth. Oak Tree will be on this line, thus being assured of a fine supply of water.

The committee in charge of the proposed improvements at Marconnier chapel, are rapidly getting the details in shape so that operations can commence.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. VanCourt, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William Freck, of Plainfield, will attend the Trenton fair tomorrow.

FOUND BETTER EUCHRE PLAYERS AT SOMERVILLE.

Sixteen members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., journeyed to Somerville last night, and [illegible] peted with "Lodge of the [illegible] No. 82, in the first game of [illegible]-thian euchre tour[illegible] Plainfielders were defeated by a narrow margin, although they were ahead in the total number of games won.

The playing was spirited throughout and the participants enjoyed it keenly. Refreshments were served in conclusion. Lodge of the Castle players will visit Plainfield for return games one week from Friday night.

Previous to last night's social session, the local delegation assisted the Somerville lodge in conferring the second degree on two candidates.

HELPFUL GUESTS

Although of a hospitable nature, Miss Belinda had long ago added to her litany a petition to be delivered from visitors in the spring. "Planting and visitors don't agree," she often said to herself.

When, on the day she was putting in seeds for her annuals, she saw an automobile turn into her driveway she gave a gasp of dismay and arose from her knees with an expression of fatigue not caused by her garden labors.

"We have come out to pass the day with you," announced one of the girls, who gaily jumped out of the car.

"And we were only two hours and fifty minutes running out from town," said another. "Wasn't that good time? We are planning to go home by moonlight."

"Oh, Miss Belinda," exclaimed the third, "how perfectly lovely your place looks and what a lot of spring work you have done already! Now, we aren't going to interrupt your labors at all. That would be a shame. We are going to help you. What shall we do? Shall I weed the garden?"

"It's a little early for weeding," answered Miss Belinda, with a smile. "I think perhaps luncheon should be the first thing on the program. My cook has gone for the day, so we shall have to prepare our own meal."

"All the more fun. We love to cook. Let us do everything," cried the girls in a jumbled chorus of enthusiasm.

"Very well," laughingly agreed Miss Belinda. "You can start things while I get a little of the garden soil off my hands. You'll find nearly everything in the pantry, and what you don't find there is in the cellar."

The girls, having frequently visited Miss Belinda in the summer, quickly made themselves at home and Miss Belinda, dressing in an upstair chamber, smiled as she heard the bursts of merriment rising from the kitchen and dining room.

"I oughtn't to grudge them such a good time," she said to herself, "but just now every day counts so much in getting the garden started."

She still was thinking regretfully of her unfinished garden beds as she went downstairs.

"See, Miss Belinda, what a pretty salad I have made of watercress," said one girl.

"Watercress?" Miss Belinda looked at her visitor in surprise. "Why, where did you get watercress?"

"In the garden. There was quite a clump of it, but I didn't take it all, for I thought you'd want to have another salad before what I cut grew up again."

"I'm glad you didn't take it all," said Miss Belinda, looking carefully at the green leaves under the mayonnaise, "because I'm afraid it won't be very good in salad. It's campanula. We'll just throw it out, my dear, and not say a word to the other girls about it."

"I suppose it is a kind of a joke on me, isn't it?"

"Well," Miss Belinda's eyes twinkled, "I don't know whether the joke is on you or not. I should place it in another quarter."

"Oh, Miss Belinda, do come into the kitchen," called one of the enthusiastic young cooks, "and tell us what you think is the matter with these sweet potatoes. They're boiled all right, but they don't seem to be the right color. I was so delighted when I found them in the cellar, and onions, too, but I'm afraid they're spoiled."

"Yes, they are undoubtedly spoiled," remarked Miss Belinda, gravely, as she recognized her precious dahlia roots boiling in one pot of water and a dozen of her choicest gladioli bulbs sizzling with cream sauce in another.

"And the onions aren't good, either, are they? They haven't a bit of onion odor."

"No, these are not good onions. In fact, they are very poor onions, indeed." Miss Belinda laughed a little strangely.

"Well, that's what I call a disappointment."

"So do I," agreed Miss Belinda, feelingly.

"You don't blame us for not knowing they were spoiled, do you, dear Miss Belinda?"

"Oh, no, I—I am the one who should have been more careful. Are you making an omelet?"

"Yes, I thought that was the nicest way to use the fresh eggs I gathered," answered the girl who was turning an omelet in the skillet. "I never had the fun of gathering eggs before, and wasn't I lucky? I found 13 eggs under one hen. She was the stubbornest creature I could hardly get her off the nest."

"I can imagine it was difficult," said Miss Belinda, adding to herself: "Alas, my expensive setting of Rhode Island Reds that I put under the poor old hen this morning!"

Then she sat down at the lunch table and entered into the merriment of her guests. Her heroic good will lasted till she saw the automobile disappear with them around a bend of the road late that afternoon.

"Anyway," she murmured, "I kept them from working in my garden. That's some comfort."

NEEDS OF BACKWARD CHILD

Moral Awakening Comes After All His Physical Defects Have Been Removed.

The greatest need of the average backward child, after his physical defects have been removed and his body given a decent chance to develop, is a moral awakening, says Rheta Childe Dorr in the course of an article describing the public school work for backward children, in Hampton's Magazine. Virtually all such children are selfish, passionate and malicious. They love to destroy. They love to inflict pain. They delight in disturbing the order of a classroom. Almost always are they untruthful, and very frequently are they thievish.

Why not? They live in a state of constant struggle with the world—an unequal struggle in which their miserable little souls are daily and hourly crucified. Around them is a world of normal children who learn easily things beyond the power of the backward to acquire; who are praised and loved and rewarded. In the playground the backward children enviously watch the others perform feats of strength and skill. Sometimes the dullard or the handicapped child tries to break into a game or a contest and is pushed aside or chased away by the strong. A child not feeble minded but merely dull and on that account behind the procession resents with a bitterness not to be comprehended this constant pushing aside. Exactly like a rat fighting for life in a corner he strikes back viciously, desperately.

Far more than their brains the emotional natures of such children need cultivation. Far more important than learning to read is learning to love and trust. Vices of temperament must be unlearned, bad habits must be overcome, a whole garden full of weeds must be cleared away before the soil is ready for planting. After that the task is not fraught with serious difficulties.

NEW INVENTION OF THIEVES

Philadelphia Shoplifters Equipped With a Really Ingenious Device.

Wholesale thefts from a score or more of Philadelphia stores were discovered recently through the arrest of two men and a young woman, and from $3,000 to $4,000 worth of stolen goods were recovered in their room.

The detectives entered the room just as the three were unloading goods of various kinds from the big paper boxes. Hawley, upon whom cards were later found giving the name "William Halley, character comedian," demanded to know who they were and what they wanted. The detectives soon enlightened him and told the three they were under arrest.

The boxes were especially arranged for making thefts easy, the arrangement being something new even in the varied arts of shoplifters. A hole about 12 inches long and 5 inches wide was cut in each box, and the box was so carried under the arm with this hole next to the side of the body that it was almost impossible to discover it. The accused would each buy some trifling article and pay for it. The bill was then taken and attached to the box in such a way that it could be seen readily by the salespeople and store detectives. Each of the thieves would operate at different counters, as a rule, but sometimes one of the men and the woman would operate together.

Made Him a Fair Offer.

A good story is told of the late A. H. Wyant, the artist. A young man called at Mr. Wyant's studio one day and asked him to give him some lessons in painting. "What can you do?" asked the old artist. "Oh, I can finish a landscape first-rate, but I never know how to begin one!" was the reply. "If that's so," remarked the veteran painter, solemnly, "I think we can easily make a bargain. I find that I can begin a picture without any trouble; but it is a dreadful task to finish it satisfactorily. Now, if you'll teach me how to finish my pictures, I'll teach you how to begin yours." Then the old gentleman went back to work, and the young artist went away to think over the proposition.

Picks Up Pawned Medals.

A man was peering through the window of an old curiosity shop on Third avenue, making notes on the back of an envelope, relates the New York Sun. He said to a bystander who was looking at him inquiringly: "See those old war medals in there? I go around town making lists of those that are for sale. I send them over to various dealers in Europe who sell them to collectors. These dealers make offers to me, and if I make enough margin I take them up by buying the medal at once and shipping it. New York is the best town in the world to get old European war medals in. Ex-soldiers and discharged sailors usually come here as immigrants, get into hard luck and dispose of their medals."

Modern Palmistry.

Palmistry, in its modern acceptance, is divided into two branches, chirognomy and chiromancy. Chirognomy defines the outward shape of the hand, and of its members, the thumb and finger. The name is derived from the Greek and means the laws of the hands. Chiromancy is also derived from the Greek and signifies divination by the hand—that is, by the lines, mounts and other marks on the palms of the hand.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

At this moment Loveland walked out from his stateroom, having come below for pipe and tobacco pouch. He caught Major Cadwallader Hunter staring at his door and gave him a brief yet supercilious glance. To some men it would have seemed an offensive glance, but Major Cadwallader Hunter was not to be easily offended by a man he wished to know. He disappeared into his own cabin by way of proving that he was a neighbor, not a Paul Pry, but a few minutes later he was on deck, ambling amiably from one group of acquaintances to another, and dexterously avoiding detrimentals.

LOVELAND GAVE HIM A SUPERCILIOUS GLANCE.

CHAPTER III.

THE GIRL IN THE CHAIR.

CADWALLADER HUNTER aspired to be a leader of society. He was one of those strange beings—heraldic, rampant, disregardant—who are born snobs, in spite of good birth and good breeding. Therefore he was not a genuine article (since no snob can be genuine), but had molded himself into a thing of airs and affectations. Nevertheless he managed to impress most second rate people and some who were first rate. Those who did not live in New York believed him to be of consequence in that city, and the Paris Herald always reported his comings and goings. He had at least a bowing acquaintance with all the richest Americans on board, and he mixed with his greetings here and there a careless "Do you know we have Lord Loveland on the ship—the Marquis of Loveland? Such a good looking young man; one of the oldest and most distinguished peerages in England; family of soldiers since the dark ages, though the less said about some of them since the days of the Georges the better. This boy is not so bad as some of the old boys before him. Not to be despised by debutantes, eh?

"Do I know him? Why, in a way we're connections by marriage. You must remember pretty Lady Betty Bukeley, who took us all by storm a year or two ago—sister of the Duke of Stanforth? Jimmy Harborough, whom she married, is, I believe, a forty-second cousin of mine; and Lady Betty and Lord Loveland are related. So you see"—

And for fear that they should see something that he did not wish them to see—he pottered away to "get at" Loveland before any one could possibly have the chance to find out that they two were strangers.

Meanwhile Loveland had not been wasting time.

He thought that Jim Harborough's hint about "deep sea fish" was a wise one, wiser than he would have expected from Harborough. Still, there was no harm in keeping his eyes open, and, having kept them open from the first moment after coming on board, he had discovered several very pretty girls. Unluckily, he was too ignorant of American society to know which of his fellow passengers were most important. Sure of his chair, on which the name of "Loveland" already appeared in the steward's handwriting, he paced up and down and all round the deck, pipe in mouth and hands in pockets.

A great many other people were parading up and down also.

After half an hour's walk Val had selected two girls from the "rosebud garden" which he felt bloomed for his benefit in this mammoth floating flower bed. There were so many attractive ones that it was difficult to choose, yet Val did not doubt that he had weeded out the best, and he hoped that of the pair one might be the principal unmarried millionairess of the Mauretania.

There could hardly have been a greater contrast between girls than between these two whom Lord Loveland had mentally set apart for himself as a man picks out the most becoming necktie from a box on a shop counter.

One, who walked the deck with an elderly man whose likeness of feature proclaimed him her father, was very tall, almost as tall as Loveland, who could be a six footer when he took the trouble not to slouch. She was slender in all the right places and rounded in all the right places, her waist being so slim that she seemed held together only by a spine and a ladylike ligament or two, which means faultlessness of figure according to fashion plate standards. She had burnished auburn hair and magnificent yellow gray eyes rimmed with dark lashes.

Val said to himself that the mater would be pleased with a daughter-in-law of this type and that such a girl would never make her husband ashamed. He could not imagine falling in love with her hard brilliance. But then he wasn't going to America to fall in love. His intentions were strictly businesslike. And this girl was bound to be admired everywhere.

Loveland's second choice might have been his first for some reasons, and in fact she was his first by impulse, only she did not look as obviously an heiress as the other. Neither was she so obviously a beauty, yet her charm leaped at the beholder with the briefest glance, especially if that beholder were a man.

She was not very tall, and she was a slim slip of a creature not in the least like a fashion plate, but suggestive of soft natural curves even in her navy blue tailor made frock.

If she had been stagestruck and had asked for a chance in the chorus a theatrical manager would have found himself giving it to her, he hardly knew why—more because she said she wanted it than on the strength of her voice or form or features. Then, having yielded so far to her magnetism, he would have said to himself: "She isn't striking enough for the front row or even the second. She must go into the third." And there she would have gone docilely. Yet the critics and all other men with eyes would have picked her out, and presently she would have been more noticed than the beauties in the front row. By and by, when there arose a little part with a few lines to speak, she would have got it, and at last, in some way or other, it would have been she who was making the "hit of the piece."

Lord Loveland did not say anything of this sort to himself, but he felt a faint electric shock of interest every time they passed and repassed each other, though after the first she did not look at him with the big brown eyes that surely had the prettiest, most bewitching lashes ever seen.

Val made up his mind at last that he would walk no more, but would sit down and think questions over. Besides, for some moments the enchanting girl in the navy blue frock had ceased to flit to and fro. Therefore he went toward the sheltered corner where he knew his deck chair was waiting for him and to his extreme surprise found her comfortably installed in it.

For a moment Loveland was more conceited than he had ever been in his life, which is saying not a little. He told himself that the girl must have found out who he was and that this was her artful way of scraping acquaintance. She had taken possession of his chair with his name upon it, waiting for him to come and claim his property and expecting the conversation which would be sure to follow.

He was conscious of a shock of disappointment. In spite of the witching, curled eyelashes he had not fancied her that sort of obvious, flirting girl, and, like other spoiled young men, a conquest which fell to him easily was less worth making. Nevertheless he still wanted to know her.

The chair next to his was unoccupied, though usurpers were warned off by the name of "Mr. James R. Smythe" boldly painted in black letters across the back. Stretching away to the left was a row of Smythe chairs which Val did not trouble to count. He merely received the impression of a large family of impending Smythes and was glad that they were not assembled. Risking the avalanche of Smythehood which might overwhelm him at any instant, he sat down in the empty chair next to his own, expecting the girl to glance up and down and flutter the coquettish lashes. To his bewilderment her tactics were more subtle. She did not look up at all, but calmly went on reading her book, a volume of disagreeably intellectual suggestion.

This development of the game was interesting because surprising, but Val still regarded it as a game. He looked at the girl, while she, apparently unconscious of or indifferent to his nearness, slowly turned leaf after leaf. She turned so many that Loveland grew impatient. Besides, a man had begun to walk up and down in front of the line of Smythe chairs, fastening upon him so baleful an eye that he feared at any instant to be dispossessed of his borrowed resting place.

SHE SLOWLY TURNED LEAF AFTER LEAF.

At last he decided to be bold and wait no longer.

"What am I to do if Mr. James R. Smythe comes along and orders me out?" he asked pleasantly in a low yet conversational tone.

The girl glanced up for the first time, suddenly and as if startled. She had the air of having been deeply absorbed in her book and of not being sure that her neighbor had spoken to her; also she looked extremely young and innocent.

"I said what am I to do if Mr. James R. Smythe comes along and orders me out?" Val repeated.

"That's what I thought you said," replied the girl, meeting his admiring, quizzical eyes with a somewhat bewildered yet defensive gaze. "But—why should you say it to me?"

"Isn't that rather hard hearted of you?" asked Loveland.

"I don't understand you at all," said the girl. "You look like a gentleman, so I suppose you can't mean to be rude or impertinent. But if not you seem to be talking nonsense."

This was straightforward, to say the least, yet her voice was so sweet and girlish, with such a dainty little drawl in it, that the rebuke did not sound as severe as if spoken with sharper accents.

"Of course I don't mean to be rude or impertinent," Loveland defended himself, at a loss for the next move in the game. "But I thought—that is, I mean—you know, that is my chair. I'm delighted you should have it"—

"Your chair?" echoed the girl. "Oh, you are mistaken. No wonder, if you thought that I—but even then you couldn't have dreamed I'd take it on purpose."

"No-o, I"— began Loveland, looking guilty.

Her eyes were on him. "You did think so!" she exclaimed. "I see you did. That was why you—and yet I don't see how you could have fancied I should know who you were unless—are you a very famous person?"

Lord Loveland laughed rather foolishly. "I think you've punished me enough," he said.

"Then you admit that you deserve to be punished?"

"Perhaps."

"Which means that you did believe I took your chair on purpose."

"I didn't stop to think," said Loveland, telling the truth as usual, but less truculently than usual.

"You are English, aren't you?" the girl asked, looking at him with her brown, bewildering eyes.

"Oh, yes," replied Loveland in a tone which added, "of course."

"I was sure you were. I suppose you don't understand American girls very well or perhaps any girls yet. But, then, few men do really, except poets or novelists. And you're not a poet or a novelist?"

"Rather not!"

"You speak as though I'd asked if you were a pickpocket. Do you despise writers?"

"I'd be sorry to be one. Wouldn't you?" The girl laughed.

"I am one," she said. "I write stories."

"You're chaffing."

"No, I'm not. Why should you think so?"

"Oh, well, because you don't look as if you wrote."

"Thank you. I suppose you mean that for a compliment. But women who write aren't scarecrows nowadays, if they ever were."

"Well, anyhow, you're too young."

"I've been writing stories and getting them published, too, ever since I was sixteen. That's some years ago now. Please don't say you wouldn't have thought it! That would be too obvious even for an average American's idea of an average Englishman."

"As you thought," said Loveland, "I don't know much about Americans yet. I'm going over to the States to learn."

"The States! How English that sounds! We think we're all of America—all that's worth talking about in ordinary conversation. You thought I'd taken your chair. I believe you really did think that."

"I did," admitted Val.

"I wonder why. My aunt's name is on it."

"Oh!" said Loveland.

"See," went on the girl, leaning forward and displaying the label in the deck steward's handwriting.

"I do see," said Val. "But that happens to be my name."

"Loveland?"

"Yes."

The girl blushed brightly. And she was more attractive than ever when she blushed. "Oh, how very odd! Then perhaps this is your chair! How perfectly horrid!" She began to unwind herself from the rug which was wrapped round her as a chrysalis round an incipient butterfly.

"Please don't get up." Loveland's tone was almost imploring. "Do keep the chair. I want you to keep it."

"Thank you very much. But I don't want to keep it if it's yours, and I think now it probably is."

"But you expected to find yours here."

"No; it wasn't that. But as I was passing I saw my aunt's name on the back of a chair, and because the deck steward had been told to put one in a nice sheltered place I took it for granted that this was hers. I didn't know there was another Loveland on the passenger list."

"I noticed there was a Mrs. Loveland," said Val, "but didn't think much about it, as she wasn't likely to turn out a relative of mine. And my name isn't on the list. I came in the place of—another man."

As he made this explanation, with a slight pause which meant the recollection of his promise to Jim Harborough, Major Cadwallader Hunter went by, walking slowly, and, having long distance ears, heard as he passed. He was waiting for his chance to "nobble" Lord Loveland, and afterward he remembered those few last words which he had caught.

"I'll go and look for the other Loveland chair," said the girl.

"You must do nothing of the sort," exclaimed Val.

"Oh, it's easy to see you're an Englishman. American men don't order us about like that."

Loveland laughed. "I didn't order you about. I ordered you to sit still."

"That's just as bad. You have the air of being used to give orders."

"I am. You see, I'm a soldier."

"Oh, what a relief! I began to be afraid you were a duke."

The Most Industrious Store in Newark---The City of Industry

20,000 PAIRS OF STOCKINGS
IN THIS GREAT 3-DAYS' SALE

The biggest importers and the biggest domestic mills have contributed big lots of stockings for this event, which is made to duplicate a similar sale held a year ago, and which was such a tremendous success. Were it not for the fact that we are able to buy and sell extraordinary quantities of goods we could not have undertaken this sale, nor could we have secured such low prices from the mills and the makers.

It will be well to remember that there have been constant advances in the cost of hosiery which we are overcoming by this big movement of dependable makes. The sale will continue over Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, during which time it will surely pay you to stock up for the Fall and Winter season.

Lot 1. Women's Stockings—blacks or tans, in fine Lisles; standard 25c grades, priced at. 17c

Lot 2. Women's Stockings of Fine Lisle and Cotton; various styles; blacks, tans or colors; 35c and 39c grades for. 27c

PLAINFIELD AND KEARNY TEAMS PLAY TIE GAME

The American Types of Jersey City, being unable to play the Plainfield Association Football club here on Saturday, a game was arranged with the Kearney United. During the early stages of the game both teams played carefully and took little chances, the play being mainly around mid-field. Then the locals let themselves out and made several good attempts for a goal, but were unable to score. The defence of the Kearneys was particularly good. The visitors met with no success in their efforts for a goal in this half.

In the second half, the Kearneys got down to busness and made some fine rushes to the local's goal, but the strong play of Craig put them back on every rush, his long kicking being magnificent. The locals then took a long run down field and Heaume gave Hosie a nice pass, which he succeeded in beating Barclay with, giving Plainfield the first point of the game. Then the Kearneys gave McNeice a few trials, which he succeeded in clearing nicely. A corner kick was awarded to the visitors on which they secured the equalizing goal.

The locals then bombarded the visitors' goal during the last ten minutes of play, but were unsuccessful in scoring and time was called with a tie score of 1 to 1. The lineup:

ROOSEVELT TO SPEAK FOR VIVIAN M. LEWIS

While Newark will be continued as the Republican headquarters during the campaign, Trenton will be in the thick of the fight, too, as Vivian M. Lewis, the party's gubernatorial candidate, will make his headquarters there, as will United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, who is likely to succeed Franklin Murphy as the chairman of the State Committee. It is likely that the committee will open a branch office at Trenton.

The committee will meet this week, at which time it is expected Mr. Murphy will retire as chairman and Mr. Briggs will be named for the post. In anticipation of this the latter is planning his personal work so that he may devote practically all of his time during the campaign to striving for the success of the ticket.

Mr. Lewis has planned a tour of the State and will spend much of his time on the stump. Efforts will be made to have Theodore Roosevelt come to New Jersey during the campaign and make a speech or two in behalf of the Republican standard bearer.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The first fall meeting of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held in the parish house Thursday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold its first fall meeting tomorrow afternoon in the lecture room at 3:30 o'clock and all the members are urged to attend this rally service. Mrs. R. V. Kinney, superintendent, will be in charge.

The annual all day sewing meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held in the chapel Thursday, Sept. 29. Sewing will begin at 9 a. m. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and an offering will be taken to defray the expense. All members are urged to attend.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will hold a "homecoming" social in Vincent chapel Friday evening. All members and attendants of the church are invited to attend. The chapel has been thoroughly renovated during the summer and the church members will be glad to note the improvement.

Proctor's Good Show.

Roland Sargeant's comedy sketch, "A Quiet Life," is making a hit at Proctor's theatre this week, and Commodore Tom, a clever pony, well educated, delights the children. Hathaway's Indian Tableaux, a tale of Indian life, comprises twelve beautiful posings, while Brooks & Jeanette, comedians, are good.

In the Borough Court.

Lee Young, of the borough, was arrested on Somerset street yesterday for intoxication. In the borough court this morning Recorder Dolliver suspended a $5 fine over his head on his promising to behave.

MISS BUGDEN'S WEDDING

Daughter of Geo. T. Bugden the Bride of D. Angus Scurry, of Carbonale.

WAS A DOUBLE CEELBRATION.

Her Parents Observe Their Thirty-Fifth Wedding Anniversary the Same Evening at Their Home.

Miss Mary Tilden Bugden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bugden, and Daniel Angus Scurry, of Carbondale, Pa., were married at 7:30 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 68 Randolph road, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends from Albany, N. Y., New York, Rahway, Plainfield and Carbondale, Pa. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Mrs. William Poeller, of Orange, as matron-of-honor, and the best man was Robert McMillan, of Carbondale. The bride was given in marrage by her father. Immediately following the ceremony, the couple received congratulations and supper was served.

The bride was gowned in chiffon voile over messaline satin, trimmed with baby Irish lace and carried a bridal bouquet. The matron-of-honor wore an embroidered gown over green silk, and she carried white asters. The flower children were Jack and Mary Head, of Rahway, former pupils of the bride, when she taught school at Rahway. The ushers were Frank McCullough, Willard W. James, William D. Houghton and Leon M. Hanaford, of this city.

A feature, making the affair of double interest, was that the bride's parents also celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of their wedding yesterday, and they, too, received congratulations. Mr. Scurry's gift to the bride was a pearl and diamond necklace. The wedding march, from Mendelssohn, was played by Miss Matilda Geise-High, of Rahway.

The home was elaborately decorated for the occasion. In the parlor there was an attractive arrangement of greens and autumn leaves, forming a bower beneath which the couple stood during the ceremony. This decorative scheme was carried out in the dining room.

The bride received a large number of gifts, including silverware, cutglass, furniture, linen, etc. Later in the evening the couple left on a wedding trip, after which they will reside at Carbondale, where the groom is engaged in the jewelry business. He is one of the prominent residents of that city. The bride was a teacher in the Rahway public schools for several years and is popular in a large circle of friends.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF JAMES W. RALPH HELD.

The funeral services of James W. Ralph were held yesterday afternoon from the late home at Mt. Bethel and were largely attended by relatives and friends, including many of the older residents. Mr. Ralph was well known throughout Somerset county, having been a member of the county Democratic committee. He was a mason by trade. He died on Saturday after an illness of several months.

Rev. Peter Gibbs, pastor of the Baptist church, Millington, conducted the services yesterday, during which he spoke of the exemplary life of the departed. The burial was at the cemetery in Mt. Bethel, the bearers being chosen from among Mr. Ralph's neighbors.

Miss Hagan Surprised.

Miss Alice Hagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hagan, of 417 Spruce street, was tendered a surprise party Sunday afternoon in honor of the tenth anniversary of her birthday. Twenty-five of her young friends were present to enjoy a program of music and games. Miss Hagan received a number of gifts. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

Bride and Groom Visiting Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goeller, who were married at Greensburg, Pa., last Monday, were guests of friends and relatives here yesterday. Mr. Goeller, who is the son of Mrs. H. A. Bergen of Arlington avenue, formerly lived here. He is now connected with the State constabulary of Pennsylvania. His bride was Miss Mabel May Connell, of Point Pleasant.

Removes to New York.

W. J. Counihan bade adieu to the city as a resident yesterday by removing his household goods to New York. His home will be at 149th street and Riverside Drive. Mr. Counihan has leased his Park avenue residence to M. S. Homan, of New York.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS NEAR TROLLEY TRACK

James Caulfield Jr., of Johnston avenue, was found lying unconscious beside the trolley tracks at Second street and Jackson avenue at 11 o'clock last night, and was taken in that condition to his home. A cursory examination of the man at his home did not reveal any bruises nor did he appear to be suffering from any injuries this morning when Captain Frederickson, of the police department, saw him. No physician was called.

According to the story told by two men who were with Caulfield on the car, there was some trouble with the conductor regarding the payment of fare. All three men, the police say, were more or less under the influence of liquor, and it is the supposition that Caulfield fell off the car unnoticed by his friends or the conductor. George Scribner, of 611 East Sixth street, found the prostrate figure and notified the police. It was said by the police that Fred Gutman and Edward Heath, of Scotch Plains, were Caulfield's companions.

FONDNESS FOR LIQUOR GETS THREE IN TROUBLE

There was an array of prisoners at police headquarters this morning all of the overnight variety and a considerably mixed collection. First there was Margaret Baker, of Paterson, who has been here before and always has had an excuse for her condition. This time she came to visit friends, but they moved away and so, to console herself for the disappointment she drank freely. She was first found in the women's room of the North avenue station partially disrobed. At 8 o'clock she was found helpless on North avenue and Patrolman Nolan had her removed to police headquarters. She was given another chance to get back to Paterson by Judge Runyon this morning.

Edward Washington, colored, who has the record of not missing a year in the past five years of getting into the clutches of the police on the charge of drunkenness, was up before the judge again this morning. He promised the court that he would never offend again, and the judge promised him sixty days in the county jail if he did. William G. DeMeza, who was referred to by the judge as his probable successor, was present and took a note of the two guarantees.

Jacob Saylor, who claimed to hail from Fineville, Pa., and who was walking home after a debauch in Newark, became insolent when he was refused food at some houses in East Third street yesterday afternoon and when he applied at the home of former Patrolman Theodore Martin, he declared that he wanted some tea and cake and wanted it quick. He was escorted to headquarters in the patrol wagon, where his appetite was not satisfied. He was repentant this morning and Judge Runyon permitted him to go on to Fineville.

MISS E. V. DeCAMP NOW MRS. JOHN RALPH EVANS.

Miss Everette Virginia DeCamp, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo DeCamp, formerly of North Plainfield, and John Ralph Evans, of East Orange, were quietly married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents in Westfield, by Rev. William Irwin Steins, pastor of the Fresbyterian church, of that place. There were no attendants, and the ceremony was witnessed by only the relatives and a few friends.

The bride and groom formerly resided at Chester, Morris county, and the former has many friends here where she has visited frequently and where her parents lived for many years. After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in the Oranges. Mr. Evans is engaged in business in New York.

Y. M. C. A. Concert October 20.

Announcement is made that the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, under the leadership of Martin A. Korff, will give its first concert at the association hall, Thursday night, October 20, and admission will be free. An offering will be received during the evening, according to the usual custom. The orchestra is now holding frequent rehearsals and a fine program is assured.

Will Hold Rally Day Exercises.

The Sunday school teachers of the Temple Baptist church met last night and decided to hold rally day exercises Sunday afternoon with a special program. There will be graduation exercises and presentation of diplomas. L. W. Randolph, as superintendent of the school, will have charge of the program.

WALTER J. TRAVIS HERE

Golt Champion on the Plainfield Country Club Course Today.

ATTRACTS LARGE GALLERY.

Guest of Leighton Calkin, Local Club President, at Luncheon and Resumes the Game this Afternoon.

Walter J. Travis, winner of the British championship, and winner of the American national event three times, is the guest of Leighton Calkins, president of the Plainfield Country Club, today, and will try to beat the best record for the course. He played a round of 18 holes this morning and is going over the course this afternoon again. As was to be expected, Mr. Travis attracted a large gallery, more than fifty golfers following the well known player on his rounds. This is the first time that Mr. Travis has visited the local links and his presence here has aroused considerable interest.

This morning Mr. Travis was joined in the play by Mr. Calkins, R. S. Rowland and J. Whitney Baker. The totals for the morning round did not offer any great surprises in the way of breaking records. Mr. Travis and Mr. Calkins were tied for the first eighteen holes with a score of 77, while Mr. Rowland's card showed an 81 and Mr. Baker's card an 84. It was an ideal day for the game, the weather being a trifle cooler and more conducive to good golfing. It is expected that Mr. Travis will do his best work this afternoon, having become better acquainted with the course on his morning round. He made some remarkably fine drives this morning and his putting was the admiration of the gallery.

Following the morning round, Mr. Travis was the guest of Mr. Calkins at dinner. There were a number of friends present to meet the champion player during the intermission. Mr. Travis expressed himself as well pleased with the course and commented upon its excellent condition.

Considering that Mr. Travis was not acquainted with the course, his playing was considered excellent. He had a little hard luck coming in, requiring six strokes on the thirteenth hole. He made a total of 36 going out and 41 coming in. The record score for the course is 70 His card follows:

Out . . 4 4 4 3 5 4 4 4 4—36
In . . 4 4 4 6 5 4 5 5 4—41—77

'WILL SAY SOME THINGS' AT MOY MASS MEETING

The Bi-partisan Municipal League will fire the opening gun in its mayoralty campaign on Thursday night, Oct. 6, at Reform hall. Some hot shot is promised by George W. V. Moy, the Bi-partisan-Democratic nominee for mayor. The other speakers are not announced. It is expected that Richard Henry Depew, president of the league and president of the New Jersey People's Lobby, will preside.

According to the notice published today Mr. Moy "will say some things—so will other folks." The League slogan is "No party lines in municipal politics."

The executive committee of the League holds meetings every Saturday night at Mr. Moy's law offices.

Activity in the A. O. U. W.

Past Grand Master Workman Nash visited Hackettstown Lodge, A. O. U. W., Monday night. The meeting was the most interesting held by this lodge for many months and a large incrase in membership s looked for in the near future. Grand Master Workman Clopper is doing great work in the upbuilding of the order. In this city he is being assisted by Grand Inside Watchman J. W. A. Baursachs and Mr. Nash, of Columbia Lodge; Chairman William Newcorn of the finance committee and Past Master Workman H. R. Thorn, of Central Lodge, who are also very active in the order.

In Honor of Guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. Stout, of the New Madison, entertained a dozen friends at their home last evening, in honor of Mrs. William Rockefeller, of New York. Cards, music and refreshments were enjoyed. Mrs. Rockefeller has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stout for the past two weeks and returned home today.

Will Ride at Trenton.

George Simons, who has been doing some bicycle racing in this city and vicinity will ride at the Trenton fair today, and later at the fair to be held at Buffalo.

TO ESTABLISH AUTO CONCERN IN SO. AMERICA

Matthew D. Sweeny, Plainfield's former well known resident, has been selected by the Charles E. Miller concern, of New York, to go to Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, early in the coming year to locate a branch auto supply store. He was selected from a large list of applicants because of his success in the same line throughout the country, having started stores in Atlanta, Ga., New Orleans and Cleveland, O. He is now in charge of the Miller concern's branch house on Eight avenue near Columbus Circle, New York.

Mr. Sweeny will sail for Buenos Ayres the latter part of January and will remain until the local management has fully acquired the swing of metropolitan methods. The former will then return to New York. He has been with the Miller concern for the past six years and represents the house at all the leading automobile shows in the United States.

BIBLE CLASS CHEERS RUNYON AS CANDIDATE

The "Whites" entertained the "Reds" the rivals in a recent contest to increase the membership of the William N. Runyon Bible class of Hope chapel, in the chapel rooms last night and it was a merry feast and significant of the feeling among the members, both old and recent, toward Judge William N. Runyon who was the organizer of it. Judge Runyon at the conclusion of a speech to the class was given three hearty cheers and a tiger and hailed as the next Congressman from the Fifth district.

Howard McWilliams, the leader of the class, who succeeded Judge Runyon as the leader, was taken suddenly ill with pneumonia yesterday afternoon and this fact had a tendency to keep the spirits of the young men under restraint or the enjoyment would have been much keener. An orchestra furnished some fine music and before the feast some of the members enjoyed games.

After the supper speechmaking was in order and Ben Evans, the toastmaster, introduced the speakers. J. H. Manning, G. H. Condict, Dr. D. G. Atwood, John Leal, Arthur Fluck, Russell Randolph, James Penny and Harry Kartscher, all spoke, their themes being based on loyalty to the chapel and the class and to uphold and encourage the pastor, Rev. L. H. Howard. Harry Kartscher also contributed one of his inimitable recitations which was hugely enjoyed.

Judge Runyon in speaking of the class said that it was a class which could do much as they had attended the Sunday school for a good purpose. He urged the members to stand by the Sunday school, the pastor and the chapel even though at times sacrifices were necessary. He also pleaded with them to be loyal to Mr. McWilliams, more especially while he is ill as the knowledge that the class is going on in good shape would have a tendency to buoy him up and help toward his recovery. The young men rose up and cheered the speaker ending with a tiger.

The committee having the supper in charge was composed of Charles J. Vincent, Adam Schott, W. S. Terry, George A. Broadbent, Allen Snyder and John Lindsley.

The orchestra, made up of five pieces, was composed of Charles Fisher, first violin; William Comes, second violin; John Emery, first cornet; Edward H. Guest, second cornet, and LeRoy Guest, pianist. The class was increased in the contest which occupied a month, from 48 to 86 members.

Slight Fire.

A small shed in the rear of Mrs. Elizabeth DeForest's home at 435 West Second street, caught fire in some unknown way last night. The fire department responded to an alarm from box 46 at 8:07 and put out the blaze with extinguishers. The damage was trifling.

AUXILIARY OF PYTHIANS

Temporary Organization Effected by Plainfield and Rahway Knights.

WILL HAVE A CLUB ROOM.

V. W. Nash, Jr., Chairman, and Joseph E. Baker, Secretary—Committee on Charter Roll Appointed.

At a meeting in the rooms of Union lodge, No. 102, K. of P., last night, steps were taken by representatives of Pythian organizations in the district to form a Pythian auxiliary. Temporary organization was effected by the election of V. W. Nash, Jr., as chairman and Joseph E. Baker secretary. The charter list starts with a membership of fifty, and will be kept open for a month.

The attendants at last night's meeting included delegations from Union lodge, Perseverance lodge and Crescent company, uniformed rank, of this city, and Reliance lodge and P. Frank Shanley company, both of Rahway. The plan is to have an organization in which all the Pythians in the district may become interested and by unification promote social affairs to mutual advantage. It is also hoped to eventually have both the local lodges and Crescent company meet in the Unity rooms, thus making the place somewhat of a Pythian home, keeping it open at all times and installing pool tables and perhaps a set of bowling alleys. A committee composed of William Cass, chairman, James Anderson and V. W. Nash, Jr., was appointed to arrange for by-laws and organization, and details will be gone into at a meeting to be held the second week in October.

The charter list was placed in the hands of the following committee of six: Frank Putnam and Alfred Causebrook, of Unity lodge; A. J. Robinson and J. B. Higgins, of Perseverance lodge, and Captain John Cook and Sergeant Prendergast, of P. Frank Shanley company. At the conclusion of last night's meeting the attendants enjoyed refreshments and euchre.

TO TAKE HIS HEARERS THRU AFRICA'S WILDS

Arrangements were made last night at a meeting of the board of trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist church for a lecture to be given by the pastor, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire. It is scheduled for Thursday night, October 13. Dr. Maguire's subject will be "With an Irishman Through the Wilds of Africa."

The meeting was held at the home of John H. Doane and was presided over by George W. V. Moy, president of he board. Various reports were read, showing an encouraging condition in all departments of church work. Particularly gratifying was the report submitted by the treasurer, L. R. Schofield. Since Pastor Maguire took charge of the church, the revenues, particularly the Sunday offerings, have greatly increased. Other reports showed that the membership of the church has grown rapidly and that the congregatonal attendance at both the Sunday services and the prayer meetings are larger than ever.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR VETERAN DEAD AT COONTOWN.

George R. Giddes, aged 37 years, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, died yesterday morning at his home in Coontown from tuberculosis with which he had been afflicted for several months. He was born and always lived at Coontown, where he followed the pursuit of farming. He was the son of the late Noah Giddes, who was well known throughout Somerset county. He is survived by a mother, three brothers and a sister.

The funeral service will be held at Mt. Horeb M. E. church tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. MacRorie, will officiate. The burial will be in the cemetery adjoining the church at Mt. Horeb.

"Is Matrimony a Failure?" Coming.

"Is Matrimony a Failure?" David Belasco's great success, will be presented at The Plainfield theatre, Monday night, October 17, by the original company. On Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the stock company will present "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," to be followed on Thursday and Friday by "Lady Windermere's Fan." Later "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Wolf" will be produced by the local company.

DR. WILSON TO SPEAK HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

The committee being unable to obtain a larger auditorium, Reform hall was secured this morning for the mass meeting to be held tomorrow night under the auspices of the Plainfield Democratic club and the Woodrow Wilson club. Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, the Democratic Gubernatorial nominee, will be the chief speaker. The candidate will arrive here at 6 o'clock and will dine with a few prominent Union and Somerset county Democrats at Truell Inn.

In the party for dinner will be former Mayor William L. Saunders, president of the Woodrow Wilson club; LeRoy J. Ellis, president of the Democratic club; Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, and County Chairman William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, the party's nominee for Congress in the Fifth district.

Former Mayor Saunders will preside at the mass meeting. The vice-presidents will be announced by him tomorrow. The seating capacity of the hall is about 800, but if necessary an overflow meeting will be held in front of the building.

Tomorrow afternoon Dr. Wilson will make an address at the Trenton fair.

ARMY HERO TO WED TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock Patrolman George K. Dobson and Miss Ada Alice Bright, of 427 West Seventh street, will be married in Mr. Dobson's new home, 1235 Cameron avenue, by Rev. Elory G. Bowers curate of Grace Episcopal church. Thomas H. Leggett will give the bride away.

Patrolman Dobson has an enviable record both in the service of Uncle Sam and with the local police department. While with the army in the Philippines he received recommendations for bravery and when with the flying squadron of the 8th United States Army Corps he did distinguished service in the "Fighting 14th" regiment. For a time he was one of the scouts attached to the flying squadron and made good there.

At the time of the Boxer uprising in China in 1900, the 14th was sent to the scene of the trouble and the men of Uncle Sam's army, as is well known, fought their way to Peking against the hordes of opposing Chinamen, finally scaling the walls of the city in a manner to command the respect of the entire world. The company of which Mr. Dobson was a member was the first to scale the wall and hoist the stars and stripes there at the peril of their lives. Calvin Titus, a musician, was the first man up with Edward E. Davis, who will be best man at the wedding tomorrow, and Mr. Dobson was close behind him. The flags thus planted are now at the Military Academy at West Point. The rest of the story is now history, and Mr. Dobson is justly proud that he helped to make it. He fought under General Lawton in the Philippines and participated in every battle of that memorable campaign against the little brown men.

The cosey cottage on Camden avenue has been tastefully furnished by the groom and the couple will return to live there after a honeymoon trip.

Police Court Note.

As Rachel Lumm, of Westfield, failed to appear this morning in police court to press her charge against William Jones, of Liberty street, for obtaining money from her on what appeared to be a bogus check, the case was dismissed by Judge Runyon when the amount claimed, $1.90, was turned over to Jones' counsel, William G. DeMeba, by Undertaker Henry DeMott. Mr. DeMott was Jones' bondsman in the case. Both complainant and defendant are colored.

Infant Daughter's Funeral.

The funeral of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Farrell, of 907 West Third street, took place at the home yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery. The sympathy of a large circle of friends was extended to the parents of the child. Mr. Farrell is president of the Plainfield branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

Dr. McCrea's Son Operated On.

Frank G. McCrea, the two-year-old son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea, of Jersey City, was operated on at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday for adeniods and tonsilitis. Drs. Endicott and Probasco were the physicians and the little fellow was doing well today. Dr. McCrea was formerly pastor of the First M. E. church.

AUTO CLUB'S QUESTIONS

Plainfield Automobilists to Quiz Candidates for the Legislature.

WANT THE LAW AMENDED.

Favor Reciprocity Between States, Good Roads and No Personal Taxes on Cars—Wood and and Bonnell Speak.

Some political significance is attached to the mass meeting of automobilists held last night under the auspices of the Plainfield Automobile Club as some candidates for the Assembly and Senate will discover before long. About forty automobile owners were present and the resolutions were carried unanimously. One which the autoists consider the most important offered by F. O. Ball, authorized the appointment of a committee of three to get the views of candidates for election for the Assembly and Senate so that their attitude on six questions to be submitted to them may be placed before all automobile owners for their consideration on November 8. The clubs all over the State are taking similar action in trying to have the law changed regarding non-resident automobilists. What is wanted is a reciprocity bill which will permit owners from New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts entering this State for a period of eight or ten days without being forced to pay a license. This once obtained would let down the bars now up against New Jersey in those States.

Road conditions also came in for much discussion. J. H. Wood, president of the Association of Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, and H. A. Bonnell, secretary of the association and treasurer of the American Automobile Association spoke at length on this subject. The former declared that the Edge bill, which they worked so hard for at the last session of the Legislature, was killed in the Senate through the influences of Senator Frelinghuysen, but it cannot happen again in view of the work now beng done by automobile owners to get a similar measure through during the coming winter. Mr. Wood said that the automobile question was a serious one and it would be a good thing to find out where the trouble lies and apply the remedy. He said the automobilists of this State are paying a million dollars a year in taxes and there was no reason why they could not have a reciprocity law.

Mr. Bonnell, who spoke first, said the owners wanted laws: First, one for reciprocity between States; to enforce the law covering lights on vehicles at night; remove the personal tax on cars, and for road signs, recommending that $2,000 a year be taken from the license fund for the latter purpose. He also suggested a tribunal higher than the road commissioner to which appeals might be made by those who had had their licenses revoked.

F. O. Ball, president, Harry Marshall and Dr. F. C. Ard all spoke briefly and an open discussion took place on the merits of the resolutions.

The two resolutions introduced by Alexander Milne had for their objects first, the devising of ways and means to secure proper automobile legislation as in the judgment of the officers and directors of the club deem wise, having due regard for the wishes of automobilists of this vicinity. And second, that the Commissioner of Highways be requested to adopt some system whereby the roads can be constantly supervised and repaired before being allowed to get in such condition that it is necesray to rebuild and re-surface them.

The other set of resolutions were copies of those passed in Newark by the Newark Automobile club and other clubs in different cities. They consist of seven articles and their contents follow:

That amendments to the present law be made to provide, first, that non-resident automobilists be allowed to visit the State for a limited time without expense to them; second, that the law requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night be amended so that it can be enforced; third, that the horse power of cars for license purposes shall be rated A. L. A. M. and not upon the manufacturer's rating; fourth, that in consideration of the large sums paid to the State for license fees that the tax on automobiles be discontinued; fifth, that $2,000 per year, for at least three years, be set aside for the erecting of proper guiding signs upon the highways where required; sixth, that motorists shall have the right to appeal to the Supreme Court from the decisions of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles; and last, that a law be enacted requiring gates at all grade crossings where the railroads operate over a private right of way, crossing a public highway.

Scene From "The Arcadians," at Planfield Theatre next Monday Night.

"The Arcadians" leading the simple life in a delicious bit of woodland, wearing Grecian draperies of mauve, blue, gray and gold, are startled by the arrival of John Smith, leatherclad, whiskered, who lands on his ear from an aeroplane. The Arcadians dip the monster in the "Well of Truth," from which he emerges in sandals, tights and a curly wig, much resembling a dissipated Cupid. The Arcadians piloted by Smith go to London to reform the Metropolis. Charles Frohman will present the London company in "The Arcadans" at the Plainfield theatré Monday night, October 3, after finishing the second season of its most remarkable run at the New York theatre. It is very seldom that a company after it leaves the metropolis present the same cast of principals, but Mr. Frohman promises the New York company when it comes to this city.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Plainfield people testify.
Here's one case of it:

Mrs. J. Mottley, 546 West Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble three years ago and I have never had a return of it since. I am glad to confirm the public statement I gave in favor of this remedy at that time."

The endorsement to which Mrs. Mottley refers was given on August 26, 1905, and was substantially as follows: "About two months ago I was seized by a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back part of my head. I could not rest well and had no strength or energy to do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at Randolph's drug store, gave me prompt relief and I am convinced that they are a first-class remedy."

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Mrs. Jacob Sourmilch, of Bartle avenue, is still quite ill at Muhlenberg Hospital, where she was taken a week ago. Her condition, however, is said to be improving slowly.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead, pastor of the Methodist church, is expected to return Saturday from his vacation, which has been spent at his home in Ohio.

Miss Glorybell Moffett, of Westfield avenue, has returned from a week's visit with relatives and friends at Kearney.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander MacCauley, of Bartle avenue, have been entertaining relatives and friends from out of town.

Mrs. Benjamin Clark's house on Prospect avenue looks much improved by a new coat of paint.

A meeting of the Town Committee will be held Friday night in the town rooms.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The low water in the New Market pond seems to have improved the fishing to offset the poor boating. Several good catches have been reported recently among them one by Richard Randolph, of Clinton avenue, who landed six nice bass. They averaged about two pounds each.

W. G. Runyon is now comfortably established in the middle store of his new building on North avenue. The offices have been commodiously fitted up and are complete in every detail. Earl Ising has taken a temporary position with Mr. Runyon as assistant.

Assessor John H. L. Peters has returned from Woodside, L. I., where he visited relatives. Mrs. Peters has been at Woodside and Miss Elsie Peters left for there today to attend the wedding of a relative.

A large number of Dunellen and New Market residents went to Trenton today to attend the Inter-state fair.

Miss Ethel Garretson has returned to her duties at the postoffice after a visit with friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Ethel Humphrey, of Plainfield, was the guest of friends in the borough yesterday.

Jacob Fisher, of Washington avenue, is entertaining his brother from Bridgeton.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held at the West End Tabernacle this evening.

The monthly communion service will be held at the First Baptist church on Sunday.

Rally day exercises will be held at the First M. E. church Sunday school, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A short business meeting will be held at the First Baptist church this evening in connection with the mid-week prayer service.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will begin its fall meetings, Friday afternoon at the usual hour.

The annual convention of the Union County Sunday school Association will be held in the First M. E. church, Thursday, October 20.

10,000 BRICKLAYERS LOCKED OUT IN N. Y. CITY.

Not a brick will be laid during the coming week on any of the important building operations under way in New York City.

A lockout of 10,000 bricklayers for alleged violations of their agreement in ordering strikes against a member of a builders' association went into effect at midnight Monday. The employers will not try to fill the places of the men for a week and during that time building operations will cease so far as bricklayers' work is concerned.

If at the end of that period the situation remains the same, bricklayers will be brought here from all parts of the country.

BELIEVE THAT BOY IS KIDNAPPERS' VICTIM.

Peter Cirincion, six years old, a son of a wealthy Armenian merchant of Union Hill, disappeared from school Monday in circumstances which lead the police to believe he was kidnapped and is being held for ransom. Playmates of the boy say he was accosted by two men during the noon hour, and taken to a candy store at the Hackensack Plank road and Clinton avenue.

Here the men bought for him two cents' worth of candy and the trio disappeared. About 3 o'clock the party was seen in a carriage, driving northward.

Women's $25.00 Suits

"What shall I pay for a tailored suit?" This is a question that nearly every woman is asking herself. Many women imagine that it is impossible to buy much style and goodness under $40.00, but this opinion is based largely upon the $25.00 lines which many stores show. Don't mistake us, we do not claim that our $25.00 suits are worth $40.00, but we do claim that our $25.00 suits can not be equaled at the price either here or in New York. This is not idle talk, either—we know whereof we speak. Newest materials including diagonals and fancy weaves—black, navy and the most desirable shades of the season—smart coats lined with best grade of silk or satin—skirts fashioned in popular styles—splendidly tailored. Won't you permit us to show you through this line tomorrow? Won't you allow us to prove our claims

Great Sale Willow Plumes at Savings of $2.50 to $7.25 Per Plume, According to Size

Without the slightest question or doubt, we present to our patrons today the most extraordinary offer of the popular willow ostrich plumes yet announced in Newark. When you stop to think of what an enormous demand there is for these beautiful drooping plumes, and how practically every suggestion eminating from Paris at present calls for these graceful adornments, it seems impossible that the demand should be met at all. And then, when right at the very threshold of what will be by every indication a "Willow" winter, such savings as these are offered—well, every store in New York and Newark will be all agog wondering how WE do it, and how they're going to TRY to do it.

Acting upon advance information received through our Foreign office, we had America's foremost maker utilize his full working force all summer getting these plumes in readiness, and this at a time when we were able to save considerably on both the raw material and the labor. All are of extra prime stock, carefully selected, rich and glossy, with full flues and fibre, and offered at the following savings:

Reservation till Oct. 20th on reasonable deposit if not ready to make outright purchase now.

SAVE $2.50 on regular $7.50 high-grade black or white plumes..... $5.00

GOLF.

There will be no match between Eastern and Western women golf teams this fall. That much was announced yesterday by Mrs. E. F. Sanford, president of the Women's Eastern Golf Association, after becoming satisfied that this part of the country was going to be slimly represented in the national championship tournament to be held over the links of the Homewood Country Club, at Flossmore, Ill., from October 10 to 15. Heretofore the matches between the Eastern and Western women's associations have been held coincident with the United States Golf Association championship, and up to date the Eastern team has won two legs on the W. B. Thomas Trophy.

No match took place last year, for the reason that the West found it impossible to muster a team, which would have had to travel to the Merion Cricket Club, near Philadelphia. The West offered to default, but the Women's Eastern Golf Association would not accept a victory that way. It is quite likely, therefore, that the Western women will now return the compliment by refusing to take the cup without playing for it.

So far as can be learned, the Eastern players have never been in accord with the action of the United States Golf Association in awarding the tournament to the West this year. The contention hereabouts is that it is better to hold the championship in the East, where a majority of the best players reside. As a matter of fact, all the women's national tournaments from 1896 to 1902, inclusive, were decided in the East. Since then, however, the West has had its share, for in 1903 the tournament went to Wheaton, to Midlothian in 1907, and now Homewood gets it.

A rather significant announcement comes in the statement that the Country Club of Brookline has arranged to hold an invitation tournament for women on October 17 to 20. It can be seen at a glance that this immediately follows the national dates, so that it would be next to impossible for golfers to compete in both. Furthermore, a golfer says that in all probability nearly the entire strength of the East would be represented at Brookline, and she added: "This should show the United States Golf Association that we won't go West so often."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S AFRICAN BOOK READY.

After months of preparation, and careful supervision since his return by Mr. Roosevelt, his great book, "African Game Trails," appears all over the United States, in England, France, Germany and Sweden, on Wednesday, August 24th. In order that the tremendous initial demand might be promptly met, Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons have printed the book both in the East and the West, and every effort is making to distribute the book with equal celerity through the dozen or more central agencies of Messrs. Scribner in the great cities from New York to San Francisco. Owing to the railway strike several carloads of paper were delayed on the Grand Trunk, and for this reason it is possible that some persons may not receive their copies as promptly as others.

This volume is a large octavo of more than five hundred pages printed from beautiful type and elaborately illustrated. It contains more than forty thousand words that did not appear during the seriol publication, and in addition numerous pictures made especially for the volume. The subjects for the original drawings were selected by Mr. Roosevelt and they were made under his advice. More than a thousand agents have been at work for some time selling this book by means of an elaborate prospectus, and new applications are being received at the rate of about one hundred a day for territory, so that every corner of this country will soon be reacher, and, with the large facilities of the publishers, it is believed that even the unprecedented demand will be promptly filled. It is doubtful whether any volume has attracted the world-wide attention of this and has so large an audience ready and eager to secure the finished work of the most distinguished American at the present day and the one best known to all civilized nations.

POLITICAL TALK.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University and Democratic Gubernatorial nominee, will open his campaign in Jersey City tonight. He will make three speeches and preparations have been made to give him a rousing welcome and let him know that a large portion of the voting population of Hudson county favors him. The first meeting will be held in St. Peter's Hall, at a quarter to eight o'clock, and Dr. John D. McGill will preside. From there Dr. Wilson will go to St. Patrick's Hall, and Patrick O'Mara will introduce him. Over the last meeting, which is to be held in Grand View Hall, at a quarter to ten o'clock, Edward Hoos, formerly mayor of Jersey City, will preside. Mayor Wittpenn, who at the primaries was a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination, will take no part in any of the meetings.

The Republican convention for the Sixth Congressional district met yesterday at Paterson and nominated Major S. Wood McClave, of Bergen county. Senator John D. Prince presided. The Democratic convention of the same district renominated William Hughes, the present Representative.

Members of the New Jersey State Republican committee are planning to present a loving cup to Franklin Murphy, State chairman, when he retires as head of the committee. The suggestion for such a token came from Hamilton Kean. The presentation address will be made by United States Senator John Kean.

BACHELORS DANCE IN SCOTCH PLAINS.

The tenth social dance of the Bachelors Club, of Scotch Plains, was held in Excelsior hall in that village last night and proved to be a most enjoyable affair. The friends who came from out of town declared it to have been the best ever given by the club. Guests were present from Bayonne, Westfield, Plainfield and Scotch Plains.

The hall has been re-floored making one of the best dancing surfaces in any hall in the immediate vicinity. It was filled to its capacity last night and the couples tripped the light fantastic toe to the music furnished by Suhr's orchestra until the early morning hours. The committee did everything possible for the comfort of the guests.

Pretty decorations were a feature which pleased the dancers. This club has become very popular since its organization last year and a regular cliente look forward to the periodical dances given by the members.

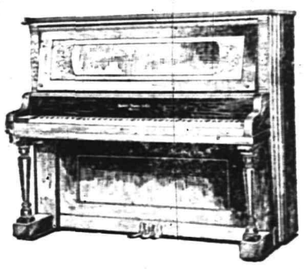
HALLET & DAVIS



QUALITY

In any other piano will cost you at least $150 more than the Hallet & Davis Price.

We do not claim that the Hallet & Davis is the best piano made. There are a few fine makes in the same class and we claim no superiority. But we claim there are none better. And we know that the HALLET & DAVIS QUALITY in any other piano will cost you at least $150 more.

It is the one piano made today enjoying the preference of discriminating and particular people that is sold at a moderate price.

It is the one piano made today with the prestige of an honored name for which no charge is made for the name.

Expensive patents and improvements have been added from time to time without adding to the cost to the purchaser.

If you can buy a Hallet & Davis you have the satisfaction of owning a piano whose very name means QUALITY, at the same time you have the satisfaction of knowing you have purchased PIANO VALUE alone

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of a refined taste.

SILZER WANTS PROTECTION.

Asks Police to Stop Annoyance from Baker.

Senator George S. Silzer called upon Chief of Police O'Connell at New Brunswick yesterday for protection from the annoyances of Theodore Simmen, a former baker of Perth Amboy. The Senator claims that Simmen has been calling at his office continuously and interfering with his business.

The chief warned the man to keep away and Simmen then called upon Mayor Morrison and complained of police interference.

—Chief of Police P. S. Kiely is enjoying some fine hunting and fishing in the Maine woods. It is reported that he has had great success with the rod and gun.

BOTH WILSON AND LEWIS AT BIG FAIR TOMORROW.

This is "farmers' day" and Thursday the Gubernatorial candidates, Woodrow Wilson and Vivian M. Lewis, will be at the Interstate Fair, now being held at Trenton.

Ralph Johnstone, one of the most experienced of the Wright brothers' corps of aviators, and who is an all-week feature at the fair, made a splendid and spectacular flight to the business centre of Trenton yesterday and return, the trip taking exactly twenty-three minutes.

Coma Case Puzzles Doctors.

Doctors who are in attendance are puzzled over the case of Mrs. Michael Deglan, thirty-five years old, of 180 Fulton street, Elizabeth, who was stricken on Wednsday last. Since then she has lain in a state of coma. The doctors say it is not a case of paralysis or of apoplexy. Up to the moment she was stricken, she appeared to be in good health.

HERE AND THERE.

Franklin K. Lane, the Interstate Commerce commissioner, who has just returned from Europe, called at the White House at Washington yesterday. He told the President among other things that while he was in Amsterdam he saw a "President Taft Cigar" advertised for sale in many of the stores.

"I suppose it was a three for five cigar," was the President's droll reply, as quoted by Commissioner Lane.

The commissioner hastened to assure Mr. Taft that it was a 10-cent straight cigar, and worth the money.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

R. H. Linridge, of Oak Tree, will have charge of a season end fishing trip to the Seabright bass grounds on October 5th. The seagoing steam pleasure yacht, "Hydraulic", with crew of six men and captain, has been chartered for this occasion.

Judge Smith has gone extensively into chicken raising, and the eggs gathered in the evening and sold the next day bring a big price.

Miss Blanche Lewis, of Mauch Chunk, is one of the primary teachers in the local school here. She is boarding with Mrs. Allen.

George Pace, who removed from here last spring, harvested an unusually large crop of peaches at his farm near Somerville.

The bungalow being built by Guion Fountain for an uncle living in New York is nearing completion.

Edward Hayman, who recently died in New Orleans, had many friends in the village.

Mr. Mueller has sold his farm near here and removed with his family to Brooklyn.

SUICIDE WAS A CAPTOR OF J. WILKES BOOTH

That John F. Shanley, the old soldier who committed suicide in a Commerce street lodging house, Newark last week, was a member of the detachment that ran down and killed John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Lincoln, was revealed Sunday when the widow called at Mullin's morgue to claim the body. Mrs. Shanley lives with a daughter at 7 Seventh street, Passaic. The body was interred in the Cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre yesterday afternoon.

Aside from his participation in the capture of Booth, Shanley had an interesting Civil War record, as shown by newspaper clippings and other documents produced by his wife. He took part in numerous battles and skirmishes and suffered imprisonment in Libby Prison.

Shanley was born in New York city July 17, 1845, and enlisted in the Union army May 16, 1863, at Buffalo, N. Y., as a member of the Sprague Light Cavalry. This organization was mustered into the service May 19, 1863, as Company B, Sixteenth New York Volunteer Cavalry.

At the battle of Culpepper Court House, Va., September 19, 1864, Shanley was wounded in the right hip and captured by the enemy. He was incarcerated in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va.; transferred to the prison at Danville, Va., and thence to Salisbury, N. C. He was paroled February 19, 1865, at Goldsboro, N. C., and entered the Union lines at Wilmington, N. C., February 22, 1865. He was honorably discharged as a member of Company C Third New York Provisional Cavalry, September 21, 1865.

In all, Shanley participated in upward of thirty skirmishes, engagements and difficult reconnaissances. From April 22 to 26 he was a member of the detachment under Lieutenant E. B. Doherty, which embarked on the steamer John B. Ode at Belle Plain, crossed the Rappahannock River and traced Booth and Herold to Garrett's farm.

There, on April 25-26, Herold was arrested and Booth was shot by a squad of men under Sergeant Boston Corbett. Shanley was a member of the party that brought Booth's body back to Washington and turned Herold over to the provost marshal.

LOSES HER STOCKING BANK.

Mrs. Samuels, Accused of Theft, Is Held.

Modesty Monday morning forbade Mrs. Annie Russell, of 332 Plane street, Newark, showing Judge Hahn her "bank" during the hearing of Mrs. Lillian Samuels, charged with robbing the "bank" of $23 while its owner was asleep.

Mrs. Russell, when the judge demanded to see the "bank", explained it was her stocking. He decided to be lenient and not charge her with contempt.

She said the Samuels woman entered her apartments on September 9 and stole the stocking containing $23. Mrs. Samuels was held under $300 bail.

LAWYER GETS VERDICT.

Is Awarded $4,581.85 from Mutual Insurance Company.

New Brunswick, Sept. 28.—In the Circuit Court Monday afternoon Ephraim Cutter, a lawyer of Woodbridge, recovered a verdict of $4,581.85 against the Rahway Mutual Fire Insurance Company being the insurance upon his dwelling in Woodbridge, which was destroyed by fire December 10, 1909.

The company had contended that the assessments on the mutual plan of insurance, had not all been paid.

Citizens Act as Cops.

Rahway, Sept. 28.—A gang of umbrella-menders were sent to the county jail Monday morning by Judge C. H. Lambert for thirty days for creating a disturbance Sunday in a lot off Elizabeth avenue. Besides being disorderly they had been panhandling passersby, becoming a nuisance. Policeman J. A. Smith called four or five citizens to assist him and captured the gang, which comprised nine men.

Mrs. Cleveland in Princeton.

Princeton, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Grover Cleveland, who spent the summer at her cottage at Tamworth, N. H., was in Princeton over Sunday. She went to New York the first of the week to see her son Richard og for Europe. He and Robert Finley, son of President John H. Rinley, of the City College, New York, will attend school at Lausanna, Switzerland where the former was in school last year.

Club to Hear Lewis.

Jersey City, Sept. 28.—Through Freeholder Candidate H. H. Apman, of the Fourth Ward, Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican candidate for Governor, has been invited to address the Fourth Ward Progressive Club. Mr. Lewis has accepted and will set a date for his visit in the course of a day or two. The club will escort him from the Pennsylvania Railroad depot into the clubhouse.

AN ORDINANCE

To Prescribe Conditions to be Complied with Before any Private Streets or Roads dedicated or Offered for Dedication Shall be Accepted by the City.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That any person or corporation contemplating laying out or locating and constructing any street or road in the City of Plainfield shall before beginning such construction submit to the Street Commissioner, the proposed plans therefor, in which shall be included an accurate designation of the location and grades of such street or streets, road or roads, and the sidewalks thereof, as proposed to be laid out as aforesaid, and the proposed manner of construction. Upon receipt of such plans by said Street Commissioner, together with a petition for their approval, said Street Commissioner shall consult with the Committee on Streets of the Common Council, and thereafter give a hearing to said petitioners, if they so request; after such hearing said petitioners may alter such plans if they so desire, and request the approval of said Street Commissioner of the plans so altered.

If said original or altered plans shall be approved by said Street Commissioner, he shall so indicate thereon in writing signed by him and file said plans in his office, and endorse thereon the date of such filing. Unless monuments properly defining the lines of the proposed street or road on any such plan have been already set, hard stone monuments, at least four inches square on top and at least two feet long, shall be forthwith set in sufficient numbers to definitely locate the lines of the proposed street or road. All curved streets or roads shall be laid out with regular curves, and sufficient data shall be shown on the maps to enable the streets or roads to be accurately located. Such approval of said plans or any other action by said Street Commissioner with respect thereto, or with respect to said proposed streets or roads, shall not operate as an acceptance of the same as public streets or roads, and acceptance of the same as public streets or roads shall not be effected except by ordinance of the Common Council, the Common Council hereby reserving full discretion in the premises, and the powers of the Common Council in regard to streets and roads shall not be abridged by this ordinance in any manner.

Section 2. After the passage of this ordinance, no proposed street or road in the City of Plainfield shown on any plan filed and approved by the Street Commissioner as aforesaid shall be laid out, located anew, altered, widened, or changed in grade, except in accordance with said plans, and no street or road heretofore or hereafter offered for dedication or acceptance by the City shall be accepted otherwise than by ordinance of the Common Council. If any person or corporation shall hereafter construct or open for public travel any private street or road the location, direction, width and grades of which and the manner of construction thereof have not previously been approved in writing by said Street Commissioner in the method provided in this ordinance, then no public sewer, drain, fire hydrant or street lamp shall be laid or placed in or upon, or any public work of any kind done upon, any such private street or road so constructed or opened for public travel except by ordinance of the Common Council.

Section 3. The Street Commissioner may in his discretion cause a suitable sign to be erected at any place where any private street or road intersects any public street or road, to indicate that such street or road is not a public highway, but no damages shall be recoverable by any person against the City for any injury alleged to have resulted from any failure to erect such a sign.

Section 4. Nothing in this ordinance shall prevent the Common Council or Street Commissioner from permitting suitable sewers laid or to be laid in such private streets or roads by private property owners to be connected with the sewers of the City.

Adopted by the Common Council, Sept. 6, 1910; approved by the Mayor, Sept. 10, 1910.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

William Burt, a negro waiter, was arrested by City Marshal Biggs at Millville Monday, charged with stealing some silverware from an Ocean City hotel.

Jonathan Woolman, of Camden, widely known in Burlington county, enjoys the distinction of having had eight great-grandchildren added to his descendants in less than nine months.

Stabbed during a fight, Harry Alloway, twenty-three years old, of 711 South Fourth street, Camden, had an injury to the right hand dressed at the Homeopathic Hospital Monday. His assailant escaped.

The congregation of the First Presbyterian church, Millville, was surprised Sunday by receipt of the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Walter L. Steiner. He has accepted a call to a church at Ellenville, N. Y.

At a special meeting of Paterson's Fire and Police Commission Monday night six new firemen were examined, and after passing the required mental and physical tests were appointed and confirmed as members of the department. The new firemen will go on duty October 1.

Swallowing a pointed nail with which he was picking his teeth, John Stitz, fourteen years old, of 2910 Cleveland avenue, Camden, visited the Homeopathic Hospital Monday to have it removed. The boy said he was making an effort to remove the wire from his throat when it slipped down.

Women church members living on Rhode Island avenue, Atlantic City, assembled on their porches and applauded vigorously Monday when George Herbert, a detective, arrived in a police patrol and arrested Mrs. Frankie Morton, a dashing young woman, for selling liquor without a license in one of the finest cottages in the neighborhood.

Found floating in the old Market street ferry slip in Camden, Monday, the body of a man had not been identified at the Camden morgue up to yesterday. It is that of a man about five feet ten inches in height, weighing about one hundred and forty pounds, and about forty years old. The hair and mustache are of sandy hue. The man wore a dark sack sut and black, low shoes.

Mayor Stoy, of Atlantic City, will officially decree the bathing season closed Saturday. A third of the guards were retired Monday night and the remainder will be relieved and the lifeboats sent to winter quarters at the close of the week. Beach Director Beckwith's records show that there were fewer drownings and fewer rescues than for any summer in ten years.

Boardwalk promenaders in Atlantic City witnessed an exciting fight when George Kemp, a middle-aged merchant, charged Arthur Hughes, twenty-nine years old, a former policeman, with running away with Mrs. Kemp. Hughes warmly denied the charge, and the men were fighting desperately when the police arrived. Kemp obtained his release under bail, which was forfeited when he failed to appear for a hearing. Hughes, still denying the absent husband's charge, was fined.

CHIFFON WRAP.

The girl who wants a chiffon cloth wrap but has not the price can make one for herself.

At this season the chiffon cloth can be bought, reduced, n desirable shades. Silk fringe to match is also to be found at bargain prices.

The simplest wrap of this sore is made with a dep square at back, falling well below the hips, with shawl ends in front. All edges are finished with fringe.

For greater elaboration a two-inch border in silk soutache braid can be put on the chiffon an inch and an a half above the fringe. Somewhat newer is a narrower border of nterlaced scrolls in what is known as line designs.

More complicated is a wrap made wth kimono sleeves and reaching almost to bottom of frock. It is edged around the sleeves and encircles the collarless neck and down each side of front with bias folds of satin the shade of chiffon. The bottom is banded nto narrowness, with a deeper band of satin above deep silk fringe.

Thinks Husband Insane.

Elizabeth, Sept. 28.—On complaint of his wife, who suspects him of being deranged, James Fagan was arraigned in the City Criminal Court Monday and committed to the county jail pending his examination as to his sanity. Plainclothesman Ward arrested the man. Mrs. Fagan says her husband has been acting queerly.

Veteran Bell-Ringer Dies.

Perth Amboy, Sept. 28.—James Foster, the veteran bell-ringer of St. Peter's Episcopal church, is dead. For more than twenty years he has toiled the bell of the oldest church in New Jersey. He was an exempt fireman.

Not Missed.

"There are some French idioms," said the linguist, "that are very difficult to translate into English."

"Yes," replied the adapter of plays; "but they are rarely so shocking that you can't get on just as well without them."

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

CHAPTER IV.

HEIRESSES IN SIGHT.

LOVELAND had the unusual sensation of feeling comparatively unimportant. When the girl came to find out who he was she would know that he was less than a duke. And if he had the air of being a duke she had the air of thinking no duke could possibly be superior to any self respecting American. As he reflected upon this extreme point of view a deck steward appeared and was summoned by the girl. She wished to know the situation of the second Loveland chair and which of the two was her aunt's, which this gentleman's—Mr. Loveland's.

"Or ought I to speak of you as Captain Loveland?" she broke off to ask.

"I'm not a captain yet," answered Val. He did not explain that neither was he "Mr." He left her to discover that fact for herself by and by.

When the chair of Mrs. Loveland had been indicated, as it soon was by a tactless deck steward, the girl was obstinate in her determination to seek it. Val went with her, carrying the rug and the book, but as there was no vacant place on either side of the new chair he was obliged presently to go back to his own. And it was on the way back that Major Cadwallader Hunter's chance came.

"Lord Loveland, I see you don't remember me," he began, attaching himself to the younger man with an air of "should auld acquaintance be forgot" in the bend of his back and speaking in a low tone that his words might not be heard by any curious ears. Then he hurried on, "I am Major Cadwallader Hunter"—

"Never heard the name in my life," said Loveland rudely. He thought that his uninvited companion looked like a bore, and he had never yet suffered a bore gladly. A flash of reflection told him that he possessed no envelope in Jim's or Betty's handwriting addressed to Major Cadwallader Hunter. The fellow would hardly be so mildly ingratiating if he were a millionaire with daughters to guard, and Val resented a trumped up claim of connection.

Cadwallader Hunter could swallow a snub with a smile, but never would be forgive the snubber.

He smiled now, but if Lord Loveland had not been Lord Loveland—

"I'm a distant relative of Jimmy Harborough's," he explained, "and I generally run over to London for a few weeks in the season. Jim seems to be as popular on your side the water as on his own."

Loveland did not trouble himself to reply. If Jim had thought this alleged relative an interesting or profitable person for him to know, the name of Major Cadwallader Hunter would probably have been on one of the introduction envelopes.

Undismayed by the chilling silence, Cadwallader Hunter still walked by Lord Loveland's side and prattled. His next sentence hinted that he possessed in some degree the quality of clairvoyance.

"I suppose Jim's given you lots of letters," he continued, "but it's not likely there's one to me. I'm a mere bachelor and therefore must take a back place. Jim would naturally send you to married people with big houses of their own where they can entertain you. Still, in my own small way I can be useful to strangers and should be glad to be useful to you. I am, by the bye, a great admirer of your cousin, charming Lady Betty, and, if you'll allow me to say so, there's a strong family resemblance between you. If this is your first time on our side you don't know the ropes yet, and you must let me tell you anything you care to hear—about people, about places, about hotels. I can begin, for instance, by telling you who is who on this ship. There are several of our millionaires."

Loveland's handsome young face lost its frozen stare. He had taken a dislike to Cadwallader Hunter, but it was not so serious a dislike that he could not bury it. He wanted to know several things which this man might be able to tell, but most of all he wanted to know about Mrs. Loveland's niece.

"I know almost everybody on board," went on the American—"that is, everybody who counts."

"Who is that man walking with the tall girl in gray?" Val deigned to inquire as his first choice among the beauties of the ship came in sight. "Is he some one of importance?"

Cadwallader Hunter naturally understood that it was the girl, not the man, in whom Loveland was interested. "That is Judson R. Coolidge," he replied, "and it is Miss Elinor Coolidge, his only child, who is with him. He is a rich man, though not one of our richest—made his money in the wholesale dry goods business in Chicago. But Miss Elinor, whom he adores, 'runs' him (the mother's dead), and as the girl knows her market value she's induced her father to take a big house in New York and a cottage at Newport. Would you care to meet them?"

"Thanks, yes, a little later," answered Val, very civilly for him.

"There are several other pretty young women on board," said Cadwallader Hunter.

"So I've noticed," said Loveland.

"Ah, men of your country appreciate the charming women of ours! You've carried away many of our fairest flowers and some of the best worth plucking."

"Is that a pun?" asked Loveland, staring at his companion to see if he had the impudence to mean anything.

Major Cadwallader Hunter tittered.

"Oh, dear, I see what you mean. But, no, indeed; I was quite innocent of any double entendre. I was merely trying my best to be poetical, I assure you. There was no question of 'plucking' in the international alliances of British titles and American dollars I had in mind—a familiar and, to my idea, suitable combination. But perhaps you disapprove of international marriages?"

"Not I," said Val.

The tone told Cadwallader Hunter all that he wanted to learn. He now knew, if he had not been practically sure before, that Lord Loveland was in search of a rich wife. He saw his way to earning considerable kudos in playing bear leader to a young and unusually good looking British peer, and he determined to become that bear leader, whether the bear yearned for his leadership or not.

"Miss Coolidge is not the only handsome heiress on board. There are others," he went on airily.

"Do you know a Mrs. Loveland on the ship?" Val inquired after a slight hesitation which he could hardly have explained to himself.

Major Cadwallader Hunter shook his head. "Now that you speak of it I think I do recall there being a Mrs. Loveland on the passenger list, but"—

"She has a niece," said Val.

"Ah!" The elder man pulled a folded passenger list out of his pocket and ran his eye down the "L's." "Then the niece has not the same name. But I'll engage to find out all about the ladies for you if you're interested in them."

"Oh, very well; thank you," said Loveland stiffly, with that upward inflection of the voice which can make a "thank you" as irritating as a mosquito bite.

He was ready now to use Major Cadwallader Hunter for catspawing in all its branches, but did not intend to be overcivil in return.

And the would be leader was delighted to become Lord Loveland's catspaw, because he hoped that his way of handling the chestnuts would do him honor. He believed that if through Lord Loveland he did not become king of all the lions in New York that season he might at least be king's jester.

Major Cadwallader Hunter prided himself on being able to find out everything about everybody, even when starting from the point of complete ignorance and handicapped by a time limit. Indeed, he had a nice detective instinct, and putting it to use was one of the games he played best. But he found himself confronted with difficulties in the case of Mrs. Loveland and her niece.

Come Tomorrow---Come Early---For These

$5 Lingerie Waists at $1.84

Lucky as we have been lately, in securing nice lots of waists at lowered prices, we count this lot of several hundred one of the very best pick-ups we have made, and we are sure you will be tickled beyond expression when you see them and realize how cheap they are at the price we name for tomorrow's selling—$1.84.
They are strictly new, made with fine lace collars and yokes and superbly trimmed with Valenciennes, Irish Crochet, Cluny and Baby Irish laces and insertions and fine embroidery panels. They have long sleeves, elaborately trimmed to match; some are in tucked kimono styles. Besides the lingerie waists, there are quite a number of exceptionally heavy net waists, beautifully embroidered, distinctly new. In this lot of waists you will find a generous variety in all sizes—32 to 46—and despite their worth—actually $5 each—we are going to let you choose from them tomorrow, beginning at the opening of the store, for only..$1.84

Handsome Taffeta Silk Waists, prettily tucked; with or without yoke effects; high neck, long sleeves; button finish; very special at.....$2.98

BOYNTON
"Square Pot" BOILERS

are the basis of the best hot water heating system known—the BOYNTON dealers in your town can demonstrate this to your satisfaction.
BOYNTON boilers have the same square fire pot which has so long made BOYNTON hot-air heaters famous. This fire pot gives perfect, hence economical, combustion. Being square cornered, it clears of ashes instantly. It's never necessary to fuss or bother with a "BOYNTON" fire. BOYNTON "square pot" boilers give even, easily controlled heat, from cellar to farthest radiator.
Look at the sectional cut above and see how perfectly the Boynton is arranged for quick steaming.

EIGHT CLUBS FORM THE SOCCER LEAGUE

James D. Brown and Robert Baillie, of the Plainfield Association Football Club, were present at a meeting of the Amateur Soccer League, held at 845 Broad street, Newark, last night. The most important thing considered was the reinstatement of the Eureka Club, of Kearney, which dropped out of the league two weeks. This now makes an eight club league and the regular schedule as adopted at the beginning of the season will be carried out.

It was announced that there will be four games among league clubs on Saturday and Sunday. The Plainfield team will play the Thomas A. C., of Kearney, at Kearney Saturday afternoon. There will be no soccer game here that day.

The Plainfield team is now considered one of the strongest in the league and will make a hard fight for championship honors. The players are out for practice every night and will be in fine condition for Saturday's contest with Kearney.

SEEK TO AROUSE INTEREST IN P. H. S. ATHLETIC ASS'N.

The Boys' Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School, held an interesting meeting yesterday. Edson Woodhull, president of the board, was in the chair and introduced the speakers. S. H. Karr, vice-president of the board, spoke on the co-operation of the board and student body. Arthur Manley called attention to the depleted condition of the treasury; Gardner Bristol asked for the support of the school at the football games.

Mr. Hubbard also spoke of the financial condition and asked for contributions. Principal Best gave the boys a heart to heart talk, in whch he made an appeal for more interest in athletics. He said that over $35 had been promised in subscriptions for the coming year's work.

Chess Club Organized.

The P. H. S. Chess club has been organized with these officers: President, S. Silbert; vice-president, Miss E. Whiting; secretary-treasurer, F. Cullen. The club is composed of the following members besides the officers: E. Fountain, D. Van Hoesen, C. Schuck, Kubierschky, Goldsmith, S. Fine, Hatfield, Hunting, Ramsey, Miss A. Johnston and Miss Cumming. The club meets every Friday for play.

L. E. Waring a Judge.

The Philadelphia horse show opened this morning at Bryn Mawr, with an unusually large entry list of blooded equines. Lewis E. Waring, of this city, an officer of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, is one of the judges of saddle horses and hunters.

P. H. S. Gets the Oval.

The P. H. S football management has secured Crescent Oval for the season through the generosity of Herbert S. Parker, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Lost Bearings in Fog.

In going through the gate in the fence which divided the east and west bound tracks at the Central Railroad Station at Roselle, Anthony G. Galleth, fifty-two years old, of 255 First avenue, was instantly killed by an east bound express train early Monday morning. Galleth is a cloth cutter, and when killed he was going as customary to catch a local train. Fog and the lateness of the express is thought to have bewildered him. His body was badly mangled. Galleth is survived by a wdow and children. Mrs. Galleth has been in a serious condition since the shock of her husband's death.

K. G. E. Confer Third Degree.

At the meeting of Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, held in their rooms last night, the third degree was conferred on three candidates. Plans for the visit to Somerville tomorrow night were perfected and arrangements for the coming fair of the K. G. E. were discussed as well as plans for the winter's work. The trip to Somerville is a visit to the officers of the grand lodge.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINEE WM. LIBBY, GIVES HIS VIEWS

In accepting the nomination for Congress accorded him Monday by the Democrats of the Fourth District, Professor William Libbey, of Princeton, referring to the Democratic candidacy of Woodrow Wilson for Governor, at Somerville yesterday, said in part:

"Woodrow Wilson is the man who will let a streak of daylight through the dark problems that are vexing the State and its people."

Turning to the tariff Mr. Libbey said that it had been discussed and tampered with in the wrong way. He said that the question of tariff schedules should be decided by a commission or cimmissions of competent and honest experts. For instance, he said that profits of from 100 to 150 per cent. are made on wool, which inordinate gains would not occur if a commission of wool experts would decide what was a reasonable profit and an equitable tariff on this commodity.

Mr. Libbey said that he favored the creation of a tribunal that would decide disputes between capital and labor. He denounced Cannonism.

Counsel for Slayer.

William G. DeMeza has been retained by friends of Francisco Antonnozzi who is charged with the murder of Battista Lahgi on last Sunday. In an interview with the alleged murderer yesterday Mr. DeMeza became convinced that the boy has not yet realized the enormity of his crime. He had the impression that just as soon as his lawyer took hold of the case he would be released. He wept when Mr. DeMeza left the cell, and could not understand why he should not accompany his counsel. Lahgi's remains were interred yesterday.

Juniors Elect Officers.

The Junior Class of the Plainfield High School, elected these officers at its meeting yesterday: President, Russell Runyon; vice-presdent, Miss J. Neighbor; secretary-treasurer, Frank Cullen.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold a rally service Sunday evening at 6:45, to which all the honorary members, as well as active, and friends of the society are invited.

GOVERNOR'S DAY AT FAIR

Five Hundred Politicians Rub Elbows at Annual State Event.

BRIGGS SAYS G. O. P. VICTORY.

Vivian M. Lewis and Dr. Wilson Centres of Attraction—James E. Martine and Ex-Governor Stokes There.

Trenton, Sept. 29.—Five hundred New Jersey politicians, more or less, are rubbing elbows today with one another at the Interstate Fair grounds, where for twenty years every Thursday of the Fair week has been carded as "Governor's Day." Such a rallying of statesmen and near-statesmen has not been witnessed in several years, indicating that for a traditionally calendared "off year" it is, in fact, a campaign in which there is being displayed intense interest to "get on" with the voters.

In the way of lending verisimilitude to the carded event of the day Governor Fort lent his presence to the throng. But the real chief executive was in the main eclipsed by the interest displayed in the two men who are struggling to be elected as his successor—Vivian M. Lewis and Dr. Woodrow Wilson. Both gubernatorial aspirants arrived at the fair grounds shortly after noon and were heartily greeted by politicians and officials who had already made the place their Mecca.

Differing from his scholarly opponent, candidate Lewis needed but few introductions. His long association with public affairs has brought him into personal contact with a great majority of the men who were present. With the Democratic candidate it was a formal word or two. Most of those who shook hands with him addressed him as Doctor and quickly stepped aside after an expression of good-will and pleasure at meeting him. Mr. Lewis' greetings were marked as a renewal of friendship. Many called him "Viv," as he has been familiarly known to his friends, and indicated that they were more or less intimate with him.

As an individual Republican and a friend of Mr. Lewis, Senator Briggs said that there was not the slightest doubt in his mind that the Republican ticket would win in New Jersey by substantial majorities. "I have known Mr. Lewis for many years," said Senator Briggs, "and I have an abiding faith in his honesty and capacity. He has proved himself one of the ablest young men in our party and as Governor of the State he would give an administration that would be one of the best that New Jersey has ever known. It will be a great pleasure for me to do all within my power to secure his election."

Former Governor Stokes and James E. Martine, who received the popular endorsement through the direct primaries as the Republican and Democratic candidates for United States Senate, respectively, were prominent figures in the throng. So was John Kean, whose successor in Congress will be chosen by the next Legislature. David Baird, of Camden, who stands with Senator Kean in the belief that the vote in the direct primaries on the Senatorship should not be regarded as serious, came up from Camden with a party of South Jersey Republicans.

Former Governor Stokes said that he regarded himself as the regularly nominated candidate for United States Senator by the Republicans, now that it has been shown beyond a doubt that he received the highest number of votes in the direct primaries among the contestants. His view of the situation is that every Republican member of the Legislature should in honor be bound by the vote shown in the primaries and that as the successful candidate he (Stokes) should be able to receive the caucus vote in a unanimous manner. "Those politicians and newspapers who now refuse to abide by the results of the Senatorial voting and are urging that it be not recognized in the Legislature, I consider to be nothing less than party bolters," declared Mr. Stokes today.

Among the Democrats present it was generally conceded that if the Legislature was Democratic on joint ballot James Smith, Jr., would probably seek to be sent back to the United States Senate, where he was succeeded twelve years ago when John Kean captured the honor as the result of Republican victories. Mr. Martine does not agree to this view. He says he believes that Former Senator Smith, as a Democrat abiding by his party platform pledges, will throw his influence to advance the plan of direct election of United States Senators which in New Jersey would mean the advancement of Martine to the Senate.

SUDDEN DEATH OF PLAINFIELDER IN THE SOUTH

The body of Edward Hayman, aged 22 years, who died suddenly at New Orleans on Monday after a three days' illness, arrived here today. Mr. Hayman came from Glasgow, Scotland, about twelve years ago. He attended the local public schools and was a member of the Class '06. Upon the advice of his physician he left in his junior year to go south. He spent three and a half years in San Antonio, Texas, where he improved greatly in health and was successful in business as a wholesale dealer in doctor's and dental instruments.

In the spring of 1909, Mr. Hayman returned to his home in this city and remained here for nine months. In the fall of that year he went to New Orleans to accept a promising position. This change seemed to be beneficial to him and even his last letter received last week brought splendid accounts of his health and he seemed in good spirits.

Mr. Hayman is survived by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Sabocher and one sister, Miss Jean C. Hayman, night superintendent of the Presbyterian Hospital, New York city. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sabocher on Rahway road. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

TRINITY JUNIORS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church held its first meeting of the season yesterday afternoon, it being in the nature of a rally, and officers for the year were elected and plans for work were discussed. Mrs. R. V. Kinney, superintendent, was in charge. There were forty-six boys and girls present, a majority being members of the society, and all entered upon the work with enthusiasm. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor, was present and spoke words of encouragement to the juniors. Badges were also presented to several members having the highest percentage for attendance last year and those enrolling yesterday.

It was also decided to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the society the latter part of next month, probably Sunday evening, October 23, with special exercises. These officers were elected yesterday:

President, Jennie Sears; vice-presidents, Elmer French, Charles Allegar, Nellie McAfee; secretary, Marion Woolley; assistant, May Stevens; treasurer, Louise Seader; assistant, William Sowden; superintendent, Mrs. R. V. Kinney; assistants, Lawrence French, Maude McAfee; superintendent of beginners, Mrs. Lafayette Rosentiehl; assistants, Helen Leitheuser, Adelaide Cole. The meeting opened with a fifteen-minute devotional service conducted by Lawrence French.

RESCUE MISSION WORKERS AT PARK AVE. BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Plainfield Rescue Mission took charge of the mid-week prayer meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night by invitation of the pastor, Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire. The service proved to be a helpful and inspiring one. John LeMatty, superintendent, was in charge and spoke for about twenty minutes, taking his text from the book of Matthew, where Jesus heals the leper.

After the earnest words by Mr. LeMatty, he turned the meeting over to the converts and others. Many helpful testimonials and prayers were given. During the service Mrs. John Manley and her sons, Raymond and Irving, sang and after the meeting the converts of the mission received a warm shake of the hand from the members of the church and the pastor. Mrs. John Manley presided at the piano and Miss Burnet was the violinist.

Will Present "Prince Karl."

"Prince Karl," a comedy in four acts, will be presented at The Plainfield theatre today and the rest of the week by the permanent stock company, with Miss Ilka Diehl and Harold Mead in the leading parts. This is a delightful comedy, filled with amusing situations, and should prove a strong attraction. The management announces that on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week the stock company will present "Are You a Mason?"

Belated Announcement.

William J. Mattox, of Webster place, announces the marriage of his daughter, Florence, to Thomas Kelly, of this city. The ceremony took place in the St. Stephen's church on June 29, and was performed by the Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of the church.

COUNTY W. C. T. U. IN SESSION AT GARWOOD

The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Union County W. C. T. U. is being held today in the Presbyterian church, Garwood, with a large representation of local members present. Mrs. T. H. Hamilton, county president, is presiding at the three sessions. Delegates from all parts of the county are in attendance and a long and interesting program is being followed. Routine business occupied the morning session, which began at 10 o'clock.

Following the devotions at the 2 o'clock session this afternoon, topics of interest to the union were discussed. Mrs. A. F. Schmidt, of Elizabeth, led the discussion on "Medical Temperance;" Mrs. C. W. Scott, "The Press;" Mrs. William Andrews, "Anti-Narcotics;" Mrs. Scriven-Stoddard, "Unfermented Wine at Sacrament;" Miss S. J. Keron, "Penal Reform;" Mrs. L. H. Noe, "Purity and Mothers' Meetings" and "Purity in Literature and Art."

This evenings session will consist of an oratorica' and musical silver medal contest in which several persons will compete for prizes. Luncheon was served at noon and prior to the evening session supper will be provided by the women of the church.

STOKES VICTOR BY THE FINAL FIGURES

Warren county yesterday filed with the Secretary of State the official returns of the primaries held September 13. This completes the tally except for a single election district. In Deptford township, Gloucester county, the board locked up the returns in the ballot box, where they must remain until a Supreme Court Judge orders the box opened and the returns extracted.

The vote of the Republican primaries, with this district omitted, for United States Senator was:

Edward C. Stokes.....39,554
Charles M. Fowler.....38,818
Franklin Murphy.....36,240

No one recalls the exact vote in Deptford township, but it is agreed it was about one hundred and sixty for Stokes twenty for Fowler and four or five for Murphy. Thus, the final figures will give Stokes the best of the contest by about eight hundred and seventy-five.

At the Democratic primaries the vote was:

James E. Martine.....48,448
Frank McDermit.....15,578

LOCAL ELKS INVADE STAPLETON'S CAMP.

The brave and gallant crew from Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., went to Stapleton this morning to cross bats with the valorous ball tossers who were defeated on the Oval three weeks ago. The locals have their biggest stick with them and hope to bring back a new cup and the game stowed away in their bat bags.

The team will probably be the same as that of the last game with Warry McLoughlin on the mound and Torpey at the receiving end. Aside from the ball game there will be the usual entertainment.

For Patrolmen's Ball.

Tickets are out for the second annual ball of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association and may be obtained from any of the patrolmen. The ball is to be held in Saengerbund hall, North Plainfield, on Thursday, November 10. Andrew Saffron is the president and the entertainment committee is composed of Charles Keller, Daniel McDonald, Charles A. Flynn and George K. Dobson.

Brief District Court Session.

Judgment was rendered in the District court this morning in favor of George J. Tobin for $105.83, against Louis Chatel. Robert Newton Crane represented Mr. Tobin. Judgments were also rendered in several landlord and tenant cases all of which was accomplished in seven minutees, almost a record for the court.

Christian and Missionary Alliance.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance will meet tomorrow at 3:30 in the afternoon and at 7:45 in the evening in the German Reformed church, corner of Duer street and Craig place. Rev. Thomas Francis will speak at both services. All are cordially invited to attend.

Cyclers on a Run.

Four members of the Plainfield Cycle Club, George and Edward Simon Clarence Baker and Paul Phillips, left this morning for a run to Passaic. Last week the quartet enjoyed a ride to Trenton and back.

BIG FIRE SWEEPS NESHANIC STATION

Fire yesterday afternoon burned a large portion of the business section of Neshanic Station. The fire started in W. H. May's creamery and is said to have ben caused by the explosion of a gasoline engine.

Fanned by a stiff breeze, the flames spread quickly to John S. Ammerman's large hay press and lumber yard, which were destroyed with his barn and two storage buildings. A. R. Holcombe's hotel, barn, sheds and barber shop and Judge Louis Schenck's farm barn and several outbuildings were also burned.

The town is without a fire department and citizens fought the flames with a bucket brigade until the Somerville firemen arrived. The loss will probably reach $60,000, with about $40,000 insurance.

It was reported this afternoon that the fire was not got under control until this morning, and by that time the entire village was practically wiped out. The last estimate of the loss is placed at $75,000.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HOLD EUCHRE AND DANCE

Watchung council, Knights of Columbus, held a successful euchre and dance in Sebring's hall, last night. The affair was attended by fully 300 people and 65 tables were used in playing. The proceeds will be added to the building fund of St. Mary's new convent.

The prizes for the women at euchre were awarded as follows: Mrs. Frank McInerney, first; Mrs. P. H. Burns, second; Miss Frank third; Miss Kate Whalen, fourth, and Miss Mary Slugg, fifth. The men's prizes awarded to James Burke, first; Archie Bailey, second; Thomas Colter, third; Frank McInerney, fourth; and William Edmondson, fifth.

Charles P. Sebring, owner of the Sebring building, generously donated the use of this hall for the evening.

The affair was arranged and conducted by the following committee: T. J. Meaney, chairman; D. J. Courtaine, John J. Hines, C. L. Kling, C. W. Fogarty, Miles Wilson, Robert McCormack, M. D. O'Keefe and William Schaefer.

MISS ELIZABETH BOYD WEDS JOSEPH EDGAR, JR.

Miss Elizabeth Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Boyd, of 955 West Sixth street, and Joseph Edgar, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edgar, Sr., of New Brunswick, were married at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends from New Brunswick, New York, Brooklyn and this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. William Edgar, of Philadelphia, a cousin, of the bridegroom, George E. Edgar, of New Brunswick, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride is a talented and accomplished young woman, being a vocalist of note. She is a member of the Schubert Choral Society, of New York, and has appeared at a number of the society's concerts and musicales.

Mr. Edgar, with his brother, George Edgar, is engaged in the butcher business at New and Codwise avenues, New Brunswick. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in this city, the groom commuting to New Brunswick. The bride received a number of beautiful gifts from relatives and friends. Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edgar, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. James Edgar and family, of Highland Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rapp, of Jersey City.

Dutch Arms Meeting.

A well attended meeting of the Dutch Arms, the men's club of Trinity Reformed church, took place last night in the church parlor when plans were formulated for the coming winter's work. The first entertainment and social of the club will b held on Friday evening, October 21. A special committee will be appointed to look after the attractions for this event and a large attendance is expected.

C. E. Silver Anniversary.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will be held at the church Tuesday night October 11, when Rev. A. A. Pfanstiel, of Somerville, will make the address. All the young people's societies of the city have been invited to attend the affair.

MRS. T. O. DOANE'S NIECE, MRS. H. W. RUDD, HERE

Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street, wife of Fire Chief T. O. Doane, is entertaining Mrs. H. Wilcox Rudd, of Chanute, Kansas for a few days. Mrs. Rudd is a niece of Mrs. Doane and left the east when but two years old. She was accompanied from Kansas by a party of westerners and will return to her home when the party returns.

Rudd when asked this morning how she liked this part of the country, said she was delighted and surprised, but that she still retains her love for the west where everything is large and beautiful. It is forty years since Mrs. Doane has seen her niece and is making the most of the visit.

Mrs. Doane said this morning that her son Hervey, who is employed as an engineer with a large western contracting concern, had started east to make her a visit bringing his wife, whom Mrs. Doane has never seen, but when the couple had been at the home of the bride's parents three days a telegram mandatory in its nature sent Hervey scurrying out to Montana on a hurry job and the eastern trip had to be abandoned. It was the third start they had made to come to Plainfield, each one ending in a disappointment.

CHAMPION TRAVIS FAILS TO LOWER P. C. C. RECORD

Walter J. Travis, three times national golf champion, also winner of the British championship, failed to lower the record of the course at the Plainfield Country Club yesterday. His card for the morning was a 77, being tied with Leighton Calkins, and in the afternoon he made a 73, within three strokes of the amateur record for the links. A large gallery followed the champion on his rounds and greatly admired his fine drives and accurate putting on the greens.

The fact that Mr. Travis was not acquainted with the course, it being his first visit there, had considerable to do with his playing. In the morning he required a 6 for the thirteenth hole, and in the afternoon he negotiated the thirteenth, fifteenth and eighteenth holes in 3 each. A remarkable feature of the champion's play was the number of 4s on his card. He had twelve in the morning and eleven in the afternoon. Mr. Calkins, who played with Mr. Travis in the afternoon, did not do so well as in the morning round, and the scores of the other players, J. Whitney Baker and R. S. Rowland, were also higher than on the first round.

Mr. Travis was well pleased with the course, although directions bothered him to a considerable extent. After the first round he was entertained at luncheon by Mr. Calkins, and at the conclusion of the second round he was the guest of the latter at dinner at the clubhouse. The champion's card for the thirty-six holes follows:

Out 4 4 4 3 5 4 4 4 4
In .....4 4 4 4 4 5 4 4 3—73
Out 5 4 4 3 5 4 3 4 5
In .....4 4 4 4 4 5 4 4 3—77—150

ALLEGED MILK THIEF CAUGHT THIS MORNING.

What the police believe to be the milk and roll thief who has been getting free breakfasts from the doorsteps of the residences on East Fifth street for the past month was arrested this morning by Patrolman Saffron at a house in the rear of 214 East Fifth street.

When arraigned in court this morning he gave his name as Frank Frakos, age 15, and a Hungarian. He is unable to speak English, but declared through an interpreter that he was a pupil at Bryant school. He said that he took the milk and bread because he was hungry. It is a fact that he ate most of the stuff he took.

The boy is an orphan and was brought over from Hungary by his sister, who is a seamstress, three months ago. His parents died some time ago in Hungary and as the sister did not want him to become a public charge in his native land she sent for him and promised to take care of him. The boy does not appear to be over bright. He was sent back to school and will have a hearing on Saturday morning, when his sister will be in court to be questioned by Judge William N. Runyon.

LAST SAD RITES FOR EARL W. LYNN

The funeral services of Earl W. Lynn, the eighteen-year-old son of Mr and Mrs. Frederick G. Lynn, of Grant avenue, were held from the late home yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and were largely attended, especially by young friends of the departed. There was a large display of beautiful floral tributes from friends and neighbors and several wreaths, including one from the Ransome Concrete Company, where the young man was employed for a time; another from an afternoon club of which Mrs. Lynn is a member; also a floral horseshoe from the foreman at Pond Tool Works, where Mr. Lynn is employed; and a wreath from Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., together with many cut flowers from other friends; also friends of Bethlehem, Pa.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which the young man was a member, officiated, and he spoke impressively of the life and character of Mr. Lynn, of his interest in the church, Sunday school and Epworth League. During the services Judge William N. Runyon sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me."

The burial was in Hillside cemetery, and the bearers were William Craig, Robert Craig, William Clifton, Harry Brentnall, Joseph Burd and Fred Haynes.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY AT CLEVELAND'S BIRTHPLACE

Grover Cleveland's birthplace in Caldwell will be the objective point of a pilgrimage of Democrats of New Jersey on Columbus Day, October 12. Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic candidate for governor, will address the gathering from the porch of the old homestead, in Bloomfield avenue. The Rev. Dr. Nelson B. Chester, pastor of the Caldwell Presbyterian church, who is the present occupant of the Cleveland birthplace, has consented to its use.

The pilgrimage is under the auspices of the Democratic Union of New Jersey, of which Dr. Woodrow Wilson is a member. James C. Spriggs, of Essex Fells, who is chairman of the committee arranging the affair, announces that it is planned to make it the most important affair in the history of the democracy in this State in years. The women of the town will serve tea at the reception.

Dr. Wilson will speak at 4 o'clock and there will be a dinner for the gubernatorial candidate at Monomonock Inn at seven o'clock. Among the speakers expected to attend are Governor-elect Plaisted, of Maine; Richard Olney, Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and Charles S. Hamlin.

GET YOUR GUESS IN NOW; IT MAY BE TOO LATE TOMORROW.

It will not be long now before the census returns will be reported for Plainfield and North Plainfield, in fact, they are likely to come in any moment. Many hundred of guesses have already been received by The Daily Press, but there is time for those who have not yet hazarded a guess to try their ability to figure out the population of this city and the borough.

Remember that there is a prize of $5 in gold to be given for each of the municipalities and the one guessing nearest to the correct population will be the one to receive the money. Get your guess in tomorrow if possible.

Proctor's Fine Bill.

"A Matrimonial Substitute" will be presented by George P. Moore and Miss Florence Elliot at Proctor's theatre today and the rest of the week. It is one of the most amusing sketches seen in a long time. Stevens & Primrose, sisters, will appear in merry songs and dances, while the Golden Gate Trio, three funny colored singers and dancers, together with Lloyd & Castano, comedians, conclude a fine bill.

Organizing Minstrel Troupe.

A preliminary meeting to organize a permanent amateur minstrel troupe was held at the home of B. C. Firstbrook, of Liberty street, last night. Edward Harding, Jr., was made temporary manager and James Moore, treasurer. The troupe starts with sixteen members. Another meeting and rehearsal will be held next week.

DR. WILSON WILL SPEAK

Reform Hall to be Scene of Mass Meeting at 8 O'Clock Tonight.

WM. L. SAUNDERS TO PRESIDE.

Gen. D. F. Collins, W. E. Tuttle and Other Prominent Men to be Present—List of Vice-Presidents.

Arrangements are about complete for the Democratic mass meeting to be held this evening at Reform hall, which will be addressed by Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the Gubernatorial candidate, and the President of Princeton University will be given a rousing reception when he reaches this city from Trenton, where he speaks this afternoon. There will be a parade starting from Park and North avenues, opposite Democratic headquarters, led by a brass band. A unique head-gear will be worn by those in line, in the shape of a rooster of the Chantecleer variety. The members of the Democratic Club and the Woodrow Wilson Campaign Club, of the borough, will participate.

Dr. Wilson will be entertained at dinner at Truell Inn at 6:30. Among those who will be present will be William L. Saunders, of the borough; General D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth; Congressional Candidate W. E. Tuttle, Jr., Assembly Candidate Calvin E Brodhead, Howard Fleming, LeRoy J. Ellis, James E. Martine, David J. Carney and others.

The meeting at Reform Hall will be held at 8 o'clock. A section of seats will be reserved for women who have signified their desire to hear Dr. Wilson. William L. Saunders will preside. A quartet will sing campaign songs. Handsome souvenir copies of the campaign song book to be used tonight for the first time, will be distributed gratis.

Should the crowd be so large as to permit an overflow meeting, provisions will be made to care for those unable to get into the hall. A great many people have expressed a desire to hear Dr. Wilson and it is expected that the hall will be crowded. Ushers will be in attendance to look after the crowd.

Those who have been invited to act as vice-presidents of the meeting are as follows:

A. H. Atterbury, Dr. W. C. Boone, Dr. Leonard Waldo, C. E. Brodhead, J. A. Babcock, John Becker, Leighton Calkins, David J. Carney, W. A. Coddington, R. B. Corey, Dr. Allen Cowperthwaite, James F. PLAINFIELD ELKS RECEIVE INVITATION TO DEDICATION.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., entertained a delegation from Paterson Lodge in the club rooms last night. The Patersonians were under the impression that it was a regular meeting night for the locals. The delegation came to invite 885 to attend the dedication of their new home which will take place on Columbus Day, October 12. The affair will conclude with a grand ball.

P. H. S. Football Prospects.

The P. H. S. football squad is now practicing every afternoon on the Union street grounds. The squad now comprises about twenty-five fellows and all are working hard. The first team has not been picked yet, but many of the old players have returned and a fast team is expected.

Embarks in Grocery Business.

William J. Firstbrook, of East Front street, has leased the store formerly occupid by Vail and Gardner, at East Front and Washington streets and will engage in the grocery business beginning Saturday.

—Neuman Bros. will have a fine display of fruits and vegetables for tomorrow's trade. They are selected with great care and only first quality goods are offered. The prices are reasonable.

Mr. Crane, son of John M. Crane, formerly of West Eighth street, was in town calling on former acquaintances. His father resides at Croton, N. Y., and as the result of a paralytic stroke is speechless. He is able to get about the house but cannot speak a word.

THE GREATEST EMBROIDERY SALE

EVER HELD IN PLAINFIELD STARTED TUESDAY MORNING at 9 o'Clock

We were fortunate in having the opportunity to buy this magnificent lot of Embroideries in the best styles and all widths at 50c on the Dollar, which means HALF PRICE, and as is usual with us, we propose to give the public the benefit. THIS IS THE STORY---The large importing firm of Kubie-Heimann & Co. decided to retire, and we had the first opportunity and first choice to buy $3,000.00 worth of the best lines. The lot consists of EDGINGS, BANDINGS, FLOUNCINGS, INSERTIONS, CORSET COVERS and ALL-OVER EMBROIDERIES, varying in width from one inch to 22 inches wide. These will be prominently displayed and so arranged that you can select with ease and promptness on our CENTRE AISLE BARGAIN TABLES at the following prices: See Window Display.

5c, 9c, 14c, 19c, 24c, 39c, 49c and 69c a Yard.

We consider this sale so important that we devote this entire space to the announcement, and we feel secure in saying that it will prove the most profitable of any embroidery sale the ladies of Plainfield ever attended.

WESTFIELD.

There have been so many calls for the renewal of the night school in town that the Board of Education has decided to open it again on October 4. An enrollment of 200 will be prepared for, as nearly that number was enrolled last year.

The Suburban Club will hold a dinner at North Avenue Hotel Thursday evening of next week, at which there will be local speakers to address the club.

A large force of men have been put on the western addition to the Aeolian factory in Garwood to complete the work before cold weather sets in.

The land company has started two new houses in Garwood this week, one for single family use and one for two-family.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Louis Wahl, an employe at the Seeley Paper Mill, lost part of a finger yesterday while working about the chopper at the mill. Mr. Wahl was feeding rope to the machine and in pushing it in one of his digits got under the knife. The injured hand was dressed by Dr. Munger.

The Ladies' Circle of the Baptist church held an all-day sewing meeting yesterday in the parlors of the church. Lunches were brought by the members and a most enjoyable as well as profitable day was had.

Benjamin Elliott has entered his prize winning Buff Orpington and White Leghorn stock in the poultry exhibit at the Trenton Fair, which is being held this week.

A business meeting of the Epworth League will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Methodist church.

A garage and bicycle repair shop has been opened on the Elliott property, corner of Mountain and Park avenue.

Mrs. John Alberts, of Westfield avenue, has returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Brooklyn.

Mrs. William J. Ledden entertained friends from New York over Sunday.

Edward Miller has left the village and taken a position in Milwaukee, Wis.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The funeral of Cornelius D. Taylor was held at his late home on Lincoln avenue yesterday afternoon. The service was private and was conducted by Rev. Ernest O. Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church. There were numerous floral tributes, among them set pieces from Adams Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Newark, of which Mr. Taylor was a member, and President Brown, of the Hudson Trust Co., Hoboken. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, Plainfield, the following acting as pall bearers: Howard Woolston, of North Plainfield; Mayor Kopp, of Boonton; William Demarest, of Paterson; Herbert Taylor, of Perth Amboy; two brothers, George Taylor, of Plainfield, and Edward Taylor, of Dunellen.

Frightened by a flying piece of paper, a team of horses belonging to Clark T. Rogers ran away from in front of the owner's barn yesterday morning. Alfred Van Nuis, who was standing in the rear of the wagon, was thrown out, but escaped injury. The team continued down the hill into the road and near the Lehigh tracks collided with another of Mr. Rogers' vehicles, damaging it slightly. The runaways were brought to a standstill and easily caught.

Charles Rogers has sold his motor boat. It will be delivered to the purchaser at Bordentown and Mr. Rogers will make the trip in company with William Danz.

Feet So Sore Couldn't Walk Down Stairs—

TIZ Cured Her Quick.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett, of Jeffersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs one foot at a time. She has not been able to walk downstairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This is remarkable. Send five more boxes."

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25c per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Lay Out and Open Astor Place from the southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at 8 o'clock p. m., on the twentieth day of October, A. D., nineteen hundred and ten, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council
JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 19, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

to lay out and open Astor Place from the southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue.

WHEREAS, the Common Council have judged and hereby do judge that the public good requires that Astor Place should be laid out and opened between the points named in the title to this ordinance, therefore

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That a public street to be known as Astor Place, be and the same is hereby ordered laid out and opened in said city as the line of said street is shown on a map made by Andrew J. Gavett, City Surveyor, and filed with the City Clerk, September 19, 1910, entitled "Map showing proposed Laying Out and Opening of Astor Place, from Clinton Avenue to Hunter Avenue and of Lyman Place, from West Third Street to Astor Place, City of Plainfield, N. J., August, 1910," to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

Said street shall be forty-five feet in width, that is to say, twenty-two and one-half feet on each side of the center line shown on said map. Said center and side lines of said street are delineated on the map above referred to.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken for the laying out and opening of said Astor Place (the larger part of said street having already been dedicated to the public), include that part of the property now or formerly of The Home Real Estate Company and property now or formerly of Sarah C. Runyon and Charles H. Hand, described as follows: Beginning at a point in the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, where the same is intersected by the northwesterly side line of Astor Place produced, and running along said side line of Astor Place produced in a northeasterly direction, a distance of 94.07 feet to the end of Astor Place as already dedicated to the public; thence along the end of Astor Place as already dedicated to the public, in a southeasterly direction, a distance of 45.25 feet to a point in the southeasterly side line of Astor Place; thence along said side line produced in a southwesterly direction, a distance of 98.05 feet to a point in the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue; thence along said side line in a northwesterly direction, a distance of 45 feet to the place of beginning.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken and the lines of the proposed street as the same is hereinabove ordered to be laid out and opened, are shown on said map on file with the City Clerk hereinabove referred to and made a part hereof.

RICHES OF CROESUS GIFTS TO PRINCETON

Buildings, statuary and gold ornaments of great archaeological importance have been unearthed in the heart of Asia Minor, according to an announcement made by Professor Howard Crosby Butler, who headed an expedition sent into the fabled land of Croesus by Princeton University last February.

The party discovered a Lydian temple, one of the largest ever unearthed, in a fairly good state of preservation. It dates back to the fourth century before Christ, according to inscriptions on its stone work.

Professor Butler was met in Asia Minor by C. F. Cook and C. N. Read, '08, both of whom formerly were graduated students at Princeton and who were to be the engineers in charge of the work.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Charles Frohman has spared no pains in getting together a strong cast for "The Arcadians." With Alice Russon as Eileen Cavanagh, Johnny Osborne as Smith, the London restaurant keeper, and Ruth Thorp as Sombra, the leading roles are well provided for. Mr. Osborne will have one of the best opportunities of his life to repeat his success made in "Dairy Maids" and "Our Miss Gibbs," which he played London, for the adventures of James Smith in Arcadia and upon his return home with his Arcadian friends are very funny. "The Arcadians" with the original cast will be seen at the Plainfield theatre Monday night, October 3.

MAYOR WITTPENN WANTS ALL THE STATE TROOPS.

Mayor Otto Wittpenn headed a delegation from Jersey City Tuesday to ask Governor Fort at Trenton to send the entire division of the New Jersey National Guard to participate in the parade celebrating the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Bergen, a section in Jersey City, once a separate municipality and the oldest town in the State.

Governor Fort told the delegation that he was entirely with them in their desire to have the whole New Jersey National Guard turned out for this occasion, and that he would issue the order if there was any way for the paying the troops' transportation.

It is to be a civic celebration and the Governor thought the importance of the whole affair merited State recognition, but he didn't know where the money was to come from. The delegation called upon United States Senator Frank O. Briggs and he agreed to take it up with the War Department. The delegation will ask for Government troops as well. The delegation also waited on Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray, but it came so late General Murray had left his office for the day.

It was learned from the latter's office that there was no money in the National Guard funds to pay the transportation of the National Guard to the Jersey City celebration. Upon such a civic affair the expenses must be paid by the city.

FIVE BROTHERS VETERANS IN "WAR REUNION."

The Nickerson family held a war reunion in Vineland Monday, when five brothers met at the home of Willard H. Nickerson and exchanged greetings. Four fought on the Union side and one with the Confederates.

Joshua Nickerson hails from Port Norris. He went through the Civil War with his brother, Silas W., in the Thirty-third Massachusetts Regiment. Silas was recently chief of police in Franklin, Mass., and is now turnkey in the jail at Dedham, that State. He rode with "Sherman to the sea," was in nineteen general engagements, was shot in the arm and was the first man in the fort on the railroad at Savannah.

George W. Nickerson, of Boston, served first in the Crimean War in the English navy and later fought in the Forty-fourth Massachusetts Regiment. Allan A. Nickerson, of Boston, served his country in the Sixth Massachusetts. Willard H. Nickerson was in the far South when the Civil War broke out and he joined the Confederate navy.

JOHN W. GRIGGS TO SPEAK FOR MR. LEWIS.

Friends of Vivian M. Lewis, Republican candidate for Governor, announced yesterday that John W. Griggs, formerly Governor, will take the stump against Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Mr. Lewis' Democratic opponent.

E. C. Stokes, who is believed at this time to have won the popular vote for United States Senator, will also speak for Mr. Lewis. Governor Fort has also signified his willingness to make several speeches, as will Senator William M. Johnson, of Hackensack.

Besides Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Professor William Libbey, of Princeton, Congressional nominee, will be the only other speaker at the Democratic mass meeting in Taylor Opera House, Trenton, next Monday evening.

GOLF.

It is generally conceded by the golf thinkers that when the field gathers for next year's national amateur championship different conditions will have to prevail. Heretofore, anybody and everybody has been welcome to join the merry throng, but at last the limit appears to have been reached. Those who attended the tournament at Brookline scarcely need to be told why.

In other words, after being snowed under with the hitherto unheard of mass of 203 starters, committeemen admit that the time for action has arrived; in fact, action is imperative. When it becomes impossible to get the field around before dark on the first day a certain element of luck not to say injustice, creeps in.

Leighton Calkins, president of the Plainfield Country Club, the man who did so much toward the revision of the United States Golf Association constitution last winter, has expressed himself as follows:

"Since the amateur championship last week at Brookline I have been asked by several persons whether, in my judgment, a national handicap committee could undertake the rating of all players who are members of the United States Golf Association clubs, so as to produce a list from which candidates for the principal event of the year could be chosen; limiting entries, for example, to players rated at 6 or lower.

"Frankly, I do not think the work could be done properly, or rather thoroughly, and if not it would better not be undertaken at all. On the other hand, something must be done to keep the size of the field in the amateur championship within reasonable bounds. The present playing conditions are the best we have ever had, probably much the best that can be devised for a tournament which is to be run off in six days. But what shall the remedy be?

"It is perfectly apparent that a field of more than one hundred and fifty or one hundred and sixty players is absurd in an amateur championship. There are no side shows to the blue ribbon event of the year, no second or third sixteens, no beaten eights nor handicap events. Players of only average ability have no real place in such an event. Such players ought to have enough golfing public spirit, not to say golf modesty, to stay at home during the second week of September unless they care enough about the game to look on once in a while and see how it really is played.

"My suggestion, in a word, would be first to try the effect of a campaign of education. Make it an unpopular thing for such players to enter. There are various ways in which this could be done. A suitable declaration of principles could be drafted for the next annual meeting and circulated among the clubs, requesting them to advise players of no real ability not to enter. Finally, the executive committee could be given full power, in their absolute discretion, to exclude such players as they believe to have the least chance in case the entry list exceeds a certain number."

MOUNTAINSIDE'S MAYOR IN QUEER LAND DEAL

Papers filed in a suit to compel the conveyance of a half-interest in a farmstead in Mountainside, near Westfield, has disclosed a queer tangle which the Court of Chancery is expected to straighten out.

The matter came to light when Vice-Chancellor Stevens yesterday on an application by A. C. Streitwolf, Jr., of New Brunswick, set the case down for trial on November 3. Mr. Streitwolf is counsel for Adolph A. Fries, a consulting engineer, who has for some years been located in the city of Panama.

Mr. Fries according to the bill, had some money to invest, and when he learned from Mayor Charles A. Baechfold, of the borough of Mountainside, that there was a good farm at Mountainside which could be had for $12,000, he readily yielded, the bill tells, to Mayor Baechtold's solicitation to join him in the purchase of the place.

Accordingly, on April 10, 1901, the complainant sent to Baechtold his check for $6,000 drawn to the order of Baechtold on the Trust Company of America which check, he subsequently learned, Baechtold immediately indorsed over to his wife, Sallie D. Beachtold. The farm was bought, and in June of that same year Mr. Fries came up to look at what he understood to be his and his friend's joint investment. He spent two months with the Baechtolds, who had taken up their residence on the farm, and during that time advanced $2,900 more as his share toward the cost of a barn which Baechtold desired to build, and an additional sum of $550 to cover his share of the cost of a poultry house.

It was after the last advance that Fries discovered that title to the farm, which comprises about fifty-three acres, had been taken in Mrs. Baechtold's name, and when the Baechtolds remained deaf to his requests that the matter be righted he instructed Mr. Streitwolf to bring suit.

In an answer filed in their behalf, Mr. and Mrs. Baechtold pictured their friend Fries as a sort of Monte Cristo with wealth galore, which he dispensed with lavish hands.

They admit having received $6,000 and $2,900 and $550 from Fries for the purchase of the farm and for improvements subsequently made to them and to each of them a sums were so many "gifts," and that the complainant expressly agreed with the defendants that any debts which might have been construed as owing by them or either of them to the complainant were given up, relinquished and forever forgiven to them, the said defendants, by him the said complainant, and that he made to the mand to each of them a full, free and voluntary gift, to their own exclusive use and engagement of the said sum of $6,000 and all other sums so advanced by him."

The answer telis also that Fries "urged" the several sums upon the defendants, telling them that if the aggregate was not enough, then, to come to him for more.

Further along the answer states that inasmuch as the defendants "relying upon the representations of the complainant and upon his gifts to them of the said several sums of money, they expended large sums of money in improvements upon the lands and premises. * * * A revocation of such gifts by the said Adolph A. Fries, would work great injustice to the defendants and to each of them, and would be a fraud upon them."

PRINCETON GETS BOOKS.

Rare Volumes Bequeathed to the University by Artist.

The Princeton University library has announced the receipt of a large number of rare, valuable books from the executrix of the estate of the late Francis Lathrop, the artist and art critic. Mr. Lathrop, previous to his death, which occurred about a year ago, willed to the university a considerable portion of his extensive library.

The books received are about 1,000 in number and consist in the main in the miscellaneous portion of Mr. Lathrop's library. The particular value of this collection lies in the number of association books which it contains, including many presentation books to George P. Lathrop, his brother, or containing the names of the Hawthorne family, to which the Lathrops were related.

The bequest also includes Mr. Lathrop's literary apparatus as an art critic, comprising card indices and an extensive series of clippings.

FINDS WASHINGTON WILL.

In examining papers and relics left in a trunk by her mother, a copy of Mary Washington's will was found by Mrs Sidney Hulsizer, of Rahway, Tuesday.

The will had been registered in the clerk's office at Fredericksburg Va., May 20, 1788, and witnessed by James Mercer and Joseph Walker. It gives to George Washington all her land on Accokeek Run and articles of housekeeping and her negro boy George forever. Betty Lewis, her daughter, was given the horse and phaeton. Hannah Washington, her niece, received her purple cloak, lined with shag. Every member of the family was remembered several negroes being among the chattels disposed of.

REPUBLICANS NAME LEADER TOMORROW

Through the secretary, Edward W. Gray, a meeting of the New Jersey State Republican Committee was yesterday called by Franklin Murphy, chairman, for noon tomorrow. It will be held in Newark. The important business will be the naming of a new chairman to take the place of Mr. Murphy, who is to resign.

It is expected that United States Senator Frank O. Briggs will be named for the place by Vivian M. Lewis, candidate for Governor, in the event of the failure to persuade Mr. Murphy to reconsider his determination to retire. Four members at large of the State Committee will also be named by Mr. Lewis, and it may be suggested that the number of members at large be increased to six.

MONTCLAIR ORGANIZING BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT.

More than a score of clergymen, business men and physicians met in the offices of Frank F. Gray, supervisor of attendance in the Montclair public schools, Monday night, to discuss plans for organizing the boy scout movement in Montclair. The meeting was called by Mr. Gray, who acted as chairman.

After an explanation of the general movement had been made by Mr. Gray and George A. Hall, it was decided to call a general meeting of the citizens of the town to put the project before them. It was thought advisable to have a town committee appointed to supervise the different patrols which are rapidly being formed, without any local directing authority.

A. S. Knight, of the Hillside Grammar School, was appointed chairman of a committee to secure his friend, Earnest Thompson Seton, to come to Montclair and explain the purpose of the boy scout movement to the public at as early a date as possible. The other members of this committee are: Dr. Henry Ling Taylor, Rev. Robert S. Smith, Seth S. Terry, Rev. Henry E. Jackson, Geo. the same time.

An effort will also be made to have Edgar M. Robinson, International general boys' secretary of Y. M. C. A., be present and speak at the same time as Mr. Seton.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS ARE COMPLETE

The exterior improvements at Trinity Reformed church are now completed and present a more handsome and attractive appearance than ever before. They include a stone coping, one foot high and three feet underground, on Exchange alley, extending from Second street to the new addition for the primary room, on top of the coping has been erected a five foot ornamental iron fence, with a gate at the Second street entrance.

Inside the fence is a fine cement walk, four feet wide, extending from Second street to the door of the new primary room, and between that and the church is a space from six to ten feet wide, which has been graded and seeded and in time will add to the general attractiveness of the surroundings.

SEA TRIP FOR HIS CHICKENS.

Will Carry Them to Bermuda, Fearing They'd Be Neglected at Home.

So determined is E. H. Carlisle, a hotel keper of Mount Pleasant, that fifty Rhode Island Red chickens he owns shall have proper care for the next few months that he is arranging to take them with him on a cruise to Bermuda in a twenty-foot catboat. He says he can't trust any one on shore to look out for them. He expresses entire confidence that the sea trip will benefit them. They are not laying well now, but he is confident that when he lands they will be in great form.

Mr. Carlisle is proprietor of the Belmont Hotel of Bermuda, and also of the Hotel Leighton, of Mount Pleasant. When he lands at Bermuda and while he is there he will be able, he says, to supply the table of the Belmont with a few eggs.

The hotel man has rigged up waterproof crates on the deck of his vessel, where the chickens will spend the time on the voyage. If the weather gets bad he will simply cover the crates.

Frey, of 331 South Orange avenue, Newark, has resigned from the college and will go to Columbia University.

Rev. Dr. James M. Ludlow, pastor emeritus of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church of East Orange, preached last Sunday in the college church and in the evening he addressed the Williams Christian Association. Dr. Ludlow received the degree of D. D. from Williams in 1872.

ONCE T. WOODROW WILSON.

Candidate Shortened Name Years Ago, and So It Will Go on Ballot.

The Secretary of State has decided that in printing the official ballots for the November election it will not be necessary to describe the Democratic candidate for Governor as Thomas Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Wilson dropped the first name of Thomas shortly after his graduation from college and has not used it for many years.

In looking up the law the Secretary of State found that the name of the candidate should be printed in the manner in which he signed his acceptance of the nomination. Dr. Wilson signed his acceptance as Woodrow Wilson.

Apples as Jag Cure.

The W. C. T. U. of Cook county, Ill., is going to fight drink with apples. It has discovered that the agent which caused the fall of the human race may now regenerate it. Dr. Samuel Bailey of Mt. Ayr., Ia., has been experimenting on the anti-booze qualities of apples. He has cured hundreds of drinkers by feeding them apples when they wanted to drink. The women are sending out thousands of leaflets which read: "The use of apples as an article of diet will very much diminish, decrease and ultimately abate the appetite for alcoholic stimulants. That this is a fact could be proved in many instances if a little care, caution and vigilance be taken to investigate conditions. As a rule the habitual user of alcoholic stimulants is rarely a consumer of apples. There seems to be a peculiar combination in apples that allays the irritation, or so-called appetite, produced by the use of liquor."

Admired Handsome Drug Store.

Thomas S. Armstrong, the druggist, has been entertaining C. H. Bangs and F. C. Kinsman, of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Lowe, of Pittsfield, Mass. Mr. Bangs is a large manufacturer of druggists' fixtures at Boston, and he furnished the handsome new equipment for Mr. Armstrong's store. Mr. Kinsman is the only representative of the Boston concern. Mr. Bangs did not hesitate to say that the equipment for the local drug store was the finest in the country and he considered it his best show place. Recently, a man from Arkansas made a long trip here to inspect Mr. Armstrong's store.

ERECT MEMORIAL TO CAPT. JOSHUA HUDDY.

A tribute in the form of a monument, is to mark the spot where Captain Joshua Huddy, better known as "The Hero Martyr of Monmouth," sacrificed his life to the cause of liberty during the Revolutionary War.

The spot where the execution took place is about seventy-five yards southwest of the present Water Witch station, between Atlantic Highlands and Highlands, and the Sons of the Revolution are erecting a granite monument at this spot.

The monument will be nearly five feet high and of granite. On the four sides of the base of the monument will be carved the name Huddy. A tablet of bronze, 23x27 inches, will be placed on the north side of the monument, and will bear an inscription similar to the bronze tablet over a window of the Water Witch station.

The erection of the monument is under the direction of E. S. Atwood, of Water Witch Park, who is secretary of the Monmouth County Historical Association.

WANT VIEW OF ART EXHIBIT.

Montclair Public Complains Because Evans Collection Is Not Accessible.

Owing to the many complaints of Montclair citizens concerning the isolation of the Evans collection of American paintings, which are hung in the assembly room of the Hillside Grammar School, the Montclair Board of Education at its next meeting will consider the question of again placing a caretaker in charge of the room and admitting the public to the building after school hours.

There are more than fifty pictures in the exhibition and they include some fine examples of American art. Last winter, when the pictures were placed in the assembly room, where they will remain until a permanent art gallery is erected, the public was permitted to view them every afternoon, including Sunday, but owing to the expense of having someone in charge of the room the Board of Education closed the exhibition to the public after the school term ended and it was not reopened.

DIES AFTER TWO-MILE CHASE.

Delirious Jerseyman, Pursued Through a Swamp, Overtaken Too Late.

After a chase of more than two miles through a dense woodland, George Hendrickson, of Bennett's Mills, who fled in a delirium from his home, was captured last night by his brothers in a nearby swamp. Mr. Hendrickson has been ill for some time from an abscess on the brain and was delirious at times. In one of these attacks he made his escape, followed by his two brothers.

He led them a lively chase through woods studded with a thick growth underbrush and over fields until he took refuge in a big swamp about two miles from the house. His brothers overtook him, and in the struggle to lead him home, Jean Hendrickson was felled by a club in George's hand. The struggle, however, together with the long flight and the exposure, combined to weaken him, and he was finally taken back home.

He sank rapidly and died.

Miss Mary Ferris, of Brooklyn, has been visiting friends in this city for several days.

George Morris and family, of Central avenue, are spending their fall vacation at Asbury Park.

George Strayer of Darrow avenue, is confined to his home with an illness bordering on typhoid fever.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Lack of substantial evidence will keep the case of forgery charged against Charles H. Troxwell, of Beverly, from being taken up by the present session of court, and in all probability the case will be dropped.

Caught by the seat of his trousers by a dog, Raymond S. Drummond, eleven years old, of 723 Mt. Vernon street, Camden, had an injury dressed at the Homeopathic Hospital Tuesday. The dog that inflicted the wound was not suffering with rabies.

Missing from home for three weeks, Howard Kennedy, the fourteen-year-old runaway from Riverside, has been located at Newport, R. I., where he had enlisted in the navy. His mother hurried to Washington and placed the matter before the officials, who gave assurance that the boy would be sent home.

John Le Compte, who superintended the work on the north section of the road from Lakewood to Toms River, announces that it is completed. It was built by State money from the automobile license fund. Automobilists say the pavement of gravel is not thick enough, and that the combination of dry weather and automobiles have cut it up badly, although it is just finished.

A bit of romance is attached to the departure last night of Miss R. C. Alloways, of Mt. Holly, for Hillyard, Wash., as her marriage to Fred C. Norcross, formerly of Mt. Holly, is the object of her long journey across the country. Norcross went West several months ago and since locating at Hillyard has laid the foundation for beginning of his martial blessings.

Mayor Stoy Tuesday signed Atlantic City's annual fiscal ordinance, carrying a total of $1,788,594 in appropriations for the ensuing twelve months. The increase, which is much greater than in any former year, is due to a heavy advance in county tax, State and district school taxes and sinking fund allowances, which aggregate $566,767. The tax rate will be $2.

Ventnor Tuesday voted at a special election to authorize the Council to expend $100,000 in making Atlantic avenue through the resort an ocean boulevard extending to Atlantic and Pacific avenues in Atlantic City to Margate Park, and in widening and paving Ventnor avenue as a speedway for automobiles in Ventnor.

Mrs. Frankie Morton, summer tenant of a handsome cottage in the Rhode Island avenue residential district, Atlantic City, failed to appear in police court Tuesday, and many "men about town," who feared they might be called as witnesses to explain revelry in the cottage during the summer, breathed more freely. Recorder Keffer forfeited $200 in cash bail posted for Mrs. Morton, following her arrest for the sale of liquor without a license. She is said to have left the city.

The Morris Guards, Atlantic City's independent military organization, has completed plans for its annual encampment at Catskill, N. Y. The members will leave next Monday evening at 9 o'clock on a special train of Pullman sleepers, with fifty drilling men in line and an equal number of guests. The East Stroudsburg band will arrive at Atlantic City from Stroudsburg, Monday afternoon, 20 strong, to accompany the citizen soldiery. The guards will go under canvas for ten days and will be under strict military discipline.

Branded by Prosecutor Scovel as being "worse than a common cur going around without chain or muzzle," George A. Leary was sentenced to eighteen months in State prison by Judge Joline, in Camden, Tuesday, on a charge of stealing over $200 from Mrs. Hannah A. Potts, of 898 Penn street. Mrs. Potts, a widow, took Leary in as a boarder and kept him about a year without any board upon his excuse that he would have considerable money forthcoming. During the absence of Mrs. Potts the man disappeared with the money and was located in Philadelphia.

Peter Kiker, an inmate of the State Soldiers' Home, Vineland, is the hero of the institution and the town. Kiker is supplied with a badge which gives him detective powers as a guardian of the peace at the home and in the township of Landis. When he saw a young man selling what Kiker thought were glass diamonds for the real thing the officer thought it time for him to act. The young man, who gave his name as J. H. Jones, proved to be a scrapper and a rough-and-tumble fight ensued, but Kiker showed the "spirit of '61" and landed his man. Recorder Lyons fined the young man for disorderly conduct.

Postal Bank Plans Ready.

The board of trustees of the Postal Savings Bank, consisting of the Postmaster-General, the Attorney-General and the Secretary of the Treasury, met Tuesday in the office of Postmaster-General Hitchcock. Mr. Hitchcock presented the report of his committee, which has been working on the plan of organization for the system all summer. The plans submitted were favorably received by the board and the Postmaster-General, as chairman, was authorized to present the report in the matter to the Cabinet meeting yesterday.

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, the nineteenth day of September, 1910, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, pursuant to the provisions of an act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," approved April 7, 1880, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, a system of sewerage has been constructed in said city and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as was authorized by the several ordinances of the said city enacted under and by virtue of said acts of the Legislature and particularly the ordinances respectively entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the construction of a system of sewerage," approved July 25, 1894; "A further ordinance to provide for the construction of a system of sewerage," approved June 21, 1895; "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of an Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897; "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances, of the City of Plainfield," approved April 4, 1901; and "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved August 1, 1910; and

WHEREAS the Common Council hath ascertained and determined and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine to acquire by purchase or condemnation certain land within said city, needed for sewerage purposes, and said Common Council hath deemed it expedient and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine that it is necessary to collect the sewage of a portion of said city from sewers to be constructed under the said acts of the Legislature, and to elevate said sewage by means of pumps or pneumatic ejectors so that said sewage may flow into mains already constructed in said City, and to erect all necessary buildings, works and machinery thereon, and to take and appropriate for said purposes the lands and real estate hereinafter specified (the Common Council having ascertained, adjudged and determined, and hereby doth ascertain, adjudge and determine that the whole of said lands and real estate is necessary for said purposes) upon making compensation to the owner or owners, as in said acts of the Legislature provided, the said Common Council hath deemed it necessary and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine that it is necessary to take and appropriate for such purposes the said lands and real estate in order to effectually construct said further addition to said system of sewerage pursuant to said acts of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Common Council having duly investigated the premises and considered the same, is of the opinion that the public good requires the construction of said further addition to said system of sewerage, and particularly the adoption of said plan of raising the sewage, and the taking and appropriation of said lands as authorized by said act of the Legislature, and the Common Council hath so determined and doth hereby so determine;

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that the plan of raising sewage above specified be and the same is hereby adopted, in connection with the sewerage system already established as aforesaid, and that the land hereinafter specified being needed for said sewerage purposes, and the Common Council deeming it necessary to take and appropriate the same for such purposes, be taken and appropriated for the purposes aforesaid, pursuant to the provisions of said acts of the Legislature upon making compensation to the owner or owners thereof, as in said acts provided, that is to say: A certain tract situate, lying and being in the said City of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, described as follows:

BEGINNING at the intersection of the northwesterly side line of Sherman Avenue with the southwesterly side line of Monroe Avenue, as said streets are now laid out and opened, and running from said point in a northwesterly direction along said side line of Monroe Avenue a distance of two hundred feet to line of property now or formerly of William S. Bell; thence along said line in a southwesterly direction a distance of one hundred and fifty feet; thence in a southeasterly direction and parallel with Monroe Avenue a distance of two hundred feet to a point in the northwesterly side line of Sherman Avenue; thence along said line in a northeasterly direction a distance of one hundred and fifty feet to the point and place of beginning, together with the land in front of said premises to the middle of Monroe and Sherman Avenues. Being the property shown in red on map filed with the City Clerk September 19, 1910, entitled: "Map showing Land proposed to be taken and appropriated for Sewerage Purposes, City of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1910."

was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a special meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Thursday, the twentieth day of October, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing, or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days and said Common Council at such meeting, to be held on the twentieth day of October, 1910, as above stated, or afterward, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance, notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.
J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 2, 1910.

Topic—Self-centered or Christ-centered—Phil. i. 21; iii. 7, iv, 11-13. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Every human life has some center—some supreme motive or purpose around which everything else in the life revolves. In the natural world we see this fact illustrated in our solar system. The sun is the center, and around it revolve its eight planets and three moons and even the comets that belong to the sun system.

Sometimes power is the factor in a man's life around which all else centers. He may not care for riches and for position only as they extend his power. The center of another's life may be money. He will sacrifice everything else for money. Other lives are fame-centered. Riches, power and position may play a small part in their lives. They want fame. They want the world to know of them, to seek after them and to proclaim their every word and action. All of these may be good in their place if, when attained, they are used properly.

But there are two life centers which are in constant conflict and struggle—self and Christ. This is especially true of Christians. Not but what it plays a part in the life of those who are not Christians. Self is the stumbling block to Christ in many cases. Men will not surrender their wills to Christ and take His will for theirs. This, however, is necessary if one becomes a Christian. "If any man," says Christ, "would be My disciple, let him deny himself [put self out and let Christ in], take up his cross and follow Me." But many will not give up self. They will not substitute His will for theirs, and therefore He says in another place, "Ye will not come unto Me that ye may be saved." The will, the supreme attribute of man's mental power, will not give up to Christ, and such persons, not being saved, are lost.

There is no question as to what the proposed Christian should do, but how often we fail to do what we ought to do. Even after we have proposed to surrender self and all to Christ self still often asserts itself. Forgetting that we have said or sung "I surrender all," our perverse wills strive still to gain the mastery over us. But they should be kept down and Christ given the supreme place in our life, as we have promised.

Like Paul, for us to live should be for Christ to live—to live in us—our lives completely centered about Christ's. What things we consider personal gains without Christ we should give them up—"count them lost for Christ." Thus only can we live a true Christian life, strengthened by Him. We cannot make self and Christ both our life centers. "No man can serve two masters." Which will it be—self or Christ?

Zealous Christian Endeavorer.

Rev. E. A. King, a zealous Christian Endeavorer and a writer on physical culture, was born in Providence, R. I., Dec. 24, 1870. He early joined the Christian Endeavor society and was sent as a delegate to the tenth anniversary of the society at the Williston church. After a high school education he entered Y. M. C. A. work, becoming general secretary and physical director at Chicopee Falls, Mass. Then he graduated from the International Y. M. C. A. Training school and carried on Y. M. C. A. work in Kansas and Kentucky. Desiring to enter the ministry, he studied in Lane Theological seminary and in Oberlin Theological seminary, graduating from the latter in the class of 1900. After serving as a Congregational pastor for several

During all this time Mr. King was conducting classes in physical culture, organizing gymnasium classes for men and girls, conducting athletics in summer assemblies and doing similar work. He was also serving Christian Endeavor in many helpful ways, becoming denominational [illegible] of the Ohio union, being [illegible] elected president of that [illegible] In 1905, during his [illegible] especially engaged [illegible] He has also [illegible] of the state [illegible] the Washington

It was simple to find out the girl's name and that Mrs. Loveland, the aunt, was a delicate little person, at that time of life when sensible women cling no longer to the ragged edge of youth as a bat clings to a shutter. But as to wealth and as to ancestors (Cadwallader Hunter was as devout a worshipper of ancestors as any Chinaman) the matter was more difficult. However, he was eventually fortunate enough to stumble upon an acquaintance, a Mrs. Milton, who had met Mrs. Loveland and her niece while traveling in England. Mrs. Milton was a charming woman, but she had some weaknesses. In a sojourn of six weeks she had become so much more English than the English that she had taken to calling her daughter Fanny "Fawny." She pitied Mrs. Loveland and Mrs. Loveland's niece because they were so—"so unnecessarily American, don't you know." They lived in a town in the southwest, knew no New York people, poor things, and were altogether provincial. They had been abroad for the first time, had enjoyed themselves with the most countrified enthusiasm everywhere, and were so much interested in history and dull subjects of that sort that Fawny's mother fawncied they were perhaps schoolteachers on their holidays.

Major Cadwallader Hunter was glad to hear these damaging details, because it was evident that the Englishman was taken with Mrs. Loveland's niece. The self appointed bear leader wanted his bear for more important girls.

It was not till nearly dinner time that he was able to make his report to Loveland. Meanwhile, during his leader's absence, the bear had found out some things for himself and had forgotten Major Cadwallader Hunter. Val had felt the need of another constitutional and, seeing his namesake's niece struggling with a wind blown rug, had tucked it round her feet. A next door chair stood empty for the moment. He begged meekly to sit down and talk for a little while. He had talked for more than a "little while" and then had been forced to go because the owner of the next door chair came back and hovered suggestively.

Loveland had only just got up and was taking his leave when Major Cadwallader Hunter arrived from the music room, where he had been gleaning facts. "She is a Miss Dearmer," he announced.

"Oh, I know that already," Val returned ungratefully. "She told me herself."

"Lesley Dearmer."

"I hadn't got as far as the Lesley yet." Val laughed lightly, for he had had a delightful conversation with Miss Dearmer. And while Loveland sat beside her she had flung bright thought after bright thought, carelessly as a cashier in a bank shovels out gold for other people's purses. He had never met a girl like Miss Dearmer. No wonder she could write stories!

"Of course you must do exactly as you please," said Cadwallader Hunter, "but from what I've learned I fancy you can pass your valuable time better on this trip than in the society of Miss Dearmer."

"What do you mean?" Val flashed out at him.

"Oh, only that it's just as I thought. She and her aunt are ordinary, provincial little people, with no money or connections. They live in the southwest near a city called Louisville. Mr. and Miss Coolidge are at your table, and I've just been arranging to sit there, too, so I can introduce you this evening at dinner. You'll be next Miss Coolidge, and opposite you'll have a very nice girl, a Miss Fanny Milton, who admires Englishmen. Her mother is a youngish woman with a temper. She doesn't get on well with her husband, but he is a very rich man who must give a dot of at least $500,000 to his daughter. These people are friends of mine and will be very pleased to know you."

It was the next morning. Loveland had joined Miss Dearmer as she walked, and she had not been repellent in her manner. Yet somehow her friendliness did not encourage him to increasing conceit. He had vaguely felt that she read him as if he were a cipher of which she had found the key.

"I know who you are now," she said.

"Who told you anything about me?"

"Miss Milton."

"Oh, you know her—daughter of the white faced woman, pretty, blushy little thing who sits at my table?"

"Yes. We were traveling in England at the same time and often met at hotels."

"What did Miss Milton say about me?"

"Do you really want to know?"

"Yes. I am not a coward."

"She said she wondered if you were going over to our country to try to marry an American girl."

"By Jove! Well, supposing I do try, what's your opinion? Do you think I stand a good chance of bringing it off?"

"It's rather soon for me to judge."

"You seem to have made up your mind quickly about some of my other qualities."

"It might pay to 'try' to marry an American girl."

"Well," admitted Loveland on an impulse, "no matter how much I might want to, I couldn't marry one if it didn't pay."

"Now you are being frank," replied Miss Lesley. "I like people to be frank."

"So do I," said Loveland, "when that doesn't mean being disagreeable, as it generally does from one's relatives, especially one's maiden aunts."

"England expects that every aunt will do her duty."

"Luckily you're not my aunt, so please don't do yours if it's unpleasant. But couldn't we be frank—and friends? I should like most awfully to have you for my friend. You could be no end valuable to me, you know, about giving me good advice, if you would."

She laughed. "I dare say. But could you be valuable to me?"

CHAPTER V.

GUIDE, PHILOSOPHER AND FRIEND.

LOVELAND wished that he might dare to be dangerous, but the idea of having her for a friend into whose pink shell of an ear he could pour confidences really attracted him, since her value, not being cash value, could be realized by him in no other way. And, of course, if she would promise to be his friend it would be caddish to make love to her. He felt very virtuous as he laid down this rule for himself.

"I'll let you study me as much as you like and put me into your next story."

"As the villain?"

He looked rather blank. His conception for himself was always the part of hero.

"But, after all, it's usually baronets who're villains—in stories and plays," she went on. "A marquis—you are a marquis, aren't you?—may perhaps be a fellow being."

"Please treat me as such, then," said Loveland.

"I will, anyway till further notice. Now you may begin to tell me frank things, and I'll give you frank advice about them as a friend."

"How I wish you were rich!" exclaimed Loveland, thinking aloud, as he did sometimes.

"How do you know I'm not? Oh, of course Major Cadwallader Hunter found out for you. He would! He's the sort of man who takes a worm's eye view of the world and of women and wealth. But never mind if I am not rich."

"I do mind. I shouldn't want you for a friend if you were."

"You wouldn't—oh! Well, now you are being still franker, aren't you?"

"You said you liked people to be frank."

"Ye-es."

"I haven't offended you, have I?"

"No. I'm just getting used to you. It's quite interesting. What do you want my advice about? Other girls, I suppose."

"It may come to that," Loveland admitted.

"Any one in particular at the moment?"

"Well, supposing I were forced to marry money for the sake of—of—my estates and all that, is there any one on board you'd recommend?"

"You've two very eligible girls at your table."

"Yes. But, hang it all, it's too much of a good thing having them at one's elbow like that, you know. If only it were you instead"—

"On the principle of having the poor always with one. But for that you'd have to change and sit at mine. We're all poor there, I think. It's the ineligible's table for both sexes. Would you care to come?"

"I'd care to, but I couldn't afford it," said Val. "I must stop where I am and take the goods the gods provide."

"YOU THINK I'M A BEAST TO MARRY A GIRL FOR HER MONEY."

"You mean the dining room steward who arranged the seats."

"What else did Miss Milton say about me?"

"That you were very good looking, as we're being frank."

"I hope you agreed with her?"

"Oh, yes; I had to. Your looks are so obvious, so much a part of your stock in trade, if you don't mind my saying so. It would be silly to deny that the shop windows are well decorated. It was apropos of your marrying that she spoke. I said a handsome man oughtn't to be driven into the obscurity of marriage by necessity; he ought simply to be supported by the nation, become a sort of public institution and be the pride of his country—be sent, beautifully got up, to walk in parks and dance at balls and make life pleasant for girls."

"Thank you. Anything else?"

"Let me see! She said it seemed as if you'd bought your eyelashes by the yard and been frightfully extravagant."

"Wish I could pawn them!"

"If you marry as you intend you won't need to."

Pictures at $1.00

The fame of the pictures we sell at $1 (which does not mean dollar pictures), has reached all parts of the State, and our sales are constantly increasing.

These pictures are in varied form, both in black and colors, in mission and gilt frames, and most of them are extra large sizes—much larger than you would expect to buy for a dollar.

These pictures would naturally sell for $2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 in almost any picture store, but we buy and sell so many of them that we are able to make terms with the manufacturers that ordinary dealers cannot approach, and we are willing to take a diminutive profit in order that we may distribute a great many of them amongst our friends and patrons.

The collection just now is particularly fine—ready for fall home furnishers, those moving into new houses and others just beginning housekeeping. Don't fail to see this wonderful collection of pictures at..... $1

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

G. Herbert Condict will lead the prayer meeting tonight at Hope chapel.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society a social will be held in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church tomorrow night. It will be in the nature of a rally.

Prior to the evangelistic services to be held in the local Methodist churches, a week will be devoted by each church to preparation for the services. M. V. Williams, of Athens, Pa., a well known evangelist, will have charge of the coming revival which begins on Sunday, October 23. He will devote one week to each church.

Church Forty-two Years Old.

The forty-second anniversary of the Asbury Methodist church at Hackensack will be observed on Friday evening, October 28. The speaker of the occason will be the Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle, of Summit. Dr. Tuttle was the second pastor of the church, having served in that capacity from 1869 to 1872, and was the successor of Rev. Jeremiah Cowins.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave Monday night to plan for the winter's work.

FOUR SAVED FROM WRECK OF LAUNCH.

Forced to jump overboard when the powr launch Favorite of Ocan City, sank off Longport, Monday, Frank Waldron, H. G. Demmock and J. B. Buyr, of Philadelphia, and Captain Herbert Smith, of Ocean City, were almost drowned before they were rescud by the Great Egg Harbor life-savng crew, under command of Captain Joseph Lowry.

The Philadelphians, who are summer cottagers at Ocean City, left there for a fishing trip in the Favorite with Captain Smith, who owns the craft, in charge. A big comber crashed the yacht down hard on a submerged jetty, which cut clear through bottom and protduded near the roof of the cabin.

A fifty-foot craft having the appearance of a pleasure yacht was reported by the Great Egg Harbor Life-saving crew to be lying in a dangerous position about two and one-half miles off Ocean City, near the whistling buoy at 11 o'clock last night. The boat was flying signals of distress.

The life-saving crew from the Great Egg Harbor Station put out n their power boat immediately, but because of the dangerous sea that was breaking all around the unknown yacht as she lay hemmed in by two bars, th guards were unable to reach her.

They stood by ready to chance the breakrs should the craft show signs of going to pieces.

DIES TRYING TO TELEPHONE.

Rich New Jersey Man Falls Before Calling for Help.

In his dying struggles J. Harry Wilson, thirty-nine years old, one of the wealthiest men in Belleville, tried to communicate with a friend by telephone, but before he could get an answer he dropped to the floor. His body was discovered today by William S. Hanna, a personal friend of the dead man, which Wilson was trying to reach by telephone when he collapsed.

Since the death of his mother, nearly a year ago, Wilson had lived alone, and Mr. Hanna had a private telephone installed between his home and that of Wilson, so that the latter could call him when ill.

Wilson was last seen by Hanna on Saturday night, when he had supper. When he failed to appear Monday night Hanna went to the Wilson home, and, not being able to get in, went to the police station and conveyed his suspicions to Patrolman Swinn. The latter went with Hanna to the house after midnight, thinking Wilson might have got home.

When repeated rapping failed to bring any response, the two men forced an entrance and found the man dead on the floor. Dr. Winans, of the town, was notified, and he gave alcoholism as the cause of death. The county physician granted a burial permit. The dead man was said to be worth $100,000.

FORMER PEACH KING DEAD.

George W. Towles died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. M. Ayers, 276 South Twelfth street, Newark. He celebrated his eightieth birthday on September 12. Funeral services will be conducted from the Ayers home tonight at 8 o'clock, and interment will follow tomorrow in Pluckemin, where for years Mr. Towles owned a large peach orchard

Mr. Towles was born in Lincoln, England, in 1830. There he married Miss Ann Laceby, and in 1854 the young couple came to this country to make their home. They settled on a farm at Long Hill, above Summit. There they conducted a farm until 1874, and prospered. In that year Mr. Towles moved to Pluckemin and set out 10,000 peach trees. At that time it was one of the largest peach orchards in the State. Last year he sold his farm lands and orchards and came to live with his daughter here.

Mr. Towles is survived by seven children, twenty-four grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren. The children are, besides Mrs. Ayers, Mrs. W. H. Mott, of Rockaway; Mrs. Henry Linsey, of New Vernon; Geo. W. Towles, Jr. of Pluckemin; Mrs. L. B. Harrison, of Bloomfield; Mrs. J. L. Mattox, of Morristown, and Mrs. A. L. Burd, of Millburn.

Governor Names Dr. Alice H. Ward.

Governor Fort yesterday appointed Dr. Alice H. Ward, of Newark, as a factory inspector, succeeding Miss Mary McKeen, of Trenton, who declined to accept reappointment.

FATAL SALAD'S SICK LIST REACHES SIXTEEN

Sixteen persons were today reported suffering from the effects of eating the lobster salad which already has caused the death of three men at the banquet of the Entre Nous Club in Elizabeth.

Alexander Peterson and Michael O'Donnell were the two additional cases reported. While their condition is not regarded as serious they are under the care of physicians. The new cases were discovered after an investigation by the health department. It is believed that the canvass now being made will result in the discovery of several additional cases among those who attended the dinner.

The hospital authorities at Elizabeth reported last night that the four patients in the institution—Owen Farrelly, John Lavin, Dennis and Daniel Sullivan—are doing as well as can be expected. Dennis Sullivan, they believe, is in the most precarious condition, he having been neglected longer than the others. Both Farrelly and Mr. Lavin, whose condition was serious at the outset, last night were resting comfortably. Both men are able to sit up in bed at intervals and it is believed that their recovery is only a question of time.

The funeral of F. Lee Platz, 37 years old, the third victim to succumb after eating the salad, will be held tomorrow afternoon from his late home, 411 Trumbull street, Elizabeth. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

The sixteen cases reported to date are: Owen Farrelly, Dennis and Daniel Sullivan, John Lavin, Alexander Peterson, Michael O'Donnell, John Lyons, Jeremiah Connors, James Clifford, Frank Kelly, Daniel Duffy, George Marriot, Peter McCarthy, John F. Reagan; Thomas Smith, of Brooklyn, and Joseph Anderson. Physicians believe that they will recover.

Richard F. McMahon and John Sullivan, the other victims of the salad, were buried yesterday. The body of Mr. McMahon was taken to Amsterdam, N. Y. Mr. Sullivan was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Elizabeth.

It is said that the downtown section of the city may experience a typhoid fever epidemic. Every precaution to prevent the disease from spreading is being taken. Nearly all the guests who were at the banquet have submitted themselves to an examinaton and medical treatment has been given those in whom typhoid fever germs were found.

C. E. CONRGESS TO MEET TONIGHT AT Y. M. C. A.

The September Congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held tonight in the Y. M. C. A. hall at 8 o'clock. The Congress is composed of the officers of the union and the president, the junior and intermediate superintendent and an elected delegate from each of the thirteen Christian Endeavor societies of the union.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will address the Congress and short speeches will be made by Water Firstbrook and the chairmen of the standing committees of the local union.

A cordial invitation is extended to al who are interested in young people's work to be present.

POLITICIAN BUYS CHURCH.

Robert Davis Pays $40,000 for Baptist Edifice in Jersey City.

Robert Davis, Democratic leader of Hudson county, has purchased from the trustees of the Parmly Memorial Baptist church its old church edifice on the easterly side of Grove street, between Mercer and Wayne streets, Jersey City.

The building is of brick and is one of the oldest churches in the city. The property has a frontage of 59 feet in Grove street and is 100 feet in depth. The price paid for the property was about $40,000.

STRANGE SLEEP UNBROKEN.

According to the physicians attendng her Mrs. Michael Beglan, of 340 Fulton street, Elizabeth, is recovering, though she still retains traces of the strange coma which seized her a week ago yesterday.

Since Tuesday she has been taking nourishment. The physicians at first feared that the woman's inability to eat or drink would result in her death. It is now thought that she may recover.

Beating Lays Up Cop

Elizabeth, Sept. 29.—Because the officer is still unable to leave his home as the result of the beating he received the case against Thomas McCann, Patrick Moran, Edward Walsh and Edward Maloney, charged with assaulting Patrolman Morris, was postponed yesterday by Judge Mahon. The case was set down for yesterday for a hearing. Morris claims to have been beaten Sunday night by the four young men at Spring and Olive streets.

—Miss Cora Gray, of East Second street, has taken a position as typewriter and stenographer in the office of Judge William Newcorn.

He entered the New York University last Monday for a three-year course in the commercial and business department PLANNING ACTIVE SEASON FOR HOPE CHAPEL CLUBS.

Charles G. August, leader of the Junior Boys' Club at Hope chapel, addressed the meeting of the club last night at the chapel. He spoke of the plan to promote a number of the club members into the Boys' Club. Fifteen applications were received for membership and they will be acted upon at the meeting Wednesday night, when the election of officers takes place. The age limit of the Junior Boys' Club is from 12 to 14 years; that of the Boys' Club from 14 to 17 years, and the Young Men's Club is from 17 to 21 years.

The last named club has not been in active existence for the past year, but G. Herbert Condict, the chapel superintendent, plans to reorganize it soon. With the Men's Club, taking men from 21 years and up, the boys, young men and older men of the chapel will be well looked after by the several clubs. Basketball teams were organized last night among the members of the Junior Boys' Club. Twenty members were present.

WORD COST $5.

It Was a Naughty One and Man Was Fined.

It cost Stanislaw Bender, of Bayonne, just $5 to say "damn" yesterday, or at least it cost him that after he had said it.

The tax might not have been so heavy had Bender chosen a more fitting place in which to express himself than the Bayonne Police Court. But then such are the frailties of human nature. He just had to say the word when his veracity was questioned. He was in court to testify against Wonda Cerena, his next-door neighbor, who had been his opponent in a neighborly discussion the day before.

He told the court his side of the question and was interrupted by Miss Cerena when he said the word that cost him $5, being the amount of fine imposed by Recorder Mara..

Lost Watch Turns Up.

On arriving at the Interstate fair grounds at Trenton yesterday Councilman M. C. VanArsdale, of the borough, discovered that he had lost a valuable gold watch and Elk fob somewhere during the trip. He reported the fact to the P. and R. railroad officials as a chance that he might have dropped it on the train. This morning Mr. VanArsdale received telegram stating that the timepiece had been found and was waiting claim at Philadelphia. The watch is a family heirloom and its return means a great deal to the owner.

Plan for Monthly Meeting.

The first fall meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Hope chapel was held yesterday afternoon at the chapel. Mrs. G. Herbert Condict, president, was in charge. Plans were discussed for the next monthly meeting of the society, which will occur during the industrial fair week, October 26-27 and 28. It was decided to hold the meeting on Thursday evening, October 20, and have a missionary address the members. This will take the place of the regular prayer meeting.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel held an all-day sewing meeting yesterday at the chapel. A large number of the members were in attendance Luncheon was served at 12:30 and at 4 o'clock tea was poured.

WOODROW WILSON EXPOUNDS DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE AT REFORM HALL, STRONGLY DENOUNCING THE TARIFF AND OTHER REPUBLICAN MEASURES

Gubernatorial Nominee Speaks on Campaign Issues to One Thousand People While Hundreds Unable to get in Hall Attend an Open Air Overflow Meeting.

In his speech before a crowded house in Rform hall last night Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for Governor, denounced the tariff, and gave hs views on the public service commission's powers, the employers' liabilty question, direct primaries and corrupt practices act. He favored such legislation as would reform the present conditions of national expenditure to such an extent that the greater burden would be lifted from the shoulders of the people, and he attributed the present discontent to the continuing in power of the Republican party.

Red fire, a brass band and a big crowd greeted the candidate upon his arrival at Reform hall. He was ushered into the hall amid the cheers of 1,000 people while on the outside of the building 700 more yelled themselves hoarse. During the half hour preceding the doctor's arrival Dr. Albert A. Snowden, of New York University, led in singing some of the songs written especially for this campaign. In the audience nearly as many women as men helped out in the singing and split their gloves in the applause.

While Dr. Wilson was speaking in the hall, outside Hon. Joseph Tumulty, of Jersey City, and James E. Martine delivered speeches to the assembled hundreds. The subject of Mr. Tumulty's speech was the Democratic opportunity to return the State to the Democratic column, giving his reasons as the discontent of the people. Mr. Martine spoke at length on the tarif and took the opportunity to pay a high tribute to Judge Runyon. He said that the Judge was a cultured, honest, upright man and a Christian nobleman. These sentiments were wildly applauded by the crowd.

After the tumult following the arrival of Dr. Wilson in the hall had subsided former Mayor William L. Saunders introduced the candidate in the following words:

"It is but little more than a year ago that speeches were made in Congress predicting the death of the Democratic party; extremists said that they then saw signs of early dissolution. Pessimism and discouragement pervaded everything. It was common talk to hear men say that the Democratic party is dead.

"Republicans who felt that they could no longer follow the leaders of their party and who longed for a haven in which to seek shelter came to us Democrats and said, 'Why do you not get a new lease of life? Put up good men. Give us a place to go and we will go.' We do not like things as they are; but we will not join you unless you put up new men, men free from your old alliances, men of worth and independence.' There is not a Democrat in this hall who has not heard these lamentations. Now, we have taken you at your word, my Republican friends; we have followed your advice; we are born again, and in the good old State of New Jersey we have chosen for our leader one

'Whose life is gentle; and the elements
So mixed in him, that one may stand up
And say to all the world:
"This is a Man!"'.

"It is but idle for me to recite the virtues of the President of Princeton University. He needs no eulogy; he speaks for himself, but in presenting this man to you people of Union and Somerset counties I want to remind you of what you have said and to ask you to now make good by your votes. I appeal to Republicans and Independents rather than to Democrats, for with such candidates no true Democrat will desert the standard.

"To maintain a wide gap between the two parties is dangerous to our institutions. Strict party adhesion is a fault and not a virtue. We have a mistaken idea of party loyalty. A man who boasts that he has never voted any other than his party ticket impeaches his own courage and intelligence. True party loyalty is to stick to your party so long as its leaders worthily carry out its policies. The best citizen is he who upholds the right through having the courage of his convictions. It is one of the greatest curses in our political system that men should vote, not as they think, but as directed by the lash of party adhesion. Does any one doubt that this mistaken idea of true party loyalty is responsible for the prolonged and corrupt rule of Quay, Platt and Croker?

"To err is human. As parties are personal they fall into error and deserve punishment—a sure proof that parties are personal is this rejuvenation of the Democratic party. The best way to purify a party is to strike it by aiding its enemy—the other party. To support a third party is to lull yourself to sleep and iridescent dreams. We Democrats have in the past shown some freedom, and now we call upon you Republicans and Independents and ask your support for men whose hands are clean, whose heads are clear and whose hearts are pure.

"It is my privilege to present to you that 'pillar of a people's hope'—Dr. Woodrow Wilson."

Dr. Wilson said:

"You put me very much at ease by your cheering, for that is the atmosphere in which I live in at college, and yet I am haunted by the fear, as I face this audience in the dignified joy now there is upon me, that there are a good many Princeton men in it.

"I am cheered by the fact that I stand here as the representative, as I conceive, of a great body of men who have very definite hopes and purposes with regard to the reformation of government in New Jersey.

"There never was a time, I am convinced, when party bonds were quite so loose as they are at this moment in this country. There never was a time when there was more independent thinking being done than is now being done in this country. What is more, there never was a time when that thinking was more generally based upon a sympathy with the common needs of all classes of men. I have had men say to me, in very recent days, that they were ashamed of the things that they themselvs had been engagd in pushing on the great economic interests of this country. They said: 'It seems to us as if the scales had fallen from our eyes, and we have at last realized the significance of the things we have been doing.' It is an extraordinary moment in public affairs in this country.

"Men are not stopping now to examine party labels; they are beginning to examine candidates; they are beginning to examine programs; they are beginning to ask whether they can rely upon definite promises, and if they are convinced upon these points they are ready to thrust aside all antecedent connections and prepossessions and vote for the men and the things that they believe in.

"The Democratic party has strayed on at different times through many devious paths, but it has never forgotten its sympathy with the great bodies of toiling men; and it is that sympathy which will sustain and renew any party that continues true to it; for the Democratic party is renewed in our day, not by the rise of new men but by the impulse of a new time, which naturally expresses itself in new men. If I were askd to fit the old party cries and shibboleths to the present state of politics, I should say at once that I did not see how it was possible; and the difficulty with the party which I am now trying to play my part in displacing is that it has stuck to old cries and shibboleths and has not noticed the change of the times.

"Why is it that there is a great insurgent movement in the Republican party? It is because great bodies of thoughtful men inside their party are beginning to perceive how that party has, not by movement, but by inertia, not by new policies, but by old, separated itself from the enlightened interests of the present movement. The proof of the Democratic argument is the action of these great, powerful bodies of insurgents within the Republican ranks.

"A gentleman who is an importer asked this queston of a Republican friend of mine the other day. The Republican friend was one of those credulous persons who is willing to argue that the recent revision of the tariff was a revision downward. It takes an ingenious mind to construct the argument, but it can be constructed. He was askd by the importer if that is true, if the Payne-Aldrich tariff lowered the duties, why was it that every captain of a steamship was sent a wireless message to hurry into port before the act went into operation.

"You know how the ships were hurried to get into port. Now, if it is true that the Republican party is still carrying the true standards of the interests of this country why is it that thousands of its own are rebelling against their master? The reason is that they know that the best traditions of that party are being violated and that by holding to policies which are outworn and unstable the Republican party has forgotten to keep up with the movement of the time.

"We are thinking of a great many things and we are talking about a great many things, but it is interesting to note that we are not doing anything in particular.

"The scandal of great sums of money can be stopped tomorrow by right statutes, because w have courts in this State, thank God, that administer the statutes. I say that New Jersey has just right to be proud of the reputation of her incorruptible courts. If you give our courts the chance they will show you whether it can be stopped or not, because under a proper corrupt practices act it is the privilege of any citizen who knows anything to lay the thing before the proper tribunal and bring the whole thing to a stop if they were prosecuted in the courts under an efficient corrupt practices act. There are societies organized suitable to do this, but there is no law by which it can be done. I could go on and illustrate, but the point is that we hold back and do not know why we do not go forward.

"Corruption in politics is a very subtle thing; it isn't all corruption of money; it is corruption of understanding. The trouble is that a batch of men repesenting different corporations can meet in any room and arrive at an understanding; no papers are drawn; no act of incorporation is asked for; there is nothing to show authority; the air of the room has not recorded what is spoken. Is it possible that there are compacts against the public?

"The point that I want to drive home is that when we get down to business we sha'l dispense with reckless and irresponsible criticism and come out on a basis of fact and propose definite things to be done that can be done. There are a great many things that are wrong that we do not yet see the way to set right and those are not the things we ought to make a shouting about. As I said to the Democratic convention the other day it is now either a case of putting up or shutting up. We have already discussed the point; the time new is to act in hearty co-operation with each other.

"The Public Service Commission is not intended merely to regulate rates; it is meant to regulate rates by a fair and judicious inquiry; it is not meant merely to register complaints but to correct abuses with regard to corporations as well as the public, not merely to serve one side but to serve both sides by pointing out what parts of the community need an extended service.

"I believe the tariff can be reformed in a way that will not disturb business too much and will meet the necessary and just demand. There s one argument that comes to me forcibly in this country which cannot be answered. There are various causes for the increase in the cost of living, but one cause which makes it rise more rapidly in America than anywhere else. Now what is that cause? That cause is the tariff wall that has been built so high that business concerns, being absolutely free against the danger of foreign competition, can get together and control prices and cost. It is not the just and reasonable protection the Republican orators used to talk about of putting them in competition with foreign merchandise, but in such a position they can get together and command our fortunes by establishing a rate of price and also the amount of production.

"You know what happens when prices get too low, when the product is too abundant, then the amount produced is curtailed by a common agreemnt. If there were normal foreign competition they would not dare curtail it. That is the tariff. And so all along the line, the minute you get down to a dispassionate businesslike discussion of the questions at issue you realize you don't remember whether you are a Republican or a Democrat, and are ready to act in the general interest of the country.

"Give us the power and if we misuse it, if we lose our opportunities we should lose all opportunity to elect a Democratic President of the United States. It is not an easy thing to be asked to put to test. It is not a prudent thing to be asked to be put to the test, but for my part I am not interested in the game unless we can test ourselves and try ourselves out. I am tired of talk. I wish performance, and if we cannot deliver the goods, then I am satisfied for one to take a back seat.

"I am here merely to plead for

TRIED TO 'JUMP' TRAIN; RECEIVES BROKEN RIB

While attempting to board a moving freight train near the Grant avenue station this morning Vincent Karolecski, aged forty years, who claims Brooklyn as his home, missed his grip and fell alongside the track, injuring himself so badly that he could not arise.

The attention of J. Willson, of Lyman place, was drawn to the man, and he went to his assistance. He managed to get Karolecski to Front street, where he turned him over to Patrolman McGinley. Karolecski was taken to the hospital, where it was found that he was sugering from a broken rib.

C. E. UNION OPPOSES EXCISE APPLICATION

At the Congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. last night Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was the principal speaker. His subject was "Go." He mentioned several lines of activity along which endeavorers should work, but laid his greatest stress on missions. Other speakers were Walter Firstbrook, Nelson Van Winkle, Jesse Burdick and Clarence B. LaRue.

A resolution adopted on behalf of the members of the local union living in North Plainfield, authorizing the secretary to communicate, with Judge Clarence L. Case, at Somerville, urging him to refuse to grant one new license and to refuse to renew another in the borough.

The societies reported that delegates had been chosen to represent them at the Christian Endeavor convention which will be held October 5 and 7 at Trenton.

The next mass meeting of the local union will be in charge of the prayer meeting committee and will be held some time in October. It will be in the nature of an "Echo" meeting of the State convention. There were two delegates present from New Market.

UNION COUNTY W. C. T. U. HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

The Union County W. C. T. U. at its annual convention held in the Presbyterian church, Garwood, yesterday, re-elected Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of this city president. The other officers chosen were. Corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. L. Rarick, of Dunellen; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. Mary T. Cox, of Cranford; honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. Scriven-Stoddard, of Elizabeth; Miss Julia A. Barker, of Rahway. Mrs. Bodine was elected delegate to the National convention at Baltimore, and Mrs. E. K. Fuller of Rahway, was chosen as alternate.

The address of the convention was delivered by Rev. Gordon M. Russell, pastor of the entertaining church. At the afternoon session a resolution was passed extending the congratulations of the convention to the Sons of Temperance of Elizabeth, which was holding its sixty-eighth anniversary during the day, and it is said to be the oldest temperance organization in the world.

The evening session was devoted to a silver medal ortorical and musical contest. There were seven essays and six solos given in the competition. Mrs. E. R. Fuller, county superintendent of medal contests, presided.

W. C. T. U. Please Note.

A fifty gallon barrel of grape wine being delivered to A. Bohren, on Greenbrook road, slpped from the driver's grasp as he was lifting it from a truck this morning and the head was smashed in. The wine went to waste, flowing down the gutter outside of what deluged the disgruntled handler. The wine was sent from the M. Latzhco place.

Plainfield Elks Win.

The local Elks baseball team defeated the Stapleton, S. I., lodge nine in a well played game at the latter place yesterday afternoon. The score was 9 to 7. Lou Wiltse pitched for Plainfield and McQuinlan did the honors for the Staten Islanders. The game closed the season for the local Elks team.

—Neuman Bros will have a fine display and assortment of fruits and vegetables for tomorrow's trade; from which a selection for the Sunday dinner will be easy. The prices are reasonable.

AN INDELIBLE PENCIL COST HIM A NOMINATION

The use of an indelible lead pencil by a score of those who voted for him cost John A. Hec, the Democratic nomination for Council in the Third ward of Elizabeth, as the result of a recount held by the Union County Board of Elections in the Court house at Elizabeth yesterday. The district boards of the ward had declared his opponent, Thomas A. Flynn, the nominee by a majority of four votes, but on Hec's application to Supreme Court, Justice Bergen ordred the county board to recount the ballots. Singularly enough the use of the indelible pencil was not confined to eithr candidate's supporters for it appeared on ballots of both and moreover in all three districts. In Hech's own district, the first, it was used more generally, costing him at least twenty votes. These and other ballots being rejected by the county board, Flynn's majority was announced as election.

The action of the district boards in Westfield in declaring Moses A. Hoppock nominated as a Republican candidate for council by a majority of three over Harry W. Evans was reversed by the county board, which counted in Evans favor five votes which had been rejected as marked ballots. Former Assemblyman Swackhamer as council for Hoppock took exception to the ruling and will appeal to the court. Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield, represented Evans.

WOMEN'S GUILD ELECTS AND PLANS FOR SEASON'S WORK.

Officers were elected and plans for the season discussed at the meeting of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held at the parish house yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance and the work was undertaken with considerable enthusiasm. It was decided to hold a Christmas fair for two days, the first week in December the dates to be announced later. The sum of $100 was also pledged for the rectory fund and it was decided to purchase and distribute some literature among the parishoners.

These officers were elected: President, Rev. C. H. Mallery; secretary, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Borden. The rector then appointed these two committees: Entertainment, Mrs. Charles Borden, chairman; Miss Mary Graves, Mrs. James McCall. Work, Mrs. Charles Ludgate, chairman; Mrs. William Tabbing, Mrs. Charles Drake. A social hour was enjoyed after the business and refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Jennie Wenzell.

WOODROW WILSON DINED BY DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

Arriving here by automobile from the Trenton fair, where he made an address to several thousand people in the afternoon, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic Gubernatorial nominee, was entertained at dinner by the Democratic Club at Truell' Inn.

Besides the distinguished guest at the table were Former Mayor William L. Saunders, James E. Martine, Howard Fleming, all of this city; Brig. Gen. D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth; James Nugent, of Newark, chairman of the Democratic State committee; David J. Kenney, David J. Carney, Robert C. Woodhouse, L. J. Ellis, all of this city, and some newspaper men.

MISSIONARY AND AID SOCIETY HOLD AN ALL-DAY MEETING

An all-day sewing meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel was held at the chapel yesterday. The sewing began at 9 o'clock in the morning under the direction of Mrs Henry Bishop. Quilts were quilted and sheets, pillow cases and aprons were made for the missionary box.

At 1 o'clock a hot luncheon was served in the infant class room, where fifty women sat down to a fine repast. Mrs. John Higgins, with a large corps of women as a committee, served the luncheon. Afterward sewing was continued until 4:30 o'clock.

Hunt Club Chase.

The riding members of the Watchung Hunt Club will meet the hounds at the kennels tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for a short chase. There will not be many jumps, owing to the "blind" condition of the surrounding country. At the conclusion of the chase, E. S. Hooley will give a dinner at the clubhouse, and the Eureka Trio, of New York, will entertain the guests with a popular program.

GEORGE K. DOBSON WEDS MISS ADA ALICE BRIGHT

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, beneath a bower of roses, ferns and smilax, Miss Ada Alice Bright, of 427 West Seventh street, became the bride of Patrolman George K. Dobson, at the new home of the groom, 1235 Clinton avenue, in the presence of a company estimated to number over a hundred personal friends of the couple. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Elory G. Bowers, curate of Grace P. E. church. The best man was Edward S. Davis, of New York, and the bridesmaid, Miss May Day, of West Fourth street. The bride was given away by Thomas H. Leggett, of West Seventh street.

The ceremony was performed in the front parlor of the house which was decorated throughout with boxwood boughs. The bride's gown was of creme cachemere de soie made in surpice style, with deep lace yoke, crossings finished with large lace covered buttons, with the skirt slightly drawn at the side with a wide bias fold making just a suggestion of the hobble skirt. The veil was caught up with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses

The bridesmaid was attired in a gown of white batiste with a touch of pale blue and carried a bouquet of white and pink roses. After the ceremony a reception was held to which all the guests remained. The wedding march was played on the piano by Charles Suhr, Jr.

The gifts to the bride were both numerous and costly. Among the notable presents were china dinner sets, solid silver water pitcher, cut glass in profusion, bronze statuettes, table linen carving sets, doilies and included a handsome cut glass fruit and jelly set from the Plainfield police dpartment.

The police department was represented by Sergeant Overbaugh, Roundsman Higgins and Patrolmen Charles Flynn, Nick Meyers, Frank Sweeney, Daniel McDonald, Richard Birmingham. Others present were F. A. Duttenhoffer, Douglas Martin and others.

The bride's former home was in Bomford, England, and strangely enough the parents of the bride are aquainted with an uncle of the groom who is chief of police at Brentwood, England After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Dobson will return to live in the new house which has just been completed in anticipation of the wedding and furnished from top to bottom.

MISS ANNA FLOSBACH G. B. HOWELL'S BRIDE.

Miss Anna Marie Flosbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Flosbach, of Midway avenue, Fanwood, and George B. Howell, also of Fanwood, were married Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, of which the couple are members, officiated. The bride was attended by Miss Rose Wilson, of Dunellen, and the best man was Ray Terry, of this city.

The bride was gowned in white silk poplin and the bridesmaid wore a gown of light blue pongee. The home was attractively decorated for the occasion. There were about thirty guests, and after the ceremony the couple was congratulated and supper was served. There was also a fine program of vocal and instrumental music. The couple will reside at Fanwood. The groom is engaged in business as an electrician.

BROTHERHOOD REALTY CO. ACQUIRES PROPERTY.

The Brotherhood Real Estate Company, of which Morris Abrams and Jacob Fass are members, has acquired a tract of five hundred feet on West Fourth street, between Plainfield avenue and John street, and will erect ten moderate price houses.

The company has also purchased from F. C. Lounsbury, through Albert Lederer, the property on West Second street, between Elmwood place and Plainfield avenue, comprising five houses, three double ones and two single ones. Mr. Abrams has purchased the property on West Front street, occupied by himself and will tear down the old structure and erect a modern three-story building with a sixty-four foot extension.

WILL OPEN GYMNASIUM

Physical Director Whitaker Ready for Classes in Y. M. C. A.

CALISTHENICS WITH MUSIC.

Basketball and Swimming Teams to Be Features.—Boxing and Wrestling Instruction for Those Who Want It.

The Y. M. C. A. schedule for the season of 1910-11 has been compiled and will begin tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The gymnasium has been renovated during the past months; the repainted pool looks inviting and no doubt the swimming classes under the direction of T. G. Whitaker, physical director, will prove one of the attractions during the coming season.

The calisthenic exercises for the business men's classes will have the assistance of piano music which the director believes will add materially to the interest in this division. Mr. Whitaker would like to meet all those who are interested in swimming and consult as to the advisability of forming a swimming team for competition.

The physical department committee will meet tonight at 8 in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. to discuss plans for the coming season. All those on the committee are urged to be present.

Basketball will form as it did last year, one of the prominent features of the season's diversions. Mr. Whitaker would like to meet all the candidates on Monday for practice. The prospects for a good team this season are particularly bright, as several of the members of last year's team will report for positions this year.

In speaking of the general outlook for indoor sports during the winter Director Whitaker declared that they were never brighter. Everyone seems to be optimistic and enthusiastic over the prospect of basketball, swimming and general gymnasium work. Boxing and wrestling will be added sports which will arouse the young fellows and many will take up the two.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS JENNIE GRAY HELD.

The funeral of Miss Jennie Gray was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late home on West Fifth street, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, of which the young woman was a member. Among the many present were a number of school-mates of Miss Gray. Charles L. Lewis sang several selections during the services.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, including many from the young friends of the departed, the Epworth League of Monroe Avenue church and Plainfield Lodge No. 885, B. P. O. E., of which Miss Gray's brother, James Dodd, is a member. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were George H. Fisher, Jr., Frederick Jacobs, Louis Mulford, Elmer Morrison, Harry Lude and Harry Sawyer.

ROTH & CO. CELEBRATE SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Roth & Co. the well known butchers, are celebrating the seventh anniversary of its market and the concern has gone to some expense to decorate its business house on East Front street befitting the occasion. There is a fine display of flowers, and an extra effort is made in showing a fine line of provisions, including choice meats, game and poultry.

Since coming to Plainfield seven years ago the firm has made a host of friends through fair dealing, giving its patrons big value for their money. In this way Roth & Co. has built up an extensive business second to none.

Dr. F. J. Keech Will Preach.

Rev. Dr. Frederick J. Keech, of Grace Episcopal church, Brooklyn, will preach at St. Stephen's church, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock; also the following Sunday morning. The last two Sundays in October, Rev. Mr. Owens, of Trenton, will preach. There was a vstry meeting last night, but no decision was reached regarding a successor to Rev. Morgan Ashley. Rsolutions of appreciation of Mr. Ashley's services were adopted.

Y. W. C. A. Outing.

The members of the Y. W. C. A. will enjoy its weekly outing tomorrow, the point of destination being the "Deserted Village," Feltville. The start will be made at 3 o'clock from the association rooms, and all who can are urged to go on the tramp.

SPECIAL.—We have installed a magazine department where you can buy your favorite every month, or we will send to your home monthly.

WESTFIELD.

The special school meeting to have been held in Clark township Saturday has been postponed. After the Board of Education had set the date for the meeting and posted the calls for the same, they learned that one of the sites upon which the people were to decide for the location of the new school building had recently been sold in building plots, and is owned by a dozen different people. This makes it necessary to select another site to submit to the voters and postpone the school meeting to October 15.

The Lambert pond at Willow Grove is being drained for the first time in many years; the object is to clean the bed of the pond. A great number of carp is being taken, the largest so far weighing twenty-seven pounds. The carp seem to have supplanted all other fish in the pond.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The New Jersey State Grange will hold a special meeting at Flemington, October 7.

Falling from the roof of a new school building at Mays Landing, Walter Hankins, of Millville, broke an arm.

Robert Long, a lad who disappeared from his home in Wildwood last week, was found working in a Millville glass factory Wednesday.

The ninety-ninth anniversary of the West Jersey Baptist Association will be celebrated Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the First Baptist church, Pedricktown.

A stray team of horses attached to a heavy farm wagon did more than $300 worth of damage to headstones and burying plots in Riverview Cemetery, Trenton, Tuesday night.

Angry because he was compelled to pay his back taxes, a Millville delinquent counted out 200 pennies and turned them over to Special Collector William Dooling, who had relentlessly pursued him.

While returning from Rancocas to her home in Moorestown, the horse driven by Mrs. George M. Hillmon became frightened at a herd of swine, ran away and threw Mrs. Hillman out, breaking her collarbone.

The Cumberland County Grand Jury returned an indictment Wednesday against Dominick Dente for the murder of Chessy Traborichi, at Vineland, last spring. Dente has not been apprehended and is thought to have gone to Italy.

Tired of life and his troubles, Charles Fleetwood, of Laurel Springs, attempted suicide on the side porch of the residence of his brother, J. H. Fleetwood, with whom he was living, Wednesday, by shooting with a revolver. It is thought that he will recover.

Left alone in the house, George, three-year-old child of Joseph Waddell, who lives on the Harvey farm, near Mt. Laurel, found some strychnine pills, and, thinking they were candy, swallowed some. The child's mother hurried the boy to Moorestown for medical aid, but too late to save his life.

Henry Miller, forty-three years, of 1114 Baring street, Camden, was found unconscious shortly before noon Wednesday in the bathtub at his home with gas flowing from a fixture on the wall. He was hurried to Cooper Hospital, and died in a few minutes after being admitted. Miller was a baker. He had been depressed over the death of his wife. It is believed he committed suicide.

Shortly after word had been sent to the Camden city hall Wednesday that a man was wanted on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from several women, City Detective Schregler, sent to the Criminal Court to testify in a case, identified Earl M. Bockius, one of the jurors, as answering the description of the party wanted, and Bockius was committed to jail in default of $500 bail.

Indicted for manslaughter in causing the death of John Koehler, on August 14, Pasquale Isnnuzzio, of Fourth street and Joint alley, was fined $750 in the Camden Criminal Court Wednesday. When Koehler demanded a drink at the defendant's saloon on a Sunday it was alleged that the latter pushed him out of a door with such force that Koehler struck his head against a curb and fractured his skull.

After a systematic search of several days had proved futile, the body of Harrison James, of Philadelphia, who was drowned by the capsizing of a boat while fishing in Beach Thoroughfare, Atlantic City, a week ago Wednesday, was washed ashore on the ocean beach at Longport Wednesday. It was found by a patrolman from the government life-saving station. James was enjoying a holiday with Charles Watson, a friend, when he met his death.

Disguised in a bathing suit, Edward Reder, a policeman, followed Samuel Siegel, fifteen years old, into the breakers in Atlantic City Wednesday and arrested him for a bathing-suit theft. William S. Cuthbert, a councilman, who conducts a bathing establishment, missed robes and complained to the police. Reeder was assigned to the case and donned bathing attire. He found Siegel, it is alleged, in a stolen garment and prisoner and captor went to court in abbreviated attire. There Siegel said Joseph Millstone, who was present to testify for him, had loaned him the costume and both were held in bail for the grand jury.

The social to be held at the First M. E. church, tonight, will be in the nature of a rally of the Ladies' Aid Society and all the members of the church are invited to start the season's activities.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a regular meeting tonight.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet Monday night and consider several applications for membership.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will go to Somerville tomorrow, when they will try and take the "rubber" from the Somerset county aggregation. Plainfield took the first contest and Somerville won the game last Saturday.

It is admitted that the Plainfield boys were off in their playing last week, but they have been getting some good practice the past few days and feel sure of taking the third contest.

Ward and Walter Nelson will be in the points for Plainfield and they are both in fine condition for the diamond battle. Clinton will be on the firing line for Somerville and he will doubtless give the locals a little trouble, although they have been successful in solving his deceptive curves.

Otherwise Manager Dorflinger's boys will lineup as in the first two games. A large number of rooters will accompany the team to Somerville and cheer the players on to victory.

FOOTBALL.

The Plainfield Association Football Club will play the Thomas A. C., at Kearney, tomorrow afternoon and they are confident of a victory. This will be one of the Amateur Soccer League games and no doubt will be witnessed by a large crowd. A week from tomorrow the Plainfielders will play on their home ground.

GRAND NEW DISPLAY of HIGH-GRADE CLOTHING

FALL OPENING AT THE PEOPLE'S STORE

This elegant array of new Fall garments with which we open the Fall season represents the crowning achievement of our life's work. We are proudly conscious of having reached the very pinnacle of perfection in all that goes to make clothing not only an article of adornment, but of stability as well. Your generous approbation--which is sure to come--is all that is needed to make this Fall opening an epoch-maker in the clothing business of this city.

MATERIALS and MAKE

All Materials in Our Garments, right down to the last stitch, are the best that money can buy. They stand so far above the ordinary kind even the most inexperienced readily recognize their superiority. Skillful Union hand tailoring under our own supervision is a feature of all new Fall styles. This is a most effective Boycott of Sweat Shop Labor which no adverse Court decision can reach.

STYLES and PRICES

Good dressers wear garments in harmony with their individuality. The "Hand-me-downs", which differ only from last season's style in a slight change of pattern, don't interest you. You won't find them here. Our New Fall Models designed after latest New York fashions fairly glisten with the many novelties and fancies of the season's styles. Prices are uniformly lower than asked in most cases for the ordinary kind at other stores.

Suits, Coats and Dresses

Tailored Coat Suits are the correct thing this Fall. Our Models possess a chic and charm peculiarly their own. All fashionable colors and shades. Charming single-piece Dresses. Coats ranging from unlined Coverts to satin-lined Plush, Velvets, and Caraculs. See them at the

SHE FAILED TO PROVE HIS THREATS TO KILL.

On complaint of his wife, William Stites, of 15 Mountain avenue, was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon this morning on a charge of threatening to kill her. He was discharged for lack of proof.

The couple have not lived together since last January. They have a little son, which is in possession of the mother and Stites has the privilege of seeing the boy every week, but Mrs. Stites claims that her husband follows her about and that she had been told that he had threatened to shoot her. He was advised to keep away from his wife which he promised to do, but he denied all the allegations of threats and trailing her about and attempted to make a speech to the judge. He was not allowed to continue. Samuel S. Swackhamer represented Stites.

TRINITY C. E. SOCIETY ATTEND ANNIVERSARY IN ELIZABETH.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, together with a delegation of seven members from the Christian Endeavor Society, attended the twenty-fifth anniversary of the C. E. society of the Third Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, last night.

The Elizabeth society is the oldest one in the county, and the society of Trinity church is the second oldest one. Mr. Broek extended greetings for his society, explaining that it would soon celebrate its silver anniversary. Rev. J. T. Kerr, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, made the address of the evening.

Given a Kitchen Shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schlick, of West Third street, who were recently married, were given a kitchen shower at their home last night. The affair was arranged by the Owl Social club, and was attended by friends from New York, Newark, Somerville and other places. During the evening piano selections were given by the Misses Edith Meyer and Nettie Schlick and James Moore made a decided hit with monologues and songs.

To Welcome New Pastor.

The members of the Swedish Congregation church will welcome their new pastor, Rev. M. Sjodlum, at the church tomorrow evening, when a reception will be tendered him. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, Captain Hewitt, of the Salvation Army, and Rev. Mr. Torne will make short addresses, and music will be furnished by the choir of the church. Mr. Sjodlum succeeds Rev. Theodore Englund.

Patrons Enjoy "Prince Karl."

"Prince Karl," a comedy in four acts, presented at The Plainfield theatre yesterday by the permanent stock company, was enjoyed by a large audience. It will be the offering today and tomorrow. The sale of seats for "The Arcadians" on Monday night is very large, there being a great demand for seats for this performance.

YERKES AND PROBASCO BIBLE CLASSES UNITE.

The members of the Yerkes and Probasco Bible classes of the First Baptist church held a meeting at the home of Dr. Norman H. Probasco last night, when it was decided to consolidate the two classes, the name to be known as the Yerkes-Probasco Bible class, with Dr. N. H. Probasco as teacher. The class has a membership of thirty-two. These officers were elected:

President, Arthur N. Ferris; vice-president, Harold Robins; secretary, William Banks; treasurer, Sidney Mackey. Those present were William Briggs, William Banks, George Church, David Smith, S. Mackey, Harold Robins, Jere. Manning, William Flanders, W. Martin, H. Perry, W. Bingaman, H. Cubberley, Arthur Ferris, David Wise, George Williams and Dr. Probasco.

Will Attend Cup Race.

A delegation of Plainfield Cycle Club members left this morning by wheel to be in attendance at the Vanderbilt cup race. The party included George and Edward Simon, Clarence Baker, Walter Cubberly and George Hartfelder. George Simon has been taking part in several races lately and has been doing some good work.

Equal Suffrage League to Meet.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield will hold its first Fall meeting Monday afternoon, October 10 at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Stephen Haff, 954 West Seventh street. There will be a report of all committees and a discussion of the plans for the season.

G. E. Firstbrook in Town.

George E. Firstbrook, formerly a local newspaper man and now connected with the Philadelphia Press, paid a brief visit to friends in town yesterday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Firstbrook, who will spend a week with her parents, Captain and Mrs. Benjamin Cole, of Dunellen.

Dr. Herring to Lecture.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will give his illustrated on "Palestine" tonight at the Congregational Memorial church, Newark. He will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, of Newark, who formerly resided here.

The first vesper service of the season will be held at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. G. A. Warner will speak and Miss Elizabeth Goddard will sing.

GOLF.

Hidden behind the smiles and congratulatory speeches immediately following the finish of the national amateur golf championship tournament at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass., lurked feelings of unrest. As usual when anything happens to disturb the serenity of United States Golf Association affairs, it is not difficult to discover the cause. The West, the wild and untamed, is once again on the rampage.

Several sectional organizations, including the Massachusetts, Metropolitan and Western Pennsylvania associations, have received circular communications from the West asking for co-operation in the formation of a proposed body to be known as the National Golf Association.

Henry Fownes, of Pittsburg, who witnessed the success of his nephew in the decisive match against Warren K. Wood, was outspoken in regard to the latest Western agitation. He said:

"At a recent meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association the national proposition was acted on and we promptly voted to have none of it. I think any such movement toward the formation of another national organization would be a serious mistake."

Others who cared to discuss the matter spoke in the same vein, and it is certain the proposition will receive no encouragement in the East.

The main cause for discontent on the part of the dissatisfied element is the failure of all clubs in the parent body to secure voting representation. This was thrashed out pretty thoroughly last winter, when the constitution of the United States Golf Association was revised in a manner apparently satisfying to the West.

An Assault Case.

John Waldron was complainant against Michael Crowley, of Rock avenue, in the city court this morning for an alleged assault committed last Saturday night. Waldron was represented by Francis J. Blatz and after hearing both sides Judge Runyon deserved decision.

E. F. Champlin, the Somerset st. druggist, is atending Rexall convention at Boston. There are 1,500 delegates there from all parts of the Unted States.

Horse and Carriage Gone.

A telephone message from the Rahway police notified local headquarters that a black horse attached to a black buggy had disappeared from in front of a doorway in that city. No description was given of the animal.

WHAT KIND OF A MAN WOULD YOU LIKE TO MARRY?

What sort of occupation do you want the "not-impossible" to have? Is he to be a business man, the member of a profesion, the follower of an art? Her are a few hints that may guide you in your choice.

The man who works with his hands, the skilled tradesman or the small merchant is apt to be domestic. He is usually too tired at night to want to go out much, which is pleasing for the home-loving wife, but not for her who is fond of gayety.

The farmer is likely to live to ripe old age, and will never make much call upon his wife to act as a sick nurse. All winter he is at home most of the time—a thing which many a business man's helpmate would consider paradise. On the other hand, he expects his wife to be a hard worker, and the loneliness of farm life is too much for many women. There are more farmers' wifes in insane asylums than any other class. Simple living may make the farmer a bit more "close," too, and as years go on he is apt to become unprogressive, though in these days of modern improvements this is by no means always true. The farmer's chief recommendation is that, as a class, he is the most faithful and steady of husbands.

The business man, whether his work be in factory, store bank or office is most likely of all so far mentioned to make a companion of his wife. Married couples seldom go into business together here, as they so frequently do in France, but the wife is often the silent partner of the firm. The business man's mate is surest of a fixed allowance and straightforward treatment, for her husband is used to direct methods and dealings. Often the business man lives at a nervous strain and needs to be handled carefully and steady. His chief fault is likely to be irritability, which finds vent in fault-finding. The oversensative woman would better keep away from him.

The doctor is not a safe choice. In the first place, his hours are irregular and life with him becomes a torment to an overcareful housekeeper. In the next, his patients absorb too much of his time that to the critical wife may be neglectful. Finally, he is often subject to bad temper and fickleness, and the early years of married life are apt to be poverty-stricken. As the other side of the picture, he is tender and sympathetic in trouble, he is usually soft-hearted and easily coaxed and calmed, and the doctor's wife has always a certain standing in the community.

The minister is not a good husband for a woman with nerves, or without patience and Christian charity. His mind is apt to be in the clouds most of the tme, and he is even less at leasure than is the doctor. But he is usually an easily managed husband, almost sure to be faithful and devoted, and there is a dependence on his goodness that is comfortable and satisfying.

The lawyer is apt to be cold, outwardly at least, and perhaps that most annoying of all types, the quizzical man. He is only too likely to waver from the narrow path, and is often headstrong. Still, he takes a great pride in his wife, for she is a social and professional asset to him, and he will express his praise freely. And financially he is a good investment.

The teacher will make an ideal father. He is broadminded, likes women and has the vacation habit. But he is inclined to be dictorial and despotic.

The artist and the musician, to some extent the literary man, make adorable lovers, but poor husbands. They are usually already wedded to their art, and make you fully understand that you are the second wife. They are fickle, eccentric and sometimes cruel. They are never housebroken, and should not be attempted by women who cannot sympathize and understand.

The army and navy man is fond and indulgent, but has little money, is away most of the time and may be fickle.

FOR GIRLS WHO LIKE TO SEW.

Dark red linen makes a girlish dress that can be worn with a coat for lingerie waist. The material launders nicely.

Some walking suits are trimmed with pompadour ribbon on the collar, narrow revers, cuffs and belt, the ribbon matching the stripe of the material.

When altering a blouse for any reason it is a great mistake to move the shoulder seam to the front. A far better plan is that of dropping it backward instead of forward.

Vanity bags for dancing parties are most attractively made of dainty ribbon, in the form of a tiny bag, which holds powder and puff ball, while the bottom on the outside has a mirror, held in place by a shirred piece of ribbon, after first being glued to the rib-covered cardboard, which forms the inside of the bag.

The Betraying Feature.

Mr. Hubb—The intelligence office manager told me that our new girl was once an actress.

Mrs. Hubb—I believe it. She dusts the furniture exactly as the soubrette does it on the stage.—Boston Transcript.

Scene From "The Arcadians," at P lanfield Theatre next Monday Night.

From an airship in Arcadia to a race track near London, from the most soothing of musical numbers and stage settings to just a dash of melodrama—hat is "The Arcadians," which Charles Frohman will present here on Monday night, at the Plainfield theatre, and this city is promised something new in musical comedies even if the producers had to go to London to get it. Charming music, clever comedy, and a thread of a plot to hold, the last are the features which are said to have made "The Arcadians" popular. The theatregoers of the city are assured by Chas. Frohman, the producer of the same company that is playd now at the New York theatre will be seen in this city in what has been declared the most important musical comedy since the "Merry Widow" was produced.

A Pudding Garnish.

Skin of lemons or orange make nice garnishing if carefully prepared. Cut the peel into shreds two inches long; boil until soft in one gill of water with one ounce of loaf sugar; then put on a flat plate and stan din the refrigerator to get icy cold.

Men's Suits $10, $12 and $15

In these days when newspapers and magazines teem with clothing advertisements men are likely to become more or less confused when they come to make selection; so many claims are put forth by the makers of various trade-marked clothing that while all may have certain merits one finds it difficult to decide between them.

Of course you can't go to every shop in town examining clothing, and if you did what would it avail you if you are not an expert?

There is only one thing for a man to do when it comes to selecting a suit or top coat for fall and winter wear, that is to come to a store like this whose representations he can trust, where the character of the clothing sold is well established, and where prices are known to be fair.

In such a store one cannot well go wrong.

We invite men to see the suits we feature at $10, $12 and $15—suits of pure worsted, in gray and brown mixtures; beautifully modeled, splendidly tailored, dependable in every way; snappy styles for the younger men, conservative styles for business men—a good variety of each. We believe these to be equal to any and superior to most of the suits sold in Newark, a town notable for its low prices in clothing, at $10, $12 and $15.

We urge you also to see the higher-class suits we sell at $25, made of exclusive fabrics, in rare patterns and unusually handsome models, giving you perfection in tailoring—English ideas adapted to the needs of America's smart dressers.

For Girls & Young Women---New Fall Coats

We invite especial attention to our assortment of girls' coats. You will remember we are heavy users of the famous normal college coat. This coat is gotten out according to our ideas as to what a coat ought to be and the thousands that buy them attest that we know what's what. Materials are strictly all wool, rough, plain cheviots, some mixtures, fastening shield shape, and the collars shaped by men tailors. All colors, size 8 to 16 yrs., here... $10.00

Some Children's Dresses

A good thing for a little money, the materials are galatea, percales and linen, in blue and black plaids, stripes and checks, with full quilted skirts, and trimmed collars, in sizes 6 to 14 years..... .98

These Girls' Wash Dresses

A splendid assortment of dresses that any mother can feel proud to have her little one wear. Just the little conceits she likes, without the nerve-racking experience of having to make them at home. Plaids, ginghams, plain percales, stripes, galateas, plain or combination of plain back models and many others..... $3.00

HOW AND WHAT TO READ.

There are a great many girls who have just finished high school or college, and it is not easy for those who have been mentally occupied for several years to fill their time entirely with the little details of housekeping or sewing. Alert minds must have food, and while a girl may enjoy the social gayety for which she now has the freedom, and while she may be interested in domestic cares, she will still be somewhat oppressed by hours that drag, unless she can put into them something worth while.

It is not always easy to join classes and, indeed, too many clubs become a burden of expense, and encroach to much upon one's time. There is, too, more individuality developed by selecting our own line of reading and forming our own opinions. A club often makes us dependent on the criticisms of others, and I do not believe we get the pleasure or intimacy with an author by seeing him through the eyes of others, that we do when we find out his faults and his fascinations for ourselves.

While most of us enjoy fiction, and few of us really lose history, a little less of the former and more of the latter would usually be beneficial. I would suggest, therefore, that if fiction be read it have a purpose in your next winter's line of thought. Why not plan to take up French and devote several months to the study of its people, its literature, its history, or, if you prefer, take some hero like Napoleon and read everything you can find about him.

There is perhaps no greater romance in all fiction than the life of this man. It is a story with a sad ending, and you may weep a little over the sorrows of Josephine, but you will be thrilled again and again by the marvelous power which for a time moved the world, and you will learn that ambition when it sweeps love and friendship out of the way, and when it places self above all else, can only end in tragedy.

At any library you can find the best books about Napoleon, and when you have read them read Victor Hugo's "Les Miserable," with its wonderful description of Waterloo, and if you wish a picture of the Revolution which brought the need of a leader like Napoleon, read Dicken's "Tale of Two Cities," which gives a realistic picture of that time of passion and of carnage.

Perhaps, however, you would enjoy more the tales of merry England. What do you know of Richard the Lion Hearted, or of Henry VIII., a veritable Bluebeard with his many wives? What do you know of Scotland and of that Mary who was beheaded? Of course, you may say that you have read of these people at school, but I want you to get inimate with them, so that they will seem like personalities and not like the effigies in the wax works.

HOUSEHOLD JOTTINGS.

Save your fat for soap making. It is not difficult, and makes a good quality of soap at less cost than it can be bought. If a teaspoonful of salt is added to every six pounds of grease the soap made will profit, and so will the hands of the user.

To avoid a spotted floor, hard to scrub, insist upon the boards or cement of the cellar being wet before whitewashing is begun. Spots of the wash are thus easily washed up, as the water prevents the lime from soaking in the floor.

Corn fritters should be mixed with as little flour as can hold them together. Fry in butter and serve very hot. They should not be fried in large batches before a meal, as they are much better served from the skillet.

If a porcelain lined kettle has become soiled and browned, try filling it with water in which a little chloride of lime is placed. Let it boil hard for about twenty minutes. The kettle will look as good as new. It must be thoroughly rinsed and scrubbed before using.

When a room is to be closed for several months work powdered borax into the edges of the carpets and under the spots where heavy furniture rests.

When the knobs of kettle lids are too hot to handle, cover them with a rubber nipple or with several thicknesses of adhesive paper and the heat will not be felt.

Have you ever been aghast at spilling ink on a new linen table cover? The next time you are so unfortunate, dip the spots at once in hot tallow; then wash out the grease and the ink will be gone.

When dusting polished furniture try dampening the cloth with equal parts of kerosene and turpentine and your furniture will look like new.

Odd.

"Eliza," yelled the poet, "why don't you keep that kid quiet? What ails him, anyway?"

"I'm sure I don't know," replied his patient wife; "I'm singing one of your lullabies to the little darling."—Catholic Standard and Times.

WHAT TO DO WHEN A CHILD IS DELICATE.

So often, even in these enlightened days, we hear the phrase, "Oh, he is such a delicate child! He is a great care." But the mother who makes the remark never for a moment imagines that in many cases her early up-bringing of the child has made it what it is.

One child, of course, may inherit a more robust constitution than another, but still very often those who are decided weaklings when they reach a school age might have been strong and healthy if only proper care of the little essentials had been taken from birth upward.

Unfortunately many maternity nurses still cling to the old-fashioned idea that the new born babe must at once be given a dose of castor oil. This is a very bad beginning, and is responsible for "upsetting" more infants than almost anything else.

Of course, there is the child who inherits a delicate constitution, has a tendency to be "chesty," or perhaps suffers from weak heart or lungs. All such requires extra care, but even these may be much improved and in many instances be made quite "strong" by a strict adherence to a few general rules of healthy living.

Let me give you some useful hints:

Don't overburden the delicate child with too many clothes, but have those worn made of all-wool materials, warm, very light. A woven binder will save your child from many a chill. In this changeable climate it is most necessary to keep a child's stomach well protected from sudden changes of temperature.

Be very careful with regards to the feet and legs. Stockings, not socks, should be worn outdoors in winter as soon as the child is of walking age. Boots with light uppers, but strong soles, are best for children. Too heavy boots tire unnecessarily.

Don't coddle by wrapping up the throat with mufflers, or forbidding a child to go out in the rain or snow. If it is properly clad and not permitted to remain in wet things the weather will not harm it, provided it is not suffering from cough or cold.

The delicate child needs plenty of fresh air even more than its strong fellow, so let it sleep out of doors, warmly wrapped up to its chin when tiny, and be out as much as possible when it grows older.

A delicate child is often excessively quick with its brain. See that you don't allow this to be overtaxed. Rather keep it back from having regular lessons than push its education in any way. A properly graduated course of physical exercises, gone through in a well ventilated room, is a splendid assistance on the road to health. But be sure you get your doctor to prescribe the amount and kind of exercise suitable for your child.

Plain food, plainly cooked, is the only diet possible if you really wish to build up the health of your little one. No "made" dishes, no sauces or high seasoning should be given to children. Roast and boiled meats, suet or milk puddings, with stewed fruits, and oatmeal should be their staple foods.

The fragile child should always be made to rest quietly both before and after meals. Such a regime greatly aids digestion.

Hot baths should not be given to children. Tepid water is best, while for those who are "chesty" cold sponging of chest, back and shoulders, followed by a brisk rubbing with a rough towel, will be found very strengthening. A delicate child should never be put into an entirely cold bath. The shock to the system is too great, and the circulation of the blood is generally too poor to give the proper after-reaction and glow, therefore chills ensue.

FOR THE BABY.

There are many things which can be embroidered or entirely made by the clever aunt or best friend of the new arrival's mother. Usually they should be in white, though pink for a boy and blue for a girl are also sanctioned.

One of the best gifts is a carriage cover of union linen, embroidered in a flower design and with a huge bow of ribbon on each side.

Then there are carriage parasols of finer linen or batiste, with scalloped ruffles and ribbon beading.

And little linen bootees, washable, with an edging of valenciennes lace and a ribbon bow below the embroidered strap.

Rattles may be crocheted around with thick silk, to keep them from hurting baby when they fall. Be sure the color is absolutely fast, as babies put everything in their mouths.

Safety-pin holders come in ribbon, with crocheted rings for the pins, or as embroidered linen rolls lined with canton flannel with the fuzzy side out.

Soft towels for the bath have a line of drawnwork or hemstitching and the baby's own initial embroidered above.

Baby armlets or sock garters of ribbon elastic edged with gathered lace are easily made and very pretty.

Pincushions galore will suggest themselves to auntie as she looks over her scraps of silk and lace and velvet.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"I say, I'm afraid you're frightfully sarcastic," said Loveland, who had never had an American girl for a friend before and found that having one kept his hands full. "You think I'm a beast to marry a girl for her money."

"First catch your hare."

"You mean I mayn't get one to take me?"

"One never can tell. There have been slips between cup and lip."

"Although I'm poor, I can give my wife a lot of things a woman likes to have."

"Second best things."

"Oh, come! You haven't stopped to think what they are."

"I've stopped to think that love's the best thing—the thing a girl cares most for a man to give her."

"It seems to me that all the girls I know would be pretty well satisfied with the right to walk into a dining room behind a duchess and"—

"Do you? What a lot you've got to learn about girls!"

"Well, go on being my friend and give me good advice, please," said

"ARE THERE MANY OTHER GIRLS IN THE STATES AS BEAUTIFUL AS SHE?"

Loveland. "There's Miss Coolidge too. She's a beautiful creature. Are there many other girls in the States as beautiful as she?"

"As beautiful, but few more beautiful."

"Any beautiful ones richer?"

"I'm not up in that kind of statistics. Major Cadwallader Hunter is."

"Yes, but I don't care for the fellow. I'd rather take counsel with you. Do you know Miss Coolidge?"

"No."

"I wish you did."

"Would you like me to use my influence with her?"

"I should like you to use your influence with me to keep me up to the mark. She's rather hard to talk to—so different from you."

"She knows her value. She's worth several millions, as we say in America—I wish we didn't. Why should she worry to make herself agreeable? She can get all the attention she wants without bothering, whereas we poor girls have to work hard if we want to be popular in spite of our poverty."

"I suppose there's something in that," said Loveland, too deeply absorbed in his own affairs not to take her in earnest. And the girl would have liked to turn a scornful shoulder upon him if his voice had not been so nice and if he had not been so handsome. "He is a perfectly worthless young man," she reflected savagely, yet she did not tell him, as he deserved, that she had reconsidered and would not, after all, undertake the extra hard work of being his guide, philosopher and friend.

At first all the girls had admired Loveland not only because he had a title, but because he was himself, and some of the younger ones, like Fanny Milton and Madge Beverly, had been inclined to regard him as a starry paladin. Fanny said he was "so handsome it almost hurt" and that she "could hardly talk to him for gazing at his Gibson chin." But when the more sophisticated Eva Turner, Elinor Coolidge, Kate Wood and a few others realized that their starry paladin was impudently inspecting them all with a view to the possible purchase of the most satisfactory each began to hate him secretly with forty woman power, secretly because there was a kind of glory in him as an asset. They were worldly though good hearted girls to whom Major Cadwallader Hunter had introduced his prize, and they foresaw that handsome Lord Loveland would be petted, perhaps fought for, in society when he had left the little world of the Mauretania for the bigger world of New York. There would be an advantage in having known him first in case he should become the "rage," as he was sure to do if not too insufferably rude and offensive. Thinking of this, each girl clung to her share of him and refrained from trampling on the expensive doll, as, for her pride's sake, she ached to do.

Val was unaware of the hatred, but conscious of the rivalry, and was altogether kept very busy. He forgot to Marconi to his mother that he had sailed on the Mauretania, as Jim Harborough had thought he might forget. As for writing, he had not a moment for any such sedentary employment.

Then presently the bugeness of the great city loomed monstrous, mountainous in purple shadow against such a blue sky as Italy and New York know.

A crowd was massed on the dock to welcome the Mauretania and her passengers, and for the first time since he had left England, Val felt a vague homesickness stirring in his breast. Almost every one else on board seemed to have at least one handkerchief waving friend, and some had half a dozen, but all the smiling, eager faces looking up were strange to his eyes. There was no one for him, and he had a sudden, queer sensation of not being at home in the world—this in spite of invitations from everybody he had met on the ship—except one—the one who mattered.

Mr. Coolidge and several other fathers and uncles of pretty girls had asked him to make their homes his home, but he had taken Jim Harborough's advice to heart and excused himself warily. His idea was to let New York society pass before his eyes in review before risking a premature entanglement. To this course he committed himself in cold blood. Since he could not have Lesley Dearmer, all that mattered to him in a girl was decent manners, decent looks and—many millions.

He had planned a moonlight farewell for the night before, but Lesley thwarted him by talking the whole evening long with a sporting youth whom Val wrathfully stigmatized in his mind as suffering from motor bicycle face, bridge eye, clutch knee and tennis elbow. Then when she had tired of her flirtation she went to bed.

Next morning it was only as the Mauretania neared her slip that the girl appeared again. Without seeming to notice Loveland she stood leaning her elbows on the rail not far from him. It occurred to Val that after all it was a matter of no importance to her that their lives were to be lived apart. And the separation was at hand. He had thought of this hour, but now it was here. He was going to love her. Tomorrow and all the tomorrows he would have no sweet, merry, mysterious eyed friend to advise him and listen, half amused, half in earnest, to his confidences.

Suddenly his heart fell like a large cold boiled beet root in his breast. He went and stood behind the girl, dumb with a strange new misery he could not understand, and, as though she had hear the "unerring speech" of his silence, she turned.

At first her beautiful brown eyes flashed a laughing challenge at him as if they said: "Wouldn't you like to make me think you really care? But I don't think it and won't. And neither do you care. We've both been playing."

Then something in his look softened hers. She smiled kindly, though not wholly without guile.

"Aren't you excited?" she asked.

"Why should I be excited?" he grumbled.

"Because—well, you're a soldier and know what war is like. I've heard that the most exciting thing which can happen is a call to make a sortie in the middle of the night, in the midst of a dream—and on an empty stomach. But I should think the call to a matrimonial sortie"—

"On an empty purse?"

"Yes, when it's a question of selling yourself to fill it."

"I don't mean to sell myself. I shall still belong to myself and to one other. I won't say who that other is, for I've pretty well told you already."

"It's no use pretending not to understand. I know what you want me to think you mean."

"If I never knew before how much I do mean it I know it now, when I've got to say goodby.

"Look here, Lesley—do look at me! I'm awfully cut up at leaving you."

"You're not to call me Lesley."

"You can't prevent my calling you Lesley to myself."

"You'll soon forget the name."

"Never. I can never forget you—worse luck. The thought of you is going to come between me and—other things."

"The thought must learn better manners—not to 'butt in,' as we say over here. Oh, it will soon be tamed. You'll have so much to do."

"I hope I shall," said Loveland. "I say, are you going to forget me as soon as we're parted?"

The girl was silent for a moment. Then she laughed. "I shall make a note of you for my next story but one," she answered.

"You're not very kind."

"Are you sure you deserve kindness?"

"I'm sure I want it—from you."

"You have always got what you wanted in your life, haven't you, one way or another?"

"Life wouldn't be worth living if one didn't."

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

Frocks for the small folk with little bloomers fastened under the skirts are in good quality gingham trimmed in contrasting colors.

THE MAN HATER

Miss Pine glanced up from her garden bed and her eyes encountered two round, blue ones, set in a square, unsmiling face, behind which a big sun hat flared out. The elastic which held the hat in place was conveniently, if not artistically, hitched under the tip of the wearer's nose.

"Good morning," said the owner of the blue eyes, taking a few tentative steps toward Miss Pine. "What are you doing?"

"I'm planting some flowers," was the reply. "What are you doing this fine morning?"

"I'm just taking a walk," answered the blue-eyed one, casually. "That is, I thought I'd come and walk past your house and see what you were doing. I thought you might be out here."

She clasped her hands behind her back and regarded Miss Pine wistfully.

"My mother and I might come in and stay with you awhile if you asked me," she ventured presently.

Miss Pine looked properly embarrassed and apologetic. "I beg your pardon," she said. "Do please come in. I have such awfully poor manners. I never thought to ask you."

The caller promptly came. "I think you have very nice manners," she remarked consolingly. "Everybody forgets sometimes."

She carefully examined a big stone that lay near the walk, then, gathering her skirts tightly about her plump knees, she sat down upon it, tipping her feet up so that only her toes touched the ground.

"Once," she said, when she was comfortably seated, "a boy told me to sit on a stone like this one and when I got up I found it was on top of an ant hill." She gave a retrospective wriggle.

"It was awful terrible," she assured Miss Pine in a hushed tone. "They bit me dreadfully and I cried for hours and hours. I had always been told that if I didn't hurt the creatures they wouldn't hurt me, so I was very much grieved in my inside feelings and my outside ones, too."

"I don't wonder," sympathized Miss Pine. "But I don't think there are any ants under that stone. It was put there only yesterday."

"I think I'd better watch, though," returned the caller, peering about anxiously. "What are you planting?"

"Pansies," said Miss Pine. "Have you planted any at your house?"

Blue Eyes sniffed disgustedly. "We did plant some," she replied, "but a boy came and kicked them all up with his foot. We do have the most awful time with boys. I don't see what they were ever made for."

"Oh, I think they have their uses," said Miss Pine, tolerantly. "Don't you know any nice boys?"

"There aren't any nice ones," Blue Eyes assured her, earnestly. "They're all bad. Even the grown-up ones. I don't like very much, except my daddy, but he's so different from the rest of them. Uncles are grown-up boys, you know, and I don't like them at all. I have several uncles, and they tease me sometimes till I can hardly bear it.

"There's a very bad boy that lives next door to us," Blue Eyes continued, ruminatingly. "You know, I have a lovely dog. Father says he's more kinds of a dog than he ever knew of before, and this bad boy next door calls him a cur. I think that's a mean thing to say and it hurts Tadpole's feelings. Tadpole's the name of my dog. Uncle Jack named him and all the other uncles would call him that, so I thought the easiest way was just to pretend I liked it and let it be his name.

"Are you married?" she interrupted herself to ask, anxiously.

"No," said Miss Pine, "and, frankly, just between you and me, I don't ever expect to be."

Blue Eyes clapped her hands delightedly. Then she got up from the stone, stepping in a rather gingerly way until she had safely cleared its environs. She threw her arms around the knees of Miss Pine and hugged them enthusiastically.

"Oh, isn't that perfectly lovely!" she rejoiced. "I'm never going to be married myself unless boys get lots nicer than they are now. Don't you think it would be just the loveliest thing in the world for me and you and my mother to live together and plant things and take care of Tadpole and not ever have any brothers or uncles or husbands or anything, but just have a good time and be widows?"

Nobility of Labor.

There is a perennial nobleness, and even sacredness in work. Were a man ever so benighted, or forgetful of his high calling, there is always hope in him who actually and earnestly works; in idleness alone is there perpetual despair.—Thomas Carlyle.

True Motive in Life.

Where you are is of no moment, but only what you are doing there. It is not the place that ennobles you, but you the place, and this is only by doing that which is great and noble.—Ruskin.

A Hard Climb.

It's a long way up to the first limb of the tree of knowledge.

To Be Sure.

Many men hitch their wagons to stars, while others are satisfied with members of the chorus.—Lippincott's.

The Sliman Woman Is Winning
The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers.
This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly.
These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 or 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, 985 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

CHINA IN STATE OF DECAY

Ruin Seen Everywhere, and No Attempt Made to Stay the Ravages of Time.

"Along the road—and this is characteristic—nothing is being repaired," writes the Peking correspondent of the London Times. "It is the national failing to spend nothing on repairs, to build and then leave the building to fall gradually into decay and ruin. Nor is anything cleaned, and the squalor that is a feature even of the imperial palace in Peking is most extraordinary. A few miles out of Honanfu there is a fine stone bridge of five arches; but the piers are falling away, the parapet has disappeared, and the flagstones with which it is paved have great gaps and hollows, so that the cart rumbles and crashes and bumps across it in a way that would break any but a Chinese springless cart. To repair is no one's business."

At another stage of his journey he remarks: "Perhaps to some extent the anticipated coming of a railway, which will kill the present cart traffic, may account for the shocking condition of the native inns. With railway extension in the air, there is no inducement for the innkeeper to spend money on the upkeep of his hovel. Nothing is repaired, their filth and squalor are amazing. In the inn yard the well has its mouth below the level of the soil, so that water which is spilt may flow back into the well and carry with it the surface drainage.

"A doctor must notice the prevalence of consumption. To the universal habit of expectoration on the floor, the exclusion of air, and the absence of drainage this prevalence must be due."

SEEK TO TERRIFY ENEMIES

Insects, Physically Unable to "Put Up Fight," Resort to All Sorts of Schemes.

It is generally believed that many animals, especially insects, assume what is called a "terrifying attitude," by means of which they escape their natural enemies. In the Zoological "Jahrbuch" Mr. Arnold Japha describes the "terrifying attitude" of the hawk-eyed moth.

During the day this insect sits with folded wings on the willow, or other tree. The eye spot and the rose-red part of the wings are hidden, and the moth looks like a group of dried willow leaves. This is its protective attitude, by which it wishes to escape observation. But if disturbed, it immediately assumes the "terrifying attitude." The eye spot and red are displayed, thorax arched, abdomen curved up. This is accompanied by a protruding and retracting of the front of the body.

The movement lasts some few seconds, or half a minute. This is thought to frighten the moth's enemies. The eye spot may suggest the eye of some larger animal, while the energetic motion may give the impression that the enemy itself is about to be seized and devoured.

But does the moth's "terrifying attitude" really frighten its enemies, and allow it to escape; Standfuss tried some experiments with a view to settling this point. He gave specimens of the moth to nightingale, red-breast, black-cap and other birds. Four out of five were obviously frightened when the moth assumed the "terrifying attitude," and left it alone after one trial.

In the Olden Days.

Gaillard Hunt describes the social graces of Dolly Madison and her First Drawing-Room, in the June Harper's, and recalls that those were the days when the society of the nation was upheld on the foundation of two principles. "One was that a man of high rank in the public service was entitled to high rank in private life. Everybody was proud of the new republic and thought it an honor to associate with those who guided its destinies. The other was that members of families who had always occupied prominence in private life should continue in their position. It was not until the next generation that the political doctrine of the equality of men was construed to require a removal of the barriers which separated groups of people in private life."

Fine for Tabby.

A middle-aged Washington maiden possesses a cat that is the light of her eyes. Life is a gray misery when household duties compel her shopping far from the adored tabby. But love has found a way. She has built two little bags, one of woolen for winter wear, warm and cosy as a pocket; the other of netting mesh for warm weather. In each she has crocheted or quilted, or however women work such things, a neat circular window for light and comfort.

Any day she may be seen in the shopping district, smiling, for hanging at her belt is a bag from which a comfortable cat looks contemptuously out upon a walking world and placidly views the passing show.

Perfectly Easy.

"See here, my man," said the philanthropist who was doing an investigating stunt on his own account, "you are an interesting puzzle to me."

"Is that so?" queried the other.

"Yes, it's so," answered the party of the philanthropy part. "You are too honest to steal, too proud to beg, and too lazy to work. How do you manage to live?"

"Oh," was the reply, "I get trusted."
